255. The remuneration to the New Company is liberal; but, in making this important experiment, the Government deemed it essential to offer inducements sufficient to ensure the devotion to the management of the Line of at least as much energy, enterprise, and skill as have contributed to produce the success of the East Indian Railway as it is. The theory of the new plan is that a personal interest on the part of the managers, such a property is likely to yield more satisfactory results than the best conceivable official management without that stimulus; and it was necessary to take care that, in the actual arrangements made, the stimulus provided should be adequate.

† The actual payment is only £41,720 on four-fifths of the Capital, but, by the contract with the Working Company, their Capital is placed in the same condition as if a yearly Sinking Fund payment of £10,180 were made on their one fifth of the Capital also. Credit must plainly be taken for this item in favour of the new arrangement.

256. The contract is to be for fifty years, terminable, however, first, after twenty years, and, thereafter, at intervals. DURATION OF CONTRACT.

257. The Government of India have only now to record their high appreciation of the success obtained by the Company now in liquidation. The construction and management of the East Indian Railway is an achievement of which Great Britain may be proud; and the honour of it belongs chiefly to the East Indian Railway Company and its many distinguished Officers. The services of those who remain will not be lost to the State. Nor can the Government of India withhold the expression of its appreciation of the broad sagacity with which the Chairman who has, for twenty-five years, so ably presided over the East Indian Railway Company, has conducted the negotiation the successful termination of which has now been recorded. SERVICE OF EXISTING E. I. R. COMPANY.
AND THEIR CHAIRMAN.

258. 34 & XXVII, State Railways.—Revenue more £280,000. Expenditure less £37,000. Net Result better £317,000. Net Revenue £245,000. Considerable improvement expected in the revenues of these Lines. The account of the Revenue and Expenditure of the Lines constructed by means of Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure is shown below the first total in Abstract No. II. This statement shows Revenue more £280,000. Expenditure more £130,000. Net Revenue more £150,000. Net Revenue £329,000. The Revenue shown in this Statement above the first Total is that of the Mathura-Hatras Line, the cost of which was not treated as Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure. STATE RAILWAYS.

259. 35 & XXVIII, Madras Canal Company.—Less Revenue £13,000. The Revenue this year was due to special causes explained upon the Regular Estimate. MADRAS CANAL COMPANY.

260. 36 & XIX, Provincial and Local Surplus and Deficits.—Surplus less £283,000. Deficits more £154,000. Net worse £437,000. Net Deficit £191,000. This year the Provincial Governments are saving £246,000 of their income. Next year they expect to spend £191,000 more than their income. These Governments have considerable balances at their credit (See Abstract Statement No. IX), and they might profitably spend some part of them; but the Government of India has been obliged, for financial reasons, to place some temporary restraint upon them in this respect. PROVINCIAL AND LOCAL SURPLUS AND DEFICITS.

|---------|------------|
| 1872-73 | 14,596,802 |
| 1873-74 | 14,217,390 |
| 1874-75 | 14,386,321 |
| 1875-76 | 11,262,816 |
| 1876-77 | 14,866,639 |
| 1877-78 | 15,769,780 |

262. The net average yearly cost of the Army, as recorded in the Accounts, in times of peace, cannot now be estimated at less than £15,200,000. The sum provided in the Estimates of 1879-80 for the Military operations beyond the Frontier is £2,000,000.

263. 39. Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure.—Less £1,099,000. Much to its regret, the Government of India has been obliged to reduce to £3,500,000 the grant for these works. There can be no doubt that much more than this could be profitably spent, but the Government have not this year the means of supplying more. CAPITAL EXPENDITURE, PRODUCTIVE PUBLIC WORKS.

264. Productive Public Works Revenues and Expenditure.—Revenue more £287,000. Expenditure more £227,000. Net Expenditure less £60,000. Net loss on working £1,622,000. Including the Gain by Exchange (£337,000) and the Loss (£1,262,000) arising out of these transactions, we have the following results:—

|-------------------------------|-----------|
| Interest and Working Expenses | 9,740,000 |
| Revenue | 7,243,000 |

against which has to be set the Land Revenue due to Productive Works in Madras, and it has to be borne in mind that some considerable amount of interest is charged upon Capital which is still infructuous. The depression of the Guaranteed Railways (expected to yield next year £1,985,356 less than in 1877-78) produces this comparatively unfavourable result.

265. The deficit thus shown upon the face of the Estimates, after providing £2,000,000 for the expenses of the war in Afghanistan, is £1,395,000. It must, however, as has frequently been pointed out on former occasions, be remembered in estimating the real amount of our annual revenues, that among the receipts there is shown a merely nominal credit on account of the extinct

Military Funds. This amounts in the present Estimates to £214,000 and it plainly adds nothing to our actual resources. It must also not be forgotten that the Estimates under Loss by Exchange would have been increased by £189,815, if provision were now being made for the remittance of the whole net current requirements of the Home Treasury during the year. If there had been no war, the surplus shown on the Estimates could have been £605,000. Taking however, into consideration the points just noticed, which cannot easily be neglected if we desire to form a really complete and accurate judgment on the actual financial condition of the country, and making certain allowances on the other side of the account, the Governor General in Council is of opinion that looking only to the normal resources of the year, the real Estimated Surplus would be £813,000.

266. If the exchange could have been estimated for the coming year at the same rate as that taken for 1878-79, this surplus would have been larger by £1,364,000. Apart from the war, the Surplus, on the face of the Estimates, would, in that event, have amounted to £1,969,000; and after making the corrections to which reference has just been made, £2,177,000.

267. Thus, but for the further fall in exchange, the Government of India would have been able, by suspending, during the year, the operation of the so-called Famine Insurance Surplus, to pay from the actual normal resources of the year, the whole estimated cost of the war in Afghanistan. The extreme gravity of this question of the exchange can hardly be stated too strongly.

WAYS AND MEANS.

268. Ways and Means.—Excluding the book-credits from the Military Funds, the gross Deficit of Public Revenue is £5,109,000. In accordance with the change of policy described in paragraph 28, provision is made for the loan of only £200,000 (net) to Native States and Corporations, &c.; £287,500 net is expected to reach the Treasury on the Miscellaneous Debt Account, the main items of Deposits and Remittances being, as usual, estimated to be in equilibrium. Thus, provision must be made for a net sum of £5,026,500; but as £1,673,500 has to be repaid to the holders of the Five-and-a-Half per Cent. Loan and others, the gross deficiency is £6,695,000, of which, upon the estimates, £700,000 will be provided from the Public Balances. A Notification is published to-day inviting a Loan in India of Five Crores of the remainder. As £1,550,000 of this is needed to discharge on the 1st May next, the untransferred portion of the Five-and-a-Half per Cent. Loan, the net amount thus called for is only £3,450,000.

BRIEF REVIEW OF FINANCES OF FOUR YEARS, 1876-80.

269. In making this announcement the Governor General in Council thinks it desirable to present the following brief statement of the Finances of the four years, 1876-80. Excluding the Fund credits and including provision for the remittance of the whole current requirements of the Home Treasury, the deficit of the four years amounts to £24,863,000. Extraordinary Public Expenditure has been or is being incurred during this period as follows:—

| | £ |
|---|--------------------|
| Famine, including loss of Revenue ... | 9,400,000 |
| War ... | 2,670,000 |
| Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure ... | 16,699,000 |
| TOTAL ... | £28,769,000 |

NET RESULT.

270. Thus, if these three great disturbing causes were eliminated, there would have been a Surplus during the four years £3,906,000. In other words, the current revenue has contributed £3,906,000 towards these extraordinary objects, besides bearing all current burdens. The net addition to the Registered Debt during this period is £20,920,061, but of this sum, £2,795,731 was lent at interest to Native States, Corporations, &c., and £1,554,629, Railway Capital, was repaid. The net amount borrowed during the four years is only £16,570,000.

271. The difference between the deficit of the four years (£24,863,000) and the net amount borrowed (£16,570,000) is £8,293,000, which is thus supplied—

| | £ |
|---|------------|
| The Public Balances reduced by | 4,372,000 |
| The Secretary of State's bills outstanding increased by ... | *1,740,000 |
| Deposits and Remittances | 2,181,000 |

272. The Government of India has repeatedly declared that an annual surplus of £2,000,000 is necessary, in ordinary times, to provide the means of protecting, so far as may be possible, the country against famine, and leave a margin such as every solvent State ought to maintain to meet unforeseen contingencies. It has been necessary, as has been shown, to abandon all hope of obtaining such a surplus in the coming year.

273. The ultimate burden caused by the war will not, it may be reasonably anticipated, prove serious, and the assistance which will, it is hoped, be given from the British Treasury removes all present anxiety on this head. The deficit caused by the war, and shown in the Estimates of the coming year, is therefore rather apparent than real.

274. The reduction in the revenues caused by the depression of trade and the diminished receipts from the Guaranteed Railways will, it cannot be doubted, be temporary only; and the Guaranteed and State Railways are certain to prove growing sources of revenue.

275. The loss caused by the further and great fall which has taken place in the value of silver in relation to gold is a far more real and serious cause of financial embarrassment.

276. The Loss by Exchange on the estimated amount of the Home remittances in the coming year is £3,947,368; it would have been £4,142,000 if provision were made for remittances to cover the whole of the current Home Charges. The latter sum is more by £3,324,000 than would have been required for the remittance of the same amount in 1872-73, the last year before the long standing equilibrium between gold and silver was violently disturbed. So far as these remittances are required to meet fixed payments, such as Interest, Pensions and the like,—and such fixed payments constitute the bulk of the Home charges,—it may be said that this great sum of £3,324,000 represents the yearly taxation now required in addition to what would have been necessary if the old rate of exchange had been maintained.

277. In the Financial Statement published at the beginning of the present year, it was shown that the Government believed that a bond fide surplus of nearly £2,000,000 of income over expenditure had been secured; and of this sum, £1,500,000 was to be annually set aside as a special provision against famine. This apparently very satisfactory result was brought about partly by administrative improvements, but mainly by the imposition of new taxation, estimated to yield, eventually, about £1,160,000 a year (see para. 160). The Government then hoped that it saw its way to giving to the country the most complete protection which could be devised against the terrible calamities of famine to which it is periodically exposed. It was also sanguine that many reforms were within our reach which would be in the highest degree beneficial.

278. Although the condition of the finances continues in other respects to be favorable, the fresh fall in the value of silver in relation to gold has, as has been shown, virtually swept away the financial improvement arrived at with so much difficulty. It may be considered that the whole of the new taxation has been swallowed up in the additional charges on account of Loss by Exchange. The net amount yielded by this taxation in the present year was, as has been stated in para. 160, about £971,100, and it is estimated at £1,077,400 for 1879-80. To remit the whole of the amount required to meet the Home

* On the 1st April 1876, bills for only £12,000 were outstanding unpaid; the Secretary of State had suspended his drawings. The usual amount is about 1½ millions.

Charges in the coming year, it has just been shown that the sum of £1,364,362 would be required in excess of the estimate of last year. The insurance provided against future famine has virtually ceased to exist; and the difficulties in the way of fiscal and commercial and administrative reform have been greatly aggravated. Nor can it be any way assumed that the evil will not continue and go on increasing.

FINANCIAL POLICY
UNCONCERTED.

279. Under such circumstances it is extremely difficult to follow any settled financial policy; for the Government cannot even approximately tell what income will be required to meet the necessary expenditure of the State.

PROBLEM OCCUPY-
ING ATTENTION OF GOVERNMENT.

280. It is hardly necessary to add that this most grave question has long been a cause of anxious deliberation to the Government of India. The Governor General in Council has submitted his views to the Secretary of State, and they are now under the consideration of Her Majesty's Government. It would plainly be undesirable to say more on the subject, until Her Majesty's Government has had time to mature its decision in regard to the measures which ought to be taken.

STANDARD SURPLUS CANNOT BE MAINTAINED.

281. Although, for the present at least, the Surplus which the Government hoped that it had secured, has almost disappeared, the Governor General in Council will in no degree abandon the imperative duty of making, to the utmost of his ability, provision for protecting the country against famine. He still believes that a surplus of £1,500,000 a year, in ordinary times, is necessary to cover this liability alone.

PROVISION MADE FOR NEXT YEAR.

282. So far as the coming year is concerned, the help which it is hoped will be afforded by the British Treasury for meeting the expenses of the war, relieves the Government from financial anxiety on this account. For the present the Governor General in Council thinks it wise to abstain from imposing any fresh burdens on the country, and to accept the temporary loss of the surplus by which it was hoped that an insurance against famine had been provided.

NO FAMINE FUND
WAS CONSTITUTED.

283. The propriety of the course followed by the Government last year in refusing to constitute any separate Fund in connection with the famine arrangements has thus, it may be added, been justified by the event. Foreseeing the possibility of such a contingency as that which has actually occurred, Sir John Strachey spoke in the Legislative Council on the 9th February 1878 as follows. Any other decision might, he said:—

“lead to results probably not contemplated by those who have suggested the establishment of a separate Fund; I mean that this might involve the necessity for imposing fresh taxation. Suppose, for instance, that the produce of the new taxes were, by law, strictly set apart from the general revenues, and paid into a separate Fund only to be applied to specified purposes: if then, any sudden change of circumstances arose, calling for seriously increased expenditure, or causing a considerable falling off in the revenue, we should have to choose between the imposition of fresh taxes and the abrogation of the law constituting the Fund; for I set aside the idea of meeting ordinary charges by borrowing, ~~as a~~ a course financially inadmissible. This dilemma might arise, though the pressure was likely to be only temporary; nor can any one say that such a contingency would be at all improbable, or that it might not occur at any moment. With all my desire to see the pledges maintained that we have given, as to the application of a sum not less than £1,500,000 as an insurance against famine, I think it would be irrational, under many circumstances that I can conceive, to object to the temporary diversion of any necessary part of the revenue from this purpose, with the view of obtaining relief which might be no less urgently required than that which experience has taught us to be requisite in meeting famine. * * * Without thinking of a future far removed from us, events might, of course, happen which would make it impossible even for us who have designed these measures to maintain our present resolution.”

By order of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council,

R. B. CHAPMAN,

Secretary to the Government of India.

NOTIFICATIONS.—ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE.

Fort William, the 13th March 1879.

No. 1249.—The following Resolution is re-published for general information:—

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

PRELIMINARY.

1. THE ACCOUNTS of the PUBLIC REVENUE and EXPENDITURE and RECEIPTS and DISBURSEMENTS of British India in 1877-78 are hereto annexed together with the Regular Estimates, based upon the latest information in the possession of the Government, of the REVENUE and EXPENDITURE and RECEIPTS and DISBURSEMENTS of 1878-79, and the Budget Estimates of the REVENUE and EXPENDITURE and RECEIPTS and DISBURSEMENTS of 1879-80.

ACCOUNTS AND ESTIMATE PRE-SENTED.

2. In these documents the term REVENUE is confined to money which is received into the Public Treasury neither in repayment of a Loan, Advance or Deposit, nor as a Loan, Advance or Deposit to be repaid; and the term EXPENDITURE is confined to money disbursed from the Public Treasury, neither in repayment of a Loan, Advance or Deposit, nor as a Loan, Advance or Deposit to be repaid. Thus the difference between the PUBLIC REVENUE and the PUBLIC EXPENDITURE recorded in the Public Accounts of each year ought to represent the addition to or reduction of the PUBLIC DEBT of all kinds during the year.

DEFINITION OF REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE &
RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS.

3. In the Accounts of 1877-78 are recorded only the Imperial and Provincial Revenue and Expenditure; the Local Revenue and Expenditure being treated separately, and appearing in the Accounts under Debt only, that is to say, as Deposits and Repayments. In the Estimates of 1878-79 and 1879-80 the Local Revenue and Expenditure is incorporated with the rest of the Public Revenue and Expenditure, in the Accounts of which will henceforth be recorded.

ACCOUNTS OF 1877-78 DO NOT INCLUDE LOCAL TRANSACTIONS.
AS DO ESTIMATE

ed all Public Revenue and Expenditure, excluding only the Accounts of Municipalities, Port Trusts, and other exclusively local and fiduciary Bodies.

Preliminary.

EXCLUDED LOCAL FUNDS.

4. The Accounts of such of these Bodies as bank with the Government will be recorded under a separate Major Head in the Debt portion of the Accounts (see, for example, Headings Nos. III and 2 in the appended Abstract Statement No. IV). But the chief of these Bodies, such for instance as the Presidency Municipalities and Port Trusts, do not bank with the Government at all. Their transactions do not therefore appear in any shape in the Public Accounts. The policy of the Government is to promote the entire independence of these Bodies and of their responsibility for their finances.

CHANGES OF FORM AND GENERAL REMARKS.

CHANGES OF FORM.

5. The following changes have been made in the Forms of the Accounts since last year.

NEW MAJOR HEADS OF REVENUE.

MINOR DEPARTMENTS.

MEDICAL SERVICES.

STATIONERY AND PRINTING.

ONLY RATES ON LAND TO BE RECORDED UNDER PROVINCIAL RATES.

ADJUSTING HEADS PROVINCIAL AND LOCAL DEFICITS AND SURPLUSES.

PROCEDURE UPON OCCURRENCE OF PROVINCIAL DEFICIT.

ON PROVINCIAL AND LOCAL SURPLUSES.

PROCEDURE ON OCCURRENCE OF LOCAL DEFICIT.

6. It has been considered advisable to open three new Major Heads of Revenue in order to shew separately the Revenue which may be set against the Expenditure recorded under 17 Minor Departments, 23 Medical and 24 Stationery and Printing. Under XIV Minor Departments will be recorded the proceeds sales of the produce of the Government Chinchona Plantations, upon which considerable sums have been spent for some years past, and of Model Farms; also Emigration Fees, including the Inland Labour Transport Fund in Bengal, and the like. Under XV Medical will be shown Contributions by Municipalities for Medical Services, the proceeds sales of medicines supplied to Charitable Dispensaries and the income of Lunatic Asylums, &c. Under XVI Stationery and Printing will appear the subscriptions to the Government Gazettes and the receipts for books, publications and stationery sold. All these items have hitherto been grouped under XVIII Miscellaneous; but the importance of some of them is growing, and that of others has been so increased by the incorporation of Local Funds that they seem to deserve independent exhibition.

7. Under the Head VI Provincial Rates were shown in this year's Estimates the whole of the Incorporated Local Revenues. The bulk of this Revenue is derived from Rates and Cesses levied upon the revenue or rent of land for various objects, such as Public Works, Education, Local Posts, &c. It is considered expedient to restrict this Head exclusively to the exhibition of these Rates and Cesses, transferring the remaining items of Local Revenue to their appropriate Heads as detailed in paragraph 56.

8. Owing to the incorporation of the Local Revenue and Expenditure, the adjusting entries under Heads XXIX & 36 will henceforth necessarily include the Local as well as the PROVINCIAL Surpluses or Deficits. Hence these Heads will in future be styled Provincial and Local Deficits or Surpluses.

9. By their contract arrangements with the Supreme Government the Provincial Governments must surrender to the Imperial Treasury from the Balances at their credit any deficiency in their Provincial Revenue compared with their Provincial Expenditure. If they have no such balances, the Imperial Treasury bears the loss for the ~~sum~~ ^{sum} credit is taken under XVII Provincial and Local Deficits for a debt due from any defaulting Provincial Government until the debt is actually paid. On the other hand, the Provincial Governments are entitled to receive from the Imperial Treasury any sums by which their Provincial and Local Expenditure falls short of their Provincial and Local Revenues, such surplus being added to the balances at their credit. Thus, the effect of the entries under the two Heads XXIX & 36 Provincial and Local Deficits and Surpluses, is to bring the whole of the Provincial and Local Revenue and Expenditure incorporated in the General Account into exact equilibrium, so that the incorporation of that Revenue and Expenditure produces no effect upon the Surplus or Deficit of the General Account, and might be eliminated without any disturbance of that result.

10. The Provincial Governments are, in their turn, responsible for the adequacy of the INCORPORATED LOCAL FUNDS, and, as any Provincial deficiency is borne, until (if ever) it is recovered, by the Imperial Treasury, so, if the Expenditure from any Incorporated Local Fund exhausts the balance at its credit, the difference must be immediately made good from the Provincial Revenues until, if ever, the Provincial Government recovers it. The effect of these arrangements is that in the General Accounts of Revenue and Expenditure no credit is taken for any unpaid debt, either from Local Funds to the Provincial Treasuries, or, as already said, from the Provincial Treasuries to the Imperial Treasury. Changes of form.

11. It is for obvious reasons indispensable that the yearly Expenditure of a State shall not ordinarily exceed its yearly Revenue except for reasons deliberately accepted as sufficient, as, for example, in India for the capital cost of Productive Public Works constructed for the development of the resources of the country. The financial condition of that State is unsound whose yearly Public Revenues, rigidly criticised, are habitually less than its whole yearly Public Expenditure excepting only that portion which may be confidently trusted to produce a revenue at least sufficient to cover the interest on the excess Public Debt which results from it. NECESSITY FOR SURPLUS UPON WHOLE ORDINARY ACCOUNT.

12. But this principle is much modified in its application to the Provincial Finances of the Indian Local Governments. These Governments are not allowed to incur debt; even borrowed money invested in Productive Public Works, for which the Local Governments are wholly responsible to the Imperial Treasury, being treated as a Debt of the Imperial Government, differing in no respect from the rest of the Public Debt of India. The Local Debenture Loans to be issued for Local purposes which will be presently described will form no exception to this rule: legally and practically, they will be part of the Public Debt of India, and not in any sense Debts of the Local Governments although they will issue them and be responsible to the Government of India for the payment of the interest upon them. DOES NOT APPLY FULLY TO PROVINCIAL AND LOCAL FUNDS, WHICH CANNOT INCUR DEBT.

13. In short, the arrangements made during the past few years and still in course of development for the Provincial management of Provincial Finances are domestic arrangements between the Government of India and the Local Governments, affecting, indeed, intimately, their rights and obligations in relation to each other, but not their relations to any one else. THE PROVINCIAL CONTRACTS ARE DOMESTIC ARRANGEMENTS

14. It follows that, subject only to the condition that it shall never exhaust its balances in the Imperial Treasury and shall further ordinarily maintain such sufficient reserve at its credit there, to provide for the contingencies to which it is exposed, as so substantial a constituent would be expected to keep in the hands of his bankers, a Local Government may spend its Revenues without any precise regard to the equilibrium of the year. So long, therefore, as a Local Government does not incur debt (which is absolutely forbidden), there is no objection to its spending more than its Revenue during the year. Indeed, one important advantage of the system is that the Local Governments are set free from the restriction that their yearly expenditure shall never exceed their yearly income—a restriction which, however essential to the financial welfare of the State as a whole, cannot always be conveniently applied to sections of the Administration. LOCAL GOVERNMENTS MAY INCUR DEFICITS IF THEY DO NOT OVERDRAW THEIR ACCOUNTS

15. The principles thus described as regulating the management of Provincial Finances also regulate the management of the Local Finances which are subordinate to the Provincial Governments. It rests with the Imperial Government to prevent the Local Governments from overdrawing their Accounts with the Imperial Treasury, and with the Provincial Governments to enforce the same wholesome rule upon the Managers of the Incorporated Local Funds. The penalty for any default falls immediately upon the Imperial or Provincial Treasury, as the case may be. SO ALSO WITH LOCAL COMMITTEES

16. Under instructions from Her Majesty's Secretary of State a new Abstract Statement, No. II, was added last year in the form in which the Accounts of British India are now presented to Parliament. In this form are separately shown, on the one hand, the gross Revenue derived from Productive Public Works (formerly styled Public Works Extraordinary), and the net Revenue from the Railways and Irrigation Works on the Capital cost of which interest is guaranteed from the Public Revenues; and on the other hand, the working expenses of the Productive Public Works together with the guaranteed interest actually paid, and interest calculated upon the Capital cost of the State works which yield the Revenue thus separately shown, and any other current Expenditure upon both classes of works. STATEMENT NO. II CONSTRUCTED TO ILLUSTRATE FINANCES OF PRODUCTIVE PUBLIC WORKS.

NOT YET COMPLETE.

17. The separation is not yet complete. The Government has not yet succeeded in ascertaining the increase of the Land Revenue which may be properly attributed to Productive Public Works in the MADRAS Presidency; and the considerable Gain and Loss by Exchange which arise out of the transactions thus eliminated from the Accounts of the rest of the Public Revenue and Expenditure is, not yet, included in this separate category. There are other less important items which ought also to be incorporated in this separate Schedule before it can be regarded as really complete.

18. Meanwhile it would be contrary to the intention and object of this Separate Account to admit to it any Revenue derived from works the Capital cost of which is not included in the amount upon which the interest separately shown in the Account is calculated, or any Expenditure upon such works. The Public Expenditure upon Railways and Works of Irrigation is not, however, by any means confined to works treated in the Accounts as Productive Public Works. In BENGAL, for example, the Calcutta Canals and Nudda Rivers yield considerable Provincial Revenue and involve considerable Provincial Expenditure; in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES the Eastern Jumna Canal yielding a Revenue of more than £50,000, has not yet been treated as a Productive Public Work, because its Capital cost cannot be fully ascertained and has not appeared in the Public Accounts under the Head 39, Productive Public Works, and the Local Government has subscribed from Provincial Funds part of the Capital cost of the Mathura-Hatras and Ghazipore-Dildarnagar Railways; and the Government of INDIA has now in hand several small Railways to be constructed principally for the Salt traffic. Then again there are surveys for both Canals and Railways and the like which cost money, though they do not always result in the construction of Productive Public Works.

19. It was intended to record all this class of Expenditure and the Revenue derived therefrom in this year's Estimates under 31 and XXIV Public Works Ordinary, but this intention was not accurately fulfilled, the items grouped in the Separate Account of Productive Public Works having accidentally included the Revenue and Expenditure of the Eastern Jumna Canal and other Works, not Productive Public Works. This year the incorporation of Local Funds adds largely to works of this class.

20. It seems better therefore, on every consideration, to include all such Revenue and Expenditure in the first instance under the General Headings XXV and 32, Irrigation (adding to it Navigation) and XXVII and 34, State Railways, and then, as is already done with 1, Interest, to abstract for the Separate Account of Productive Public Works the items which alone belong thereto. The Accounts of 1877-78, as well as the Original Estimates of 1878-79, have been re-classified upon this plan.

21. The Government has determined to include in the Productive Public Works Statement this year as much of the increased Land Revenue due to Irrigation as can be approximately ascertained. The amount thus shown in the Separate Schedule under 1, Land Revenue ~~belonging to the~~ NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES, the PUNJAB, and BOMBAY. It should be understood that these figures are only estimates made upon such basis of facts as can be discovered. Often, no distinction was made when the revenue was assessed, between the portion of the Land Revenue attributed to these works of Irrigation and the remainder which would be demanded if no Irrigation were provided; and if such a distinction actually had been made it would frequently have been arbitrary. It is certain that, generally, more Land Revenue is collected by reason of these works than would be collected if they did not exist, but what precisely is the amount thus in excess, is a question which can, often, be answered only conjecturally, according to experience and individual opinion.

22. The transactions of the State with the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company have been separated off from the transactions with the Guaranteed Railway Companies.

23. Abstract Statement No. III has been re-cast so as to show the Revenue Changes of and Expenditure under each Head classified as Imperial, Provincial and Local respectively, together with the Provincial and Local Surpluses or Deficits, and the Opening and Closing Provincial and Local Balances. The Statement thus recast exhibits clearly the financial condition of the Provincial Governments and the general operation of the contract arrangements with them. Moreover the use of Italic or Transfer Heads is for the most part obviated. The share of the License Tax and the Famine Cess appropriated by the Imperial Treasury as an Insurance against Famine, and the portion of the Canal Revenue in the North-Western Provinces reserved by the Supreme Government when the Canals in those Provinces were handed over to Provincial use and management, are now simply placed in the Imperial Column of this Statement, by deduction from the entries in the Provincial Column. On the other hand, the payments by Local Governments as interest on the Capital cost of their Productive Public Works, and for stamps and stationery supplied from the imperial Central Stores, are, in the same way, abstracted from the Imperial Column and added in the Provincial Column.

RE-ARRANGEMENT OF ABSTRACT No. III.

TRANSFER HEADS OBTIATED.

DEVELOPMENT OF PROVINCIAL SYSTEM IN BRITISH BURMAH AND ASSAM.

24. The Provincial Contracts with BRITISH BURMAH and ASSAM have been revised and greatly expanded with effect from the beginning of 1878-79. A new feature in the arrangements with these Provinces is that, in place of a Fixed Allotment, a share of the net reserved Imperial Revenues has been assigned to them, so that the Provincial Finances will participate in any improvement of those Revenues. Thus the Public Revenue and Expenditure in BRITISH BURMAH and ASSAM is now divided into (1) Wholly Imperial, (2) Wholly Provincial and (3) Jointly Imperial and Provincial. With the exception of the Army, the Wholly Imperial portion is not important in either Province; in Burmah, it is insignificant.

DEVELOPMENT OF PROVINCIAL SYSTEM IN BURMAH AND ASSAM. SUBSTITUTION OF SHARE OF RESERVED REVENUE FOR FIXED ALLOTMENTS.

25. Owing to the geographical isolation from India of BRITISH BURMAH, there are no such difficulties there as impede the complete surrender of some important items of Revenue and Expenditure to Provincial use and management elsewhere. For example, the Salt and Customs Revenue levied in BOMBAY, CALCUTTA and UPPER INDIA cannot be divided among the several Provinces from whose consumption those Revenues are obtained. But in BURMAH there is no such obstacle. Consequently, the Government of India has been able to make with that Province the most complete Provincial Contract yet existing; only a few items, viz., the Army, the Post Office and Telegraphs, the Account Office, Political Service and the Movement of funds, have been retained as wholly Imperial. A few more items, viz., the Land Revenue (excluding Fisheries), the Export Duties on Rice and Paddy, and Salt, with the corresponding Refunds and Charges, including, under Land Revenue, only the Charges of collection, Survey and Settlements, have been treated as Joint to be divided between the Imperial and Provincial Treasuries. All the rest of the Revenue and Expenditure has been made "Wholly Provincial."

COMPLETE ARRANGEMENT WITH BURMAH.

26. The scheme is to some extent experimental; but it has been framed on a basis calculated to give to the Chief Commissioner a much needed increase of Provincial Resources. It is believed that some judicious public expenditure in Burmah would yield especially valuable financial results; and the Government of India only regrets that it cannot under existing circumstances make even more liberal concessions to that Province. In ASSAM also the Resources of the Chief Commissioner have been improved. With the exception of the substitution of a share of the joint Revenues for a Fixed Allotment, the new arrangements, there, follow closely the contract with BENGAL, so that there will be no difficulty in this respect in the re-union of the two Provinces, in case this measure should, at any future time, be adopted.

INCREASE TO PROVINCIAL RESOURCES OF BURMAH, AND ASSAM.

27. The general effect of the new arrangements with the two Provinces may be gathered from a comparison of the Local Estimates which were

IMPROVEMENT OF PROVINCIAL RESOURCES.

27. This table shows that the effect of the measure in the two years, was the addition of £19,600 to the Provincial and Local Revenues of ASSAM, and £159,600 to those of BRITISH BURMAH. From this last sum may properly be deducted £20,000, which, although not in the Contract, the Government of India has, in practice, been compelled yearly to assign specially to BRITISH BURMAH. But the residue constitutes a substantial and much needed addition to the means at the disposal of the Chief Commissioner. In both Provinces it may be hoped intended to increase the Local Cesses for Local purposes, and the Provincial Revenues will now contain elements of growth. On the whole, it may be hoped that the wants of these two undeveloped Provinces have now been supplied for some time to come. In any case it will be manifestly difficult for the Government of India soon to surrender to them any more of the General Resources.

LOCAL DEBENTURE LOANS.

LOCAL DEBENTURE LOANS.

28. As a further development of the policy of Provincial management of Provincial Finances, it is intended to issue, as opportunity offers, LOCAL DEBENTURE LOANS the proceeds of which will be devoted to particular works. These Debenture Loans will be part of the Funded Debt of India, and, technically and legally, the security for them will be the same as the security for the General Debt, namely, the whole Public Revenue of India. They will differ from the General Loans as follows:—

1st.—The interest upon them will not be payable at or near the Presidency Towns, but only locally in the neighbourhood of the works for the construction of which they are raised.

2nd.—They will be raised in the name of the Local Governments, who will be responsible to the Government of India for the discharge of all obligations arising out of them.

3rd.—The Debenture-holders will receive, besides their interest, a share of the profits of the works constructed with their money; and, although allowed no property in the works, will be invited to assist in their management, as has been already successfully done in the case of the Mathura-Hathras Local Railway.

THEIR OBJECT.

29. It is hoped, by this expedient, to draw out local resources which might otherwise continue latent, and to promote the success of the works by giving to the Debenture-holders a pecuniary interest in them and taking advantage of their knowledge of local requirements and native habits and wants.

LOANS TO MUNICIPALITIES.

LOANS TO MUNICIPALITIES.

30. There has been a change in the policy of the Government as respects Loans to Municipalities and other Corporations. For some years past, these Bodies have borrowed all the money which they have required, from the Public Treasury which could afford to lend them money rather more cheaply than they could obtain it in the open market. This plan had also this advantage, that the Public Loans to the Funded Debt of India represented, substantially, the whole Debt of the country, including the Debts of these Corporations. But the demands upon the Imperial Treasury for capital required for investment in State works are now so considerable, compared with the limits of its resources, that the Government can no longer afford to extend this aid to these independent Bodies, and they will, henceforth be, generally, left to borrow in the open market for themselves, always under strict State supervision. The Government is, however, still pledged to some Loans to these Bodies which are in course of expenditure; and it cannot always, thus throw Native States or the smaller Municipalities in the interior upon their own resources. The total Loans of this character outstanding on the 31st March 1878 were as follows:—

32. According to these Accounts, the whole Public Expenditure of British India in the year 1877-78 exceeded the Public Revenue by £8,334,139. But, in order to get the exact facts, £281,687 must be added to this sum, being the amount transferred to Revenue from the book-balances of the extinct Military Funds which, as has now been repeatedly explained, cannot safely be treated as Revenue: also £768,058, the sum by which the entry under the Head of 38, Loss by Exchange falls short of what it would have been if the whole net current requirements of the Home Treasury had been remitted, excluding transactions affecting the Registered Debt and the Railway Capital Account. To allow to this year credit for any saving under this Head which arises from the borrowing operations of the year, would be plainly a deception. On the other hand, there is a set-off of £117,765, being the discount paid on the Loan of the 7th June 1877 which cannot be regarded as a proper charge of the year. Thus, the whole true excess Expenditure of the year becomes £9,266,179, or, more correctly, Rs. 9,26,61,790 which is the measure of the increase of the Public Debt during the year.

TRUE RESULT.

PRODUCTIVE

FAMINE

33. Of this large sum, £4,968,123* is due to the construction of Productive Public Works, in pursuance of the policy deliberately adopted. The remaining £1,298,056 is the result of the measures taken for the preservation of the lives of the people of South India from Famine. The Financial Statement for 1878-79 (p. 26) contains some calculations pointing to the conclusion that the Famine caused adverse financial results in the Accounts of 1877-78 estimated at 6½ millions sterling. The loss of Land Revenue in that year exceeded the loss then estimated by £77,000. The losses of other Revenue also were greater than were then calculated, while the Expenditure recorded under the Head of 30, Famine Relief, was more by £111,775, and the Expenditure on the Army on account of scarcity exceeded the Estimate. On the other hand, the Net Revenue from the Guaranteed Railways was larger by £394,163 than was then supposed, and some of this excess was probably occasioned by the Famine traffic. On the whole, the net adverse effect of the Famine upon the Accounts of 1877-78 may still be reckoned at about £6,500,000. If this Estimate is correct, it follows that, but for the Famine, the Revenue Accounts of 1877-78 would have shown a Surplus of about £2,201,914. Provided that the works upon which the excluded £4,968,123 was spent could be trusted to be truly reproductive, this result might be regarded as very satisfactory.

CAPITAL EXPENDI-TURE ON PRODUC-TIVE PUBLIC WORKS EXAMINED.

NON-PRODUCTIVE ITEMS.

34. The principal works upon which this money was spent will be found in Tables Nos. VII and VIII of Appendix B. Of the Irrigation Works in the List there given it is to be feared that the prospect of the Orissa and Midnapore Canals proving remunerative is remote, although it does not follow that the comparatively small sums spent on those works this year will not be remunerative. The only item of the Expenditure upon Irrigation Works which must be looked upon as not in any measure directly remunerative, however otherwise highly beneficial, is the £86,387 spent upon the Western Jumna Canal, which is in course of realignment at a very large cost, principally for sanitary reasons. Of the money invested in Railways, £1,584,543 spent upon the Indus Valley and Punjab Northern Lines is expected to yield but a small return. From the nature of the country these works are very costly; their earnings are little likely to be large; and they were undertaken for strategic reasons only. In a consideration therefore of the finances of 1877-78, it must be borne in mind that it cannot confidently be expected that £1,670,530 of the expenditure excluded as reproductive will really, within any period which can now be foreseen, produce a net income sufficient to cover the interest ~~thereon~~ at the same time, there is good hope that the value of the commercial and economical benefits conferred upon the Punjab and Sindh by these great Frontier Railways, together with their military uses, will exceed that interest; and, at least, it may be said that the Expenditure upon them has been and will be extremely useful.

35. One other set-off must be mentioned. In the 17th para. of the Resolution prefixed to the last Financial Statement, it was stated that, at the beginning of 1877-78, the condition of the finances was such that an improvement of £2,000,000 a year was absolutely necessary in order to provide for Famine and leave a margin of safety. Measures had, accordingly, been already taken to obtain this additional Revenue of which a portion only was looked

37. This then is the outturn of the finances of 1877-78. If the Famine costing £6,500,000 and the Expenditure on Productive Public Works amounting to £4,968,123 be eliminated, there remains a surplus of £2,201,914. But for the measures to which reference has been made, this surplus would have been smaller by £461,276, or in all £1,740,668. On the other hand, it has to be remembered that a portion of the Productive Public Works, costing £1,670,930, is expected (however useful the works may otherwise be) to yield, for a long time to come, only small interest. FINAL CONCLUSION.

38. According to the Accounts as abstracted in Statement No. II, the working expenses of the Productive Public Works during the year, together with interest on their Capital cost, amounted to £7,359,204, while they yielded a revenue of £7,319,676. Adding Gain by Exchange, £514,443, and Loss by Exchange, £723,107, without which the comparison cannot be made with even approximate accuracy, the Expenditure becomes £8,082,311 and the Revenue £7,834,119; but this Revenue does not include any of the excess Land Revenue attributed to Productive Irrigation Works in the MADRAS Presidency. Moreover, interest is charged upon the whole of the capital expended upon Productive Public Works to date, although some of it is, necessarily, as yet, unproductive. Making allowance for these circumstances, the Statement may be regarded as encouraging. It should, moreover, be borne in mind that the direct Revenue which these works produce to the State is but a small part of the advantages which result from them to the country. It would be difficult to over-estimate, for example, the material advantages derived by the country from such works as the East Indian Railway and the Ganges or Barce Doab Canals. FINANCES OF
PUBLIC WORKS.

39. The Accounts thus reviewed differ but slightly in their result from the Regular Estimates presented a year ago. The Accounts of 1876-77 showed a result net better than the Regular Estimates of that year by £95,522. The Accounts of 1877-78 show a result net worse than the Regular Estimates by £26,139; the deficit on the ordinary account being £112,087 more, but the Capital Expenditure on Productive Public Works £85,948 less, than the Regular Estimates. COMPARISON OF ACCOUNTS, 1877-78
WITH REGULAR ESTIMATES.

40. As to details, the Guaranteed Railways show a net improvement which amounts, by the formula used in the construction of Table V of Appendix B, to £394,163; the traffic on these Railways was under-estimated and their working expenses over-estimated. The statistics for the year are given in that Table. Thus, these Railways yielded in 1877-78 even a larger Revenue than that which surprised the Government upon the Regular Estimates, and, for the first time, returned a true Net Revenue of £393,856 in excess of the entire cost of the IMPROVEMENT IN guaranteed interest. It is doubtless true that the prosperity of these Lines in 1877-78 was exceptional, and that the Government cannot yet count upon such results occurring under ordinary circumstances. Not only did the Railways profit largely by the enormous traffic in grain called forth by the widespread Famine in South India and scarcity elsewhere, but there was, moreover, an unprecedented traffic in Wheat and an unusually large movement of Seeds, Jute, Hides and other staples.
GUARANTEED

FAILURE OF REV-ENUE ESTIMATES.

41. The Revenues from Land, Excise, Customs and Salt all disappointed expectations, owing no doubt to the Famine not having disappeared so early and so completely as was expected; and the net cost of the Army was £245,780 more than the Regular Estimate, partly owing to the same cause.

ACCOUNTS COM-PARED WITH THE ORIGINAL ESTI-MATES.

42. No detailed comparisons between the Accounts of 1877-78 and the Original Estimates are now called for. Instead of costing in 1877-78, as was expected two years ago, £2,150,000, the Famine is now estimated to have cost in 1877-78 £6,500,000, an excess of £4,350,000. The Guaranteed Railways, on the other hand, yielded a true net excess Revenue of £1,698,102, of which however some £600,000 is already set off in the estimated cost of the Famine. The other items of difference are not sufficiently important to deserve further notice at this stage. On the whole, the excess Expenditure on the Ordinary Account was larger by £2,921,387, and the whole excess Expenditure by £1,084,439, than the Original Estimates.

CLOSING BALANCE,
1877-78.

43. The Closing Balance of the year proved to be £125,041 less than the Regular Estimates, chiefly owing to a diminution of the Local Fund Balances, which were largely withdrawn, especially in the North-Western Provinces, probably on account of the scarcity there. But the year closed with £2,063,759 more in the Public Treasury than was originally anticipated, and this notwithstanding that the Registered Debt increased by only £845,416 more than was expected; that £1,163,052 more capital was spent upon Productive Public Works; and that £582,557 more was lent to Native States (chiefly Mysore and Gwalior). Sufficient allowance was not originally made for the amount of Secretary of State's Bills outstanding at the end of the year. The excess of these Bills unpaid at the end of the year as compared with the beginning was £1,375,706. Also, instead of the Guaranteed Railway Companies withdrawing £618,900 Railway Capital, they paid in £125,747.

ACCOUNTS OF 1877-78 COMPARED WITH THE
1876-77.

44. The net result of the Accounts of 1877-78 was worse than the net result of 1876-77 by £1,360,309; Famine costing some £3,400,000 more and the Army £847,649 more. On the other hand, the Railways, State and Guaranteed, returned £1,185,499 more Net Revenue, and most of the Heads of Revenue show improvement.

WAYS AND MEANS,
1877-78.

45. Deducting the nominal credits from the Funds (£281,687), the total Public Expenditure exceeded the Public Revenue by £8,615,826. To meet this a net sum of only £6,388,606 (including ~~Railway Capital~~ Transactions but deducting Loans to Native States and Corporations) was added to the Public Debt. The difference was supplied temporarily by the other items of the Debt Account, of which the chief was the £1,375,706 excess Outstanding Bills mentioned in paragraph 43. The Closing Balance of the year exceeded the Opening Balance by £110,294.

WAYS AND MEANS,
1877-78.

46. In the two years 1876-78 the Famine is estimated to have cost £9,950,000, and £8,600,336 was invested in Productive Public Works, making together £18,550,336. Nevertheless, only £9,695,201 (net) was added to the Public Debt, not so much, in fact, as the cost of the Famine. The Public Balances were reduced by £2,297,434; and, excluding Famine and Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure, the Accounts show a surplus of £3,774,135. These three items aggregate £15,766,770, so that £2,783,566 were supplied from other sources, the principal of which was the Secretary of State's Bills outstanding, which, at the end of the two years, exceeded by £1,739,500 the amount outstanding at the beginning of the period.

REGULAR ESTIMATES, 1878-79.

47. In the following Synopsis the present or Regular Estimates of 1878-79 are compared with the Original Estimates and with the Accounts of 1877-78:—

48. The Revenues of the year are now expected to amount to £64,680,000, being £1,430,000 more than the Original Estimates, and the Expenditure to £63,380,000, being £2,286,000 more than the Original Estimates. Thus the net result upon the face of the Accounts is now an estimated surplus of only £1,300,000, being ~~£856,000~~ less than the surplus (£2,156,000) anticipated a year ago.

49. The variations of the present Estimates from the Original Estimates are as follows:—

50. I, Land Revenue.—More £170,000, of which £25,900 is transferred from VI Provincial Rates. On the other hand £12,400, for Record Fees, has been transferred from this Head to XXIII Miscellaneous. Better progress in the recovery of arrears in MADRAS. The arrears collected this year may now be estimated at £800,000.

51. II, Tributes.—Increase £4,000. Some tributes fell into arrears in 1877-78 and a portion of these arrears have been collected.

52. III & 5, Forests.—Revenue less £89,000. Expenditure less £6,000. Net worse £83,000: a serious and unexpected fall of which £34,000 (attributed to drought) occurs in BOMBAY, £27,000 in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND ORISSA, £20,000 in BRITISH BURMA and £8,000 in the PUNJAB, with some sets-off elsewhere. The Net Revenue is not expected to exceed £120,000, being less than it has been for many years. The assets and liabilities of the MADRAS Jungal Conservancy Fund have been transferred to these Heads, but they do not materially affect the general result.

Regular Estimates, 1878-79.
Excise.

53. IF & 5, Excise.—Revenue less £158,000. Expenditure less £5,000. Net worse £153,000. Net Revenue £2,501,000. There are decreases of Revenue as follows: NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH £90,000; PUNJAB £10,000; MADRAS £51,000; and BOMBAY £54,000; with increases of £30,000 in ASSAM; £10,000 in BENGAL; and £8,000 in the CENTRAL PROVINCES. The effect of the scarcity in UPPER INDIA is marked upon this Revenue and the recovery in MADRAS and BOMBAY has not equalled expectation.

LICENSE TAX.

54. F & 7, Assessed Taxes.—Revenue more £104,000. Expenditure less £20,000. Net better £124,000: from this, however, must be deducted £38,000 now provided for Refunds, of which £30,000 in BOMBAY. Net Revenue, less Refunds, £797,000. Of this £27,700 (net) is owing to the transfer to this Head of the Pandhary Tax in the CENTRAL PROVINCES. The true net improvement is therefore £58,000.

55. The collections have exceeded the Estimates in every Province excepting MADRAS which has yielded only £75,100 (net), instead of £120,000, as estimated. Elsewhere the improvements are as follows:—BENGAL £113,000; NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES £11,000, the PUNJAB £18,000, BOMBAY £33,000.

PROVINCIAL RATES.

56. II & 8, Provincial Rates.—Revenue less £626,000. This decrease is, as has been generally explained, owing to the Revenue locally estimated under this Head having been transferred as follows:—

| | £ |
|---|---------|
| To I.— Land Revenue (Assam Special Rate absorbed, and Bombay items) | 25,900 |
| III.— Forest (Madras Jungal Conservancy: charges added per contra) | 23,200 |
| IV.— Excise (Bhopal Fund) | 1,100 |
| V.— Assessed Taxes (Pandhary) | 27,800 |
| XII.— Post Office | 400 |
| XIV.— Minor Departments (Inland Labor Fund, &c.) | 16,900 |
| XV.— Law and Justice | 9,000 |
| XVI.— Police (Pounds, &c.) | 129,500 |
| XVIII.— Education (School Fees, not Cesses) | 28,100 |
| XIX.— Medical | 2,000 |
| XXI.— Interest | 11,800 |
| XXII.— Superannuations | 4,700 |
| XXIII.— Miscellaneous | 153,800 |
| XXIV.— Public Works Ordinary (Ferries and Tolls) | 290,100 |
| XXV.— Irrigation (Canals) | 85,500 |
| | 810,100 |

IMPROVEMENT

57. Thus, the Rates and Cesses proper have increased by £174,000, and thus notwithstanding that the levy of the Famine Cess (calculated to produce £55,000 this year) in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES has been suspended. The chief items of improvement are in MADRAS (Local Funds Act) £96,000, (probably arrears) and BENGAL (District Roads' Act) about £70,000.

PROVINCIAL RATES ANALYSED.

58. Of the £2,680,000, to which the Revenue under this Head is thus reduced, £245,000 belongs to the Village Service Funds in MADRAS and £230,000 to the Pathway Fund in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES. These Funds are devoted to the support of the Village Revenue Collectors and other servants whose cost is shown per contra under 4 Land Revenue. There are similar officers throughout India; but the payments made to them and the revenue intercepted for the purpose are for the most part excluded from the Public Accounts. In BOMBAY indeed these items are included on both sides as Imperial items. In BENGAL the charge falls mostly upon the Zemindars and their Assigns, and the Revenue of the Permanent Settlement must be considered as net after deducting this large but necessary expense. In the PUNJAB and the CENTRAL PROVINCES the stipends of the village servants are deducted before the Revenue is paid in, so that there too the Land Revenue is net. In BURMAH and ASSAM the charge is included in the percentage paid to the Native Collectors, and the Revenue is shewn gross.

NOT ALL TAXATION.

59. In contemplating these Provincial Rates it should be borne in mind that, of their whole amount, £475,000 is really of the same character as is elsewhere included in the gross Land Revenue payments, and does not imply additional taxation. The taxation proper under this Head does not, according to the Regular Estimate, exceed £2,25,000; the chief items being—

| BENGAL— | | | £ | £ |
|--|-----|-----|---------|---------|
| Public Works Cess (Act II of 1877) | ... | ... | 338,000 | |
| District Road Cess (Act X of 1871) | ... | ... | 340,000 | |
| Zemindary Dāk Cess | ... | ... | 26,000 | |
| Wards' Rate | ... | ... | 6,000 | |
| | | | | 710,000 |
| BOMBAY.—6½ per Cent. Cess (Act III of 1869) | ... | ... | | 217,500 |
| PUNJAB.—District Funds, including Famine Cess (£49,000 a year)—Acts XX of 1871 and (Famine Cess) V of 1878 | ... | ... | | 239,000 |
| MADRAS.—Local Fund Cess (Act IV of 1871)... | ... | ... | | 546,000 |
| N. W. P. & OUDH.—Local Rates (Famine Cess not yet imposed, but estimated to yield £110,000 a year) (Acts XVII and XVIII of 1871, VII of 1877) (Acts III and IV of 1878 not yet introduced) | ... | ... | | 426,000 |
| CENTRAL PROVINCES.—Ditto, (including Additional Rate (Act X of 1878) £12,860) | ... | ... | | 36,000 |
| BERMAH.—Ditto (Government Order, January 1875) | ... | ... | | 28,000 |

60. Of these, the only cesses recently imposed are the BENGAL Public Works Cess (1877) yielding £338,000, the PUNJAB Famine Cess (1877) yielding £49,000, and the CENTRAL PROVINCES Famine Cess (1878) yielding £12,800. Total £399,800. The Famine Cess in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES and OUDH, (estimated yield £110,000), has not yet been imposed.

61. III § 9, Customs.—Revenue less £10,000. Expenditure more £6,000. Altogether Customs worse £16,000. Net Revenue £2,238,000. The Net Revenue in 1877-78 was £2,419,481, or more by £181,481: but Revenue estimated at £232,000 was sacrificed last year by the abolition of the Inland Sugar Duties and the partial reform of the Tariff. There has therefore, this year, been some considerable recovery, which would have been larger but for the commercial depression which India has shared with other countries.

62. IV § 10, Salt.—Revenue more £87,000. Expenditure less £101,000. Total better £188,000. The payments in respect to salt to the Native States in Rajputana, including £95,500 to Jeypore and Jodhpore for Sambhar, amount, this year, to £161,600. It has been thought expedient to record these payments under 26 Allowances and Assignments. If these payments be taken into the Salt Account, the Regular Estimate still shows a small net improvement of £23,400. New Revenue £6,181,000 or deducting Allowances and Assignment, £6,316,400.

REFORM OF THE SALT DUTIES.

63. The reform of the Salt Duties has made great progress during the year. The object which the Government has had in view in its efforts to equalise these duties throughout India was thus stated in the Financial Statement for 1878-79:—

“That object is not to increase the burden of the salt taxes on the people of India or to derive therefrom a larger revenue, but to make as large a step as the finances will permit toward the equalisation of those duties, a condition of taxation desirable in itself and an essential preliminary to the abolition of that great opprobrium to British administration, the Inland Customs Line. The Government of India confidently hopes that the time is not distant when this great reform, the object of which is to give the people of India the means of obtaining, with the least possible inconvenience, and at the cheapest rate consistent with financial necessities, a supply of salt only limited by the people's capacity for consumption, will be completely carried out.”

64. This policy was initiated in 1869, when Lord Mayo first directed his attention to the reform of our salt administration. The measures that have been taken are so near completion that a statement of the progress effected may now properly be made. A review in greater detail of all that had been done up to the commencement of the present financial year was given by His Excellency the Viceroy in his speech in the Legislative Council on the 9th February 1878.

65. The Inland Customs Line was first formed on the frontier of the North-Western Provinces in 1843. It was gradually extended until it stretched from beyond Attock in the extreme north-west, right across the Continent of India to near Cuttack. It was an almost impenetrable barrier, involving not only more or less annoyance and harassment to the population resident on each side of the Line, but serious and vexatious interference with all trade and traffic passing across. Its primary object was the levy of duty on salt;

| Reform of the Salt Duties. | but a heavy export duty was at the same time imposed on the sugar produced in our own territories, hampering its progress to its natural markets in Rájputána, and Central and Western India. |
| NORTHERN INDIA UNFAIRLY WEIGHTED | 66. In Southern India, the population of which enjoyed natural advantages in the proximity of the sources of supply, there was a light duty on salt, and in the greater part of Northern India, already weighted by the greater remoteness of its sources of supply, there was a heavy duty. There was cheap salt in Southern, but very dear salt in Northern India. |
| SUPPLY DEFICIENT. | Not only was salt dear in Northern India, but it was deficient in quantity, and there was a liability, at any time, that it might become both dearer and more scarce, since the most important sources were isolated from the markets they supplied by long stretches of roadless semi-desert tracts, traversable only by camels or bullocks. |
| INEQUALITY OF DUTIES. | 68. In 1868-69 the duty in the Madras and Bombay Presidencies was Rs. 1-8 per maund of 82 lbs.; in Bengal it was Rs. 3-4; in the rest of Upper India Rs. 3-0; while in Sindh it was only 8 annas. There were no tenable grounds for these extraordinary inequalities in the taxation imposed upon salt in different portions of the Empire. |
| RECENT MEASURES. | 69. When last year's Budget was presented, the duty had already been raised on salt in the Madras and Bombay Presidencies to Rs. 2-8 per maund, while it had been reduced in Northern India to Rs. 2-12, and in Bengal to Rs. 3 per maund. It was then announced that the export duty on sugar would be abolished on the 1st of April, and that it was hoped that the arrangements with the Native States would soon be completed. Those arrangements had for their object, by means of amicable agreements with the Native Chiefs, the establishment of British control over all the principal local salt sources, similar to that which has been exercised for several years past with complete success at Sambhar. |
| AGREEMENTS WITH NATIVE STATES CONCLUDED. | 70. During the past year the treaties with the Native States have been brought to a satisfactory conclusion, and, on the 1st of October last, the Government entered on a lease of all the more important salt sources in Western Rájputána. |
| LINE TO BE NOW ABOLISHED. | 71. The Government considers that the time has come for the abolition of the Customs Line, and from the 1st of April next it will, with one exception, cease to exist. There will then only remain the Trans-Indus section of the line, costing £6,600 a year. This small section is maintained to prevent the nominally-taxed Kohat salt, sold to the border tribes, coming back into our own territories, and there can be no doubt that arrangements will be matured before long which will lead to its abolition. It is hardly possible to estimate too highly the importance of the great reform which has thus, after efforts extending through many years, been at last effected. It is not too much to say that the abolition of this Customs Line will remove one of the greatest existing reproaches against British administration in India. |
| FINAL REDUCTION OF DUTY. | 72. The hope expressed a year ago by His Excellency in Council, that a further reduction in the duty in Northern India might become feasible hereafter, was speedily fulfilled. At the end of July last it was resolved no longer to delay the final reduction of the duty to Rs. 2-8. It was reduced at the same time to Rs. 2-14 in Bengal. This resulted in an immediate and very extensive expansion of the trade. |
| EFFECT UPON PRICES. | 73. The measures taken during the past year have not yet had time to produce their full effect; but, so far as it is possible to form a judgment, the results have been highly satisfactory. Comparing present prices with those which prevailed in 1868, before the first steps in the new policy were taken, we find the following facts. At the chief salt mart in Northern India, Agra, in January 1868, good average Sambhar salt was selling wholesale at Rs. 5-8 per maund. |

In 1869 the price was Rs. 6. In January 1879 similar salt was selling at only Rs. 3-8 per maund. Thus a reduction of nearly 49 per cent. in the price of the most important salt in Northern India has been secured at the cost of a reduction of $16\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. in the duty. The increased duty in Southern India has necessarily increased the price of salt, but by no means to so serious an extent as might have been anticipated. In 1868-69 the average retail price of salt, in nine of the principal marts of Madras and Bombay, was Rs. 2-4 per maund; while at the present time it is about Rs. 2-11.

Reform of the Salt Duties.
IN NORTHERN.
AND SOUTHERN INDIA.

74. The net salt revenue of the Empire which, in 1868-69, stood at £5,176,000, stands for the current year at £6,377,000. This great increase was no part of the original programme; but an increase was always anticipated as the necessary result of a more scientific administration, and it has been obtained not only without any general addition to the taxation on salt, but with a positive reduction of the general average burden. The anticipation that, other reasons apart, it would be found financially more profitable to levy the salt duty at a moderate rate on a maximum consumption, rather than at a high rate on a restricted consumption, has been already verified, and the Governor General in Council confidently trusts that it will be more completely verified hereafter.

EFFECT UPON REVENUE.

75. It must not be forgotten that the result of the measures which have been already taken is this, that while the duty on salt and its cost to the consumer have been increased to 47,000,000 of people, the duty and the cost have been reduced to more than 130,000,000.

REFILE TO MAJORITY OF CONSUMERS.

76. The means are not at present available of saying with confidence what effect has been produced on the actual consumption of salt. The first effect of raising the duty in BOMBAY and MADRAS has been now, as on former occasions, to diminish sales, but to a small degree only, during the current year. These two Presidencies cannot be taken separately, because MYSORE, the Nizam's territories, BERAR and the southern portion of the CENTRAL PROVINCES, are supplied from them; and, as the course of trade in grain and other articles which constitute the exchanges for salt, has varied, and as facilities of communication have been improved on this or that side, so the tracts mentioned have at some times drawn more largely on MADRAS, and at other times on BOMBAY. But, if the two be taken together, and free and nominally-taxed salt be excluded from the account, it will be found that the total amount of salt that paid duty in 1877-78 was, in round numbers, 10,675,000 maunds, while for the current year it is expected to be 10,350,000 maunds, exhibiting for this transition year the small decrease only of about 3 per cent. But in 1867-68, the total consumption was only 9,900,000 maunds, showing that there has been, notwithstanding the increase of duty, a great increase of consumption, and this increase is the more remarkable when regard is paid to the great losses of population and wealth during the last three years in Southern India from famine. The consumption of salt appears, indeed, to have been larger in the MADRAS and BOMBAY Presidencies during the present year than in any previous year excepting 1877-78.

CONSUMPTION IN MADRAS AND BOMBAY.

77. It is still more difficult to give a trustworthy estimate of the consumption in Northern India; for the area and population supplied by salt crossing the Customs Line has from time to time varied. It appears, however, from the returns of the Inland Customs Department that the supply for the whole of Northern India from 1864-65 to 1870-71 was, on an average, 11,600,000 maunds a year; from 1870-71 to 1877-78 the average annual supply was 13,200,000 maunds, or an increase of 14 per cent. This does not include any increase which may follow from the reduction of duty made during the current year, the full effect of which has not yet been developed. There has also been a steady increase in the quantity of salt consumed in Bengal. The quantity which has paid duty during the present year is larger than in any previous year. Taking India as a whole, we find the total apparent consumption to have been 22,750,000 maunds in 1867-68 and 24,200,000 for 1878-79.

CONSUMPTION IN UPPER INDIA

AND BENGAL.

sumption, far exceeding that which can be legitimately ascribed to mere increase of population.

CONTROL OF
SUPPLY.

79. The new arrangements for the local control of the salt manufacture having been in force for a few months only, it is too soon to say much regarding the effect produced by them in the Native States; but, so far as it is now possible to judge, the change of system has involved much less difficulty and friction than might have been anticipated. This fortunate result is mainly due to the action taken by the Rulers of those States; they have given their co-operation and assistance in a manner which deserves the warm acknowledgments of the British Government.

NEW MEASURES IN RAJPUTANA EXPLAINED.

80. The following statement, taken chiefly from official reports on the subject, will explain the nature of the new measures. The salt in the Native States of Rajputana is of two kinds: one of a superior quality, and worth carriage to a distance; the other inferior earth-salt, used by the poorest classes locally, and not hitherto transported far as an article of trade. In taxing the superior salt at the places of production, it is necessary to prevent the development of a trade in the inferior salt which could not bear the imposition of a duty. The problem was, how to compass the desired objects without unduly interfering with the internal administration or revenues of the Chiefs of the Native States, or with the interests of their people.

EASE OF SALT
SOURCES.

81. Four tracts which yield superior salt have been taken on lease by the British Government. The arrangements settled by these leases follow precisely the precedent of the lease under which the Sambhar Lake has been managed for the last nine years without the slightest friction with the Native States, and with the most beneficial results on the price of salt. The rent of the five new salt sources leases amounts to £38,700 a year. At these places, the British Government will occupy the position, with reference to the manufacture, which has hitherto been held by the Chiefs from whom they have been leased. With some exceptions, an excise duty of Rs. 2-8 per maund has been imposed on all salt manufactured, this being the uniform rate of salt-duty which has now been fixed in all British territory surrounding these States. With railway communication making rapid progress across Central India and Rajputana, the maintenance of different rates of salt-duty would have been absolutely incompatible with the abolition of the Customs Lines.

LOCAL MANUFACTURE ABOLISHED.

82. Under these arrangements, the manufacture of local salts at any sources besides those leased to the British Government, has ceased generally throughout the States with which the Agreements have been made. To this rule there are, however, some exceptions. Wherever local salt manufacture was found existing in a State, and if it was judged that the manufacture might continue without risk of serious damage to the British revenue, the State was allowed the option of continuing it under certain restrictions, up to certain limits.

COMPENSATION TO SALT-MAKERS AND OTHERS.

83. Liberal compensation has been paid to manufacturers and others interested in the salt-works which have been suppressed. It amounts to £54,200. Annual sums, aggregating about £4,100, were paid to landholders, jagirdars, and others, whose interests will be affected by the closing of the local salt-works, and by the abolition of transit duties.

FREE SUPPLY.

84. For the supply of the people of the Jodhpore State, 225,000 maunds of superior salt will be passed yearly from the leased works in that State free of all British duty. For the supply of the people of Bikanir, Meywar, and Serohi, quantities aggregating 158,000 maunds will be passed annually from those works, subject to only half the British duty; while if these allotments prove insufficient for the supply of the people of the States (which possess no superior salt of their own), they will be open to reconsideration.

PAYMENTS TO NATIVE STATES.

85. To the Jodhpore State a yearly payment of £12,500 will be made as compensation for transit and export duties on salt, as well as for the loss of miscellaneous receipts connected with salt, and for the maintenance of preventive establishments to keep down illicit manufacture, &c. Similar payments, amounting to £5,280, will be made to the Bikanir, Meywar, and Serohi States. The annual sum of £31,250, to be paid to the Gwalior State, represents duty at Rs. 1-4 per maund on the consumption of British taxed salt in that State; and the sum to be paid to Datia, £1,000, represents the duty at eight annas per maund on the consumption in that State. It was ascertained that these rates of duty have hitherto been levied by the Chiefs in these two States on imported superior salt.

86. The British Government have further agreed to give to seven of the smaller States, quantities of superior salt aggregating 12,360 maunds, free of all charges, in addition to 21,000 maunds given under the Sambhar treaties to the Jeypore and Jodhpore Durbars. The remaining five States in Rájputáná,* the Lawa Chiefship, and the Baháwalpur State, will be supplied with salt on which the British duty has been levied.

* Ulwar.
Dholpur.

Jeypore.

Kishengarh.
Bhurtpore.

OTHER CONCESSIONS.

87. The annual payments by the British Government aggregate £84,000. It is calculated that in each case the payment will be about equivalent to the duty realised, and that it will liberally compensate the Chiefs for the salt-revenue and transit duties which they and their feudatories will forego.

YEARLY PAYMENTS.

88. The Baháwalpur, Alwar, Dholpur, and Kishengarh Chiefs, and the Thákur of Lawa, have agreed to abolish all local transit duties within their territories. In Bhurtpore and Jeypore the transit duties on salt, sugar and saccharine produce will be abolished; and in the remaining seven States, all salt upon which British duty has been levied, will pass free of any kind of duty.

ABOLITION OF TRANSIT DUTIES.

89. The duties which, until last April, were levied on sugar and saccharine produce exported across the Inland Customs Line, averaged more than £150,000 annually, and fell mainly upon the people of the States in Rájputána and Central India. These duties have been abolished; and the people of the States will now also be relieved from the local salt-duties and from the transit duties abolished under the Agreements.

SUGAR DUTIES

90. When these negotiations were begun, there was some hope that arrangements might be concerted, whereby the funds realised from the taxation of salt in these States might be employed in redeeming all the transit, export, and import duties, so that free trade might be established throughout. But although some progress was made in this direction, and four of the minor States agreed to the plan, yet the obstacles to a general redemption of all local duties were soon found to be serious. The preliminary impediment lay in the reluctance expressed by a large majority of the Chiefs to accede to an arrangement whereby they exchanged revenues raised by themselves for assignments from the Government, and submitted to a perceptible disturbance of their revenue system. In the second place, it proved to be very doubtful whether the proceeds of the salt-duties in these States would suffice to redeem the local customs duties, upon any valuation which the Chiefs would willingly accept. And in the third place, it was necessary to remember that the transit duties are likely to diminish year by year. Whenever railways run through a State, the transit duties which are universal and often onerous throughout the Native States, are perforce relinquished, to the great relief of the people. The political officers were therefore instructed to refrain from any pressure, in negotiation, for the general redemption of the transit duties, and to confine arrangements to points essentially connected with the main object—the removal of the Inland Customs Line.

ABOLITION OF
GIVEN UP.

91. Although it is difficult to estimate with precision the actual amount of taxation which has been taken off in these States, yet undoubtedly an important diminution has been effected. The Imperial sugar-tax has gone; also all the transit duties—and these were not light—upon salt. In the four States under special agreement to forego all local duties, the relief has been very considerable. In the Bahawalpur State, for example, customs-duties exceeding £25,000 annually have been given up. In Alwar it is estimated that the duties foregone by the Maharao amounted to a taxation of £20,000 annually on the people of that State. In Bhurtpore the salt-revenue of the Maharaja was about £27,000. The customs revenue of the Dholpur State was more than £7,500. The sum of £38,700 to be paid annually to the Maharaja of Jodhpore for the lease of the four tracts within his territories, represents, approximately, on a liberal estimate, the annual revenue which the State realised by the taxation of salt produced within those tracts.

92. It is not expected that the British Government will make any direct profit from the duty realised on the salt consumed in these fourteen States by their people. The total estimated revenue to be derived by this Government from the tax on the consumption of these States amounts to £165,600. Against this sum must be put the payments and remissions to be made by the British Government, amounting altogether to £188,400. The £150,000, the average annual revenue derived from the sugar export duties which have been given up, and which fell almost entirely on the people of these Native States, has been left out of this account.

93. It will be seen from the foregoing general description of the arrangements concluded, that the Chiefs have been treated with great liberality. They have been amply compensated for all possible loss of revenue; and there is every reason to believe that they are well satisfied with the terms they have obtained. Moreover, all persons whose proprietary or manufacturing interests are affected, have been fully indemnified, while many advantages have been given to the people which will go far to compensate the fresh salt taxation they will have to bear.

94. Nor must it be forgotten that the British Government has already spent seven millions sterling, and will eventually have spent ten millions, on railways running through the Native States of Rājputāna and Central India. The people of all these States benefit by the cheapened and facilitated transport of every article carried by these railways, and the great trunk lines with which they are connected, as well as by the cessation of transit duties, wherever the railways displace road traffic; their communications with the sea-board and with the great trading marts of India, which had hitherto been exceedingly bad and unsafe, have been made easy and secure, to the great advantage of their trade.

95. The general financial result of the whole of the arrangements now nearly completed may be stated as follows: The Government expects to receive altogether on account of the consumption of salt in the Native States £265,600. It also expects an eventual saving in establishments, &c., in the Inland Customs Line of £95,000. The total gain is thus £360,600. On the other hand, the estimated expenditure on account of compensation, &c., paid to the Native States under the new agreements, and under the Sambhar Treaties of 1869, amounts to £258,900. To this sum has to be added £150,000 on account of sugar duties relinquished, making a total of £108,900.

96. The balance in favour of the States affected by these measures is therefore about £143,000, and the balance against the British revenues is about £18,000 a year. This, it is confidently expected, will be recovered by the increased consumption that will follow the reduction of the cost of salt in British territory, and, in spite of the duty, in many parts of the Native States.

97. Except by measures of the kind which have been described, the abolition of the Inland Customs Line would have been impossible.

98. The Governor General in Council hopes that the essential objects of the fiscal policy which the Government of India and that of Her Majesty have long had at heart, have now been, for the most part, secured, and that, in the attainment of those objects, the compensation of local interests has been equitably adjusted. For this result, great credit is due to the Political Officers concerned in the negotiations, and especially to Mr. A. C. Lyall and Sir Henry Daly, to whose experience and ability may be attributed the good-will and friendly accord with which these arrangements have been settled in Rājputana and Central India. Nor must reference be omitted to the services of Mr. A. O. Hume in connection with this policy. The agreements which have now been made are the logical complement of the preceding Agreements which were negotiated by Mr. Hume in 1870 with the States of Jodhpore and Jeypore, on behalf of the Government of the late Lord Mayo, for the lease and management of the Sambhar Lake. In a minute, dated the 9th July 1874, on the subject of the Sambhar negotiations, Sir John Strachey observed that the responsibility for them practically rested with Mr. Hume, and that to him belongs the credit of their eminently satisfactory results. After the ratification of the treaties concluded by Mr. Hume, the system of management at the Sambhar Lake was initiated and organised by him in the face of considerable difficulties. That system has since worked admirably, and it has latterly been superintended and developed with much ability by Mr. G. H. M. Batten, who succeeded Mr. Hume as Commissioner of Customs. Reform of the Salt Revenue.

99. The pledges given by the Government last year in regard to the salt duties have now been fulfilled. The increase of duty in Madras and Bombay, combined with the reductions in the Bengal Presidency, was estimated to give a net temporary increase to the salt revenue of £300,000. Regarding this, Sir John Strachey said in his speech in the Legislative Council on the 27th December 1877:—"As the avowed policy of the Government is to equalise the salt duties by the reduction of these duties in the Bengal Presidency, this last-named addition of £300,000 will not constitute a permanent item of revenue. On the contrary, it is our intention, so soon as the improved position of the country will admit, to carry out the long-deferred equalisation of these duties, which will involve the sacrifice of the temporary increase of income which our present needs will not permit us to forego." The sacrifice of revenue involved by the measures of reduction taken in July last is estimated at £300,000, the same amount which had been gained by the measures of the previous December in MADRAS and BOMBAY. NO GAIN TO IMPERIAL REVENUE AS A WHOLE.

100. The salt duty has thus been equalised throughout India at the rate of Rs. 2-8 per maund, with this exception; that in the Lower Provinces of BENGAL the rate remains for the present at Rs. 2-14. In BURMAH the duty remains at 3 annas a maund. EQUALISATION OF DUTY ACCOMPLISHED.

101. IX & 11, Opium.—Revenue more £1,097,000. Expenditure less £187,000, Net Revenue OPIMUM. £7,584,000, being £1,584,000 more than estimated. This Net Revenue has been only once exceeded (1871-72). Of the improvement, £1,031,000 has occurred in BENGAL and £550,000 in BOMBAY. Both the BENGAL and the MALWA crops failed seriously last year, but the MALWA took seems to have been larger than was supposed. A saving in the payments for the BENGAL crop does not properly appertain to the year in which it happens, so that the finances of 1878-79 may be held to be unduly benefited under this Head to the extent of £487,000.

102. The average price obtained for BENGAL Provision Opium during the year was AVERAGE PRICE. Rs. 1,228 a chest, being Rs. 66 more than was estimated.

103. Only 43,110 chests of BENGAL Provision Opium were manufactured from the Crop OUTTURN. 1877-78. of 1877-78 as follows:—

|---------|-----|-----|-----|-----|--------|
| BEHAR | ... | ... | ... | ... | 18,140 |
| BENARES | ... | ... | ... | ... | 25,000 |

This is the smallest outturn from the Patna Factory since 1860-61.

104. The Reserve Stock ~~from~~ the Crop of 1876-77 on the 31st December 1878 was as RESERVE STOCK. follows:—

| | | | | | 48,482 |

105. X & 12, Stamps.—Revenue more £94,000, Expenditure less £8,000, improvement STAMPS altogether £102,000. Net Revenue £2,955,000; being the largest Net Revenue yet obtained. The improvement is in BENGAL £15,000, the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES £26,000, MADRAS £29,000 and BURMAH £13,000.

106. XI, Mint.—Revenue less £8,000. Expenditure less £5,000. Net Revenue less £3,000. Net Revenue £67,000. Notwithstanding the small importation of silver, Rs. 5,51,20,000 has been coined to date, the Mints having begun the year with large balances.

107. XXIII & 29, Miscellaneous.—Revenue more £178,000. Expenditure more £25,000. INTEREST ON DEBT. Net Revenue more £143,000. Net Revenue £60,000. Revenue aggregating £153,800 transferred to this Head from VI, Provincial Rates, and £16,000 from I, Land Revenue. Some corresponding expenditure has also been transferred in like manner.

penditure. 108. I & XXI, Interest on Debt.—Expenditure more £98,000. Revenue more £50,000. Net Expenditure more £48,000. Of the increase of Revenue, £12,000 is transferred from VI, Provincial Rates, and belongs to Local Funds. Thus the real increase of Net Expenditure is apparently £36,000. It is really much larger; for the Estimate was made upon the expectation that the coming Loan would be raised at four per cent. and £200,000 discount was provided; the actual discount is only £39,000. The true corrected excess Net Expenditure for interest is accordingly £197,000. Net Expenditure £5,395,000, more by £183,000 than last year.

PER CENT. LOAN 109. Under Notification No. 616, dated 27th May 1878, £2,500,000 was '8. borrowed at $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. for 15 years. This Loan was subscribed at an average of Rs. 98-6-10 for Rs. 100, and the discount, (£39,294), is recorded under this Head in the Regular Estimates.

PER CENT. TRANSFER LOAN. 110. On the 12th August last, a TRANSFER LOAN was issued for Ten Crores
'9. of Rupees to enable the Government to discharge the Five-and-a-half per cent. Loan of 1859-60, which will mature on the 1st May 1879. The conditions of this Transfer Loan were those of the Loan of the 27th May, namely, $4\frac{1}{2}$ per Cent. for fifteen years, with some slight special advantages. As an alternative, a form of security was proposed which was designed to yield about 1 per cent. by the Sterling Standard: it was not open to the Government of India to adopt the simpler plan of paying an equivalent amount of sterling interest in London: it was supposed, however, that some of the holders of the Five and-a-half per Cent. Loan would prefer to Rs. 15 a year, a varying sum in Rupees which would always closely represent £3-10 a year, that is to say that they would be willing to contract for a permanent exchange of 1s. 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. for the remittance of their interest home, and prefer 1 Per Cent. with the exchange so far secured, to $4\frac{1}{2}$ Per Cent. without any protection against the fluctuations of the exchange. But this expectation was not fulfilled, notes for only £25,000 having been issued in the Seven Shillings Per Cent. form.

PROGRESS OF THE OPERATION. 111. The total amount of the Five and-a-half Per Cent. Loan outstanding when the operation began was £9,845,170. Circumstances have not been favourable for the operation; but, nevertheless, substantially, the transfer has been effected, enough of the holders of the Five and-a-half per Cent. Loan having transferred their holdings to the Transfer Loan to enable the Government, with the assistance of the cash subscriptions to the Transfer Loan (amounting to £1,393,457), to issue formal notice that the Five and-a-half Per Cent. Loan will be paid off at maturity. The reduction of interest thus effected will cause a considerable yearly saving; but the payment this year, in anticipation of due date, of the last half-year's interest on the Five and-a-half per Cent. Loan has added to the expenditure this year.

FUNDS. 112. 3, Refunds.—The increase of £33,000 is entirely for the License Tax Refunds, (£38,000) of which £50,000 are estimated at Bombay.

POST OFFICE. 113. II & AII, Post Office.—Expenditure more £67,000. Revenue more £38,000. Net worse £29,000. Net Expenditure £99,000. The excess expenditure is owing to the transfer to this Head, of Provincial and Local Expenditure from II, Minor Departments. The Imperial Account shows an improvement. It is to be remembered that there are Cesses included under VI, Provincial Rates levied to cover the Local Expenditure now incorporated. These Cesses aggregated £5,400 this year.

TELEGRAPHS. 114. IV & XIII, Telegraphs.—Expenditure less £43,000. Revenue more £12,000. Net better £55,000. Net Expenditure £95,000, the lowest net expenditure yet recorded. The improvement is chiefly in State messages, and is partly attributed to the military operations beyond the Frontier.

PROGRESS OF TELEGRAPH REVENUE. 115. The Director General remarks that it is worthy of note that notwithstanding the loss upon working the CEYLON Line (from which loss the Government of India is seeking relief), the net charge of the Indian Telegraph Department on the Imperial Revenue is now solely due to Capital Expenditure.

ADMINISTRATION. 116. IV, Administration.—Increase £21,000 spread over various Provinces.

MINOR DEPARTMENTS. 117. IV & AII, Minor Departments.—Expenditure less £187,000. Revenue more (for Chinchona) £10,000. Net Expenditure £297,000. Local Funds Expenditure estimated under this Head now transferred to others.

118. 18 & XV, Law and Justice.—Expenditure more £101,000. Revenue more £51,000. Expenditure. Net Expenditure more £50,000. High prices of food and consequent increase in cost of maintain- LAW AND JUSTICE ing prisoners.

119. 19 & XVI, Police.—Expenditure more £57,000. Revenue more £144,000. Net POLICE. Expenditure less £87,000. Net Expenditure £2,212,000. Local Funds (chiefly Cattle Pounds) yielding £129,000 of Revenue with corresponding expenditure, transferred from VI, Provincial Rates and 17 Minor Departments.

120. 20 & XVII, Marine.—Expenditure more £23,000. Revenue more £32,000. Net MARINE. Expenditure less £9,000. Net Expenditure £364,000. No remarks.

121. 21 & XVIII, Education.—Expenditure less £29,000. Revenue more £34,000 EDUCATION. (£28,000 transferred from VI, Provincial Rates). Net Expenditure less £63,000. Net Expenditure £841,000. Saving in MADRAS.

122. 22, Ecclesiastical.—Saving £6,000. Accidental. ECCLIASTICAL.

123. 23 & XIX, Medical.—Expenditure more £16,000. Revenue more £20,000. Net MEDICAL. Expenditure less £1,000. Net Expenditure £610,000. No remarks.

124. 24 & XX, Stationery and Printing.—Excess Expenditure £79,000. Excess Revenue STATIONERY AND £28,000. Net Excess Expenditure £51,000. Net Expenditure £461,000. Growth of expen- PRINTING diture general.

125. 25, Political.—More £68,000. Arrears of subsidy paid to His Highness the Khan POLITICAL. of Khelat.

126. 26, Allowances and Assignments.—Excess £178,000, of which £161,600 is for the salt ALLOWANCES. payments for Sambhar, and under the new engagements with Native States in Rajputana.

127. 27, Civil Furlough Allowances.—Less £2,000: accidental. FURLOUGH ALLOW- ANCES.

128. 28 & XXII, Superannuations.—Expenditure more £139,000. Revenue more £80,000, explained mainly by the authorised retirement of many of the Subscribers to the Bombay PENSIONS. Medical Retiring Fund, who will receive back their subscriptions amounting with interest to £68,739. The balance at credit of the Fund did not suffice to meet the claim of these Retiring Members. Apart from this, however, the expenditure under this Head, already large, is generally increasing. Net excess Expenditure £59,000. Net Expenditure £1,303,000.

129. 30, Famine Relief.—Excess Expenditure £55,000. A grant of £500,000 was made all FAMINE RELIEF. for expenditure in MADRAS. In that Presidency the actual expenditure is only £150,000, the Provincial Government having contracted to close the Famine Account for this sum. But £100,000 has been spent in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH, of which £37,500 was paid from Provincial Resources, £4,000 in BOMBAY, and £1,000 in RAJPUTANA.

130. In the 13th paragraph of the Resolution prefixed to the Financial ESTIMATED COST Statement for 1878-79, the ultimate net cost of the Famine of 1876-78 in LAST YEAR. SOUTH INDIA was estimated at £9,750,000; but it was explained in the Statement itself that perfect accuracy was unattainable. The difficulty of making any accurate estimate has now been increased by the complication of scarcity supervening in UPPER INDIA before the cessation of Famine Expenditure in the South.

131. The arrears of Land Revenue collected in 1878-79 are expected to exceed PRESENT ESTI- MATE, £9,400,000 the Regular Estimate by £170,000; and it is estimated that in 1879-80 further arrears amounting to £200,000, lying over from the Famine in SOUTHERN INDIA will be collected. Perhaps the net direct cost of the Famine may now be estimated at £9,400,000; namely, £1,300,000 in BOMBAY and £8,100,000 in MADRAS. But the loan to MYSORE has now been increased to £800,000, making with £500,000, lent to His Highness the Maharaja Sindhia, £1,300,000 in all lent to Native States. The cost of the Dhond and Munmar Railway, which was undertaken solely on account of the Famine, is now estimated at £1,350,000; it is impossible at present to say to what extent this capital expenditure will be reproductive; it is as yet yielding little or nothing. There were other items of expenditure of a like kind which cannot be so readily identified.

132. Altogether the disbursements of the Government of India, together GROSS OUTLAY with the loss of Revenue due to the Famine in SOUTH INDIA, will probably fall £13,000,000. little short of £13,000,000. The loss to the country must have been much more than even this formidable sum.

133. 31 & XXIV, Public Works Ordinary.—Expenditure less £84,000. Revenue more PUBLIC WORKS £328,000. £296,000 transferred with corresponding expenditure from VI, Provincial Rates ORDINARY. (chiefly ferries and tolls). Net Expenditure less £412,000. The transferred Local Revenue greatly exceeds the transferred Local Expenditure.

134. 32 & XXV, Irrigation and Navigation.—Revenue more £108,000. Expenditure less IRRIGATION AND £105,000. Net Expenditure less £205,000. £85,500 Revenue transferred from VI, Provincial NAVIGATION.

Expenditure.

Notes. Owing to the changes which this head has undergone, it is not possible to explain the remaining difference from Estimates satisfactorily.

135. The portion of these Heads which appertain to Productive Public Works is separated off below the first total in Abstract Statement No. II and shows Revenue more £29,000. Expenditure more £13,000. Net Revenue more £16,000. Net Revenue £195,000.

GUARANTEED RAILWAYS.

136. 33 & XXVI, Guaranteed Railways.—The details of these Railways will be found in the Appendix (Table No. V), and a comparison between the original and the present estimates of the finances of these Railways for the current year can be most conveniently made by that Table. It was originally estimated that these Railways would impose upon the Revenue a net charge of £906,450. The charge is now expected to amount to £1,490,400, or £583,950 more. Of this sum £92,500 is due to a falling off in the Net Traffic Earnings, chiefly by reason of large expenditure for the restoration of works injured by floods; £164,500 to an increased charge for interest, which is entirely caused by the fall in the Exchange, for the actual sterling payment is £10,000 less; the share of the increased loss by exchange which appertains to these transactions is in fact £176,400. £294,000 is for increased surplus payments to the Companies, of which half is due to the earnings during the last half-year of 1877-78 having been larger than was expected, and half to an error in the Original Estimate and £12,450 is owing to excess less upon the Capital Transactions.

FALLING OFF.

137. Thus these Railways are now expected to yield £1,884,256 less than in 1877-78, and a smaller net revenue than in any earlier year since 1873-74. The gross earnings will, indeed, be far larger than in any of these earlier years; but the working expenses are, owing to costly restorations, rather high. A main cause of the unfavourable comparison of the present year with recent years other than 1877-78 (the circumstances of which year were altogether exceptional) is the progressive fall in the exchange. The growth of the Net Traffic Earnings has been considerable; but it has hardly kept pace with the increased charge for interest and, above all, with the increased cost of the interest in silver. The last cause unfavourable to the year's finances is the exceptional amount to be paid for Surplus Profits, which were largely earned last year.

STATE RAILWAYS.

138. 34 & XXVII, State Railways.—Expenditure more £328,000. Revenue less £7,000. Net Expenditure more £321,000. Net Expenditure £27,000. The portion of the capital cost of the Mathura-Hathras and Ghazipur-Bildarua-jar Local Lines subscribed to date from Provincial and Local Funds by the Government of the North-Western Provinces is now shown here as expenditure besides the expenditure upon Surveys and upon the Indian Salt Lanes. The portion of the State Railway Revenue and Expenditure which appertains to Railways treated as Productive Public Works in the Accounts will be found below in the first total Abstract Statement No. II, and shows decrease of Revenue £7,000; increase of expenditure £72,000; more Net Expenditure 79,000 and a Net Revenue of £179,000. The traffic upon these Lines does not grow as quickly as might be wished.

MADRAS CANAL COMPANY.

139. 35 & XXVIII, Madras Irrigation and Canal Company.—For the first time in its history the works of the Company are expected to yield some Revenue in excess of the working expenses; the net expenditure shews an improvement of £16,000. But this is owing to the collection of arrears of Revenue coupled with the refusal of the Government to bear any longer the excess current working expenses of the works of this Company. The true effects during recent years upon the Indian Finances of the ^{guarantee} of interest upon the Capital of this Company is shown in the Appendix, Table VIth.

PROVINCIAL SURPLUS AND DEFICIT.

140. 36 & XXIX, Provincial and Local Surplus and Deficit.—Surplus more £279,000. Deficit less £235,000. Net result better £514,000. It was expected that the Provincial Governments would spend £268,000 more than their accruing Revenues. They are now estimated to spend £246,000 less than their accruing Revenues. A small part of this improvement of the Provincial resources is explained by the concessions to BURMAH and ASSAM, but the bulk of it is due to improvement in the Provincial and Local Revenues and to reduction of the Provincial Expenditure. The closing balances of the Provincial and Local Treasuries at the end of each year will be found in Statement No. IX.

THE ARMY.

141. 37 & XXX, The Army.—Expenditure more £1,210,000. Revenue more £30,000. Net Expenditure more £1,180,000. Net Expenditure £16,685,000.

COST OF THE WAR.

142. It is impossible at present to estimate the cost of the Military Operations now in progress beyond the North-Western Frontier of India; but it is believed that the excess cost of the Army attributable to that cause recorded in the Accounts of 1878-79, will not exceed £670,000. The remainder of the excess here is due to higher prices in India (£350,000) and to increased expenditure at the Home Treasury (£166,900 net).

143. 38 & XXXI. Loss and Gain by Exchange.—Loss more £4 0,000. Gain less (smaller Expenditure.
Net Railway Traffic Earnings) £74,000. Net Loss more £474,000, notwithstanding that EXCHANGE.
£1,320,000 less than Estimate has been remitted to the Home Treasury. Instead of £17,000,000 only £15,680,000 are now expected to be so remitted.

144. The estimated rate of Exchange of the year was 1s. 8½d., which was, FURTHER FALL OF at the time, considered so low that overtures (which could not, of course, EXCHANGE. be entertained) were made to the Government for a contract for the whole remittance at a higher rate. The actual rate has been 1s. 7¾d., or nearly three farthings worse.

145. The gold prices of silver have fluctuated much more than last year, the GOLD PRICE OF highest price being 54¼d. on the 2nd April, the lowest 48½d. on the 21st Decem- SILVER.
ber. The phenomena in India have all tended to a weaker exchange. The net UNFAVOURABLE amount borrowed by the Government has been less than last year by £3,640,606. CIRCUMSTANCES.
The Excess Exports of commodities (other than gold and silver) in the first ten months of the year is only £15,434,055, being £2,318,813 less than last year, and the Net Silver imported has declined from £13,117,467 to £2,187,577, or by £10,929,890.

146. 39, Productive Public Works. The Capital Expenditure on Productive Public Works is PRODUCTIVE now estimated at £4,599,000, being an excess over estimate of £44,000. This excess is due to PUBLIC WORKS the inclusion by the orders of the Secretary of State under this Head of the whole expenditure CAPITAL EXPEN-
upon the MADRAS HARBOUR WORKS to the end of 1878-79, estimated at £211,000 DITURE

147. The arrangement sanctioned by the Secretary of State in respect to these MADRAS HARBOUR Works is that the whole expenditure upon them, up to a maximum of £628,000, WORKS.
shall be entered under this Head in the Accounts, and that Port-dues shall, when the Harbour is completed, be levied at such rates as will yield to the Provincial Government a net income amounting to 4 per cent. interest on the capital cost up to this maximum of £628,000. The Government of India has undertaken, as its share of the burden, to advance this sum without interest until the Harbour is completed and the Port dues are levied. The Provincial Government will defray from Provincial Resources any cost of the Harbour in excess of the sanctioned sum of £628,000, and any such excess will be entered in the accounts as Ordinary Expenditure and not under the Head 39, Productive Public Works. The Provincial Government will also make good to the Imperial Treasury from Provincial Resources 4½ per cent. interest upon the whole amount advanced from the Imperial Treasury.

148. The details which make up the rest of the estimated capital outlay of DETAILS OF CAPIT.
£4,599,000 will be found in Tables VII and VIII, Appendix B. The expendi- EXPENDITURE ON ture upon the Punjab Northern and Indus Valley State Railways and upon PRODUCTIVE PUB- the re-alignment of the Western Jumna Canal is estimated at £1,277,000. LC WORKS.
For reasons repeatedly given, this expenditure cannot be expected, within any time which can be foreseen, to produce a profit equal to the interest upon it.

149. The Productive Public Works Revenue and Expenditure Account PRODUCTIVE shows the following results: Expenditure more £432,700; Revenue less PUBLIC WORKS £47,000. Total more £479,700, which is due, partly to the interest being REVENUE AND reckoned at 4½ instead of 4 per cent. (a rate which is no longer sufficient), EXPENDITURE.
but mainly to the loss upon the Railways. The Accounts show Revenue £6,569,000; Expenditure £8,251,000; to which if the Gain by Exchange, £374,000, and the Loss by Exchange, £1,015,720, be added, the result is—

|--------------------|-----------|
| Revenue | 6,943,000 |
| Expenditure | 9,266,700 |
| Deficit | 2,313,700 |

against which is to be set the excess Land Revenue due to the Productive Works of Irrigation in MADRAS and the interest on the Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure, which is not yet producing profit. It will be remembered that the Guaranteed Railways are expected to yield net £1,884,256 less this year than last.

Expenditure. 150. The capital upon which interest at $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum is reckoned in this Account is as follows : Total to the end of 1877-78 £29,094,020, in 1878-79 £4,647,000 and in 1879-80 £3,500,000.

WAYS AND MEANS
1878-79.

151. Including the Capital Expenditure upon Productive Public Works, and excluding the book-credits from the Military Funds, the Public Expenditure in 1878-79 is now expected to exceed the Public Revenue by £3,656,000. The net Loans to Native States (chiefly Mysore and Gwalior) and Corporations, chiefly at Bombay (Water Works and Docks) amount to £1,040,000. The Railway Companies are expected to withdraw Capital amounting to £710,000. The other items of the Debt Account are expected to result in the net disbursement of £160,959. Thus the total Net Disbursements of the year in excess of the Revenue are expected to amount to £5,103,959. Of this sum £1,374,959 is provided by the reduction of the Public Balances from £15,574,959 to £14,200,000, and Public Debt amounting to £1,498,000 has been incurred for the remainder.

DEBT OPERATIONS,

152. This sum of £4,498,000 borrowed is thus made up :—

| | £ |
| Borrowed under the Notification No. 616, dated 27th May 1878 | 2,500,000 |
| Net borrowed in London | 622,100 |
| Net borrowed in India (Cash subscriptions to Transfer Loan 1879 (£1,393,457) less some miscellaneous repayments) ... | 1,375,900 |
| | 4,498,000 |

153. It must be admitted that the assistance of the cash subscriptions to the Transfer Loan 1879 has proved convenient, and that it would have been difficult to have carried on the Public Service without that aid. The Government was compelled further to obtain a temporary loan during the year from the Bank of Bengal ; but this has long since been repaid.

REMITTANCES.

154. Of the £15,680,000 remitted to the Home Treasury £14,164,000 was supplied in the usual way. For the balance of £1,516,000, bills were bought, in October and November, at a usance of six months, in Calcutta, at rates which compared favourably with the rates which could, at that time, be obtained for the Secretary of State's Bills in London. This phenomenon was due to money being, at the moment, exceptionally plentiful in Calcutta and exceptionally scarce in London—a combination which seldom happens. It is very unlikely that the Government will often depart from the established method of supplying the Home Treasury by selling bills upon India in London.

PURCHASE OF BILLS.

NET DEBT OF THE YEAR.

155. Deducting the Loans to Native States, &c., and the Railway Capital repaid, the net addition to the Public Debt during the year is only £2,748,000—much less than the capital expenditure on Productive Public Works, amounting to £4,599,000.

COMPARISON OF REGULAR WITH BUDGET ESTIMATE.

156. Compared with the Original Estimates, the whole deficit of Revenue deducting the book-credits from the Funds is £976,000 more ; £440,000 more has been lent to Native States (chiefly Mysore), and £290,000 less was withdrawn by Guaranteed Railway Companies ; the Balances have supplied £125,041 less than was expected, and the net result of the other Debt items is £929,959 worse. The increase to the Public Debt is £1,998,000 more than was estimated.

TRUE SURPLUS BY ORIGINAL
ESTIMATE, 1878-79.

157. At the close of the last Financial Statement, it was explained that, while the Surplus shown upon the face of the Estimates for 1878-79 was £2,156,000, the true Surplus, after deducting the book-credits from the Military Funds and the estimated arrears of Land Revenue in excess of the estimated cost of the Famine during the year, was only £1,759,000. In this calculation, it was overlooked that provision was then made for remittances to the Home Treasury in excess of the net current requirements of the year, the entry under Loss by Exchange (£3,000,000) exceeding by £257,000, the amount which would have sufficed for those net current requirements : and that £200,000 had been provided for discount on the then forthcoming Loan. Such discount is not a proper charge of the year in which it occurs. Thus, the true estimated Surplus of 1878-79 was £2,216,000.

158. The Surplus which appears upon the face of the Regular Estimates is Expenditure. £1,300,000, from which £357,000 must be deducted for the book-credits TRUE SURPLUS from the Military Funds; on the other hand £141,575 must be added because the BY PRESENT provision for Loss by Exchange exceeds by this amount the sum which would be ESTIMATES. necessary if all the net current requirements of the Home Treasury for the year were remitted. Considering the extent to which the expenditure of the year has been increased by the high prices of food, it is not perhaps necessary to set off anything for arrears of Land Revenue (about £800,000), considerable though they be, in excess of the charge for Famine Relief (£555,000). The Discount charge is £39,000, and the portion of the last half-year's interest upon the Five and-a-half per Cent. Loan in anticipation of due date may be estimated at £185,000.

There remains, therefore, a true Surplus of £1,309,000 to compare with the estimated Surplus of £2,216,000, shewing a deficiency of £907,000.

159. Considering that this surplus exists after paying the whole charges of RESULT the War, amounting to £670,000; after allowing for a charge for Loss by Ex- CONSIDERED change higher by £586,000 than the sum taken in the Estimates of the year; SATISFACTORY. and notwithstanding the other adverse influences that have been stated, the result, although less favourable than was anticipated at the beginning of the year, must be considered satisfactory. Altogether, under the two heads War and Loss by Exchange alone, both of them virtually beyond control, the Government has spent £1,258,000 more than was expected, there is still a surplus of £1,309,000. In the Financial Statement of last year it was said that the Government hoped to provide in 1878-79 from the normal resources of the year a sum of £500,000 for the relief of famine, and that a surplus of at least £1,000,000 would be available from the Revenues of the year for the purposes of Famine Insurance. The total estimated Surplus of the year was, as has been explained, largely increased by special causes. The sum of £555,000 has been spent on Famine Relief, and a surplus of £1,309,000 for Famine Insurance has been provided; but it must not be forgotten that these results would evidently not have been attained if the Government had been obliged to trust only to the normal revenues of the year.

160. It remains to remark that it is a mistake to suppose that £1,500,000 AMOUNT OF NEW of new taxes was imposed in order to secure the surplus of £1,500,000 held TAXES. necessary as a provision against Famine. The real net taxation imposed last year and in 1877 was only as follows:—

| | 1878-79. | 1879-80. |
|--|------------------|------------------|
| Additional Cesses as follows— | £ | £ |
| BENGAL (PUBLIC WORKS CESS) | 338,000 | 332,700 |

| “ CENTRAL PROVINCES | 12,800 | 12,800 |
| TOTAL CESSES | 399,700 | 477,000 |
| ASSESSED TAXES, less Pandhary (which is old) (Gross Revenue | | |

161. There will remain still to levy hereafter £27,500 of the Famine Cess in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH. Thus the total eventual new taxation may be estimated at £1,104,900.

163. The explanation of the variations between the First Estimates 1879-80 and the Regular Estimates 1878-79 are as follows:—

LAND REVENUE.

164. I, Land Revenue.—Less £296,000 in MADRAS and the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES. Less arrears to be collected next year.

TRIBUTES.

165. II, Tributes.—Less £6,000. This year's revenue contained some arrears.

FORESTS.

166. III § 5, Forests.—Revenue more £79,000. Expenditure more £37,000. Net better £42,000. Some little recovery from the depression this year.

EXCISE.

167. IV § 5, Excise.—Revenue more £150,000. Expenditure more £27,000. Net better £123,000. Net Revenue £2,624,000. The following improvements are expected: BENGAL £15,000; NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES £25,000; PUNJAB £1,000; MADRAS £70,000; BOMBAY £30,000; CENTRAL PROVINCES £11,000. £100,000 was lost in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES and the PUNJAB this year, and £29,000 would be a moderate recovery. The £100,000 improvement expected in MADRAS and BOMBAY would only replace those Provinces in their normal condition as to this revenue. The excess expenditure is for compensation to the Municipal Corporation of Bombay and other persons in connection with the reform of the Excise Revenue there.

ASSESSED TAXES.

168. V § 7, Assessed Taxes.—Revenue more £27,000. Expenditure less £5,000. Net better £32,000 besides £10,000 less Refunds. The chief improvement is in BENGAL, where some arrears are expected to remain from this year.

PROVINCIAL RATES.

169. VI § 8, Provincial Rates.—Revenue more £60,000. Expenditure more £10,000. Net more £50,000. The Famine Cess (estimated to yield £110,000) was not levied this year in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND ORISSA. Provision is made for the levy of £82,500 or three-fourths of this Cess next year. The Regular Estimates include arrears in MADRAS.

CUSTOMS.

170. VII § 9, Customs.—Revenue less £192,000. Expenditure £1,000 more. Net worse £193,000. The exemption from import duty of all cotton goods which contain no yarn of a higher count than 30s., is estimated to entail a sacrifice of £200,000, of which £150,000 will fall upon 1879-80. The Revision of the Tariff Valuations involves a net loss of £12,000.

EXEMPTION FROM IMPORT DUTY OF ALL COTTON GOODS CONTAINING NO YARN OF A HIGHER NUMBER THAN 30s.

171. In the Financial Statement for last year, the Government of India announced its intention of undertaking, conformably to the desire of Her Majesty's Secretary of State, a gradual reform of the Customs Tariff. The principles on which this reform could be carried out were distinctly enunciated with regard both to the Tariff generally, and to the question in particular of the abolition of the duties on the importation of cotton goods and yarns into India. REFORM OF CUSTOMS TARIFF.

172. As a measure of general relief, the duties were removed on Railway Materials, and on a very large number of articles, comprised under 26 major heads of the Tariff, which yielded insignificant contributions to the Customs Revenue. ABOLITION OF DUTIES ON MINOR ARTICLES.

173. Respecting the Cotton Duties, the first step taken was to abolish the duty on Foreign Raw Cotton imported into India. This duty was imposed in 1875, with the view of placing Indian and English manufacturers on the same footing in regard to the finer classes of goods; but it was held by Her Majesty's Government to be objectionable in principle, and it proved, as was foreseen at the time, almost entirely unproductive. ON LONG-STAPLED COTTON RAW.

174. In further conformity with the views of the House of Commons, and the instructions of Her Majesty's Secretary of State, the Government of India determined to commence with the removal from the Tariff of the coarser qualities of cotton goods, which are subject to competition from the Indian mills and looms, and upon which the present duties are consequently in fact, as well as in principle, protective. The protection actually afforded was seen to be both indirect and direct. It was indirect through displacement of finer imported goods by the coarser and cheaper locally-made articles; it was direct, by the freedom of the latter from the taxation borne by imported goods of a similar class. With indirect protection, it was then felt to be impossible to deal. AND ON COARSER COTTON GOODS.

175. The real test of direct protection or the reverse was decided to be "the quality or fineness of the yarn of which the goods consist." Yarn designated 30s being known to be the very finest ordinarily made in India, or used for making cloth in the Indian mills, that count was adopted as the limit for exemption from duty with the view of removing direct protection. As, however, the count of yarn in the composition of cloths is never declared by importers at the Custom House or elsewhere, and as the extent to which a simple limit of 30s might admit shirtings, long cloths and other textures forming the bulk of the grey goods imported, was unknown, the necessary avoidance of financial risks required, as a further condition, that the goods freed from duty should be of certain specified and well-known descriptions, with which the successful competition of Indian manufacturers could be safely asserted. The limit of exemption for grey yarns was fixed at 32s for mule twist, and 20s for water twist. ALL IMPORTED GOODS CONTAINING YARNS NOT ABOVE 30s INJURED.

176. To this measure, which took effect on the 18th of March 1878, the Government of India was not surprised to learn that strong objections had been raised. It only purported to be a safe commencement in a desired direction; and its scope was unavoidably limited, not only by financial considerations, but by the absence of comprehensive designations for the goods entitled to relief. RELIEF NOT ENOUGH.

177. With the view of ascertaining the exact nature and bearing of the objections raised from without, and the feasibility of making a further advance on the line of policy definitively adopted, the Government of India, early in February last, nominated the Honorable T. C. Hope and Mr. J. D. Maclean, Collector of Customs at Calcutta, as a Commission to inquire into the matter, consulting freely the members of the mercantile community. The instructions issued to the Commission, and the report it has submitted, are published in an Appendix (A) to the present Resolution. COMMISSION APPOINTED.

178. The Commission reports that the Notification of March 18th, 1878, was "sufficient and suitable for the objects the Government had in view, and that it has worked, within the limits it was intended to work in, without much trouble or complaint." But the Commissioners find that the real cause of ITS REPORT.

complaints regarding piece-goods lies in "the fact that there is little essential difference between the cloths which have been exempted and large classes of cloth, otherwise styled, which have not;" and they state that—"the only effective remedy obviously is to treat similarly, whether by exemption or taxation, all cloths of the same texture, irrespective of the lengths and widths in which they happen to be made up, or the names by which people may choose to call them. This course is that which is, more or less explicitly, asked for by the Chambers of Commerce of Bengal and Manchester, as well as by four mercantile firms in Calcutta, four in Madras, and four in Bombay, who have been consulted, and is approved by the Bengal Board of Revenue and the Customs Collector and Government of Madras. On the other hand, it is opposed at Madras by the Board of Revenue and one firm, and by the Chamber of Commerce, a copy of whose letter is appended. The Bombay Chamber of Commerce, and the Governments of Bengal and Bombay, have expressed no opinion."

LIMIT OF 30s TO BE MAINTAINED.

179. With reference to the last sentence of this quotation, it must be added that, since it was written by the Commission, the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, at a general meeting held on the 4th instant, passed the following Resolution:—

"That the Government of India be urged to exempt from Customs duty all cotton goods of every size and denomination, if made of yarn of No. 30s and under."

180. The question immediately arising from the conclusion of the Commission which has just been quoted is, what texture of cloth, or in other words, "what number of yarn should be made the limit of exemption." After careful consideration of all available evidence, including recent special enquiries, the Commissioners hold that the limit of 30s, established last year, should be adhered to. They think there are—

"good grounds for believing that, except in a small number of isolated instances, the limit of 30s fixed by the Notification goes rather beyond what is necessary for abolishing existing direct protection. The small margin thus left is, however, useful in many ways, by leaving room for errors of estimate, by covering isolated higher manufacture, by allowing a greater difference between warp and weft, by minimising disputes, and by promising greater permanence for the limit than could otherwise be expected. A limit of 26s might cover the bulk of the manufacture for a time, but it could not be long maintained, while much outcry would be caused by a reduction from the existing limit of 30s, which seems to have been generally approved."

INDIRECT PROTECTION.

181. The indirect protection, on the other hand, they find not sufficiently palpable to call for an immediate remedy. It is, in their opinion, removable only "by an exemption going far beyond the present limits of actual local manufacture, and involving a sacrifice of revenue not absolutely necessary."

LIMIT OF 32s AND 20s FOR GREY YARNS.

182. Upon grounds virtually similar, the Commission advocates the maintenance of the limit of 32s mule and 20s water adopted for grey yarns in the Notification of March 18th, 1878. Relying upon the well ascertained facts that the Indian mills rarely make yarns even as fine as these numbers, that Indian cotton is sent to England to be spun into fine yarn for re-export back to India, and that the importations of fine yarn show no symptoms of decline, the Commissioners see no sufficient grounds for acceding, at a cost of about £35,000 per annum, to the proposal, which has been put forward, for exempting all yarns up to 36s water and 42s mule.

GOVERNMENT
CONCLUSIONS.

183. The report of the Commission brings to light some important facts establishing the need for early action to relieve those imported goods which are exposed to local competition. In 1875, the Tariff Committee estimated at £40,000 the duty paid on imported coarse goods competing with local manufactures. The Commission now put the loss by exempting such goods at £20,000 in an ordinary year; in the year just expiring it will probably not exceed £13,000. In other words, one-half, or more, of this branch of the import trade existing in 1875 has disappeared. This decline further corroborates the statistics quoted by the Secretary of State, in paragraph 23 of his despatch, dated 31st May 1876, from a letter of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, showing the falling off in the imports of coarse goods in the years 1872 to 1874 compared with 1858 to 1860; and it gives additional weight to the conclusions drawn by him from the facts before him.

"Comparing," he said, "the average per year of 1858, 1859 and 1860, the three years immediately preceding the American War, with the average per year of the last three years, 1872,

1873 and 1874, we find the following decrease in each of these descriptions of cloth and yarns, viz. :—

| | | | | | |
|---------------------------------------|-----|-----|-----|-----|-----------------|
| T. cloths | ... | ... | ... | ... | 381,111 pieces. |
| Long cloths | ... | ... | ... | ... | 275,261 „ |
| Domestics | ... | ... | ... | ... | 170,699 „ |
| Mule twist, above 20s. and under 30s. | ... | ... | ... | ... | 528,118 lbs. |
| Mule twist, 20s. and under | ... | ... | ... | ... | 447,916 „ |
| Water twist, 20s. and under | ... | ... | ... | ... | 1,126,739 „ |

These figures conclusively show that, so far as the import trade of Bombay is concerned, a serious decline has taken place in this branch of trade during the period in question, but their significance is increased by the considerations urged in the following extracts from the letter of the Chamber :—

“ It should be remembered that this absolute decrease has occurred, after a lapse of 14 years of profound peace and security, in cloth and yarns principally consumed by the poorer classes, whose condition, it is well known, has immensely improved from a variety of circumstances, and during which period railway communication throughout the country was yearly extending. In 1860, 836 miles of railway only were open in British India; in 1873, the number of miles of railway open had increased to 5,872. The progress of education, closer and more frequent contact with more advanced communities, and the wealth accumulated by the cotton cultivators throughout the Presidency during the American war and for several years subsequently, when the prices obtained showed enormous profits on the cost of production, combined to increase the demand for cloths and yarns of these descriptions to an extent far exceeding the demand which would have arisen at the ordinary rate of progress in ordinary years.

“ The Chamber apprehend that, under the circumstances, a very great increase indeed in the present imports of low cloths and yarns over the imports of the years immediately preceding the American war would be necessary to show that the import duty has not been operating as a protective duty, unless experience proves, after the abolition of the import duty, that local mills are able to compete successfully on equal terms with the English manufacturers. As it is, it may be fairly assumed, however, that the duty is maintained at the expense of the consumers, principally the poorer classes, against whom it tells in this instance with particular hardship in a prime necessity such as clothing, and that it is injurious to the thousands of village handloom weavers throughout the country, who are prevented from using the English yarns, which they might prefer, and are compelled to pay a higher price for what they do use, in consequence of its operation.”

184. The causes of this falling off in the imports of the coarser goods, and the effect attributable to the import duty have been differently appreciated by different authorities; but, although there has been a large increase in the importations of goods of finer quality, the fact is indisputable, that a branch of the trade which was once important has now become insignificant. IMPORT TRADE IN COARSE GOODS LOST.

185. On the other hand, the Bombay mills have, during the last four years, not only increased their exports of yarn and piece-goods to Foreign Countries by 26 per cent. and 51 per cent. respectively, but have more than doubled their exports to other parts of India. It is shown in para. 25 of the Report of the Commission that the total value of these exports, which was £132,000 in 1875-76, had risen to £915,000 in 1877-78. DEVELOPMENT OF BOMBAY MILLS.

186. At the same time, the prosperity of the Indian mills has not been unchequered. Last month, the Members of the Millowners' Association at Bombay resolved to close their mills for two days in the week, from 15th February to 15th April 1879, on the ground that the markets were overloaded with their manufactures. The quotation given below from the speech of the Hon'ble Morarjee Goculdas, who moved the resolution to the above effect, explains the circumstances of the case.* WITH FLUCTUATIONS.

187. The Government of India naturally view with much satisfaction the great expansion of local industry which has thus taken place, and the salutary outlets for capital and labour which it affords, and THEIR SUCCESS SATISFACTORY.

* The Hon'ble Morarjee Goculdas said: When at the beginning of last year we met to consider the advisability of adopting a resolution similar to that which I am now going to propose formally, I strongly urged the necessity of working our mills on short time, on account of the glut in the yarn and cloth markets. On that occasion I shewed, with detailed facts and figures, how we were working at a disadvantage, compared with Manchester. It is not necessary for me to repeat the same here, but as you may remember, it was then pointed out that the depressed state of trade and the interest of the mills demanded a diminished production, and that if we continued to work at the usual rate, the evils of over-production would soon make themselves felt and end disastrously to the cause of the local mill industry. Unfortunately, although the proposition to put the mills on shorter hours was adopted by the larger part of the Members of this Association present at the meeting held in January 1878, yet it failed to enlist the sympathy of all those whom it concerned, and could not therefore be carried out to the desirable extent. Several mills did adopt the short-hour system, in accordance with the proposition does not doubt that the depression complained of will be temporary only. But such facts as those which have been stated shew very plainly the duty incumbent on the Government of taking care that the great increase attained in the manufacture of cotton goods by the Indian mills is not fostered by defiance of the fundamental principles of British commercial policy, or by improper restrictions on other classes of Her Majesty's subjects.*

ALTERNATIVE REMEDIES

188. The Commission has considered, but only to reject them, three remedies alternative to that which, apart from financial considerations, it recommends. It is evident that to give a general exemption of all grey cloths of a certain texture, but to lower the limit to yarns No. 26, would be a retrograde and imperfect measure, by no means inexpensive, yet satisfying no one, and multiplying disputes. To add "chudders" and "dhoties" made of yarn, not exceeding 26s to the specified classes exempted under the Notification would be an amendment in harmony with the original intention of the Government, but would give no real relief. To cancel the exemption already granted, and to make from year to year a small additional remission of the general rate of duty, is open, as the Commission points out, to the objection that it gives relief to those who are not in immediate need of it, while withholding it from those who are.

RELIEF URGENTLY WANTED.

189. The general result therefore of the enquiry which has been held is that, on the one hand, the desirability of extending relief at the earliest practicable date to the suffering branches of the import trade in cotton goods is amply demonstrated. On the other hand, it is equally clear that an amount of relief sufficient, for a time at least, to remove the more urgent and immediate causes of complaint, could be afforded at an annual cost, the estimate of which is admittedly of a vague description, but which ranges from £150,000 to upwards of £200,000. It may safely be assumed that it will not, for the present, exceed the smaller sum.

passed at our meeting last year: but unwillingness was shewn in the case of others, and so the movement practically fell through after some time. This want of hearty co-operation on the part of the representatives of all the mills naturally led to over-production, and the supply in the local market soon exceeded the demand. Hence the yarn and cloth which found no sale here were conveyed in large quantities to up-country stations, where also the market has been overloaded, and we have now a good deal of stock to be yet moved off. The causes of this sad state of things are obvious; it has been brought about by circumstances both within and without our reach. The famine, as everybody knows, has told heavily on the consumption of our stock and lessened the demand for cloths in this country. But while the demand has been since these three years diminishing, the supply has, on the other hand, very much increased. There has been a sudden growth of spinning, weaving and manufacturing industry amongst us, and what it ought to have taken about twenty years to bring the present large number of mills into existence, has been brought about in the short space of two or three years. It is not surprising that owing to this sudden increase in the number of our mills some of them should have to work at a loss. The natural consequence of this has been over-production, the evils of which we have failed to prevent in time by proper precautionary measures. The present depression of trade is, of course, not confined to this country; but is general throughout England and other countries on the European Continent, where competition and over-production have blighted the prospects of mill industry to a great extent. But the millowners of all those places have not remained quiet, but have taken and are taking steps to check the evil, and every English mill brings us reports of the adoption of the short hour system and the reduction of wages in many countries of Europe. While such is the case, all our endeavours to guard our own interests have hitherto failed, and what has been the result of this inactivity? We hear of some mills working at a loss, and, as you know, nearly one-third of the local mill industry has, in the space of a few months, actually failed. Eight mills have already been put into liquidation, and two or three more are expected to go very soon. And if we go on overloading the market in the face of these discouraging circumstances, there is no doubt that we shall be simply ruining our prospects altogether. It is high time, therefore, that we should now ~~take~~ in the matter and adopt such measures as would prevent the present evils of over-production from being aggravated by their continuance. * * My opinion in fact is that we should all co-operate now more than ever in averting the evils by which our mill industry is threatened through different causes. I have briefly indicated the points in which that co-operation ought to be directed, and I hope they will meet with the unanimous approval of the Members of this Association. But we must make a beginning in the matter, and the best way to do it is by lessening our present rate of production. Seeing that the local and the up-country market has all been overloaded; seeing also that England and other countries of Europe are adopting the short time system, and taking every precautionary measure against the depression from which their mill industry suffers; and seeing also that our own condition is in no way better, but even worse, as you may see from the recent failures amongst us, I believe it is a duty we owe to ourselves and the shareholders of our mills that we should unanimously carry out the proposal to put our mills on the short-time system of working for the present at least. I say unanimously, because it must be evident to all that without unanimity nothing can be done. If we flew that individual Companies do not pay respect to the opinion of a large majority, we shall be simply lowering this ledy in the eyes of the public, and there would be little use in continuing an association for the purpose professing of watching our interests. I therefore entreat you, gentlemen, to think over all this, and trust you will see the necessity of giving a practical effect to the resolution which I now beg to propose—"That, with the view of checking the great accumulation of stock during the present period of depression, the Members of the Association do agree to close their respective mills every Saturday and Sunday, from 15th February to 15th April 1879."

* The following passage is quoted from a letter addressed on the 6th July 1877, by Mr. Raynsford Jackson to the Marquis of Salisbury; it deserves consideration in connection with the statements made in regard to the over-supply by the Indian Mills of the demand for the coarser qualities of goods:—"These facts may

190. The Governor General in Council considers that the facts reported by the Commission and those which have now been stated show conclusively that adherence to the tentative measures of last year is not possible. It is not reasonable that certain goods should be admitted free, while large quantities of goods of almost precisely the same character in every thing but name, remain liable to duty. No measure falling short of the exemption from duty of all cotton goods containing no yarn finer than 30s can be defended, and this measure can no longer be delayed. Its adoption will, for the present at least, remove the directly protective character of these duties. It will be in accordance with the views of the Special Commission; with those stated by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, in their letter to the Government of India, dated the 17th April 1878;* and with the recommendations of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce made on the 27th March 1878,† and of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce made on the 4th instant.‡ For the reasons stated by the Commission, the Governor General in Council does not think it necessary at present to make any change in regard to the duty on yarns. A Notification has accordingly now been published exempting from import duty all cotton goods containing no yarn of a higher number than 30s.

191. There will still remain, as the Commission has pointed out in paragraph 18 of its Report, “the indirect protection alluded to in last year’s Financial Statement which enables the Indian-made coarse goods to displace, by their cheapness or other qualities, finer cloths imported.” The facts stated by the Commission show distinctly that this indirect protection cannot be overlooked; but they show, at the same time, the great difficulty of dealing with it by any measure short of the abolition of the duty on all kinds of grey piece goods. Financial considerations render it impossible for the Government of India to deal with this part of the question at the present time. By abolishing the import duty on all goods in respect of which there is any actual competition between English and Indian Mills, and thus removing the directly protective character of the duty, the Governor General in Council has done all that is now practicable.

INDIRECT
STILL REMAIN.

192. Although the amount of revenue surrendered in the coming year by the measure thus announced is not likely to exceed £150,000, the Governor General in Council does not underrate the importance of the step, taken, as it will be, when no surplus of revenue over expenditure is expected; when the Estimates show a deficit; and when the arrangements by which it was hoped that protection against famine would, so far as was possible, be secured for the country, have for the time failed to produce the desired effect.

LOSS OF £150,000
REVENUE.

193. The pledges given from time to time in regard to the gradual removal of the duties on cotton goods, have always been made subject to the condition that their fulfilment must depend on the position of the Indian finances. It certainly cannot now be asserted, in the face of the great and increasing loss occasioned by the fall in the value of silver in relation to gold, that the financial condition of India is satisfactory; although every branch of the public revenue is prosperous, and, with the exception which has been mentioned, no fresh causes for financial anxiety are apparent.

NOTWITHSTANDING
DEFICIT.

194. In saying this, the Governor General in Council is not unmindful of the fact that India is still engaged in the prosecution of war. He cannot, however, recognise in this fact any reason whatever for the postponement of a be accepted as proving that there is a real competition between the productions of the English and Indian Mills for the supply of coarse goods to India.

As regards the medium class of goods which compose nearly two-thirds of our Indian exports, I admit that the Indian Mills are not at present making them extensively, the reason being that they are fully employed in manufacturing the coarser fabrics, on which the transit charges and the duty tell the most heavily in favour of the Native manufacturer and against the importer. Their power to make these goods out of indigenous cotton has, however, been proved, and samples so made have been exhibited in England.

The English manufacturers, moreover, produced the medium, or shirting, class of goods out of Indian cotton without admixture of other growths, during the American war; and I have no hesitation in saying that when the factory industry of India has so extended as to over-supply the demand for coarse fabrics, the native manufacturer will supplant the British in the supply of the Indian markets with the finer goods.

It is not unimportant that the same opinion has recently been given by an Indian manufacturer interested in more than one Indian mill.”

AND FALL OF EX-

INJURY AND LOSS CAUSED BY DUTIES.

PRINCIPLES OF INDIAN

necessary fiscal reform. The consideration of Her Majesty's Government will, he trusts, enable India, not indeed to throw off her just liability for the charges of a necessary war undertaken for the protection of her own interests, but to meet those charges in a way which will throw no serious burden on her resources.

195. The real question which the Governor General in Council has had to consider is this:—Ought the Government to look upon the fresh financial difficulties arising from the fall in the exchange as a sufficient reason for refusing to sanction any further remission in the duty on cotton-goods? And this question, His Excellency in Council considered, must be answered in the negative. The injury and loss which these duties are causing both to the English producer and to the Indian consumer, and to the true interests of Indian commerce and manufactures, are certain. Measures which, for the present at least, will almost completely remove the protective, and therefore the most objectionable, feature in these duties, can be taken without surrendering any very considerable amount of revenue. The difficulties caused by the increased loss by exchange are great, but they will not practically be aggravated to an appreciable extent by the loss of £200,000. If the fresh fall in the exchange should prove to be temporary, such a loss will possess slight importance. If, on the other hand, the loss by exchange does not diminish, and no other remedies can be applied, it will become necessary to take measures of a most serious nature for the improvement of the financial position; but the retention of the import duties on cotton goods will not thereby be rendered possible. On the contrary, such retention will become more difficult than ever.

196. The principles by which the action of the Government of India are guided in regard to the commercial taxation of India were explained in the Financial Statement for 1878-79, and it is desirable that they should now be repeated:—

"The principles on which the Customs legislation of the United Kingdom has been based are now admitted axioms by all who recognise the theoretic advantages of free trade. They must be regarded as a part of the national policy which Great Britain has finally adopted, and which the Secretary of State for India, with the deliberate approval of the House of Commons, has required the Government of India in this country to carry out.

These principles are, as regards imports,—

(1) that no duty should exist which affords protection to native industry, and, as a corollary, that no duty should be applied to any article which can be produced at home, without an equivalent duty of excise on the home production; also, that no duty should be levied except for purely fiscal purposes;

(2) that, as far as possible, the raw materials of industry and articles contributing to production should be exempt from customs taxation;

(3) that duties should be applied only to articles which yield a revenue of sufficient importance to justify the interference with trade involved by the machinery of collection.

As regards exports;—that duties should be levied on those commodities only in which the exporting country has practically a monopoly of production.

These principles are of general application, but in the case of India, they possess a peculiar significance. India is a country of unbounded material resources, but her people are a poor people. Its characteristics are great power of production, but almost total absence of accumulated capital. On this account alone the prosperity of the country essentially depends on its being able to secure a large and favourable outlet for its surplus produce. But there is a special feature in the economic conditions of India which renders this a matter of yet more pressing, and even of vital, importance,—this is the fact that her connection with England and the financial results of that connection, compel her to send to Europe every year about 20 millions sterling worth of her products without receiving in return any direct commercial equivalent. It is this excess of exports over imports which, in the language of the economists, is described as tribute. It is really the return for the foreign capital, in its broadest sense, which is invested in India, including under capital not only money, but all advantages which have to be paid for, such as the intelligence, strength, and energy, on which good administration and commercial prosperity depend. From these causes, the trade of India is in an abnormal position, preventing her receiving, in the shape of imported merchandise and treasure, the full commercial benefit which otherwise would spring from her vast material resources.

The comparatively undeveloped condition of the trade of India may be illustrated by the following figures. The value of the imports and exports taken together per head of the population is in the United Kingdom about £20. In British India it is about 10 shillings. The Custom revenue on the few articles now retained in the Import Tariff of the United Kingdom is about 12 shillings per head, while that of India, on all the articles of its lengthy Tariff, is about 3 pence, shewing that small as is the proportion of the foreign trade of India to that of England, the proportion of Customs revenue derived from it is smaller still.

Here then is a country which, both from its poverty, the primitive and monotonous condition of its industrial life, and the peculiar character of its political condition, seems to require from its Government, before all things, the most economical treatment of its resources, and, therefore, the greatest possible freedom in its foreign exchanges."

197. Not only are these principles totally inconsistent with the permanent maintenance of protective duties, but, as has just been observed, they add to the difficulty of defending even the temporary maintenance of such duties, in the face of the profound disturbance caused by the change in the relative value of gold and silver.

DO NOT ADMIT OF RETENTION OF DUTIES.

198. It has been urged by some high authorities that, in its effect upon the import trade of India, a fall in exchange is almost equivalent to an import duty of corresponding amount; and that, while the direct effect of the low exchange is to stimulate the export trade, an opposite influence is produced on imports. Other high authorities dispute the accuracy of this view, and the Government of India does not now desire to discuss this part of the subject. If, however, there be one fact in connection with these most difficult questions regarding which there can be no possibility of doubt, it appears to the Governor General in Council to be this:—The effects which a great fall in the exchange value of the rupee must produce on the trade of India; on the prosperity of the people; on the means at the disposal of the Government for meeting its obligations; on the necessity which may arise of imposing fresh taxation to meet the increased liabilities of the State;—all these are questions which will be variously appreciated; but one thing at least is certain; under abnormal economic conditions such as those now existing, everything which interferes with the natural operations of trade, everything which imposes artificial restrictions, or gives artificial advantages, cannot fail to be mischievous.

EXCHANGE.

199. It is of course true that such questions as these cannot wisely be settled on economic grounds alone; but, in the present case, the Governor General in Council is satisfied that the political are fully as weighty as the economic reasons for the removal of the duties now under consideration. As observed by the Secretary of State these duties place "two manufacturing communities, upon whose well-being the prosperity of the Empire largely depends, in a position not only of competition but of political hostility to each other. * * The impost is too much at variance with the declared policy of this country to be permanently upheld; but, if the task of dealing with it be long postponed, it will be the subject of controversy between interests far more powerful and embittered than those that are contending over it at the present time." "I will not dwell again at length," the Secretary of State wrote in another despatch, "upon the political reasons which furnish, in my judgment, the weightiest arguments in favour of the course which I have urged upon your Excellency's Government. I need hardly insist further upon the danger of keeping open between two great communities of Her Majesty's subjects an irritating controversy which can be closed by one, and only one solution. It is difficult to overstate the evil of permitting an industry so large as the cotton manufacture in India is certain to become, to grow up under the influence of a system which a wide experience has proved to be unsound, and which is opposed to the deliberate policy of England, nor can I view without serious apprehension, unless it should be the result of natural causes, the gradual contraction of a trade which constitutes one of the strongest bands of material union between England and India."

REMISSION OF COTTON DUTIES IN HARMONY WITH POLITICAL AS WELL AS ECONOMIC REASONS.

200. In thus ascribing great weight to the political reasons for the removal of these duties, the Government of India desires that its motive may not be misunderstood. It is not, for the sake of averting an embittered controversy, yielding anything which it would otherwise be unwilling to concede. The impossibility of maintaining protective duties is indisputable and obvious. Such duties must, sooner or later, inevitably, be removed wherever they are to be found. The existing duties on a great variety of articles comprised in the Indian Tariff are, as was shown in the Financial Statement for last year, undoubtedly protective; and they are constantly becoming more so, as the industrial and manufacturing resources of India develop. But the removal of protective duties must necessarily be a work of time, dependent on the state of the finances and on the expedients which can be devised for replacing the revenue lost. The Government of India deems it right to begin by a single measure of relief which will at once and directly reach one great and important branch of manufacturing industry, rather than by spreading its exemptions over a large area in which their effect, though not lost, might be ill-defined and uncertain.

REFORM ACCOM-PLISHED

201. The measure now announced has been adopted in the sincere belief that it is required by the true interests of the people of India. The late Viceroy, the Earl of Northbrook, declared that "in all Financial questions those interests are the only considerations which the Government of India has to regard." The Governor-General in Council unreservedly repeats that declaration. This measure will be a serious step towards the fulfilment of the pledges repeatedly given by the Secretary of State and by the Government of India—pledges which received the strongest possible confirmation from the Resolution adopted by the House of Commons, on the 11th July 1877, without a division:—

"that in the opinion of this House, the duties now levied upon cotton manufactures imported into India, being protective in their nature, are contrary to sound commercial policy, and ought to be repealed without delay so soon as the financial condition of India will admit."

REVISED TARIFF
VALUATIONS.

202. The Tariff Commission has also completed its enquiries regarding revised valuations and the other matters which, as shown by the instructions, published in Appendix A, have been referred to it; and on the result of these further enquiries the Commission has submitted a second report which, with one exception, there has not been time to consider in detail.

PRESENT VALUA-TIONS TOO HIGH.

203. There has been no general revision of the present Tariff Valuations since August 1875, and it has been urged upon the Government by the Chambers of Commerce and others that in many instances these valuations are much above the current market rates, a statement which receives remarkable confirmation from the prices quoted in Table IV of Appendix B. The facts are, in short, indisputable, and it is obviously incumbent on the Government to correct errors of this kind, the practical effect of which is to increase the customs duties beyond the amounts authorised by law.

VALUATIONS RE-DUCED.

204. The Governor General in Council has, accordingly, resolved to sanction at once the valuations recommended by the Commission, and they will come into effect from the 1st April next. A notification carrying out this decision has now been published.

COST OF THIS MEASURE.

205. The net decrease of duty consequent on this measure has been estimated by the Commission at £54,424, of which £42,926 is on account of cotton goods. The exemption from duty of grey goods made of yarn of 30s and under will reduce the total loss from the revised Tariff valuations by £11,500, and the actual net estimated loss will be £42,000. In accordance with the advice of the Commission and of the Calcutta and Bombay Chambers of Commerce, it is the intention of the Government that the Tariff valuations should in future be revised annually.

OCTROI DUTIES.

206. In connection with the subject of Customs duties, it may be mentioned here that the Government of India has, for some time past, had under consideration the necessity of imposing more complete checks on the system, by which, through a large part of India, octroi duties are levied for municipal purposes. The Government of India has emphatically condemned the imposition of local taxes on articles which have been either subjected to or relieved from imperial taxation, and has insisted that the duties actually levied shall in all cases fall solely upon articles locally consumed, and shall not be allowed to become taxes on through traffic, or to affect injuriously the general trade of the country.

WILL BE CARE-FULLY WATCHED.

207. Although much has been done in this respect towards the enforcement of appropriate rates, continued attention will be given to the subject, so that there may be no danger of finding that the principles by which the Government of India is guided in regard to its commercial legislation have been set aside by local authorities, and that the efforts taken to free the trade of the country from impolitic restrictions have not thus been frustrated.

SALT.

208. VIII & 10, Salt.—Revenue £100,000 more. Expenditure decreased £36,000. This is owing to the abolition of the Customs Line, which will be almost wholly removed on the 1st April next, saving £60,000 a year. But a portion of this saving will be required for establishments at the Salt Sources acquired from the Native States in Rájputána. The Treaty payments in 1879-80 are estimated at £260,000. The net salt revenue of 1879-80, after deducting those payments, is now estimated at £6,356,100, being nearly £10,000 more than this year, notwithstanding that, as explained in the Regular Estimate, the reduction of duty on the 25th July last in UPPER INDIA and BENGAL is calculated to cause a loss of £150,000 in 1879-80 in excess of the loss in 1878-79. The local estimates and the growth of this branch of the revenue fully justify the estimate now made.

269. IX § 10, Opium.—Revenue less £347,000. Expenditure more £737,000. Net worse OPIMUM.
£1,084,000. Net Revenue £6,500,000. The Revenue has only once (1869-70) been estimated higher than this. The amount of Bengal Provision Opium advertised for sale in the calendar year 1879 is 5,000 chests a month, half Behar and half Benares. The sale of this quantity will leave 31,622 chests of the crop 1877-78 in reserve on the 31st December 1879, as follows:—

| | | | | |
|-------------|-----|-----|-----|--------|
| BEHAR ... | ... | ... | ... | 8,393 |
| BENARES ... | ... | ... | ... | 23,229 |

being less by 16,860 chests than the corresponding Reserve on the 31st December 1878.

210. In future, the Government do not intend to advertise a year's provision at once, but only to announce the provision which will be offered for sale monthly till further notice given at least twelve months before the monthly provision is altered. Accordingly, it has been notified that 4,700 chests a month will be sold in January 1880, and, month by month, thereafter until further notice, and that this provision will be neither increased nor decreased till further notice. The Notification is reprinted verbatim at foot.* A principal object with which the Government has accumulated the opium reserve is that the Provision offered for sale may not fluctuate with every fluctuating crop. The Monthly Provision of 4,700 chests now settled with effect from January 1880 will not be increased unless the Reserve should become considerably inflated, or decreased unless it should become considerably attenuated. The prospects of the present crop, both in MALWA and BENGAL, are, as yet, fair; but it is hardly perhaps to be expected that Bengal will yield 56,400 chests, which is the quantity which, unless some unforeseen obstacle arises, will be sold in the calendar year 1880. The average produce of the last ten years has been 51,552 chests; the average of the last seven years has been 53,367 chests; and that for the last five years (two of them extraordinarily productive) 56,966 chests.

MONTHLY PROVI-SION SUBSTITUTED FOR YEARLY.

211. X § 12, Stamps.—Revenue more £16,000. Expenditure less £5,000. Total improvement £21,000. Net Revenue £2,976,000. STAMPS.

212. The new General Stamp Act 1879 is not designed to cause any direct addition to the Revenue; but there is reason to hope that its careful provisions as to procedure may be productive of revenue by preventing fraud and negligence which now cause loss.

213. XI § 13, Mint.—Revenue more £8,000. Expenditure more £8,000. The net result MINT.
is thus the same as the Regular Estimate for 1878-79.

* It is hereby notified that ~~in the~~ month of January 1880, and thereafter month by month, till further notice, four thousand seven hundred chests of Bengal Opium will be sold under the usual conditions by auction in Calcutta as follows, viz.:—

| | | | | | |
|---------------|-----|-----|-----|-------|---------------|
| Behar Opium | ... | ... | ... | ... | 2,350 chests. |
| Benares Opium | ... | ... | ... | ... | 2,350 .. |
| | | | | TOTAL | 4,700 chests. |

2. This Monthly Provision of 4,700 chests of opium will neither be increased nor diminished until at least twelve calendar months after notice published in the Gazette of India under the signature of a Secretary to the Government of India, or in the Calcutta Gazette under the signature of a Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

3. The division of the Monthly Provision of 4,700 chests of opium into 2,350 chests of Behar Opium and 2,350 chests of Benares Opium will not be modified until at least six calendar months after notice published in like manner.

4. Provided always that nothing in this Notification shall be understood to prevent the Government, or the Chief Authority to whom the Government may delegate the duty of superintending the sale of Bengal Provision Opium, from selling two Monthly Provisions within one calendar month, instead of in the two successive calendar months in which they would otherwise be sold, whenever the occurrence of Public Holidays or any other circumstances shall appear to the Government to make such modification of the regular course of the Monthly Sales convenient.

5. Provided also, that any chests of opium of which delivery is not taken by the purchasers may be sold in any subsequent month in addition to the 4,700 chests provided for that month.

EXPENDITURE, 1879-80.

Expenditure. 214. 1 & XXI, Interest on Debt.—Expenditure more £346,000. Revenue more £22,000.
INTEREST ON DEBT. Net more £324,000. Provision is made here for an addition of £5,000,000 to the Registered Debt of India during the year.

215. The following table contains the usual statistics of the Funded Debt of India:—

GUARANTEED CAPITAL.

216. The Capital of the Railway Companies and Madras Irrigation Company is £98,103,546, the interest upon which amounting to £4,690,000 is guaranteed in gold in London from Indian Revenues. The total Debt of India, therefore, of all kinds is as follows:—

TOTAL DEBT.

Total Debt of India classified according to the standard (gold or silver) by which it is paid, and brought to the common standard of silver at 1s. 7d. being the estimated average exchange of the year 1879-80.

217. The average rate of interest upon the whole Debt is now 4·45 per cent. Expenditure. Last year, thus calculated, it was 4·53 per cent.

218. 2, Interest other Accounts.—More £10,000. The claims of the Civil Funds grow year by year. OTHER INTEREST.

219. 4, Land Revenue.—Increase £33,000. £19,000 of this is for Village Services in LAND REVENUE. MADRAS. The rest is chiefly due to Survey and Settlement operations. Of the whole increase, only £28,600 falls upon the Imperial Treasury, Provincial and Local Funds bearing the remainder.

220. 11, & XII, Post Office.—Expenditure more £74,000. Revenue more £73,000. Net POST OFFICE. Expenditure £97,000; as nearly as possible the same as in the Regular Estimate.

221. 15 & XIII, Telegraph.—Expenditure more £60,000. Revenue more £4,000. Net TELEGRAPH. worse £56,000. Net Expenditure £151,000. This includes 1½ lakhs for Frontier Telegraphs.

222. 16, Administration.—Increase £14,000; chiefly in the Government of India Offices. ADMINISTRATION.

223. 17 & XIV, Minor Departments.—Expenditure more £12,000. Revenue less £8,000. MINOR DEPART-not estimated so highly.

224. 18, and XV, Law and Justice.—Expenditure less £19,000. Revenue more £14,000. LAW AND JUSTICE.
Better altogether £33,000. Some decrease in the price of food expected.

225. 19 & XVI, Police.—Expenditure more £17,000. Revenue more £20,000. Net POLICE.
Expenditure more £27,000; in BIRMINGHAM, where improvement in this Department has long been urgently needed. Net Expenditure £2,239,000.

226. 20 & XVII, Marine.—Expenditure less £51,000. Revenue less £27,000. Net MARINE.
Expenditure less £24,000. Net Expenditure £310,000. Survey Steamer built this year.

227. 21 & XVIII, Education.—Expenditure more £39,000. Revenue less £6,000. Net EDUCATION.
Expenditure more £45,000. Net Expenditure £86,000. Increase general (£19,000 under Local Funds).

228. 22, Ecclesiastical.—Increase £3,000. The expenditure this year is abnormally low. ECCLESIASTICAL.

229. 23 & XIX, Medical.—Expenditure more £16,000. Revenue less £14,000. Net MEDICAL.
Expenditure more £30,000. Net Expenditure £640,000. Chief increase in BENGAL.

230. 24 & XX, Stationery and Printing.—Expenditure more £27,000. Revenue less STATIONERY AND £2,000. Net Expenditure more £29,000. Net Expenditure £490,000. The continual increase PRINTING. of this expenditure deserves the attention of the Local Governments; the service is now

232. 26, Allowances and Assignments.—Increase £76,000. Salt payments in Rājputānā ALLOWANCES.
(£260,000,) exceed this year's payments by £96,300.

233. 27, Civil Furlough Allowances.—More £1,000. Expenditure this year unusually FURLOUGH low. This item is now steady. ALLOWANCES.

234. 28 & XXII, Superannuations.—Expenditure less £58,000. Revenue less £152,000. PENSIONS.
Net Expenditure more £94,000. The retirement of the Subscribers to the Bombay Medical Fund this year increased this expenditure by £68,738. The loss of revenue is nominal, the balance at credit of several of the Military Funds being now exhausted. The transfers to Revenue this year will be less than last year by £143,113.

235. These Funds, the transfers from which have for so long disturbed the MILITARY FUND.
Finances, were as follows:—In each of the three Presidencies there were a Military and a Medical Fund, and in Bengal there was also a Military Orphan Fund—seven Funds in all. The transfers in 1879-80 will exhaust the balances of all but the Bengal Military Orphan Fund and the Madras Medical Fund.

236. 30, Famine Relief.—£10,000 is provided for expenditure in the NORTH-WESTERN PRO- FAMINE RELIEF.
VINCES AND OUDH from Provincial Funds. It is earnestly to be desired that no more expenditure may be called for under this Head.

237. 31 & XXIII, Public Works Ordinary.—Expenditure more £219,000. Revenue less PUBLIC WORKS £39,000. Net Expenditure more £258,000 of which £100,000 is caused by the transfer of that ORDINARY. sum from 39, Productive Public Works to cover the cost of the Public Works establishments in excess of requirements. Net Expenditure £1,418,000.

238. These excess establishments have been caused by a variety of circumstances. Active measures are in contemplation to reduce the superfluous establishments which are as injurious to the Departmental Administration as to the Finances. Meanwhile the Government consider that no part of the cost of these superfluous establishments can properly be excluded from the ordinary expenditure and treated as Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure. The remaining excess expenditure is explained by the Local Governments having, at the request of the Government of India, curtailed their expenditure this year.

Expenditure.IRRIGATION AND NAVIGATION.

239. 33 & XXVI, Irrigation and Navigation.—More Expenditure £164,000 ; more Revenue £44,000. Net Expenditure more £120,000. A large outlay from Local Funds is contemplated upon the Calcutta Canals and on some other works in BENGAL. Net Expenditure £249,000. Net Expenditure on both classes of Ordinary Public Works £4,667,000.

GUARANTEED RAILWAYS.

240. 34 & XXVII, Guaranteed Railways.—Upon the face of the Estimates Revenue less £1,000 ; Expenditure less £93,000. Net better £92,000.

241. But, as in the Regular Estimate, the comparison can most conveniently be made by the Table V in Appendix B. That Table shows that the Net Traffic Earnings are estimated to be the same as this year ; that, partly owing to an increase of £56,000 in the charge for sterling interest, but much more owing to the further fall in the exchange, the interest is expected to cost £3 0,300 more than this year. Against this is to be set surplus profits payable to the Companies less by £167,700 and a saving in the loss on the Capital Transactions. Altogether the GUARANTEED RAILWAYS are estimated to cost £1,591,600, being £101,200 more than this year and more than in any year since 1872-73. The chief cause, it is needless to repeat, is the fall in the exchange which has seriously increased the charge for interest guaranteed on the Capital of the Companies. The contracts with most of them being for the remittance of this interest at 1s. 10d. the rupee and with one of them (the OUDH AND ROHILKHAND COMPANY) at 2s. the rupee, a substantial part of the loss falls upon the State even when Surplus Revenue is earned. When no surplus is earned the whole loss is borne by the State.

PURCHASE OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.STATE OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE CONTRACT.

242. By its contract with the East Indian Railway Company, the Government of India provided, free of charge to the Company, all the land on which the Railway is laid, and guaranteed from the Revenues of India, five per cent. interest on the capital of the Company payable in sterling in London.

STATE CLAIMS.

243. All the earnings and all the working expenses of the Company pass through the Public Treasury and Accounts ; if the Net Traffic Earnings of the Company exceed the sum in rupees which, at 1s. 10d. the rupee, suffices to provide the guaranteed sterling interest, half the excess is appropriated to the repayment of the interest advanced by the Government during the many years for which the Railway did not earn a profit. The net cost to the State of all these concessions is estimated to have amounted to not less than twelve crores of rupees, at the end of 1876-77, since when it has somewhat diminished.

SURRENDER CLAUSE

244. The Company, may at any time, surrender their property to the State and claim back its whole capital cost ; and, as, if not transferred earlier, the Railway would become the property of the State by lapse of time after 99 years, it is certain that the Surrender Clause would not be a dead letter.

STATE RIGHT OF PURCHASE.

245. On the other hand, the Government may purchase the Railway at two successive intervals of twenty-five years, paying, in that case, a price intended to represent the fair market value of the Railway as evidenced by the quotations of the shares of the Company. Such payment may be made either in cash or in the form of a Terminable Annuity calculated at the market rate of interest in London on Indian Government sterling obligations.

FIRST OPTION OF PURCHASE.

246. The Government must declare whether ~~it~~ will exercise its first option of purchase within six months after the 15th February 1879. The question whether this declaration should be made, has long been anxiously debated both by the Government in India and by the Secretary of State in Council in London. Last year, Lieutenant-General Richard Strachey, R.E., C.S.I., was deputed by the Secretary of State to assist the Government of India in coming to a final conclusion, with an intimation that General Strachey enjoyed his confidence in relation to the matter in hand.

FINANCIAL CONSIDERATIONS.

247. The Government of India considered this important measure both financially and administratively. The share capital of the Company is £26,200,000, and they have issued Debentures for £4,220,000 the interest on which is £188,000. The purchase of a property of this magnitude is a large transaction ; but the Government of India had no difficulty in concluding not only that the purchase was financially expedient, but that the State would not be justified in foregoing the purchase upon any conditions that could be acceptable to the Company.

248. It seemed more doubtful whether the Government of India, whose constant policy it is to reduce the mass of details which already inevitably burden it, could wisely undertake the direct management of this great Railway, and whether it would be prudent to disturb the existing management which is on the whole economical and efficient. But it was considered that these objections could be obviated by the formation of a Company to work the Railway for the State upon terms mutually advantageous.

ADMINISTRATIVE CONSIDERATIONS.LEASE TO WORKING
COMPANY.

249. Accordingly, in a despatch No. 226, dated 17th June last, the Government of India communicated to the Secretary of State its decision that the East Indian Railway should now be bought for the State, and, for the present, worked by a Company constituted from the existing Company. No formal official reply has yet been received to this Despatch; but it is known that the proposals of the Government of India have been substantially adopted, and that, subject to the approval of Parliament, on the 31st December 1879, the East Indian Railway will become the property of the State.

PROPOSALS OF GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACCEPTED.

250. The price to be paid is £125 for every £100 of capital stock or £32,750,000 for the whole stock of £26,200,000. Payment of that amount is to be made by an Annuity terminating on the 1st February 1953, in the calculation of which the rate of interest used is £4-6s. per cent. Both the price of £125 assumed as the market-price of the shares, and the rate of £4-6s. assumed as the market rate of interest upon the Indian Government's London sterling obligations, are liberal, and have apparently been so accepted by the shareholders with general unanimity. But, although, perhaps, by the letter of the bond, even better terms might have been exacted, there is good reason for the belief that, on the whole, the intention of the original parties to the contract has been substantially fulfilled; and it is a cause of much satisfaction to the Government of India that this important transaction has been concluded without any breach of the friendly relations between the Government and the Company, or injury to the interests of the shareholders, who will receive an annuity at the rate of £5. 12s. 6d. per cent. upon their capital, equal to simple interest at the rate of £5. 8s. 6d.

PURCHASE.

251. The New Working Company is now in course of formation with a capital of £6,550,000, being one-fifth of the capital of the present Company commuted into sterling bonds at £125 per centum. The nature of the arrangement with the Company and the effect of the whole measure upon the Revenues of India is illustrated by the following Statement in which the Estimates of the coming year as now framed are compared with what they would be if the arrangement now negotiated were in force:—

RESULT TO NEW COMPANY

252. The estimated net traffic earnings being £2,495,000, the Surplus Profits of the Line in 1879-80 by the new arrangement would be £372,400, of which one-fifth or £74,500 would be the remuneration of the Working Company, making their income £336,400 in all, or 6.42 per cent. upon their original unconverted share of the capital (£5,240,000). In consideration of this concession, the shareholders of the New Company surrender all claims to any interest in excess of 5 per cent. on their original capital, or 4 per cent. on their commuted capital (£6,550,000), and to all current annuity payments. When their contract terminates they will begin to receive only the yearly payment of £5. 12s. 6d. per cent. which will be paid all along on the remaining four-fifths of the capital, and the capital debt of the Government to them will be extinguished on the same date as its debt to the other four-fifths of the Company.

AND TO STATE

253. The remaining four-fifths of the Surplus Profits or £297,600 will belong to the State, which will moreover receive £40,000 interest on the value of the stores in course of consumption. Moreover, the calculation which brings out this result, includes the yearly payment of Rs. 6,63,000 or, in the conventional notation of the Accounts, £66,300, being the amount required for the extinction of the original capital debt of £32,750,000 by the 14th February 1953. The expected Net Public Revenue from the East Indian Railway in 1879-80, if the new arrangements were already in force, would be £404,200, of which £337,900 would appear upon the Estimates, instead of £108,900 as actually estimated. Thus there is a good hope that the State will now, at length, be, to some extent, compensated for the heavy sacrifices entailed upon it during the early history of this great undertaking.

STATE REVENUE WILL INCREASE.

254. The gain to the State is likely to be still larger in the future, because four-fifths of the increasing Net Earnings which may confidently be expected from the East Indian Railway will henceforth accrue to the Public Treasury.

PRINCIPLES OF NEW ARRANGEMENT.

255. The remuneration to the New Company is liberal; but, in making this important experiment, the Government deemed it essential to offer inducements sufficient to ensure the devotion to the management of the Line of at least as much energy, enterprise, and skill as have contributed to produce the success of the East Indian Railway as it is. The theory of the new plan is that a personal interest on the part of the managers of such a property is likely to yield more satisfactory results than the best conceivable official management without that stimulus; and it was necessary to take care that, in the actual arrangements made, the stimulus provided should be adequate.

* Thus calculated—

| | Rs. | Rs. |
|--|-------------|-------------|
| Net Traffic Earnings ... | ... | 2,49,50,000 |
| Interest and Annuity ... | 2,05,77,000 | |
| Provident Fund ... | 2,49,000 | |
| Interest on value of Stores in Stock ... | 4,00,000 | |
| | | 2,12,26,000 |
| Net Divisible Surplus Profits ... | ... | 37,21,000 |
| Of which the Working Company's one-fifth share ... | ... | 7,45,000 |

† The actual payment is only £41,720 on four-fifths of the Capital, but, by the contract with the Working Company, their Capital is placed in the same condition as if a yearly Sinking Fund payment of £10,180 were made on their one-fifth of the Capital also. Credit must plainly be taken for this item in favour of the new arrangement.

256. The contract is to be for fifty years, terminable, however, first, after twenty years, and, thereafter, at intervals.

DURATION OF CONTRACT.

257. The Government of India have only now to record their high appreciation of the success obtained by the Company now in liquidation. The construction and management of the East Indian Railway is an achievement of which Great Britain may be proud; and the honour of it belongs chiefly to the East Indian Railway Company and its many distinguished Officers. The services of those who remain will not be lost to the State. Nor can the Government of India withhold the expression of its appreciation of the broad sagacity with which the Chairman who has, for twenty-five years, so ably presided over the East Indian Railway Company, has conducted the negotiation the successful termination of which has now been recorded.

SERVICE OF EXIST-ING E. I. R. COM-PANY.

AND THEIR CHAIRMAN.

258. 34 & XXXII, State Railways.—Revenue more £280,000. Expenditure less £37,000. Net Result better £317,000. Net Revenue £245,000. Considerable improvement expected in the revenues of these Lines. The account of the Revenue and Expenditure of the Lines constructed by means of Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure is shown below the first total in Abstract No. II. This statement shows Revenue more £280,000. Expenditure more £130,000. Net Revenue more £150,000. Net Revenue £329,000. The Revenue shown in this Statement above the first Total is that of the Mathura-Hatras Line, the cost of which was not treated as Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure.

STATE RAILWAYS.

259. 35 & XXXIII, Madras Canal Company.—Less Revenue £13,000. The Revenue this year was due to special causes explained upon the Regular Estimate.

MADRAS CANAL COMPANY.

260. 36 & XLX, Provincial and Local Surplus and Deficits.—Surplus less £283,000. Deficits more £154,000. Net worse £437,000. Net Deficit £191,000. This year the Provincial Governments are saving £246,000 of their income. Next year they expect to spend £191,000 more than their income. These Governments have considerable balances at their credit (See Abstract Statement No. IX), and they might profitably spend some part of them; but the Government of India has been obliged, for financial reasons, to place some temporary restraint upon them in this respect.

PROVINCIAL AND LOCAL SURPLUS AND DEFICITS.

261. 37 & XXX, The Army.—Expenditure more £1,245,000. Revenue less £15,000. Net Expenditure more £1,290,000, of which £81,900 at the Home Treasury, and the rest in India. Net cost of the Army, £17,375,000, to be compared with previous years, as follows:—

THE ARMY.

| | £ |
|---------|------------|
| 1872-73 | 11,596,802 |
| 1873-74 | 14,217,390 |
| 1874-75 | 14,386,321 |
| 1875-76 | 14,262,816 |
| 1876-77 | 14,866,639 |
| 1877-78 | 15,769,780 |

262. The net average yearly cost of the Army, as recorded in the Accounts, in times of peace, cannot now be estimated at less than £15,200,000. The sum provided in the Estimates of 1879-80 for the Military operations beyond the Frontier is £2,000,000.

263. 39. Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure.—Less £1,099,000. Much to its regret, the Government of India has been obliged to reduce to £3,500,000 the grant for these works. There can be no doubt that much more than this could be profitably spent, but the Government have not this year the means of supplying more.

CAPITAL EXPEND-ITURE, PRODUCTIVE PUB-LIC WORKS.

264. Productive Public Works Revenues and Expenditure.—Revenue more £287,000. Expenditure more £227,000. Net expenditure less £60,000. Net loss on working £1,622,000. Including the Gain by Exchange (£588,000) and the Loss (£1,262,000) arising out of these transactions, we have the following results:—

PRODUCTIVE WORKS.

| | £ |
|-------------------------------|-----------|
| Interest and Working Expenses | 9,740,000 |
| Revenue | 7,213,000 |

against which has to be set the Land Revenue due to Productive Works in MADRAS, and it has to be borne in mind that some considerable amount of interest is charged upon Capital which is still infructuous. The depression of the Guaranteed Railways (expected to yield next year £1,985,356 less than in 1877-78) produces the comparatively unfavourable result.

265. The deficit thus shown upon the face of the Estimates, after providing £2,000,000 for the expenses of the war in Afghanistan, is £1,395,000. It must, however, as has frequently been pointed out on former occasions, be remembered in estimating the real amount of our annual revenues, that among the receipts there is shown a merely nominal credit on account of the extinct

Military Funds. This amounts in the present Estimates to £214,000 and it plainly adds nothing to our actual resources. It must also not be forgotten that the Estimates under Loss by Exchange would have been increased by £189,815, if provision were now being made for the remittance of the whole net current requirements of the Home Treasury during the year. If there had been no war, the surplus shown on the Estimates could have been £605,000. Taking however, into consideration the points just noticed, which cannot easily be neglected if we desire to form a really complete and accurate judgment on the actual financial condition of the country, and making certain allowances on the other side of the account, the Governor General in Council is of opinion that looking only to the normal resources of the year, the real Estimated Surplus would be £813,000.

266. If the exchange could have been estimated for the coming year at the same rate as that taken for 1878-79, this surplus would have been larger by £1,364,000. Apart from the war, the Surplus, on the face of the Estimates, would, in that event, have amounted to £1,969,000; and after making the corrections to which reference has just been made, £2,177,000.

267. Thus, but for the further fall in exchange, the Government of India would have been able, by suspending, during the year, the operation of the so-called Famine Insurance Surplus, to pay from the actual normal resources of the year, the whole estimated cost of the war in Afghanistan. The extreme gravity of this question of the exchange can hardly be stated too strongly.

WAYS AND MEANS.

268. Ways and Means.—Excluding the book-credits from the Military Funds, the gross Deficit of Public Revenue is £5,109,000. In accordance with the change of policy described in paragraph 28, provision is made for the loan of only £200,000 (net) to Native States and Corporations, &c.; £287,500 net is expected to reach the Treasury on the Miscellaneous Debt Account, the main items of Deposits and Remittances being, as usual, estimated to be in equilibrium. Thus, provision must be made for a net sum of £5,026,500; but as £1,673,500 has to be repaid to the holders of the Five-and-a-Half per Cent. Loan and others, the gross deficiency is £6,695,000, of which, upon the estimates, £700,000 will be provided from the Public Balances. A Notification is published to-day inviting a Loan in India of Five Crores of the remainder. As £1,550,000 of this is needed to discharge on the 1st May next, the untransferred portion of the Five-and-a-Half per Cent. Loan, the net amount thus called for is only £3,450,000.

BRIEF REVIEW OF FINANCES OF FOUR YEARS, 1876-80.

269. In making this announcement the Governor General in Council thinks it desirable to present the following brief statement of the Finances of the four years, 1876-80. Excluding the Fund credits and including provision for the remittance of the whole current requirements of the Home Treasury, the deficit of the four years amounts to £24,863,000. Extraordinary Public Expenditure has been or is being incurred during this period as follows:—

| | £ |
|--|--------------------|
| Famine, including loss of Revenue ... | 9,400,000 |
| War | 2,670,000 |
| Productive Public Works Capital Expenditure .. | 16,699,000 |
| TOTAL ... | £28,769,000 |

NET RESULT.

270. Thus, if these three great disturbing causes were eliminated, there would have been a Surplus during the four years £3,906,000. In other words, the current revenue has contributed £3,906,000 towards these extraordinary objects, besides bearing all current burdens. The net addition to the Registered Debt during this period is £20,920,061, but of this sum, £2,795,731 was lent at interest to Native States, Corporations, &c., and £1,554,629, Railway Capital, was repaid. The net amount borrowed during the four years is only £16,570,000.

271. The difference between the deficit of the four years (£24,863,000) and the net amount borrowed (£16,570,000) is £8,293,000, which is thus supplied—

| | £ |
|---|------------------|
| The Public Balances reduced by | 4,272,000 |
| The Secretary of State's bills outstanding increased by ... | *1,740,000 |
| Deposits and Remittances | 2,181,000 |
| | <hr/> £8,293,000 |

272. The Government of India has repeatedly declared that an annual surplus of £2,000,000 is necessary, in ordinary times, to provide the means of protecting, so far as may be possible, the country against famine, and leave a margin such as every solvent State ought to maintain to meet unforeseen contingencies. It has been necessary, as has been shown, to abandon all hope of obtaining such a surplus in the coming year.

273. The ultimate burden caused by the war will not, it may be reasonably anticipated, prove serious, and the assistance which will, it is hoped, be given from the British Treasury removes all present anxiety on this head. The deficit caused by the war, and shown in the Estimates of the coming year, is therefore rather apparent than real.

274. The reduction in the revenues caused by the depression of trade and the diminished receipts from the Guaranteed Railways will, it cannot be doubted, be temporary only; and the Guaranteed and State Railways are certain to prove growing sources of revenue.

275. The loss caused by the further and great fall which has taken place in the value of silver in relation to gold is a far more real and serious cause of financial embarrassment.

276. The Loss by Exchange on the estimated amount of the Home remittances in the coming year is £3,947,368; it would have been £4,142,000 if provision were made for remittances to cover the whole of the current Home Charges. The latter sum is more by £3,324,000 than would have been required for the remittance of the same amount in 1872-73, the last year before the long standing equilibrium between gold and silver was violently disturbed. So far as these remittances are required to meet fixed payments, such as Interest, Pensions and the like,—and such fixed payments constitute the bulk of the Home charges,—it may be said that this great sum of £3,324,000 represents the yearly taxation now required in addition to what would have been necessary if the old rate of exchange had been maintained.

277. In the Financial Statement published at the beginning of the present year, it was shown that the Government believed that a bond fide surplus of nearly £2,000,000 of income over expenditure had been secured; and of this sum, £1,500,000 was to be annually set aside as a special provision against famine. This apparently very satisfactory result was brought about partly by administrative improvements, but mainly by the imposition of new taxation, estimated to yield, eventually, about £1,100,000 a year (see para. 160). The Government then hoped that it saw its way to giving to the country the most complete protection which could be devised against the terrible calamities of famine to which it is periodically exposed. It was also sanguine that many reforms were within our reach which would be in the highest degree beneficial.

278. Although the condition of the finances continues in other respects to be favorable, the fresh fall in the value of silver in relation to gold has, as has been shown, virtually swept away the financial improvement arrived at with so much difficulty. It may be considered that the whole of the new taxation has been swallowed up in the additional charges on account of Loss by Exchange. The net amount yielded by this taxation in the present year was, as has been stated in para. 160, about £971,400, and it is estimated at £1,077,400 for 1879-80. To remit the whole of the amount required to meet the Home

* On the 1st April 1876, bills for only £12,000 were outstanding unpaid; the Secretary of State had suspended his drawings. The usual amount is about 1½ millions.

Charges in the coming year, it has just been shown that the sum of £1,364,362 would be required in excess of the estimate of last year. The insurance provided against future famine has virtually ceased to exist; and the difficulties in the way of fiscal and commercial and administrative reform have been greatly aggravated. Nor can it be any way assumed that the evil will not continue and go on increasing.

FINANCIAL POLICY
DISCONCERTED.

279. Under such circumstances it is extremely difficult to follow any settled financial policy; for the Government cannot even approximately tell what income will be required to meet the necessary expenditure of the State.

PROBLEM OCCUPY-ING ATTENTION OF GOVERNMENT.

280. It is hardly necessary to add that this most grave question has long been a cause of anxious deliberation to the Government of India. The Governor General in Council has submitted his views to the Secretary of State, and they are now under the consideration of Her Majesty's Government. It would plainly be undesirable to say more on the subject, until Her Majesty's Government has had time to mature its decision in regard to the measures which ought to be taken.

STANDARD SURPLUS CANNOT BE ABANDONED.

281. Although, for the present at least, the Surplus which the Government hoped that it had secured, has almost disappeared, the Governor General in Council will in no degree abandon the imperative duty of making, to the utmost of his ability, provision for protecting the country against famine. He still believes that a surplus of £1,500,000 a year, in ordinary times, is necessary to cover this liability alone.

PROVISION MADE FOR NEXT YEAR.

282. So far as the coming year is concerned, the help which it is hoped will be afforded by the British Treasury for meeting the expenses of the war, relieves the Government from financial anxiety on this account. For the present the Governor General in Council thinks it wise to abstain from imposing any fresh burdens on the country, and to accept the temporary loss of the surplus by which it was hoped that an insurance against famine had been provided.

NO FAMINE FUND WAS CONSTITUTED.

“lead to results probably not contemplated by those who have suggested the establishment of a separate Fund; I mean that this might involve the necessity for imposing fresh taxation. Suppose, for instance, that the produce of the new taxes were, by law, strictly set apart from the general revenues, and paid into a separate Fund only to be applied to specified purposes: if then, any sudden change of circumstances arose, calling for seriously increased expenditure, or causing a considerable falling off in the revenue, we should have to choose between the imposition of fresh taxes and the abrogation of the law constituting the Fund; for I set aside the idea of meeting ordinary charges by borrowing, as a course financially inadmissible. This dilemma might arise, though the pressure was likely to be only temporary; nor can any one say that such a contingency would be at all improbable, or that it might not occur at any moment. With all my desire to see the pledges maintained that we have given, as to the application of a sum not less than £1,500,000 as an insurance against famine, I think it would be irrational, under many circumstances that I can conceive, to object to the temporary diversion of any necessary part of the revenue from this purpose, with the view of obtaining relief which might be no less urgently required than that which experience has taught us to be requisite in meeting famine. * * * Without thinking of a future far removed from us, events might, of course, happen which would make it impossible even for us who have designed these measures to maintain our present resolution.”

By order of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council,

R. B. CHAPMAN,

Secretary to the Government of India.

APPOINTMENT OF A COMMISSION TO ENQUIRE INTO CERTAIN QUESTIONS AFFECTING THE CUSTOMS TARIFF, AND THEIR REPORT.

No. 29, dated Calcutta, 7th February 1879.

From—The Secretary to the Government of India, DEPT. REVE. AGRI. AND COMMERCE,
To—The HONOURABLE T. C. HOPE, C.S.I., and J. D. MACLEAN, ESQ.

I am directed to inform you that the Governor General in Council has been pleased to appoint you to consider and to submit a joint report on certain matters connected with the operation of the Indian Tariff Act, 1875. These matters are stated in the following paragraphs, and I am to request that your report thereon may be submitted as speedily as possible so as to admit of its due consideration and the introduction of such changes as may be decided upon with effect from the 1st of April next.

2. By the Notification of this Department, dated the 18th March last, No. 43, certain descriptions of cotton yarn and piece goods, being of the kind largely spun and woven in the Indian mills, were exempted from duty on import into India. Various representations have been made since the issue of the Notification by private firms, by the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce, and by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce through Her Majesty's Secretary of State, pointing out that the terms of the Notification should be altered and the limits of exemption enlarged. Detailed enquiries have been made into the matter by the Government of India in communication with the Governments of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and the result of these enquiries would seem to indicate that some amendment of the Notification, so far as concerns piece goods, may be desirable, if a satisfactory amendment can be made without entailing upon the revenues a loss which in the present financial condition of the State they are not able to bear.

3. The exemptions made by the Notification were avowedly arbitrary in their nature and were designed to afford a certain amount of relief to importers on a basis that was sufficiently definite to be maintained in practice without much trouble or complaint. The enquiries that have been made would seem to shew that this expectation has substantially been realised and that the complaints have been few. At the same time, it is no doubt true that some extension of the original definition might be permitted which would fulfil more completely the intention of exempting from duty all goods of the class produced or capable of being produced in the Indian mills, without causing a loss of revenue that could not be afforded. I am to request accordingly that you will enquire and report, consulting on this point members of the mercantile community, how the definition of the class of cotton manufactures to be admitted free of duty might be improved, without narrowing its operation, and how any extension (within the limits before described) could best be conceded without an undue sacrifice of revenue.

4. It has also been found that the same Notification requires alteration under other heads than that relating to cotton piece goods. The terms of the Notification provide that the articles therein named shall be exempted "from all import duties to which they are liable under the numbers" in which they are entered in Schedule A of the Tariff Act of 1875. In other words, if the articles mentioned can be held liable to duty under other heads of the Tariff Schedule, they shall be taxed. This provision has given rise to much doubt and discussion in Custom-houses, and has occasioned considerable trouble and some confusion in classification. It may be advisable that such a limitation should cease to exist, and that when articles are exempted specifically from duty, they should not be held liable to taxation, unless specifically placed in the Tariff again as dutiable articles. Copy of certain correspondence which has arisen out of this limitation is annexed.

5. Besides these questions, which have arisen out of the Notification of the 18th March, the general question of revising the Tariff classification and valuations presents itself for consideration. - There has been no general revision of the present Tariff Schedule since it was framed in August 1875, although there have been several modifications from time to time in classification and valuation, and the Notification of the 18th March 1878 struck out partially or wholly a considerable number of articles entered in the Import Schedule.

6. The Chamber of Commerce of Bengal has urged upon the Government the necessity of revising the Tariff valuations, pointing out that in many cases these are much above the current market values. There is no doubt force in this representation, although the present low range of prices may be considered temporary, the result of specific causes. But even if the representation had not the claims to consideration which it seems to deserve, there is no question that valuations which were fixed almost four years ago may require alteration in the interests of the State as well as in those of importers. You are requested to enquire into this matter and submit such proposals as you may consider necessary for the revision of the values entered in the existing Import Schedule of the Tariff Act.

7. The Chamber of Commerce further desires that valuations should be revised annually, and the Governor General in Council considers that compliance with this request might be expedient. How the revision should be made is a matter for consideration. His Excellency in Council, as at present advised, does not think that, for the mere purpose of revising Tariff values, the annual assemblage of a Committee drawn from all parts of India is either necessary or expedient. If price lists are carefully kept up in the Appraising Departments of the Calcutta and Bombay Custom-house, these lists, subject to test and scrutiny by the local Chambers of Commerce, will probably form the best basis for the assessment of values annually. It is understood however that, except in Calcutta, no price lists are kept up at Indian Custom-houses, and your opinion is requested as to this matter generally and as to the nature of the instructions to local authorities which would be necessary for the preparation of price lists in such manner as to make them faithful and complete records of the fluctuations of market prices and a safe basis, acceptable alike to Government and the mercantile community, for the settlement of standard average values for the assessment of duty.

8. It has further been suggested to the Government of India that it is expedient to frame the Tariff so as to levy duty as far as may be possible at a fixed rate on quantity, instead of taking it by a percentage on value, real or assumed. There is a large class of articles, staples of trade, to which this system (on which the Export Schedule of the present Tariff is based) may perhaps, with advantage, be applied.

9. It seems also that the Tariff Schedule might be so reconstructed that by more particular detail of articles and greater precision of definition, no room may be left for doubt as to the classification of articles for duty. At present doubts often arise as to the proper classification of articles not specified in the Tariff. The object proposed to be attained is to increase the number of specified articles under general heads, and so diminish the number of those grouped undistinguished under "Other sorts." And it is also a matter for consideration whether some articles which still remain on the Import Tariff Schedule do not on their own merits, as well as with reference to the small revenue derived from them, deserve exemption as much as, if not more than, some of the articles exempted by the Notification of the 18th March.

10. It is the wish of His Excellency in Council that, in considering the various questions which have been referred to you on this occasion, you should freely consult the members of the mercantile community in Calcutta, and endeavour as far as possible to ascertain their views upon the subjects which come under discussion. It is important that no time should be lost in commencing these enquiries with the view to the early submission of your report.

11. The correspondence noted in the annexed list is forwarded for your information.

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, DEPT. OF REVE., AGRIC., AND COMMERCE.

With reference to your letter No. 29 of the 7th instant, we beg to report as follows upon the question of exemption of certain descriptions of cotton yarn and piece goods from duty on import into India. Upon the other subjects to which your letter refers, we shall address you hereafter, when our enquiries, which in some cases involve correspondence with other parts of India, have been brought to a close.

2. The exemption of cotton goods granted by the Notification No. 43 of 18th March 1878, was couched in the following

Terms of exemption of cotton goods.

“Cotton, grey piece goods, viz. :—

T cloths under 18 reed, jeans, domestics, sheetings, and drills shewn to the satisfaction of the Customs-Collector, whose decision shall be final, to be of the dimensions, weights, counts, and qualities now generally known under those descriptions, and to contain no yarn of a higher number than 30s.

Cotton twist:

Mule, No. 32 and lower numbers.

Water, No. 20 and lower numbers.”

It was subsequently explained (Notification No. 56, dated 24th April 1878) that the exemption of twist applied to grey twist only.

3. To the terms of this exemption exception has been taken in various quarters. Regarding the portion relating to piece Objections made.

goods, the Chambers of Commerce of Manchester and Bengal, whose letters we append, and various mercantile firms, urge that the exemption is materially vitiated by the limitation to certain specified classes of goods which it contains. There are, it is said, other classes of goods made of the same coarse yarns as those specified are, and differing from the latter only in width, length, and name, which thus remain subject to duty. And further, it is argued that, if cloth answering to a certain known description is exempted when made of yarns not above 30s, any cloth made of such yarns ought to be free, whether it answers this description or not. The limitation is declared to be thus not only productive of anomalies and unfair taxation, but also in contradiction of the declaration made in paragraph 57 of the Financial Resolution No. 1911, dated 18th March 1878, that “the real test” of what duties are protective “is the quality or fineness of the yarn of which the goods consist.” Finally, both the Chambers referred to suggest as a remedy the exemption of all cloths, of whatever designation, made of yarn not finer than 30s, and the suggestion is supported from other quarters, as explained in paragraph 8.

4. With regard to the exemption of grey twist the only objection comes from the Manchester Chamber, who state that "it is well known a great portion of yarn shipped to India up to 24s water and 40s mule, both inclusive, is spun from cotton grown in India," and who base on this statement a request for the exemption of "all yarns up to 36s water and 42s mule."

5. We will first consider the case of piece goods. It is evident, from the nature of the objections made, that the intention of the Government in issuing the Notification has been generally misunderstood. It is supposed that the intention was to exempt all goods upon which the duties might to any extent operate protectively. But the Resolution itself shews that a more limited measure was alone contemplated. Paragraphs 58 and 57 announce that "the Government of India has determined to commence by exempting" only "certain descriptions of goods regarding which it can safely be asserted that they are of the kinds with which Indian manufactures can compete successfully." The italics are our own. The necessity for this cautious and limited action arose from financial considerations, which have, in all declarations made regarding the cotton duties by the Secretary of State or the Government of India, been invariably declared to be paramount.

6. The information available in April last shewed, and we may mention that the conclusion has been amply confirmed by subsequent special enquiries, that the Indian mills rarely, if ever, spin yarn finer than 28s, and that the bulk of their cloths are made of much lower numbers. With the view of allowing an ample margin for all cases of doubt, 30s was fixed on as the "quality or fineness of yarn" at which the line of competition should be drawn. The exemption of all cloths made of yarn not exceeding this count would have been a necessary consequence of this decision, but for the difficulty of estimating the loss of revenue involved, the strong presumption that the loss would be considerable, and the inexpediency of running any serious financial risks. The causes of this difficulty, and the grounds for this presumption, will be apparent presently. All that was ascertainable was that grey T cloths under 18 reed, jeans, domestics, sheetings, and drills were for the most part made of yarns within the limit fixed; that these goods possessed a comparatively well fixed and recognisable character; and that the loss by exempting them would not exceed £20,000 to £22,500. This loss the Government were content to bear, and the Notification was framed accordingly. To prevent the passing of finer goods under the designations exempted, as also to avoid exclusive reliance on the testing of the yarn, which presents many difficulties in practice, the further check was provided that the cloths must be of the "dimensions, weights, counts, and qualities now ordinarily known under those descriptions."

7. There appears to be no room for doubt that the Notification was sufficient and suitable for the objects the Government had in view, and that it has worked, within the limits it was intended to work in, without much trouble or complaint. The records of a number of both Calcutta and Bombay disputed cases, which are before us, shew that attempts of various kinds to pass off cloths of higher descriptions as belonging to the lower were readily detected and generally admitted by the importers, as also that the difficulties of testing the counts of yarn, though considerable, were not so formidable as had been supposed. The descriptions of cloth named in the Notification are all such as are perfectly well known; many of them are generally quoted in trade circulars and prices current; merchants have no difficulty in understanding what is meant, and Customs officers have no doubts about recognising them and passing them. If people make up shirtings in short lengths to pass as T cloths, or in double lengths, with a heading at each end, to simulate domestics, or put headings on their goods different from those with which they have previously been imported, or stamp their goods with designations to which they have no claim, they cannot reasonably complain at being obliged to pay the duty they have deliberately attempted to evade. On the above grounds, therefore, we do not consider that the terms of the Notification could be improved without altering its scope.

8. The real proximate source of the complaints which have arisen is the fact that there is little essential difference between the cloths which have been exempted and large classes of cloth, otherwise styled, which have not. "Chudders," for instance, are merely sheeting made up in short lengths to suit the Calcutta market, of which they are a specialty; "longcloth" is a name for a coarse shirting of particular dimensions chiefly imported at Bombay; while shirting of a coarse texture, when made up of a certain length and width, is almost the same as T cloth. To put the case in another form, cloth of almost the same texture may be found in a chudder, a dhotee, a T cloth, a longcloth and a shirting, the only variation being in length, width, and other details. We are well aware that it is only in a certain sense that these names can be said to be interchangeable, for a cloth is not, strictly speaking, entitled to a certain name unless it is of the dimensions, yarns and description generally known as appertaining to that name. And further, some names indicate somewhat different articles according to whether they are used for the markets of India or the United Kingdom. Virtually, all grey cloths are one long range, varying and almost infinitely variable in the details of length, width, weight, or yarn. It is sometimes very difficult to determine to which "description" a particular cloth belongs.

9. The only effective remedy obviously is to treat similarly, whether by exemption or taxation, all cloths of the same texture, irrespective of the lengths and widths in which they happen to be made up, or the names by which people may choose to call them. This course is that which is, more or less explicitly, asked for by the Chambers of Commerce of Bengal and Manchester, as well as by four mercantile firms in Calcutta, four in Madras, and four in Bombay, who have been consulted, and is approved by the Bengal Board of Revenue and the Customs-Collector and Government of Madras. On the other hand, it is opposed at Madras by the Board of Revenue and one firm, and by the Chamber of Commerce, a copy of whose letter is appended. The Bombay Chamber of Commerce, and the Governments of Bengal and Bombay, have expressed no opinion.

10. To ascertain, however, whether cloths are of a specified texture is one of the difficulties by which the whole question is surrounded. Theoretically, texture depends solely upon the quality or fineness of the yarn employed, and the latter should be readily ascertainable by weighing a piece of cloth of certain dimensions. In other words, the count, dimensions, and weight of a piece should indicate the average number of the yarn. But this is only true of goods made of pure cotton, and, practically, no such goods exist. A certain amount of sizing is indispensable to strengthen the warp against the friction and wear it must undergo in weaving. A larger amount is sometimes added to improve the appearance of the cloth, and more still to make it cheaper by taking the place of cotton. Addition with the last-named object is often carried, by the aid of China clay and other substances, to an extent amounting to fraud. Sizing and "filling" (as heavy sizing is sometimes called) are thus an inevitable disturbing element, which renders simple weighment insufficient as a test of yarn. No practical method of readily testing the amount of size in cloth has yet been brought forward, as far as we are aware.

11. To meet the difficulty, two courses have been suggested. A Manchester manufacturer has represented that weighment is a good test, provided an allowance be made for sizing, and that 25 per cent. should be the amount of such allowance. Having fixed upon a certain standard of yarn for warp and weft as the maximum for exemption, and ascertained the weight, including 25 per cent. of sizing, of a square yard, a series of tables might be constructed shewing the correct duty-free weight of T cloths, longcloths, and other makes for each count in the reed and pick and each different width. A Custom-house officer, after ascertaining the count and dimensions of any cloth, would only have to weigh it, and charge duty or not according to whether the weight was less or more than the duty-free weight shewn in the corresponding table.

12. To this suggestion, which appears to be partly (at least) derived from the French and other Tariffs, there occur to us several objections. Firstly, the fixing of a percentage for sizing is a material interference with the freedom of trade. We are told that there are special objects for which heavily sized goods are preferred, and that in any case the consumer should not be indirectly influenced in the exercise of his discretion. As a matter of fact, goods are frequently sized far above 25 per cent. Secondly, a direct inducement would be offered to putting in extra size, so as to bring the weight of the cloth above the weight given in the table, while, on the other hand, the more honest cloths with less sizing would be deliberately handicapped. Thirdly, the fixing of a limit would tend to encourage sizing up to that limit, and 25 per cent. is probably about double the proportion required for useful or honest purposes. Lastly, any system based on weighment can only test the average fineness of the yarn, and will allow of yarn far finer than the standard being used in the weft. Thus, a standard of 30s would, under this system, admit of the use of 40s in the weft, combined with 24s in the warp, with the result of admitting free of duty a yarn respecting which Manchester has at present no direct Indian competition to encounter. If the standard were lowered so as to exclude warp and weft averaging more than 30s, it would be unfair to much honest cloth, and possibly might even leave untouched a part of the protection which it is the object to remove. Owing to these objections, and especially the last, we consider the test by weighment, as far as now understood, to be unworkable.

13. The other alternative, advocated by a Bombay merchant, consists in unravelling a sufficient length of the weft, measuring off one or more leas* of it on a machine or wrap reel of a certain size, and then weighing them to deduce the number of hanks which will go to the pound. He says:—

“The warp would certainly be more difficult to test than the weft; but I think I am correct in saying that in no case is the warp of any cloth ever of higher count than the weft, and thus, if the weft were found by testing to be low enough to pass below the duty standard, it might safely be assumed that the warp was also, so that it would appear that if an efficient test could be applied to the weft, it would meet the object in view. Now, as a matter of fact, the weft is easily unravelled, and still more easily tested; and such testing is likely to be accurate from the fact that cloth is sized while in the warp and before the weft is applied. Thus, the weft is not directly sized, and only absorbs what it may gather from the warp. That it does absorb some, is no doubt the case; but in all probability this is not more than 6 or 8 per cent. at the outside, and the testing would thus be accurate to within that limit; say, in 30s to within two or four counts.”

The Commissioner of Customs, Bombay, writing on the same subject, says that the weft is not invariably, though it is usually, finer than the warp, and that several tests from the same cloth sometimes give different results. On the other hand, he seems to estimate the probable error at not more than one or two numbers, and this is supported by other evidence and our own experiments. We are informed by a Calcutta firm, who import largely on their own account, that the wrap reel is used daily by their agents in Manchester to test the purchases made on their behalf, and is found sufficiently trustworthy to protect them from imposition and loss.

14. This mode of test rests on more than one assumption, and evidently cannot give absolutely accurate results. The margin of error, however, seems pretty fairly distributed. If the weft takes up from the warp size enough to increase its weight by two or three numbers, that is in favour of the manufacturer. If, on the other hand, the effect of the size is, in some cloths at least, “neutralised by the increased tenacity resulting from the weaving and unravelling,” as experience at Bombay is reported to shew, the Government will be no loser.

15. Bearing in mind that absolute accuracy is rarely attainable in anything, that the bulk of imports will probably still consist of cloths of the well-known dimensions, weights, counts, and qualities (about which disputes are rare), and that, even without the systematic use of the reel, the decisions of our Customs-Collectors as to yarns appear to have been pretty generally acquiesced in as equitable, we are of opinion that the system of measurement will in practice be found sufficient as a test of texture. It is at any rate preferable to any other with which we are acquainted, and the objections to it are not sufficiently weighty to render unsafe the exemption of all cloths of the same texture, which we have above stated to be the only effective remedy for the complaints against the system of exempting specified classes of goods now in force under the Notification.

Test by measurement preferred.

* Yarns are numbered according to the number of hanks of 840 yards long that go to the pound weight. Yarn of which 30 hanks make a pound is called 30s, and so on. Each hank consists of 7 leas. Each lea of 120 yards long = 80 revolutions of a 54-inch reel.

16. The question which next arises is what texture of cloth or, in other words, what number of yarn should be made the limit of exemption. In paragraph 57 of the Suitable limit of exemption.

Resolution already referred to, the object at present in view is declared to be the abolition of such of the Indian cotton duties as are now actually protective. The chief point to consider is what are the present capacities and work of the Indian mills. Regarding Bombay, Mr. O'Connor, the Assistant Secretary in the Statistical Branch of the Department of Revenue, Agriculture, and Commerce, made, during a recent visit there, very full enquiries. They amply corroborate what has already been formally stated on various occasions. We make the following extracts from a useful note which he has submitted:—

“The bulk of the yarns spun consists of Nos. 6, 10, and 20 mule twist. Water twist is spun in smaller quantities, and the highest number spun in any quantity seems to be No. 18, but the bulk is 16s. * * * * * The commoner kinds of short-stapled cottons are not fit for the spinning, by machinery, of the finer kinds of yarns; * * * from 21s to 26s, 28s, and 30s the spinner requires a longer-stapled cotton, such as Hingunghat and good Coompta, and even such good cotton is not adapted for the proper spinning of yarn above 30s. * * * For the weaving of T cloths, longcloths, and domestics, the yarns employed range from 14s to 18s water and 16s to 22s mule. Very little mule twist is spun above 21s, and these (21s) are sent largely to China. For hosiery 26s and 28s are spun. * * * The real number, as ascertained by practical test of the yarns spun in the Bombay mills, is almost invariably two numbers lower than the declared number. I have tried the yarn repeatedly and found this to be the case.”

The spinnings at Madras and Calcutta are of much the same character.

17. There are thus good grounds for believing that, except in a small number of isolated instances, the limit of 30s fixed by the Notification goes rather beyond what is necessary for abolishing existing direct protection. The small margin thus left is, however, useful in many ways, by leaving room for errors of estimate, by covering isolated higher local manufacture, by allowing a greater difference between warp and weft, by minimising disputes, and by promising greater permanence for the limit than could otherwise be expected. A limit of 26s might cover the bulk of the local manufacture for a time, but it could not be long maintained, while much outcry would be caused by a reduction from the existing limit of 30s, which seems to have been generally approved. To this we have alluded further in paragraph 27. We would therefore deprecate any alteration, unless indispensable for financial reasons.

18. We have spoken above of existing direct protection. But there exists also the indirect protection, alluded to in the Resolution, which enables the Indian-made coarse goods to displace, by their cheapness or other qualities, finer cloths imported. We have been shown a particular cloth, made of 20s in an up-country mill, which we are told is driving out, in a certain local area, imported cloth made of 40s. The former happens to serve a particular purpose as well as the latter, while it is cheaper and wears better. In Bombay, local longcloths have already almost driven out imported ones of finer yarn, and Bombay dhoties may in time seriously affect the coloured-border imported dhoties now preferred to them in Bengal. But this indirect protection is very impalpable, and may easily be overestimated. We do not see how it can be dealt with, except by an exemption going far beyond the present limits of actual local manufacture, and involving a sacrifice of revenue not absolutely necessary. Supposing, for instance, 40s. were taken as a limit, this would admit duty-free the great bulk of shirtings and other fine grey goods. The loss would probably reach more than double the amount assigned in paragraph 23 to a limit of 30s., and as the goods are now in the market, instead of having to be made to suit new conditions (as explained in paragraphs 21 and 23) this loss would accrue at once. If so much were conceded, it would hardly be worth while to stop short of exempting all grey piece goods from duty.

19. In order to diminish the difficulties of the Customs-Collector in ascertaining whether goods are within the duty-free limit, two suggestions have been made to us by members of the mercantile community. The first is that the highest number of yarn used in any imported cotton cloth should invariably be declared by the importer in his bill-of-entry, on his own authority or that of a manufacturer's certificate. This the Chief Customs authority possesses, under section 86 of the Sea Customs Act, power to require him to do. The second is that no such cloth should be admitted duty free unless it was stamped by the manufacturer with the "description," or the limit of yarn, under which it is to be declared and passed. It is argued that these measures would prevent goods being passed as of duty-free quality, and afterwards sold as of their real higher quality, and would thus deprive the importer of his chief inducement to fraud, as also that they would at the same time be a material assistance to sound goods, and no honest trader could reasonably object to them. We must state frankly, however, that we place little reliance upon certificates and declarations. As to marks, experts at trade centres are never guided by them, and up-country retail purchasers rarely even understand them, but depend on their own inspection of the cloth itself.

20. We will now endeavour to present the financial aspects of an exemption of all cloths made of yarn not finer than 30s. The concession in this direction already made was estimated, in paragraph 58 of the Resolution of 18th March 1878, as costing not more than £22,227, and probably less, according to the duty paid in 1876-77. On the figures of 1877-78, now available, the estimate would be £16,775 only. The actual amount of duty foregone in the eight and a third months following the date of the Notification has been £8,907, as far as we have been able to ascertain. The later

Madras figures, and those for "other ports," are only estimates. This low result is, however, to a great extent abnormal. Importations of grey piece goods are usually slack before, and during a great part of, the monsoon, while the late scarcity in Western and Southern India, the disturbed state of Europe, the strikes in English manufacturing districts, and the accumulation of certain stocks have probably all contributed towards a diminution of imports. At the same time, such explanations cannot be altogether relied on, for the fluctuations which take place in the different items of the cotton trade are considerable, and are attributable to alterations in the public taste, to the opening or closing of particular markets, and other causes, as well as to such as those already named. The marginal table is instructive in this respect. The fall in coarse goods above referred to will be seen

Manchester goods will afford, we are unable to conjecture. But we may quote, as still appropriate, some remarks made by Mr. Hope in a speech, introducing to the Legislative Council of the Governor General the Tariff Bill in August 1875 :

"This scheme (of exempting the coarse goods subject to local competition) had, at first sight, a great deal to recommend it, but it was open to two objections: first, that it was impossible to draw a well-defined line between coarse and fine goods; and secondly, that any line drawn would not only lead to elaborate evasions and frauds on the part of the home manufacturer, who would endeavour to make goods which should just come within the exemption, but would stimulate the local mills to manufacture goods just above the line, and so would enlarge the range of the competition now complained of. The line would never be a steady and permanent one, for it would be necessary perpetually to keep moving it on further and further, higher and higher, until in the end perhaps the whole duty would be affected."

In the same sense, a large Bombay mercantile firm, speaking of the relief of "chudders" from duty, adds :

"Our own feeling is that local manufacturers can hold their own against Manchester competition in such articles without the assistance that is rendered by import duty, and we further believe that gradually they will extend the field of their competition with Manchester manufacturers, and that, eventually, they will compete successfully in the higher counts of yarn, and also in finer cloths, solely on the strength of their superior position as regards the supply of the raw material and their proximity to the great consuming markets of Asia. At present there is little or no inducement for the local mills to attempt the higher counts of yarn. But competition amongst themselves will gradually force them into it, and in such a case there will be no great difficulty in importing to advantage the better class of raw cotton required either from Egypt or America."

Under these circumstances, we think it is only possible to act upon existing well-ascertained facts.

25. In illustration of this branch of the subject, we may give the following figures, shewing the advance which has lately been made by the Bombay mills in supplying by sea the markets of other parts of India, excluding ports within the Bombay Presidency, of which complete returns are not procurable :—

To this must be added the goods sent by land. The extent of this trade cannot be ascertained, as even the returns of supplies sent by railway do not distinguish Indian from European cotton manufactures, but it is estimated by authorities competent to judge at not more than 20 per cent. in addition to the above. Besides this expansion within British India, the export trade in cotton yarn and piece goods of Indian manufacture from all India has, within the last four years, increased as shewn in the margin. Of this trade, about 85 per cent. belongs to Bombay. On the other hand, taking the value of the whole internal trade in 1877-78 at £1,130,000 in round numbers, this is only about 8 per cent. of the value (£14,190,000) of the imports of grey goods from the United Kingdom into British India in the same year, and the Bombay trade is undoubtedly far from remunerative at present. At a meeting of the Mill-owners' Association, held there on the 15th inst., it was stated that "nearly one-third of the local mill industry has, in the space of a few months, actually failed. Eight mills have already been put into liquidation, and two or three more are expected to go very soon." Indian cotton manufacture has probably a great future, but that future is probably somewhat remote.

26. Your reference to us likewise contemplates, as a limit to the exemption to be suggested, that it shall not involve "an undue sacrifice of revenue" and "a loss of revenue that could not be afforded." What sacrifice of revenue would not be undue depends upon the present urgency of the necessity for extending the exemption, and what loss of revenue could be afforded can only be determined in clear view of all the financial resources and necessities of India during the coming year. Upon both these matters we possess no sufficient knowledge. We consequently feel that we cannot do more than lay before the Government of India such estimates as we are able to frame of the cost of the various courses of action which appear to be practicable, with the merits or defects of each, and add two remarks 1st, that the loss by any exemption may be expected to be somewhat recouped by a slight gain, proportioned to its extent but not now ascertainable, in railway receipts; and, 2ndly, that our recommendations for revision of tariff valuations, which cannot be matured until the end of the month at the earliest, appear likely to involve a considerable loss.

27. Our reasons for thinking the exemption of all cloths of yarns under 30s to be the only present effective remedy for the complaints which have arisen have been given above. In view, however, of the sacrifice of revenue thereby involved being found impossible, we may explain two alternatives which occur to us as practicable: 1st, to exempt all cloths of the same texture, but to lower the standard to yarns No. 26s; 2nd, simply to add one or two more designations of cloth to those contained in the Notification of March 18th.

28. All the evidence received shews that, although the Bombay mills do, in special cases and by special order, use yarn nominally 28s and 30s, the vast bulk of the outturn is well within a maximum of 24s. A limit of 26s would probably, therefore, suffice for the immediate present to relieve from duty most of the imported cloths (speaking broadly) which now suffer from direct local competition. Under this limit, printers (an insignificant item) would get no exemption, T cloths 18 reed and upwards, as also chudders, would enjoy about the same as under a limit of 30s, exemption of madapollams would fall to about half, and that of shirtings and dhoties (especially the latter) would be very materially, though perhaps not entirely, curtailed.

29. Subject to all our previous reservations as to the impossibility of giving more than a guess, the cost of this alternative may be presumed to be as per margin. The item for shirtings, however, may perhaps be too high. As before, the whole of this loss would not accrue in the first year, but a greater proportion of it probably would.

27. The advantages of this alternative are, that it would be much cheaper than the exemption up to 30s, and that it would save our shirting revenue considerably. Supposing the present normal range of coarser shirtings to be made of from 40s to 34s, it would not be difficult for a new class, made of 30s and just under, to take their place extensively. But to get four counts lower is a different thing, and shirtings of in an increase of 8·8 per cent. in the entire value of the trade, and of £10,370 in the duty accruing to the Government. A scrutiny of the returns shows that this increase has occurred almost entirely in Bengal, and the fact may be held to corroborate the argument put forth in paragraphs 21 to 26 of the Secretary of State's Despatch No. 9, dated May 31st 1878, that the trade is checked in Bombay, where local production exists, but thrives in Calcutta. On the other hand, however, it might be retorted that the increased imports from Bombay, mentioned in paragraph 25 are, consequently, doing no harm, and that there have been decreases in Madras, Burma and Scind, where there are no local mills at all. The truth seems to be, that in this case both Bombay and Manchester have poured out their over-production on the largest market they could reach, and that generally, much caution is necessary in drawing inferences from limited statistics.

We may here state that neither in this place, nor elsewhere in this report, are we to be understood as ascribing the advance in local manufactures solely, or even mainly, to any protection which they may have received from the import duties.

After a retrospect of past years, we are inclined to think that the loss in an ordinary whole year by the exemption already granted may be taken at £20,000 in round numbers. It is here worthy of note that the coarse goods import trade only amounts now to about one-half of the estimate of four lakhs given of it by the late Tariff Committee in 1875, in paragraph 13 of their Report.

21. Obscure and doubtful as even an estimate of the loss involved in Estimated loss by extension up to 30s. the concession already made is thus found to be, it is certainly compared with any figures which can be offered relating to the extension to all goods made of 30s and under, which is now in question. Setting aside all considerations of overstocking, depression of trade, and the like, two fundamental difficulties remain. The first is that the yarn of which goods are made is never specified by importers or manufacturers, whose interest, indeed, it is to hold back what would be a means of ascertaining the amount of size employed. The entire range of superior goods from printers downwards—printers, madapollams, longcloths, shirtings, T cloths 18 reed and upwards, and dhoties—comprises qualities made of 30s, and even, in some cases, rather lower numbers; but what proportion they bear, it is impossible to affirm. The second difficulty is that the extension under discussion would probably soon effect a complete revolution in the piece goods trade. The Commissioner of Customs of Bombay (Mr. Pritchard), in an able report on the whole subject, observes of the extension:

“It will operate to create a new class of shirtings made of yarns 28 by 29 or 30, instead of the present standard quality of 32 by 36. This will pass free of duty, and, if it finds favour in the market, will take the place to a large extent either of the longcloths or of the shirtings now used, or of both. The extent to which the revenue will be affected will depend, first, on whether the new texture takes, and next on whether it finds its chief sale among the classes which now buy Indian-made longcloths, or among those who use the imported shirtings. As it will be of better quality than longcloths, and will be saleable at 5 per cent. cheaper than the shirtings now made, it seems likely that it will compete about equally with both; and that, assuming that it displaces altogether about half as much cloth as is now imported, the loss to the revenue likely to result from its introduction may be taken at about a quarter the income now derived from shirtings.”

A large mercantile firm consulted says:

“There can be no doubt that a trade in cloth made of yarn just within the limit for exemption of duty would be fostered, and which might gradually become of considerable importance. Such cloth would probably be appreciated by consumers for its intrinsic value, as well as for its comparative cheapness, owing to there being no duty upon it; and if this should be the case, it might do away to a considerable extent with the importation of cloth made of yarns ranging from 32s upwards.”

Going on to estimate the total duty paid by grey cloths made of yarns from 32s to 44s at £160,000, this firm give, as a “rough guess,” one-half of that amount as the probable loss under that item alone. Four other non-official authorities, whom we have consulted in Calcutta, respectively put the loss at one-fourth, two-thirds, three-fourths, and seven-eighths of the shirting revenue.

22. The duty received for grey cotton goods in 1877-78 is shewn in the margin. The fifth item is that of the goods exempted in March last. The others are those which the extension would more or less affect. Chudders would become entirely free, as they are of the same class as the articles under item 5. They would probably have been exempted by name in March last had they been brought to notice, but they are not separately specified in the general returns, as their demand is local and their yield inconsiderable. Coarse or "shirting dhories" would also be almost entirely freed, if their borders, which are either coloured or of fine white yarn, were left out of consideration. But these borders place them to some extent in the category of fancy goods, and (together with certain caste rules and preferences) give them a position distinct from that taken up by the coarse Bombay dhories which are now coming to Calcutta in increasing quantities. They are in demand almost exclusively in Bengal, but the item is a very heavy one, and if financial difficulties are pressing, their exemption might be postponed for a time, though it could hardly be permanently denied. The real element of uncertainty arises, however, from the exemption invading, in unknown force, the great domain of shirtings and longcloths, which produces about a third of a million sterling. Longcloths are now an insignificant item, so the shirting revenue is that really threatened.

23. The difficulty of our offering any estimate at all of the probable sacrifice of revenue involved in exemption with a limit of 30s will, we trust, be fully recognised. We can only put forward, as possibly of little worth, the following figures derived, as regards Bombay, from the Commissioner's report, and as regards Calcutta, from our sifting of the various surmises which have come before us. The amount is about 36 per cent. of the total duty derived from grey goods. Our general impression is that in the first year, before there has been time for new makes of shirting to be devised and establish a footing throughout the country, the loss would be less, perhaps considerably less, than this proportion, but that in subsequent years it might be more. The period within which the full loss will be attained is put by various authorities at from one year to three. Considering that weaving new kinds of cloth involves first spinning the yarn, that such cloths are not likely to be largely made until samples have been sent to India and public opinion has been tested regarding them, and that existing stocks of finer goods must be worked off, we doubt whether the new makes will appear in any great quantity in the Indian market before the fall of 1879, and we should not be surprised if the actual loss of revenue in 1879-80 turned out to be at least a fourth or a third less than the sum we have named. That sum might be further considerably reduced if dhories were not freed.

24. We have not overlooked the fact that in the 3rd paragraph of your letter the reference to us embraces the question of exempting all goods of a class not only produced, but "capable of being produced," in the Indian mills. Their present capacity, or in other words, what it at present pays them to produce, has been indicated above, and upon that the limit of 30s rests. But what classes of production may hereafter become remunerative to them, with the existing freedom to import long-stapled cotton and under the stimulus which the increase of mills throughout India and the untaxed admission of higher 26s would not be good enough for a large proportion of purchasers. We may add that this limit is recommended by the Bombay Commissioner of Customs. On the other hand, the disadvantages are, that the narrower limit would make disputes much more frequent, that the retrocession from the already notified limit of 30s would cause much outcry, and that the measure could be but very temporary, as the Indian mills would be stimulated at once to push their manufacture into the finer numbers of yarn, and the pressure for a return to the limit of 30s or higher could not be long resisted.

30. If it were decided merely to add a few readily distinguishable kinds of cloth to those already named in the Notification, "chudders," which are merely sheeting made in particular lengths to suit the Calcutta market, should certainly be so treated. The coarsest dhoties might also perhaps be exempted, but in their case a special limit of 26s yarn would be desirable to exclude the better class of shirting dhoties which would otherwise come in largely for shirting purposes. Similar treatment of longcloths we cannot recommend, as they are practically undistinguishable from shirting. To admit them with a special limit of 26s would financially be nearly the same as adopting our first alternative in its entirety, but the practical difficulty of deciding whether a cloth made of 28s should be called a longcloth and taxed, or a coarse T cloth and exempted, would be almost insuperable. The cost of exempting "chudders" and dhoties of 26s would probably not exceed £15,000. The maintenance of the Notification, thus amplified, would of course leave unsatisfied, in the main, the desire of the present complainants to be allowed to make, unfettered except by the 30s limit, shirtings or any other cloth they please. We would not be understood as in any way advocating it.

31. We may here mention that it has been represented to us that it would be better for the interests concerned to reduce the 5 per cent. duty on all grey goods by 1 per cent. or more than to exempt certain specified descriptions of cloth, or even all cloths made of yarn up to 30s or any other particular count. In support of this, much extent and importance is assigned to the displacement movement, and it is said that the Indian piece goods and yarns are rapidly affecting all except the very highest imported goods. It is held that such a general reduction, say, of only 1 per cent. at a time, as the finances could bear the loss, would be preferable to total exemption of goods below any given line combined with full duty on those above it. It is thought hard that mills in Lancashire which turn out one class of goods should get a relief which others do not share. The uncertain financial effect of exemption on a limit of 30s, and the probability of nearly the whole shirting revenue being lost by it, are insisted on, and the general reduction is advocated as a more certain and economical measure.

32. Setting aside for a moment the practical difficulty of re-imposing a duty of 4 per cent. on the descriptions of goods which have already been declared free, we cannot see how the measure proposed is at all in accord with ascertained facts. We have no good evidence that the displacement movement has attained the proportions alleged, but there is no doubt at all that the Indian mills do, within certain limits, compete seriously and extensively with importers. As it has been decided that the latter are to be relieved of protected competitors, we can see no argument, on the merits, for relieving them piecemeal, and prolonging over a series of years part of any loss they are admitted to sustain, especially with the object of giving exemption from duty to those whose position is as yet only feebly assailed. Financially, the measure possesses some recommendations, but we do not think they outweigh the objections to it, and we doubt whether it would find much favour with the mercantile community.

33. We now turn to the complaint regarding yarns made by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce alone. It is to the effect that all yarns up to 36s water and 42s mule ought to be exempted, because the great portion of yarn shipped to India up to 24s water and 40s mule, both inclusive, is spun from cotton grown in India. Upon the face of this, it does not appear why the exemption should go up to 36s water, when the limit of Lancashire spinning of Indian cotton is confessedly only 24s; or again, why the Indian cotton should be sent to England at all to be spun into high numbers unless it cannot be spun profitably on the spot. That it cannot now be so spun, has been repeatedly ascertained by the most careful enquiries, including the recent ones of Mr. O'Connor. He says:

"The bulk of the yarns spun consists of Nos 6, 10, and 20 mule twist. Water twist is spun in smaller quantities, and the highest number spun in any quantity seems to be No. 18, but the bulk is 16s. * * * The causes, then, which prevent the spinning of yarns of 40s and upwards in the Indian mills are—1st, high price of raw material; 2nd, diminution in outturn as compared with lower counts; 3rd, inferior quality of outturn as compared with English yarns. These causes are, no doubt, removable. If the finer cottons are more largely grown, and the price falls considerably, the smaller outturn of yarn within a given time will not be of material importance, and it is possible that with the use of longer stapled cotton and the exercise of greater skill and care, the quality may become as good as that of English yarn.

* * * It will be long indeed, in my judgment, before the Indian mills will venture on any active competition with Manchester in the spinning of 40s and higher counts of yarn."

The above conclusion is supported by the fact that the numbers for which

34. With reference to the instructions contained in your 10th paragraph, we have to report that, in addition to careful perusal of the replies of various members of the mercantile community to references, official and demi-official, which had been made to them by the Local Governments and otherwise previously to our appointment, we invited the members of the Chambers of Commerce of Bengal and Bombay, and of the Calcutta Trades Association, to favour us with any representations or suggestions which occurred to them. We have accordingly received visits from several members individually, as also demi-official letters, and held on the 20th a conference with the Committee of the Bengal Chamber.

35. In conclusion of this report we have only to remark that we consider any discussion of, or expression of opinion on, the general policy of a partial or total remission of the cotton duties, and the probable effects of such a policy upon English or Indian manufacturers, or the Indian producer, consumer or tax-payer, to be beyond the limits of the duty assigned to us, and have carefully abstained from such accordingly.

exemption is asked are those in which the importations are largest, and that there are no symptoms of a decline in the trade. As to indirect competition, we have been told that Bombay 20s are displacing, for homespun cloth, imported 40s doubled, but as to this we can only refer to what we have said above in paragraph 18. The extent of the a great boon to the Bombay mills, and materially promote their spinning fine cloths with English yarn, to the further detriment of the Manchester piece goods trade.

ENCLOSURE No. 1.

Dated Calcutta, 17th April 1878.

From—H. W. I. WOOD, Esq., *Secretary to the Bengal Chamber of Commerce,*To—The Secretary to the Government of India, DEPT. OF REVE., AGRI., AND COM.

I am directed by the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce to address you in regard to the Notification No. 43, dated 18th March 1878, exempting from all import duties sundry descriptions of grey cotton piece-goods.

In the Resolution No. 1911, dated 18th March 1878, published by the Financial Department, it is stated that the Government of India have been at some pains to ascertain how such of the cotton duties as appear to them actually protective could be defined, and it is then added, as the result of such enquiry, "that the real test is the quality or fineness of the yarn of which the goods consist."

The Committee of the Chamber do not propose to discuss the question of how far this proposition is correct,—the object of their communication being to point out that the legislation which followed the enquiries resulting in the conclusion above referred to appears to have proceeded on a different basis, and to call attention to certain anomalies which, in consequence, have arisen.

Paragraph 57 of the Resolution particularises by name the descriptions of goods proposed to be exempted from duty,—these being T. cloths, jeans, domestics, sheetings and drills; and paragraph 58 imposes "the further condition that goods so exempted shall not contain finer yarn than what is known as 30s, that is, yarn of which 30 hanks of 840 yards each weigh one pound." In the Notification it is similarly specified that the goods exempted from duty shall come under certain designations, and also be subject to the further condition as regards fineness of yarn already referred to.

The apparent contradiction between the "real test," as defined by the Government of India, and the terms of the Notification, has occasioned considerable dissatisfaction amongst importers of cotton goods, and it has been represented to the Committee of the Chamber that the condition referred to must operate very unfairly against certain goods which, though satisfying the condition as to count of yarn, are still not commonly recognised by any of the names set forth in the Notification. As an illustration, the Committee would draw attention to a certain description of stout or domestic cloth, which, for convenience of sale, importers have been in the habit of receiving in pairs of about 10 yards in length. These goods are used very largely by the Natives as chudders, and consequently this name has been given to them by importers, and is their recognised designation by the Custom House authorities. This being so, it follows that although the cloth is in all respects, as far as quality is concerned, a domestic, still, with the present Notification before him, the Collector of Customs is unable to pass it free of duty.

Other instances might be given to show the unfavourable position in which importers of certain fabrics are placed, but chudders have been selected both because they fairly illustrate the anomaly created by the terms of the Notification, and also because such goods are largely manufactured in Native mills; and thus the protection which the Government apparently desire to remove still remains in full force in regard to these goods.

The practical effect of the Notification as it now stands is that cloth made in a particular length and bearing an arbitrary title passes free of duty, while precisely the same fabric, cut up for convenience of sale into a different length, has to pay duty.

The Committee of the Chamber would, therefore, respectfully urge on the Government the desirability of amending the Notification so as to include all cloths, of whatever denomination, made of yarn not finer than 30s; or if the intention of Government was really to exclude from exemption all goods not specially particularised, although fulfilling as to quality and fineness of yarn the "real test" laid down in the Resolution, then in such case steps should be taken to remove the ambiguity which appears at present to surround the question.

ENCLOSURE No. 2.

Dated Manchester, 27th March 1878.

From—THOMAS BROWNING, Esq., *Secretary, Manchester Chamber of Commerce,*To—The Under Secretary of State for India.

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter of yesterday, in which the Chamber is informed that Lord Salisbury is not in possession of information more specific as to the particular goods and yarns which in future are to be admitted into India duty-free, than that contained in the telegrams which have appeared in the public press.

I am to state that the Chamber has been informed by telegraph, from Calcutta, that it is the intention of the Government of India to limit the exemption from duty strictly to goods and yarns named in the published reports.

The Directors are of opinion that such a limitation will fail to secure the obvious intention of the Government, and I have been directed to forward to Lord Salisbury the annexed copy of Resolution, passed unanimously at a Meeting of the Board held this morning.

The views contained in the Resolution have been arrived at after careful consideration; and they are respectfully and earnestly commended to the attention of His Lordship, the limitation as it now stands having greatly perplexed both Manufacturers and merchants in their operations.

I am further instructed to say, that if it be the desire of Lord Salisbury to have practical evidence in support of the position taken by the Directors in the Resolution, a small deputation from their number will be happy to wait upon him with that object at any time he may appoint.

Resolution passed at a Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, held on Wednesday, 27th March 1878.

The Directors of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce regard the action of the Government of India, in exempting coarse yarns and goods from import duty as a first step towards the complete abolition of the duties, which they hope soon to see accomplished.

As the Government of India has elected to proceed towards the contemplated end by partial exemption, rather than by affording general relief, with the avowed object of removing the protective incidence of the duties on the particular goods and yarns which the Indian mills, by reason of their natural advantages, are suited to produce, it is obvious that the list of free goods requires to be materially added to.

The exemption is extended, in the first place, to goods containing no yarns finer than 30s such as can economically be spun by the Indian mills from Indian-grown cotton; but then a limitation is added, and the only goods which are to be admitted free are T cloths under 18 reeds, jeans, domestics, sheetings, and drills.

Shirtings and longcloths, for instance, although they be made from 30s and coarse yarns, such as are spun in India, precisely the same in texture as T cloths, and differing therefrom in width, length, and name only, remain subject to the impost.

In the case of yarns, the objection to the fixed limits of the free list is even stronger; they are 20s water and 30s mule, whilst, as is well known, a great portion of yarn shipped to India, up to 24s water and 40s mule, both inclusive, is spun from cotton grown in India.

In view of the foregoing, it is resolved to urge upon Her Majesty's Chief Secretary of State for India the desirableness of simplifying those provisions of the new Indian Budget that affect manufactured cotton, by exempting from duty all goods made from yarns not finer than 30s, and all yarns up to 36s water and 42s mule.

ENCLOSURE No. 3.

Dated 3rd September 1878.

From—The Chairman of the Madras Chamber of Commerce,

To—The Collector of Customs, Madras.

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 17th ultimo, requesting the opinion of the Chamber on the expediency of exempting all grey cotton piece goods unmixed with foreign substances, not containing yarns ~~finer~~ ^{stronger} than 30s, and chudders made from 20s to 24s yarn, from import duty.

In reply, I am desired to inform you that, so far from admitting the expediency of the proposed exemption from duty, the Chamber fail to see any reason for inflicting upon the State a loss of revenue for which no compensation will be obtained. It seems to the Chamber that the present is a most unsuitable time for thinking of sacrificing any of the State's resources under pressure from interested and imperfectly informed foreign manufacturers, and that it would be difficult to find a tax which is felt so little by the people as that upon the fabrics referred to.

The repeal of all import duties might be expedient if the country were in a position to sustain without detriment the sacrifice of revenue; but situated as the finances now are, it is more than ever expedient that financiers should leave well alone. The Chamber would refer to the various reductions which have from time to time been made in the duty on cotton yarns and goods, and would ask whether, in any instance, the manufacturers obtained any benefit thereby. It will be found in all cases that the ultimate effect was to cheapen goods in India by the amount of duty surrendered; and the present complaints of Lancashire manufacturers are sufficient answer to any argument that they have profited by an increased consumption of cheaper goods."

APPENDIX B.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL STATISTICS.

1. The usual comparative statistics will be found in Tables I and II of this Appendix. There is much in them deserving remark. Notwithstanding the Famine, the value of commodities exported to Foreign Countries by sea in 1877-78 exceeded the value of the Imports by the largest sum recorded for many years, and this although the Imports rose to an almost unprecedented figure. The gross trade was the largest ever known excepting during the Cotton Famine which arose out of the American Civil War. Coupled with the Debt incurred, chiefly for the Famine, these excess Exports necessitated immense Imports of Silver and an unprecedented Coinage at the Mints. This, in its turn, sustained the gold price of silver and caused a temporary expansion of the Paper Currency. Still the fall in the gold price of silver was only partially stayed.

2. Among the details of the Sea-borne Trade in 1877-78 the rapid decline in the Export of Cotton Raw but lately at the head of the list deserves attention. It was compensated by largely increased Exports of Seeds, Rice and Paddy, Jute, Hides and Skins, Indigo, Tea and Wheat. Among Imports Cotton Goods tower above all the rest. It is said that the trade of 1877-78 in these goods was unprofitable and that the Indian markets were glutted; however that may be, it is certain that the net Imports of these goods, consisting mainly of the comparatively finer qualities, reached the immense value of £19,030,908—the highest value attained during recent years. None of the other Imports require remarks. Upon the whole the year 1877-78 would appear to have been commercially prosperous.

3. The Column for 1878-79 in Table I of this Appendix shows (1) a great increase in London Bills, the full net current requirements of the Home Treasury having been supplied; (2) a continued fall in the value of silver measured in gold with renewed fluctuations to a perplexing extent; (3) a consequent fall in the value of the Rupee securities, but no fall in the value of the Secretary of State's sterling bonds, excepting at a moment of great pressure for money in London when they sank to the almost unprecedented price of £97 for Four per Cents.; (4) a further fall in the exchange with London; (5) a contraction of the maximum issue of Paper Currency which was inflated last year owing to the vast importations of silver; (6) a gratifying increase of the amount of rupee securities enfaced for payment of interest in London by drafts upon India.

Statistics. 1878-79.

4. The statistics of the Sea-borne Trade, Table No. III, show (1) a great decrease compared with last year in the value of commodities (excluding gold and silver) exported; (2) a substantial decrease in the value of the like commodities imported; (3) a vast decrease in the net imports of gold and silver (£1,705,499 against £13,396,232); (4) a great decrease in the whole volume of Trade; (5) a further decrease in the value of Cotton Raw exported and a great falling off in the value of Seeds, Hides, Indigo, and Wheat exported, with an important increase in the value of Rice and Paddy exported; (6) a large decrease in the value of the Net Imports of Cotton Goods which are lower now than they have been for some years.

SEA-BORNE TRADE.
1878-79.

5. The year 1878-79 has apparently not been commercially prosperous; but on the whole, contemplated in connection with the Famine that has so lately devastated a large part of India, the facts cannot be regarded as altogether discouraging.

NOT A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE.

The 13th March 1879.

No. 1270.—His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General in Council has resolved to borrow Five Crores of Rupees for the Public Service in the following manner.

2. Promissory Notes will be issued for the said amount in the Form annexed to this Notification, being the Form of the Notes of the Transfer Loan 1879, of which Loan the Notes to be now issued will form a part. All the conditions which apply to Notes of the first Form of the Transfer Loan 1879 will apply to the Notes to be now issued.

3. Tenders for the whole or any part of the said amount of Five Crores of Rupees will be received by the Comptroller General from this date to noon of Monday the 12th of May 1879.

4. Each tender must be addressed, in the Form annexed to this Notification, to the Comptroller General, Treasury Buildings, Calcutta, and enclosed in a sealed cover superscribed "Tender for Four-and-a-Half Per Cent. Loan, 1879." If the tenderer is not resident in India, he must name an Agent resident in India to whom a Letter of Allotment may be issued, if any part of the Loan is allotted to such tenderer.

5. Each tender must be accompanied by a receipt from one of the Banks of Bengal, Madras or Bombay, or one of their Branches, or from an Officer in charge of some Government treasury, or by a cheque on a banker in Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, or by Government Promissory Notes made payable to the Comptroller General, for not less than one-hundredth, or, if the tender be for less than five lakhs of Rupees, then, for not less than one-fiftieth part of the tender: this deposit of one or two per centum will be forfeited if the allotment is not fully taken up, and, if it is in cash, will be treated as in part payment of the last instalment: a cash deposit may, after acceptance of the tender in support of which it is made, be replaced by a Government Promissory Note.

6. The rate at which each tender is made must be specified in Rupees, or Rupees and Annas: a tender in which no rate is thus specified, but a subscription is offered at the Recorded Minimum, or at some specified percentage in addition to the Recorded Minimum, will be rejected as null and void.

7. The rate at which a tender is made must not contain a fraction of an anna; if a rate containing a fraction of an anna is inserted in any tender, such fraction will be struck out, and the tender treated as if the rate did not contain such fraction of an anna.

8. The Minimum Rate at which tenders will be accepted will be recorded under the signature of the Comptroller General, and, when the tenders are opened, placed upon the table in a sealed envelope, but will not be declared unless some tender is rejected only because it is below the Recorded Minimum.

9. Tenders will be opened, publicly, at the Office of the Comptroller General in Calcutta, at noon on Monday the 12th of May 1879: but the contents of the tenders will not be disclosed otherwise than as provided in Clause 11.

10. Tenders at the Recorded Minimum Rate, and at rates above the Recorded Minimum Rate, will be accepted in the order of the rates tendered, beginning with the highest rate: the amount allotted at the lowest rate at which tenders are accepted, will be divided amongst those who have tendered at this rate, in proportion, as nearly as may be found convenient, to the amounts of their tenders.

11. As soon as possible after the said 12th May 1879, Letters of Allotment will be issued to those persons whose tenders are accepted in whole or in part, or to their Agents; and an alphabetical list of the names of those to whom such Letters of Allotment are issued will be posted, for general information, at the Head-Offices of the Banks of Bengal, Madras and Bombay.

12. Payment of any accepted tender may be made to the account of the Government in the Head-Office of one of the Banks of Bengal, Madras or Bombay or in any Branch of any of these Banks, or into any Government treasury or treasuries in India which may be named in the tender.

13. Accepted tenders must be paid, in five equal instalments, as follows:—

One-fifth on or before Friday the 30th May 1879,

One-fifth on or before Monday the 30th June 1879,

One-fifth on or before Wednesday the 30th July 1879,

One-fifth on or before Saturday the 30th August 1879,

One-fifth on or before Saturday the 13th September 1879, but the whole or any part of any accepted tender may be paid at any time after receipt of the Letter of Allotment.

14. Interest upon each payment will be promptly paid in advance at the rate of four-and-a-half per centum per annum, from the date of such payment to the Fourteenth day of September 1879.

15. Scrip receipts for instalments paid will be given by the Banks of Bengal, Madras and Bombay or their Branches, or by the Officers in charge of the Government treasuries at which payment is made. These receipts will, as soon as possible, be exchanged for Promissory Notes issued under this Notification.

FORM OF PROMISSORY NOTE. (See Clause 2.)

PORT WILIAM, THE 15TH MARCH 1879.

Transfer Loan, 1879, Four-and-a-Half Per Cent. Portion.

Promissory Note for Government Rupees [X] bearing Interest, payable half-yearly, at the rate of Four-and-a-half Rupees per centum per annum.

The Governor General of India in Council does hereby acknowledge to have received from (A. B.) the sum of Government Rupees [X] as a loan to the Secretary of State in Council for India; and does hereby promise, for and on behalf of the said Secretary of State in Council, on demand, three months after Notice of Repayment published by order of the Governor General of India in Council in the Gazette of India, to repay the said loan of Rupees [X] to the said (A. B.), his (or "her" or "their") Executors, Administrators or Assigns, or his (or "her") or their order in Calcutta, with interest from the 15th day of September 1879 to the date appointed for discharge, at the rate of four-and-a-half per centum per annum; and such Notice as aforesaid shall be equivalent to a tender of repayment at the period therein appointed for the discharge of this Note.

And the Governor General in Council hereby promises, on and after each succeeding fifteenth day of the Months of September and March, until the expiration of three months after Notice of Repayment as aforesaid (when all further interest will cease), on demand, to pay to the said (A. B.), his (or "her" or "their") Executors, Administrators or Assigns, or his (or "her") or their order, in Calcutta, interest on the said sum of Government Rupees [X] for half-a-year at the rate of four-and-a-half per centum per annum.

The Governor General in Council hereby further engages that Notice of Repayment as aforesaid shall not be given before the Fifteenth day of June 1893, and that this Note shall not be discharged before the Fifteenth day of September 1893.

FORM OF TENDER.

REVENUE—SEPARATE REVENUE—OPIUM

The 8th March 1879.

No. 1212.—It is hereby notified that in the month of January 1880, and thereafter month by month, till further notice, four thousand seven hundred chests of Bengal Opium will be sold under the usual conditions by auction in Calcutta as follows, viz. :—

| | | | | | |
|---------------|-----|-----|-----|-----|---------------|
| Behar Opium | ... | ... | ... | ... | 2,350 chests. |
| Benares Opium | ... | ... | ... | ... | 2,350 „ |
| Total | | | | | 4,700 chests. |

2. This Monthly Provision of 4,700 chests of opium will neither be increased nor diminished until at least twelve calendar months after notice published in the Gazette of India under the signature of a Secretary to the Government of India, or in the Calcutta Gazette under the signature of a Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

3. The division of the Monthly Provision of 4,700 chests of opium into 2,350 chests of Behar Opium and 2,350 chests of Benares Opium will not be modified until at least six calendar months after notice published in like manner.

4. Provided always that nothing in this Notification shall be understood to prevent the Government, or the Chief Authority to whom the Government may delegate the duty of superintending the sale of Bengal Provision Opium, from selling two Monthly Provisions within one calendar month, instead of in the two successive calendar months in which they would otherwise be sold, whenever the occurrence of Public Holidays or any other circumstances shall appear to the Government to make such modification of the regular course of the Monthly Sales convenient.

5. Provided also, that any chests of opium of which delivery is not taken by the purchasers may be sold in any subsequent month in addition to the 4,700 chests provided for that month.

POST OFFICE.

The 7th March 1879.

No. 1170.—Ordered that the following Resolution be published in the Gazette of India :—

It has been brought to the notice of the Government of India, that articles liable to Sea Customs duty are frequently imported into India through the Letter Post and thus escape the duty to which they are liable. Such importations are in direct contravention of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866, Section 60 of which Act declares that any cover supposed to contain articles subject to Customs duty may be opened by the Post Office authorities after due notice to attend has been given to the addressee.

His Excellency the Governor General in Council desires to remind the public that the importation through the Letter Post of goods liable to duty is illegal, and to notify for general information that the provisions of Section 60 of Act XIV of 1866 will be strictly enforced.

Ordered, that this Resolution be communicated to the several Local Governments and Administrations, and for information and guidance to the Director General of the Post Office of India.

R. B. CHAPMAN,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

PRIVATE SECRETARY'S OFFICE.

MARINE SURVEYS.—CASUALTIES AND DANGERS TO NAVIGATION.

Calcutta, the 10th March 1879.

No. 14, of 1879.—The following Notice to Mariners is published for general information :—

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

BAY OF BENGAL—BRITISH BURMA.

Sunken Dangers between Alguada Reef and Diamond Island.

Notice is hereby given that a recent examination of the approaches to the Bassein river made by the Superintendent of Marine Surveys exhibits five separate shoal ridges—on which are rocky patches with from 4 to 13 feet water on them—lying in a N. E. and S. W. direction, between Alguada reef and Diamond island, Bassein river entrance.

The least water discovered was on the "Hugh Rose rock," which lies N. N. E., $\frac{1}{4}$ E., distant $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Alguada reef light-house. This rock—on which the Ship Inchmarneek struck in April 1877—has only from 3 to 4 feet water on it at low water.

Also that the Alguada reef light-house lies S. $9^{\circ} 30'$ W. (true), distant $15\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the pagoda on Pagoda point, and S. W. by W., distant nearly three quarters of a mile from the position at present assigned to it on the charts.

Mariners are cautioned that the passage between Alguada reef and Diamond island is absolutely barred, and is most dangerous.

[Bearings are Magnetic, except where otherwise noted. Variation $2^{\circ} 30'$ E. in 1879.]

R. C. CARRINGTON, Chief Civil Assistant, for A. DUNDAS TAYLOR, Comdr. (late I.N.), Supdt., Marine Survey of India.

GOVERNMENT STATIONERY OFFICE.

No. 4, CHURCH LANE.

NOTICE.Calcutta, the 21st February 1879.

The Stationery Store will be closed for the annual stock-taking from the 16th to the 31st March 1879, both days inclusive; during which period no stationery can under any circumstances be issued. The alteration in time herein announced is rendered necessary by Government requiring the submission of the annual report on the Stationery Department one month earlier than hitherto.

500 Rupees Reward.

The above reward will be given by the Government of India for the best Sanitary Primer suitable for use in Indian schools, both English and Vernacular. The work must be in the English language from which it will afterwards be translated into the principal languages of India: it must be simple, without theories, and thoroughly practical, showing in particular the chief sanitary defects of Indian towns and villages and the best means of remedying these defects, and it must not cover more than from 24 to 30 pages of print of small pica octavo size. Competing Primers, either in print or very legible manuscript, to be sent so as to arrive not later than the 1st April 1879 at the Home Office, Calcutta. Each should bear a motto and have a sealed envelope attached with the same motto outside and the name of the author within.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, will appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series. The Parts of each Series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set:

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

(First publication.)

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 8th March, 1879, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. III OF 1879.

An Act to authorize the destruction of Useless Records.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the destruction or other disposal of useless records, books and papers in Courts and Revenue-offices ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called "The Destruction of Records Act, 1879" ; It extends to the whole of British India ; and it shall come into force at once.

2. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules respecting the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of such records, books and papers belonging to or being in the custody of such High Court, or the Courts of civil and criminal jurisdiction subordinate thereto, as the High Court may consider useless or unworthy of being permanently preserved.

So far as regards his own Court, the Court of Small Causes in Rangoon and the Courts of the Magistrates within the local limits of his ordinary civil jurisdiction, the Recorder of Rangoon shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a High Court.

3. Each of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay may from time to time make rules respecting the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of such records, books and papers belonging to or being in the custody of

(a) the local Court for the relief of Insolvent Debtors held under the provisions of the eleventh and twelfth of Victoria, chapter twenty-one,

(b) the local Administrator General ; as the High Court may consider useless or unworthy of being permanently preserved.

4. The Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority may from time to time make rules respecting the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of such records, books and papers belonging to or in the custody of the Revenue Courts and offices as it may consider useless or unworthy of being permanently preserved.

5. All rules made under this Act shall, after being confirmed by the Local Government and sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

6. All rules and orders heretofore made by a Local Government, a High Court or a Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority for the destruction or other disposal of useless records, books and papers belonging to or in the custody of any Court or Revenue-office shall be deemed to have had the force of law from the date on which they were made, and all such rules now in force shall continue to have the force of law until they are rescinded by rules made under this Act; and no

Bar of suits. suit or other proceeding shall be instituted, maintained or continued against any person for the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of any records, books or papers in accordance with any such rules or with any order made by a Local Government, High Court or Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority.

7. In this Act "Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority" means, in the Presidency of Fort St. George and the territories respectively under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces—the Board of Revenue: in the Presidency of Bombay, outside Sind and the limits of the town of Bombay—a Revenue Commissioner: in Sind—the Commissioner: in the Panjab—the Financial Commissioner; and elsewhere—the Local Government or such officer as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office.

8. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to authorize the destruction of any document which, under the provisions of any law for the time being in force, is to be kept and maintained.

9. The enactments specified in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column.

SCHEDULES.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Railways in India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Railways in India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Indian Railway Act, 1879."

Local extent. It extends to the whole of British India and, so far as regards subjects of Her Majesty the Empress of India, to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her said Majesty;

Commencement. And it shall come into force on the first day of July, 1879.

2. On and from that day, the Acts specified in the first schedule here-to annexed shall be repealed.

Repeal of Acts. All rules made, notifications published and powers conferred under any of such Acts, or any enactment thereby repealed, shall (so far as they are consistent herewith) be deemed to have been respectively made, published and conferred under this Act.

Nothing in the Carriers Act, 1865, shall apply to carriers by railway.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause. "Railway" means a railway for the public conveyance of passengers or goods.

It includes—

(a) all land within the fences or other boundary-marks prescribed under section fifty-two;

(b) all lines of rail, sidings or branches worked over for the purposes of, or in connection with, a Railway;

(c) all stations, offices, warehouses, fixed machinery and other works constructed for the purposes of, or in connection with, a Railway;

(d) all vessels and rafts used for the purpose of carrying on the traffic of a Railway.

In section four, "Railway" includes a railway under construction, and in the remaining part of this section and in the following sections (namely), six, eight, sixteen, twenty-five, thirty, thirty-three, thirty-four, forty to forty-six (both inclusive), fifty-two and fifty-three, "Railway" includes a Railway under construction and a Railway not used for the public conveyance of passengers or goods :

"Railway-administration" means in the case of a Railway worked by Government or a Native State, the Manager of such Railway, and in the case of a Railway worked by a Company or private individual, such Company or individual :

"Railway-servant" means any person employed by a Railway-Administration, to perform any function in connection with a Railway, and in section twenty-five, last clause, sections twenty-six, twenty-seven, thirty-eight, and forty-two includes any person employed to perform any such function by any other person in execution of a contract into which he has entered with a Railway-Administration.

4. It shall be lawful, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to use on every Railway locomotive engines or other motive power, and carriages and wagons to be drawn or propelled thereby.

CHAPTER II.

DUTIES OF THE RAILWAY-ADMINISTRATION.

5. No Railway or portion or extension of, or addition to, a Railway shall be opened for the public conveyance of passengers the Railway-Administration has given to Governor General in Council notice in writing the intention of opening the same and until an officer appointed by the Governor General in Council to inspect such Railway, portion, extension or addition has, after inspection thereof, reported in writing to the Governor General in Council that in his opinion the opening of the same would not be attended with danger to the public using the same.

6. Every Railway-Administration shall, within forty-eight hours after the occurrence upon the Railway of—

(a) any accident attended with loss of human life or serious injury to person or property,

(b) any accident of a description usually attended with such loss or injury, and

(c) any accident of any other description which the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, direct to be notified, give notice thereof to the Local Government; and the Station-master nearest to the place at which the accident occurs, or, where there is no Station-master, the officer in charge of the section of the Railway on which the accident occurs, shall without unnecessary delay give notice in writing or by telegraph of such accident to the nearest Magistrate and to the officer in charge of the Police-station in the jurisdiction of which the accident occurs or to such other Magistrate and Police-officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf.

7. Every Railway-Administration shall make up and deliver to the Governor General in Council a return of accidents occurring in the course of the public traffic upon the Railway, whether attended with personal injury or not, in such form and manner, and at such intervals of time, as the Governor General in Council from time to time directs.

8. Every Railway-Administration shall make general rules for the following purposes (that is to say) :

(a) for regulating the mode in which, and the speed at which, carriages and wagons used on the Railway are to be moved or propelled;

(b) for regulating the maximum number of passengers which each carriage and compartment may carry, and the mode in which such number shall be denoted thereon;

(c) for regulating the provision to be made for the accommodation and convenience of passengers;

(d) for declaring what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, dangerous goods; and

(e) generally for regulating the travelling upon, and the use, working and management of, the Railway; and may, from time to time, alter any such rules.

Any such rule may contain a provision that any person committing a breach of it shall be liable to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees, or, in default of payment of such fine, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to two months.

No such rule shall take effect unless it is consistent with this Act and until it has received the sanction of the Governor General in Council.

All rules made under this section shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall be otherwise notified to the Railway-servants and the public in such manner as the Governor General in Council, from time to time, directs.

The Governor General in Council may at any time cancel any such rule.

9. An abstract of this Act, and a copy of the Time-tables and Tariff of charges which may, from time to time, be published for any Railway by any Railway-Administration, shall be exhibited in some conspicuous place at each station of such Railway, so that they may be easily seen and read.

All such documents shall be so exhibited in English and in the principal vernacular language of the district in which the station is situate, and in such other language, if any, as the Governor General in Council may direct.

CHAPTER III.

CARRIAGE OF PROPERTY.

10. Every agreement purporting to limit the obligation or responsibility imposed on a carrier by Railway by the Indian Contract Act, 1872, sections 151 and 161, in the case of loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to, property shall, in so far as it purports to limit such obligation or responsibility, be void unless—

- (a) it is in writing signed by, or on behalf of, the person sending or delivering such property, and
(b) is otherwise in a form approved by the Governor General in Council.

11. When any property mentioned in the second

No liability for loss of gold, silver, &c., unless value declared and increased charge accepted. schedule hereto annexed is contained in any parcel or package delivered to a carrier by Railway, the carrier shall not be liable for loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to, such property, unless at the time of delivery the value and nature thereof have been declared by the person sending or delivering the same, and an increased charge for the safe conveyance of the same, or an engagement to pay such charge, has been accepted by some Railway-servant specially authorized in this behalf.

When any property of which the value and nature have been declared under this section has been lost, destroyed or damaged, or has deteriorated, the compensation recoverable for such loss, destruction, damage or deterioration shall not exceed the value so declared.

12. A carrier by Railway shall in no case be

No liability for un-booked luggage. answerable for loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to any passenger's luggage, unless a Railway-servant has booked and given a receipt for the same.

13. In any suit against a carrier by Railway for Plaintiffs not required to prove negligence. compensation for loss, destruction or deterioration or damage to, property delivered to a Railway-servant, it shall not be necessary for the plaintiff to prove in what manner such loss, destruction, deterioration or damage was caused.

14. If any person fails to pay on demand any sum

Lien for money due for carriage, &c., of property. due by him to a carrier by Railway for conveyance of any property by Railway, or for the custody of any property or for demurrage or wharfage in respect of the same, the Railway-Administration may detain the whole or any part of such property or, if the same have been removed from the Railway, any other property of such person then on such Railway or thereafter coming into the possession of the Railway-Administration;

and may also sell by public auction, in the case of perishable property at once, and in the case of other property on the expiration of at least fifteen days' notice thereof published in one or more of the local newspapers or, where there are no such newspapers, in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct, sufficient of such property to produce the sum payable as aforesaid, and all charges and expenses of such detention, notice and sale, or, if such person fails to remove from the Railway within a reasonable time any property so detained, the whole of such property;

and may, out of the proceeds of the sale, retain the sum so payable, together with all charges and expenses aforesaid, rendering the surplus, if any, of such proceeds, and so much of the property (if any) as remains unsold, to the person entitled thereto;

or such carrier may recover any such sum by suit.

15. The owner or person having the care of any

Written account of property to be given on demand. property which has been carried upon any Railway, or is brought into any station or warehouse for the purpose of being carried upon a Railway, shall, on demand by any Railway-servant appointed in this behalf by the Railway-Administration, deliver to him an exact account in writing signed by such owner or person of the quantity and description of such property.

16. No passenger shall take with him on a

Dangerous goods. railway, and no person shall deliver or tender for carriage upon any Railway, any dangerous luggage or goods without giving notice of their nature to a Railway-servant, or, in the case of luggage or goods delivered or tendered for carriage, distinctly marking their nature on the outside of the package containing the same.

Any Railway-servant may refuse to carry upon a Railway any luggage or parcel which he suspects to contain dangerous goods, and may require such luggage or parcel to be opened to ascertain the fact previously to carrying the same and in case any such luggage or parcel is received for the purpose of being carried upon a Railway, any Railway-servant may stop the transit thereof until he is satisfied as to the nature of its contents.

CHAPTER IV

CARRIAGE OF PASSENGERS.

17. Every person desirous of travelling on a

Passengers on payment of fares to be furnished with tickets. Railway shall, upon payment of his fare, be furnished with a ticket specifying in English and the principal vernacular language of the district in which the ticket is issued, the class of carriage for which, and the place from and place to which, the fare has been paid, and the amount of such fare;

and every passenger shall, when required, show

Tickets to be shown and given up on demand. his ticket to any Railway-servant duly authorized to examine the same, and shall deliver up such ticket upon demand to any Railway-servant duly authorized to collect tickets.

18. At the intermediate stations, the fares shall Fares and tickets at intermediate stations. be deemed to be accepted and the tickets furnished only upon condition that there be room in the train for which the tickets are furnished.

In case there is not room for all the passengers

Preferential right of ticket-holders. to whom tickets have been furnished, those who have obtained tickets for the longest distance shall have the preference; and those who have obtained tickets for the same distance shall have the preference according to the order in which they have received their tickets;

Provided that all officers and troops of Her

Proviso. Majesty on duty, and all other persons on the business of the Government who, by virtue of any contract with the Government or, in the case of a Railway worked by Government, of any direction of the Governor General in Council, are entitled to be conveyed on a Railway in preference to, or in priority over, the public, shall be entitled to such preference and priority without reference to the distance for which, or the order in which, they have received their tickets.

Any passenger to whom a ticket has been furnished at any station and for whom there is no room shall, on returning the ticket within a reasonable time after its issue, be entitled to have his fare at once refunded.

19. Except with the permission of the Railway-Administration or of such officer as it appoints in this behalf, no person shall enter any carriage used on any Railway for the purpose of travelling therein without having first paid his fare and obtained a ticket.

20. Any passenger found suffering from an infectious disease in a railway-carriage or in any place on a railway may, if his remaining in such carriage or place is likely to spread the infection of such disease, be removed from such carriage or place by any railway-servant ;

any passenger so removed who has paid his proper fare to or at the place at which he is so removed, shall be entitled, on returning his ticket, to have such fare refunded.

CHAPTER V.

OFFENCES AND PROCEDURE.

(A).—Offences by the Railway-Administration.

21. Any Railway-Administration opening, in contravention of section five, any Railway, or any portion or extension of, or addition to, a Railway, shall forfeit to Government the sum of one thousand rupees for every day during which the same continues open in contravention of that section.

22. Any Railway-Administration omitting to give notice as required by section six, shall forfeit to Government the sum of one hundred rupees for every day during which such omission continues.

23. Any Railway-Administration failing to deliver any return mentioned in section seven within fourteen days after the same ought to be delivered, or to make or notify any rules as required by section eight, or to exhibit any abstract copy mentioned in section nine in manner required by that section, shall forfeit to Government the sum of fifty rupees for every day during which such failure continues.

(B).—Offences by Railway-servants.

24. Any Station-master or other person omitting to give notice as required by section six, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

25. Any Railway-servant who is in a state of intoxication whilst actually employed upon a Railway in the discharge of any duty, or who negligently omits to perform his duty, or who performs the same in an improper manner, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees ;

or if the duty in any of the cases aforesaid be such that the negligent omission or improper performance thereof would be likely to endanger the safety of any person travelling or being upon such Railway, such servant shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both.

26. If any Railway-servant in the discharge of his duty endangers the safety of any person—

(a) by disobeying any general rule sanctioned and published and notified in the manner prescribed by section eight ; or

(b) by disobeying any rule or order not inconsistent with the general rules aforesaid, and which such servant was bound by the terms of his employment to obey, and of which he had notice ; or by any rash or negligent act or omission, he shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

27. Every Railway-servant shall be deemed a "public servant" within the meaning of sections 161, 162, 163, 164 and 165 of the Indian Penal Code.

In the definition of legal remuneration contained in the said section 161, the word "Government" shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to include any employer of a Railway-servant as such.

28. Any Railway-servant who compels or attempts to compel any passenger to enter a carriage or compartment containing the maximum number of passengers denoted thereon in accordance with a rule made and notified under section eight, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

(C).—Offences by Persons generally.

29. Any person required under section fifteen to give an account of the quantity and description of any property who neglects or refuses to give such account, or who wilfully gives a false account, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five rupees for every maund (of 3,200 tolahs) of such property ; and such fine shall be in addition to any charge to which such property may be liable.

30. Whoever, in contravention of section sixteen, takes with him any dangerous goods on a Railway, or delivers or tenders any such goods for the purpose of being carried upon a Railway, shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

31. Any passenger travelling on a railway without a proper ticket or having such a ticket and not showing or delivering up the same when so required under section seventeen, shall be liable to pay the fare of the class in which he is found travelling, from the place whence the train originally started, unless he can prove that he has travelled a less distance only, in which case he shall be liable to pay the fare of the class aforesaid only from the place whence he has travelled.

Every such fare shall, on application by a Railway-servant to a Magistrate, and on proof of the passenger's liability, be recoverable from such passenger as if it were a fine, and shall, when recovered, be paid to the Railway-Administration.

32. Any person who defrauds, or attempts to defraud, any carrier by Railway—
For evading payment of fare.

(a) by travelling, or attempting to travel, on any Railway without having previously paid his fare ;

(b) by riding or attempting to ride in or on a carriage, or by a train, of a higher class than that for which he has paid his fare ;

(c) by using or attempting to use a ticket on any day for which such ticket is not available ;

(d) by continuing his journey in or upon any carriage beyond the place to which he has paid his fare, without previously paying the fare for the additional distance ;

or who, in any other manner whatever, attempts to evade the payment of his fare, or who wilfully alters or defaces his ticket so as to render the date, number or other material portion thereof illegible, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and shall also be liable to pay the fare (if any) which he ought to have paid ; and such fare shall be recoverable in manner provided by section thirty-one and shall, when recovered, be paid to the Railway-Administration.

33. Any passenger who gets into or upon, or attempts to get into or upon, or quits, or attempts to quit, any carriage upon any Railway, while such carriage is in motion, shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees ;

and any passenger who rides, or attempts to ride, on the steps, or any other part of a carriage, upon any Railway, except on those parts which are intended for the accommodation of passengers, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

34. Any person who, without the permission of the Railway-Administration, rides or attempts to ride upon any locomotive-engine or tender upon any Railway ; or in or upon any vehicle not appropriated to the carriage of passengers, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

35. Any person who, without the consent of his fellow-passengers, if any, in the same compartment, smokes in or upon any Railway-carriage, except in a carriage or compartment specially provided for the purpose, shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees ;

and any person who persists in so smoking (except as aforesaid) after being warned by any Railway-servant to desist may, in addition to incurring the liability above-mentioned, be removed by any

Railway-servant from any such carriage, and from the premises of the Railway, and where he has paid his fare and obtained a ticket, shall forfeit such fare and ticket.

36. Any person who is in a state of intoxication, or who commits any nuisance or act of indecency in any Railway-carriage, or upon any part of any Railway ; or who wilfully and without lawful excuse interferes with the comfort of any passenger, or extinguishes any lamp in any Railway-carriage, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees ; and may be removed by any Railway-servant from any such carriage, and also from the premises of the Railway, and where he has paid his fare and obtained a ticket, shall forfeit such fare and ticket.

37. If any carriage, compartment, room or place be reserved by the Railway-Administration for the exclusive use of females, any male person who without lawful excuse enters such carriage, compartment, room or place knowing the same to be reserved as aforesaid, or remains therein after having been informed of its having been so reserved, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, and may be removed therefrom, and also from the premises of the Railway, by any Railway-servant, and, where he has paid his fare and obtained a ticket, shall forfeit such fare and ticket.

38. Whoever wilfully obstructs or impedes any Railway-servant in the discharge of his duty, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

39. Any passenger wilfully entering a carriage or compartment containing already full the maximum number of passengers which has been denoted thereon in accordance with a rule made and notified under section eight, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

40. Any person who without authority or reasonable excuse makes, alters, shows, hides, removes or extinguishes any signal or light upon any Railway, or upon any engine, carriage, wagon or other vehicle upon a Railway, or who negligently damages any engine, carriage, wagon or other vehicle belonging to a Railway, or any warehouse, building, machine, fence or other thing so belonging, or who needlessly interferes with the means of communication provided in any train between the guard and the engine-driver or passengers, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

41. Any person who unlawfully enters upon a Railway shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees ; and if any person so entering refuses to leave such Railway on being requested to do so by any Railway-servant, or by any other person on behalf of the Railway-Administration, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and may be immediately removed from such Railway by such servant or other person as aforesaid.

42. The owner or person in charge of any bulls, cows, bullocks, calves, elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids straying on any Railway provided with fences suitable for the exclusion of such animals, shall be punished with fine which may extend to ten rupees for each animal, in addition to any amount that may be recovered under the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871.

Whenever any such animals are wilfully and unlawfully driven, or knowingly and unlawfully permitted to be, on any Railway provided with fences suitable for the exclusion of such animals, and whenever any such animals are wilfully driven, or knowingly permitted to be, on any Railway not so provided, otherwise than for the purpose of lawfully crossing the Railway, or for any other lawful purpose, the person in charge of such animals, or if he cannot be identified, then the owner of the said animals, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees for each animal, in addition to any amount that may be recovered under the same Act.

All fines imposed under this section may, if the convicting Magistrate so direct, be recovered in manner provided by section twenty-five of the said Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, and may be appropriated in whole or in part in compensation for loss or damage proved to his satisfaction.

The expression "public road" in sections eleven and twenty-six of the same Act shall be deemed to include a Railway. And a Railway-servant may exercise the powers of seizure provided by the said section eleven.

43. Whoever knowing or having reason to believe that any engine or train is approaching along a Railway opens any gate which the Railway-Administration has set up on either side of the Railway across any road for the use or accommodation of any person, or passes or attempts to pass, or drives or takes, or attempts to drive or take, any vehicle, animal or other thing, across the Railway; and whoever at any time, in the absence of a gate-keeper, omits to shut and fasten such gate as soon as he and any vehicle, animal or other thing under his charge have passed through the same, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

44. Whenever any minor under twelve years of age unlawfully—

(a) places or throws, or attempts to place or throw, upon or across a Railway any wood, stone or other thing, or

(b) removes or displaces, or attempts to remove or displace, any rail, sleeper, spike, key or other thing belonging to the permanent way of a Railway, or

(c) throws or causes to fall, or attempts to throw or cause to fall, against, into or upon any engine, tender, carriage or other vehicle used upon a Railway, any wood, stone or other thing, such minor shall be deemed guilty of an offence, and the convicting Magistrate may, in his discretion, direct either that the minor, if a male, shall be punished with whipping, or that the father or guardian of the minor shall, within such reasonable time as the Magistrate may fix, execute a bond binding himself, in such penalty as the Magistrate may direct, to prevent the minor from repeating such offence.

The amount of such bond, if forfeited, shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.

Any person neglecting or refusing to execute a bond when required under this section so to do shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

45. Whoever wilfully does any act, or wilfully omits to do what he is legally bound to do, intending by such act or omission to endanger, or knowing that he is thereby likely to endanger, the safety of any person travelling or being upon any Railway, shall be punished with transportation (or in the case of an European or American, penal servitude) for a term of not less than seven years or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to ten years.

46. Whoever rashly or negligently does any act, or omits to do what he is legally bound to do, and such act or omission is likely to endanger the safety of any person travelling or being upon a Railway, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both.

47. Every driver or conductor of an omnibus, carriage or other vehicle shall, while in or upon any station-yard or other premises forming part of a Railway, obey the reasonable directions of any Railway-servant duly authorized in this behalf; and every person offending, under this section shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees.

(D).—Arrest of Offenders.

48. If any person commits any offence punishable under this Act and there is reason to believe that he will abscond or his name and address are unknown, and he refuses to give his name and address, or there is reason to believe that the name or address given by him is incorrect, any Railway-servant or Police-officer, or any other person whom such Railway-servant or Police-officer may call to his aid, may, without any warrant or written authority, arrest and detain such offender until he can be taken before a Magistrate or give sufficient security for his appearance before such Magistrate, or is otherwise discharged by due course of law.

49. Every person committing any offence mentioned in sections eight, twenty-five, twenty-six, thirty-six, thirty-seven, thirty-eight, forty-four, forty-five and forty-six may be arrested without any warrant or written authority by any Railway-servant or Police-officer, or by any other person whom such servant or officer may call to his aid ;

and every person so arrested shall, without unnecessary delay, be taken before a Magistrate authorized to punish him or to commit him for trial.

(E).—Jurisdiction.

50. No Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate and a Magistrate whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the second class shall try any offence under this Act.

Any person committing any offence against this Act or the rules made under it, shall be triable for such offence in any place in which he may be found or which the Local Government may, from time to time, notify in this behalf, as well as in any other place in which he might be tried under any law for the time being in force.

Every notification under this section shall be published in the local official Gazette and a copy thereof shall also be exhibited in some conspicuous place at each of such Railway-stations as the Local Government may direct, so that it may be easily seen and read.

(F).—Saving of other Criminal Laws.

51. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent any person from being arrested, prosecuted or punished under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it:

Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

CHAPTER VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

52. The Governor General in Council, or the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, from time to time, make rules requiring—

(a) that boundary-marks or fences be provided for any Railway or any part thereof, and for roads constructed in connection therewith ;

(b) that gates or bars be erected at places where any Railway crosses a road on the level ; and

(c) that persons be employed to open and shut such gates or bars ;

and may by such rules determine what kind of fences shall, for the purposes of section forty-two, be deemed to be suitable for the exclusion of cattle, and direct that any Railway-Administration wilfully neglecting or violating any rule made under this section, shall forfeit to Government a sum not exceeding five hundred rupees for every such neglect or violation, or, when such neglect or violation is continuous, for every day during which it continues.

53. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India, declare what Government or other Authority shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government in respect of the whole or any part of a Railway.

54. The Governor General in Council may, by notification, extend this Act or any portion thereof to any tramway worked by steam.

Endorsement by Government of Bengal, No. 4556, dated 29th November, 1878, and enclosures.

Fourth Note by the Hon'ble Whitley Stokes, dated 9th January, 1879.

Forms of instruments taken from a Bengali book of forms received from Mr. O'Kinealy.

amend the law relating to the Transfer of Property was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have the honour to present this further report.

2. The principal objections taken to this Bill in its second form are, first, that, as a whole, it is heterogeneous, and, secondly, that certain parts of it are neither necessary nor expedient. It is said, for instance, that, though the bulk of the Bill deals with transfer of property inter vivos by act of parties, it also treats, in sections 82, 83, of conditions in Wills, and, in section 129, of Succession to a deceased person. It is said, again, that the chapters dealing respectively with the rights and liabilities of owners of limited interests and with property held by several persons belong rather to the subject of the enjoyment, than to that of the transfer of property. It is urged that settlements (in the conveyancer's sense of the word) are hardly ever made in India, that what are technically called Powers are almost unknown, and that the chapters respectively dealing with those subjects are certainly not necessary and can hardly be said to be expedient. We feel the force of these objections. In fact, we have always felt them. But we were not responsible for the first draft of the Bill, whatever were its excellences or defects. The matters thus objected to, together with others, such as Registration and Trusts, still more foreign to the proper subject of the Bill, are all dealt with by the draft prepared by the late Indian Law Commission, which was sent out in 1870 by the then Secretary of State with instructions to introduce a Bill founded upon it, revised by Sir A. Hobhouse and sent home by the Government of India in January, 1877, i.e., nearly six months before the Bill was introduced and referred to a Select Committee. The great deference due to the Law Commission and to Sir A. Hobhouse has hitherto prevented us from dealing freely with the Bill. Until the opinions of the Local Governments and the results of local experience had been obtained, for us to have altered it would have been to set our individual views against those of the able and learned men who were answerable for the Bill as introduced. But now that the opinions and results above referred to have been obtained, we see that, if the Bill is to go on at all, it must be strictly confined to the subject of transfer of property by act of parties, that is to say, by contract or gift.

3. We have therefore omitted chapters VII to XII both inclusive.

4. We cannot maintain that they are in accordance with one of the canons laid down in our last report, namely, that no additions should be made to the existing law "which are not either necessary or clearly expedient." The chapters dealing respectively with settlements, the rights and liabilities of owners of limited interests, and property held by several persons, are, moreover, very incomplete; and, as Natives are excluded from chapter IX, it would apply to a very limited class of persons. Chapter XI (of Powers) would also be of little use. We believe that among Natives powers are almost unknown. So far as we are aware, the only reported cases in which anything like a power was given by a Native are in 2 Cal. 474, and N.-W. P. (1869) Part II, p. 6, in each of which cases a Hindú bequeathed land to his wife and expressly empowered her to alienate it, and in 5 Beng. 181, where a Hindú testator empowered his sister to appoint a trustee of a religious endowment. Moreover, powers may be created by will and are, as often as not, exercisable by will. The subject therefore does not properly fall within a measure treating of the transfer of property, that is, as lawyers generally understand the expression, the conveyance of property from one living person to another.

5. As the Bill is, so far as it deals with immoveable property and debts, only a partial measure, we have made the preamble run thus:—"Whereas it is expedient to define and amend certain parts of the law relating to the transfer of property by act of parties." Compare the preamble to the Indian Contract Act, IX of 1872.

CHAPTER I.—Preliminary.

6. In section 2, we have expressly saved all transfers by operation of law (e.g., in case of insolvency, forfeiture, sale in execution of a decree), with which the Bill is not intended to deal.

7. In section 3 we have omitted, as unnecessary, the definitions of "grantor," "grantee," and "grant;" and, for the last paragraph, we have said: "Chapters III, IV, V and VI of this Act shall be taken as part of the Indian Contract Act, 1872."

CHAPTER II.—Of Assurances of Immoveable Property.

8. This chapter should we think be entitled "Of Transfers of Immoveable Property," as it relates to all transfers of such property, whether or not an assurance is employed. We have omitted section 5 and the schedule to which it relates: they do not fitly form part of a Bill dealing with substantive law. Moreover, English experience shews that statutory forms of conveyances are rarely used, and they are dangerous, as tempting unskilled persons to try and be their own conveyancers.

9. Section 6 applies to transfers of immoveable property made by assurance; but it obviously ought to apply also to oral transfers of such property. We have therefore re-drawn it.

10. In section 7, we have provided for the case of a Sebit, which has twice come before the Judicial Committee. (See 14 Beng. 450, and L. L. R. 2 Cal. 341).

11. As rents and profits of land are 'immoveable property,' we have, after this section, inserted section 1 of Act XI of 1855:—

"No person shall be chargeable with any rents or profits of any immoveable property which he has in good faith paid or delivered to any person of whom he in good faith held the same, notwithstanding it may afterwards appear that the person to whom such payment or delivery was made had no right to receive such rents or profits."

This section now applies only to cases to which the English law is applicable; but there seems no reason why so equitable and useful a rule should not be extended to every one in India.

12. Section 8 of Bill No. III applies not only to cases where land has passed inter vivos by act of parties, but also to cases in which it has been transferred by operation of law. It therefore seems beyond the scope of the Bill.

13. The Bill is silent as to the doctrine of lis pendens, which has in about a dozen reported cases been applied to Native purchasers and mortgagees (see 11 Bom. 24, 29, 30, 139; 8 Beng. 174; 1 O'Kin. 303, 309; 10 W. R. 469; Sev. 808, 951). We have inserted the following:—

"10. During the active prosecution in any Court having authority in British India or established beyond the limits of British India by the Governor General in Council, of a suit in which the right to any immoveable property is directly and specifically in question, the property cannot be transferred by any party to the suit so as to affect the rights of any other party thereto under any decree or order made therein."

14. Section 9 of Bill No. III (as to the effect of payment by one person, of consideration for which a transfer is made to another) properly belongs to the Trusts Bill, and should, we think, be omitted from the present measure.

CHAPTER III.—Sales of Immoveable Property.

15. In accordance with a suggestion of Mr. Justice Cunningham we have prefixed to this chapter a section founded on section 78 of the Contract Act; but we do not think with him that the section should provide for part delivery, an expression which, in the sense in which it is used in the Contract Act, section 92, would be inappropriate as applied to land, nor do we consider that, in stating the time at which delivery takes place, the effect of executing and delivering the assurance should be ignored.

The section referred to is as follows :—

Sale how effected. “Sale of immoveable property is effected by offer and acceptance of certain immoveable property for a price, or of a price for certain immoveable property, “together with payment of the price and delivery of the property, or with tender, part-payment or earnest; or with an agreement, express or implied, that the payment, or delivery, or both, shall be postponed.

“Where there is a contract for the sale of immoveable property, the ownership of the property passes to the buyer when the whole or part of the price, or when the earnest, is paid, or when the property is delivered.

“If the parties agree, expressly or by implication, that the payment, or delivery, or both, shall be postponed, the ownership passes as soon as the proposal for sale is accepted.

“Delivery of immoveable property takes place—

“(a) if the transfer is made by assurance—when the assurance is executed and delivered by the seller, and (if its registration is required by law) registered :

“(b) if the transfer is not made by assurance, in the case of a reversion or other intangible thing—when the parties consent to its delivery, and in the case of other immoveable property—when the buyer becomes capable of exercising physical control over it and determines to exercise such control on his own behalf or on behalf of the person whom he represents.”

This will have the effect of settling a moot point of Hindú law, namely, whether change of possession is necessary to complete a sale of land, whether, in other words, the vendor must, at the time of sale, be in possession of the property sold (I. L. R. 1 Calc. 302 : I. L. R. 1 Bomb. 502 : N. W. P. 1871, p. 2 : contra 7 Bomb. A. C. J. 4 : 10 Bomb. 491). This question is answered in the negative by the Calcutta High Court and Mr. J. D. Mayne, a considerable authority on Hindú law.

16. We have omitted clauses (d) and (i) of section 11 (now 12). The former is, as Mr. Jacob points out, provided for by the Contract Act, section 39; the latter by section 10 of the same Act. On the other hand, we have restored clauses (c) and (f) of Bill No. I, modified as follows :—

“Till the ownership of the property passes to the buyer, the seller is entitled to the rents and profits thereof.

“When the ownership of the property has passed to the buyer, he must bear any loss arising from the destruction, injury or deterioration of the property not caused by the seller, and he is entitled to the benefit of any improvement in, or increase in value of, the property and to the rents and profits thereof.”

The latter clause corresponds with the provision of the Contract Act, section 86, as to goods.

17. We have recast and abridged section 10 (now 13) as follows :—

Disclosures required from seller and buyer. “The following omissions are fraudulent :—

“(a) an omission of the seller of immoveable property to disclose to the buyer any defect therein of which the seller is, and the buyer is not, aware, and which the buyer could not with ordinary care discover :

“(b) an omission of the buyer of immoveable property to disclose to the seller any fact as to the nature or extent of the seller's interest therein, of which the buyer is, and the seller is not, aware, and which increases the value of such interest.”

This will attract section 17, clause (5), of the Contract Act, which declares that “fraud” includes “any such omission as the law specially declares to be fraudulent.”

18. As the Bill is now strictly limited to transfers by act of parties, we have omitted section 13, as to the procedure where the buyer becomes insolvent before completion. For the same reason we have also omitted section 73, as to the procedure where, during the continuance of a lease, the lessee becomes insolvent.

19. Section 17 (now 18), as to joint purchases. We have added, as Mr. Field suggests : “In the absence of evidence as to the shares so advanced, such persons shall be presumed to be equally interested in the property.”

CHAPTER IV.—Of Exchanges.

20. As this chapter deals with moveable as well as immoveable property, we have placed it after the chapter on leases, and we have omitted the first paragraph of section 22, as the matter seems sufficiently provided for by Act IX of 1872, sections 64, 65, and Act I of 1867, sections 25, 37.

CHAPTER V.—Of Mortgages of Immoveable Property.

21. Section 27.—We fear that the abolition of equitable mortgages here proposed by the Law Commissioners would inconvenience the mercantile community. We have thought it better to say that a mortgage by deposit of title-deeds shall be deemed to create a charge on the property comprised therein and to insert the necessary clause in section 68 (now 63).

22. We have provided, in accordance with a suggestion of Mr. Field, that in the case of an usufructuary mortgage, the mortgagor may recover possession of the property, (1) where the mortgagee is authorized to pay himself from the rents and profits of the property the principal and interest of the mortgage-money—when such principal and interest are so paid; (2) where the mortgagee is authorized to pay himself from such rents and profits the interest of the mortgage-money—when the term (if any) of the mortgage expires and the mortgagor pays or tenders to the mortgagee, or deposits in such Court as last aforesaid, the principal of the mortgage-money."

23. Section 29 (now 24).—We have here declared the duty of a mortgagor to take all legal means to protect his rights in the mortgaged property (Macph. 112).

24. Section 31 (now 27).—This provided only for voluntary waste. We have now provided that the mortgagor is not liable for permissive waste.

25. Section 42 (now 39), clause (c).—We have added, in order to meet the case of patni tenures and saleable under-tenures, "and any arrears of rent in default of payment of which the property may be summarily sold."

We have provided that a mortgagee in possession ought to do such repairs as he can pay for out of the rents received after his interest is paid (see 9 W. R. 488).

We have omitted clause (c). The right which it gives is, as Mr. Field says, part of the mortgagee's right to take possession, which, as a general rule, finds no place in the Bill.

Where sufficient tender is made, the mortgagee in possession is thenceforth accountable for all his receipts from the mortgaged property (9 N.-W. P. 1; Macph. 159—160). We have provided for this.

26. Section 60 (now 57).—When a mortgagor obtains a decree in a redemption-suit and fails to pay the amount due, we think the mortgagee should be entitled either to a foreclosure or a sale. We have altered the section accordingly.

27. Section 61 (now 58).—We have omitted the second paragraph and the schedule to which it refers. It is hardly the function of a Bill codifying substantive law to give forms of decrees. They should, if necessary, be added to schedule IV of the Code of Civil Procedure.

CHAPTER VI.—Of Leases.

28. Section 70 (now 66).—We have substituted a section analogous to that above proposed as a substitute for section 10.

29. Section 71 (now 65).—We have struck out clauses (c) and (g). The former is superfluous, the latter is provided for by the Contract Act, sections 64 and 73.

Clause (f) now (j).—With reference to Couch, C. J.'s, decision in Kogler v. Fule, 5 Beng. 401, 116, we think this clause should run thus: "The lessee may use the property leased and its products (if any) as a reasonable owner would use them, but he must not use the property for a purpose other than that for which it was leased, or fell timber, open mines or quarries, or commit any other act which is destructive or permanently injurious thereto." We have added "The prohibition in this clause does not apply to mines which were open when the lease was granted."—See 8 Chan. Div. 526.

Clause (g) now (o).—We have inserted words in the proviso to shew that the lessor's transferee is not entitled to arrears of rent due before the transfer.

Clause (e) now (p).—We have made (in accordance with a suggestion of the Government of the North-Western Provinces) the second paragraph to run thus: "Nothing in this clause shall be deemed to authorize a tenant having a right of occupancy, the farmer of an estate in respect of which default has been made in paying revenue, and the lessee of an estate under the management of a Court of Wards, to assign his interest as such tenant, farmer or lessee."

30. Section 76 (now 70).—We have completed the list of events on which a lease determines.

31. We have redrawn the clause as to waiver of forfeiture and notice. It is now numbered 71, 72.

32. We have inserted a section (74) as to the effect of surrender and forfeiture of a lease, on sub-lessees.

33. We have made some other comparatively unimportant omissions, additions and alterations in wording and arrangement. We have added on the margins references to the reported decisions of the Indian Courts and the Judicial Committee, which justify the rules contained in the Bill. It will be seen that but few of these rules are devoid of this valuable support. The assertion that the Bill would introduce a mass of new law into India must therefore be due to ignorance of the extent to which English law (under the name of justice, equity and good conscience) is actually administered to the Natives by the Anglo-Indian Courts. The object of the Bill, like that of all our Codes, is to strip our own law of all that is local and historical, and to mould the residue into a shape in which it would be suitable for an Indian population and could be easily administered by non-professional Judges. But the Bill will introduce hardly any new substantive law, and it will not (except in the case of the procedure relating to mortgages) displace any existing enactment. The rules, for instance, as to the relation of landlord and tenant contained in the local Acts, X of 1859, XVIII of 1873, XIX of 1868, XXVIII of 1868, Bengal Act VIII of 1869, and Madras Act VIII of 1865, will all remain untouched.

34. To the body of local usages and contractual incidents which in India, as in other countries, exists as to the transfer of land the tenderest care is shewn by the Bill. Not only is local usage expressly saved in sections 62, 65 and 68, but the effect of section 1, clause (a), will be to maintain intact the statutory force which the legislature has given to local usage in those two pays de coutumes the Panjáb and Oudh; and throughout India all the many incidents of a mortgage or a lease, which are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Bill, will remain wholly unaffected.

35. The Bill and preliminary report of the Select Committee have been published in English in the Presidency-towns, the Panjáb, the Central Provinces and British Burma. From the North-Western Provinces no report of publication has been received. Publication of the Bill and Report in the vernacular has been reported only by the Government of Bengal. We recommend that the Bill as now altered be published in the Gazette of India and sent to the various Local Governments for opinion. And we think that no further steps should be taken upon the Bill until it has been reported on by the new Indian Law Commission.

WHITLEY STOKES.

F. R. COCKERELL.

CALCUTTA;
The 19th February, 1879. }

I concur in all the omissions and amendments made by the Committee and in their final recommendation; but I believe the Bill to be capable of further simplification, and regret to notice the almost entire absence of illustrations.

T. H. THORNTON.

I have not had time to consider either the provisions of the Bill or the changes now made thoroughly; but I agree that the chapters on Powers, Settlements, &c., should be omitted, and think these omissions necessitate republication with a view to elicit fresh criticism to be laid before the new Commission.

I would modify the new section 11 by requiring a written instrument in all cases where the value of the property sold is Rs. 100 or upwards. This will involve registration and get rid of the inconvenience and anomaly which would arise from oral sales of valuable land with deferred possession and no registration. Subject to the above remarks, I approve of the additions now made to the Bill.

G. H. P. EVANS.

I concur in all the omissions and agree that there should be a further publication.

G. C. PAUL.

I am opposed to the republication of this Bill at the present time. I believe that there is a great deal still left in the Bill which it will be desirable to omit, as relating to matters on which legislation is not called for; and I think that there should be no further publication until the Law Commission have reported on the measure.

A. J. ARBUTHNOT.

I am inclined to think that there can be no harm in republishing the Bill in its present form (though I must say that I believe it admits of further improvement), inasmuch as the republication will elicit public criticisms which may be of some use to the Law Commission.

SCHEDULE—Repeal of Enactments.

No. III.

A Bill to amend the law relating to the Transfer of Property by act of Parties.

WHEREAS it is expedient to define and amend certain parts of the law relating to the transfer of property by act of parties; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Bill, s. 1:
Bill II, s. 1.

1. This Act may be called "The Transfer of Property Act, 1879."

Extent. It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement. And it shall come into force on the first day of January, 1880.

Bill, s. 2
Bill II, s. 1.

2. On and from that day the enactments specified in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column thereof. But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect—

Act IX of 1872, s. 1.

(a) the provisions of any enactment not hereby expressly repealed:

(b) any incidents of any contract which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act:

(c) any right or liability acquired or incurred before this Act comes into force, or any remedy in respect of any such right or liability:

(d) the right to anything affixed to the soil by the lessee under any lease granted before this Act comes into force:

4 Beng. A. C. 219.

(e) any right of pre-emption acquired after this Act comes into force:

1. L. R., 2 Bom. 541.

(f) any transfer by operation of law.

Bill, s. 3:
Bill II, s. 1:
Report, s. 2:

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

Act III of 1877, s. 17, cl. (b).

"assurance" means any non-testamentary instrument which purports or operates to create, transfer, or otherwise dispose of, whether in present or in future, any right, title or interest, whether vested or contingent, to or in immoveable property:

"registered" means registered in British India under the law for the time being in force regulating the registration of documents:

"attached to the earth" means—

"attached to the earth." (a) imbedded in the earth, as in the case of walls:

Sec. 18, 44, clause (a), 61.

(b) permanently resting upon it, as in the case of buildings; or

(c) attached to what is so imbedded or so rests, as by means of nails, bolts, screws, cement, solder or other permanent fastening.

4. Chapters III, IV, V and VI of this Act shall be construed as one with the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

Chapters III, IV, V and VI to be part of Act IX of 1872.

CHAPTER II.

OF TRANSFERS OF IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY.

5. Every person competent to contract may make a transfer of immoveable property: but subject to the law for the time being in force as to the circumstances and extent in and to which he may dispose of such property.

6. Unless a different intention is expressed or necessarily implied, a transfer of immoveable property vests in the transferee all the interest which the transferor is then capable of passing therein and in the legal incidents thereof.

Such incidents include (where the property is land) the easements annexed thereto, the mines and minerals thereunder, and the standing trees, and all other products of the soil, and (where the property is machinery attached to the earth) the moveable parts thereof, and (where the property is a house) the easements annexed thereto and its locks, keys, bars, doors, windows, pankhas, half-doors, mats and blinds.

7. The transferor of immoveable property cannot give to another a title thereto better than his own, and where he has only a restricted power of alienating the property, he cannot give to another a title thereto valid as against third parties, except upon an alienation within the restriction:

Provided that where the transferor is (a) the manager of the property of a minor, an undivided family, or an endowed temple, (b) a sonless Hindu widow in possession of her deceased husband's property, or (c) a trustee, benamidar or other ostensible owner, the transferee's title shall not be impeached if the transfer has been made for a consideration and the transferee has acted in good faith and used due care and diligence to ascertain that the transferor had power to make the transfer.

8. No person shall be chargeable with any rents or profits of any immoveable property which he has in good faith paid or delivered to any person of whom he in good faith held the same, notwithstanding it may afterwards appear that the person to whom such payment or delivery was made had no right to receive such rents or profits.

13, 76 : 9. Where undivided immoveable property is held in possession by co-owners and one of them transfers his share or any interest therein, the transferee takes the share or interest subject to the right of the other co-owners to enforce a partition of the property; and when such partition is effected, the right of the transferee as such, in the absence of a contract to the contrary by the co-owners, extends only to the share allotted to himself or to his transferor.

178 : 10. During the active prosecution in any Court having authority in British India, or established beyond the limits of British India by the Governor General in Council, of a suit in which the right to any immoveable property is directly and specifically in question, the property cannot be transferred by any party to the suit so as to affect the rights of any other party thereto under any decree or order therein.

CHAPTER III.

OF SALES OF IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY.

not necessary in case of sale, 14 Beng. Bom. 5, 19. 11. Sale of immoveable property is effected by offer and acceptance of certain immoveable property for a price, or of a price for certain immoveable property, together with payment of the price and delivery of the property, or with tender, part-payment or earnest; or with an agreement, express or implied, that the payment, or delivery, or both, shall be postponed. Where there is a contract for the sale of immoveable property, the ownership of the property passes to the buyer when the whole or part of the price, or when the earnest, is paid, or when the property is delivered.

If the parties agree, expressly or by implication, that the payment, or delivery, or both, shall be postponed, the ownership passes as soon as the proposal for sale is accepted.

Delivery of immoveable property takes place—

(a) if the transfer is made by assurance—when the assurance is executed and delivered by the seller, and (if its registration is required by law) registered:

(b) if the transfer is not made by assurance, in the case of a reversion or other intangible thing—when the parties consent to the delivery, and in the case of other immoveable property—when the buyer becomes capable of exercising physical control over it and determines to exercise such control on his own behalf or on behalf of the person whom he represents.

12. In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the buyer and the seller of immoveable property respectively have the rights, and are subject to the liabilities, mentioned in the ten rules next following, or such of them as are applicable to the property sold:

(a). The seller must produce to the buyer, Dowl Ghelā v. Jivraj Mukundān, Hon. 432 (in right to have good title al. 11). Abstract of title, Bom. 78. for examination, all documents of title relating to the property which are in his possession or power, and must inform the buyer of all facts not apparent thereon of which the seller is aware and which affect the seller's power to fulfil his contract, and must answer to the best of his information all relevant questions put to him by the buyer in respect to the property or the title thereto.

(b). Till the ownership of the property passes to the buyer, the seller is entitled the rents and profits thereof. Bill, 11 (c).

(c). When the ownership of the property has passed to the buyer, he must bear any loss arising from the destruction, injury or decrease in value of the property not caused by the seller, and he is entitled to the benefit of any improvement in, or increase in value of, the property, and to the rents and profits thereof. Act IX of 187 s. 86. Bill, 11 (c).

(d). When the buyer has been let into possession of the property before payment of the whole of the purchase-money, the seller has a charge upon the property for the amount of the purchase-money, or any part thereof, remaining unpaid, and for interest on such amount or part; but as soon as the assurance, if any, is registered, such charge shall cease except as against the buyer. 3 Bom. A. C. J. 102 2 May 577.

(e). Unless the buyer has improperly declined to accept delivery of the property, he has, against the seller, a charge on the property, to the extent of the seller's interest therein, for the amount of any purchase-money properly paid by the buyer in anticipation of the delivery, and for interest on the amount of such payment; and, when the buyer properly declines to accept the delivery, also for the earnest (if any) and for his costs (if any) of a suit by himself or the seller to compel specific performance of the contract or to obtain a decree for its rescission. 3 Beng. O. C. J. 71.

(f). When the buyer has been let into beneficial possession of the property before payment of the price, and the price is not paid owing to defects in the seller's title, the buyer is not liable to pay for such possession.

(g). The seller must discharge all incumbrances on the property existing at the date of the contract. The buyer may retain, out of the unpaid purchase-money, the amount of such incumbrances, and shall pay the amount so retained to the parties entitled thereto.

(h). On payment or tender of the amount due in respect of the price, the seller is bound to execute a proper assurance of the property when the buyer tenders it to him for execution at a proper time and place.

(i). On delivery of the property, the buyer is entitled to all documents of title relating thereto which are in the seller's possession or power:

Provided that (1) where the seller retains any part of the property comprised in such documents, he is entitled to retain them all, and (2) where the whole of such property is sold to different buyers, the buyer of the lot of greatest value is entitled to such documents. But in case (1) the seller, and in case (2) the buyer of the lot of greatest value, is bound, upon every reasonable request by the buyer, or by any of the other buyers, as the case may be, or by any person claiming under him, and at the cost of the person making the request, to produce the said documents and furnish such true copies thereof as he may require; and, in the meantime, the seller or the buyer, as the case may be, of the lot of greatest value, must keep the said documents safe, uncanceled and undefaced, unless prevented from so doing by fire or other inevitable accident.

CHAPTER IV.

OF MORTGAGES OF IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY AND CHARGES.

Rights and Liabilities of Mortgagor.

21. When, for the purpose of securing money advanced or to be advanced by way of loan or an existing or future debt, or the performance of an engagement, one person transfers to another a right over specific immoveable property, the transfer is called a mortgage of immoveable property, the transferor is called a mortgagor, the transferee a mortgagee, the money of which payment is secured is called the mortgage-money, and the assurance by which the transfer is effected is called a mortgage-deed.

For the purposes of this chapter, any person entitled as heir, legatee, assignee, lessee or otherwise than as a mortgagee to the interest of the transferor in the property subject to the mortgage, or any part of such interest, is a mortgagor; and any person entitled as heir, legatee, assignee or otherwise to the interest of the transferee under the mortgage, or any part thereof, is a mort-

Where the mortgagor transfers the property to the mortgagee with a proviso that, upon payment of the mortgage-money at a certain date, the property shall be retransferred, the transaction is called a mortgage in the English form.

Where the mortgagor delivers possession of the property to the mortgagee, and authorizes him to retain such possession and to pay himself from the rents and profits of the property the interest, or the mortgage-money and interest, or to take such rents and profits in lieu of interest, or of the mortgage-money and interest, the transaction is called an usufructuary mortgage.

Where the mortgagor binds himself personally to pay the mortgage-money, and pledges the property as collateral security for the repayment, but does not contract that, on default of payment of the mortgage-money and interest at a certain date, the property shall pass to the mortgagee, the transaction is called a simple mortgage.

Where the mortgagor not so binding himself, contracts that, on default of payment of the mortgage-money and interest at a certain date, the property shall pass to the mortgagee, the transaction is called a mortgage by conditional sale.

22. A mortgage can be effected only by assurance signed by the mortgagor and attested by at least two witnesses.

Right of mortgagor to redeem, tender or deposit.
23. A mortgagor has the following rights as against the mortgagee:—

(a) at any time after the mortgage-money has become payable, or has been paid, the mortgagor has a right on payment or tender, at a proper time and place, of the mortgage-money and interest remaining due on the mortgage, to require the mortgagee to re-transfer the mortgaged property to him, or to execute an acknowledgment in writing that any right in derogation of his ownership or other interest transferred to the mortgagee has been extinguished:

Provided that the mortgagee has not obtained an order absolute foreclosing such right, or that such right has not been after the date of the mortgage released or otherwise extinguished, or that the property has not been duly sold in pursuance of a decree or under a power given by the mortgage-deed.

The right conferred by this clause is called a right to redeem and a suit to enforce it is called a suit for redemption:

(b) at any time after the mortgage-money has become payable and before such suit is barred, the mortgagor may deposit in any Court in which he might have instituted a suit for redemption of the mortgaged property, to the account of the mortgagee, the mortgage-money and interest remaining due on the mortgage:

(c) in the case of an usufructuary mortgage, he may recover possession of the property (1) where the mortgagee is authorized to pay himself from the rents and profits of the property the mortgage-money and interest thereof,—when such money and interest are so paid, (2) where the mortgagee is authorized to pay himself from such rents and profits the interest of the mortgage-money,—when the term (if any) of the mortgage expires and the mortgagor pays or tenders to the mortgagee the mortgage-money, or deposits it in such Court as last aforesaid.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize a person interested in part only of the mortgaged property to institute a suit for the redemption of his own part only, on payment of a proportionate part of the amount remaining due on the mortgage, except where there is but one mortgagee and the mortgagor's interest in part of the property becomes vested in such mortgagee, in which case the person so interested may institute such suit.

24. In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the mortgagor shall be deemed to contract with the mortgagee, first, that the mortgagor has power to grant the mortgaged property to the mortgagee, free from incumbrances;

secondly, that the mortgagor will take all legal means to protect his rights in the property:

thirdly, that the mortgagor and every person claiming any interest in the property will on demand (at the cost, until foreclosure or sale, of the mortgagor and afterwards of the person requiring the same) execute every such assurance of the same that may reasonably be required;

and, where the property is leasehold, fourthly, that the lease is valid and subsisting, that the rent reserved thereby, the conditions contained therein, and the contracts binding on the lessee have been paid, performed and observed down to the execution of the mortgage-deed; and that the mortgagor will, so long as the security exists, pay the rent reserved by the lease, perform the conditions contained therein and observe the contracts binding on the lessee and indemnify the mortgagee against all claims sustained by reason of the non-payment of the said rent or the non-performance or non-observance of the said conditions and contracts.

10 Bomb. 360; 11 Bomb. 32. 25. If after the date of the mortgage any accession is made to the mortgaged property, the mortgagor, upon redemption, shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, and subject to the law relating to alluvion for the time being in force, be entitled to such accession.

Illustration.

10 Bomb. 369, 371, and see N.-W. P. 1866, p. 281. A mortgages to B a field the trees on which are the property of Government. B enters into possession of the field and as occupant thereof buys the trees. A redeems the field. He is entitled to the trees.

Bill II, s. 30. 26. Where the mortgaged property is a lease for a term of years, and the mortgagee, while in possession of the property, obtains a renewal of the lease, the mortgagor, upon redemption, shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, have the benefit of the new lease.

Bill II, s. 31. 27. A mortgagor in possession of the mortgaged property is not liable to the mortgagee for allowing the property to deteriorate; but he must not commit any act which is destructive or permanently injurious thereto, if the security is insufficient or will be rendered insufficient by such act.

Explanation.—A security is insufficient within the meaning of this section unless the value of the mortgaged property exceeds by one-third, or, if consisting of buildings, exceeds by one-half, the amount for the time being due on the mortgage.

Bill II, s. 32. 28. A mortgagor proposing to make a second or other subsequent mortgage of the mortgaged property shall, before effecting the mortgage, give the second or other subsequent mortgagee notice in writing under his hand of the prior mortgage or mortgages, and a mortgagor effecting a second or other subsequent mortgage of the mortgaged property shall, as soon as may be, give the prior mortgagee or mortgagees like notice of such mortgage.

A mortgagor failing to give any notice required by this section shall, when the accounts are taken in pursuance of a decree made under this chapter, be debited with the loss, if any, occasioned by such failure, in addition to any other liability resulting therefrom.

29. If the owner of two or more properties creates separate mortgages on them by separate assurances, each mortgage may be dealt with irrespectively of the other, though the mortgages are created in favour of the same mortgagee.

Illustration.

A, the owner of farms Z and Y, mortgages Z to B for Rs. 1,000. A afterwards mortgages Y to B for Rs. 1,000, making no stipulation as to any additions charge on Z. A may institute a suit for the redemption of the mortgage on Z alone.

Rights and Liabilities of Mortgagee.

30. In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the mortgagee may, at any time after the mortgage-money has become payable to him, and before a decree has been made for the redemption of the mortgaged property, or the mortgage-money has been paid, institute against the mortgagor (1) a suit for a declaration that he has lost his right to redeem the property, or (2) a suit for a sale of the property.

A suit for a declaration that a mortgagor has lost his right to redeem the mortgaged property is called a suit for foreclosure.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed—

(a) to authorize a simple mortgagee to institute a suit for foreclosure, or an usufructuary mortgagee to institute a suit for foreclosure or sale, or a conditional mortgagee to institute a suit for sale;

(b) to authorize a mortgagor who has become a trustee of the mortgaged property or legal representative of the mortgagee, to institute a suit for foreclosure;

(c) to authorize the mortgagee of a railway, canal or other work in the maintenance of which the public are interested, to institute a suit for foreclosure or sale; or

(d) to authorize a person interested in part only of the mortgage-money to institute a suit relating only to a corresponding part of the mortgaged property; but he may institute any suit which, under this Act, he is authorized to institute, relating to the whole of the mortgaged property, making the other mortgagees, if they cannot or will not join as plaintiffs, defendants.

31. When the mortgagor deposits money in Court under section twenty-three, and pays the fee leviable for the service next hereinafter mentioned, the Court shall forthwith cause written notice of the deposit to be served on the mortgagee, and the mortgagee may, on depositing the mortgage-deed in the same Court and on filing a written statement (verified in manner prescribed by law for the verification of plaints) of the amount then due on the mortgage, apply for and receive in payment of such amount the money so deposited.

32. Where the mortgagor and mortgagee have contracted as to the payment of interest on the mortgage-money, interest shall be payable in accordance with such contract.

Where no such contract has been entered into, the mortgagee is entitled to interest on such money at the rate of six per cent. per annum :

Provided that, when the mortgagor has tendered or deposited in Court under section twenty-three, the amount for the time being due on the mortgage, interest on the mortgage-money shall cease from the date of the tender or from the earliest time when the mortgagee could take such amount out of Court, as the case may be.

33. In the absence of a contract to the contrary, no mortgagee shall be entitled as such to take possession of the mortgaged property; but at any time after the expiration of one year from the time when the mortgage money has become payable according to the terms of the mortgage-deed, or after any interest thereon has been in arrear for six months, he may institute a suit for the appointment of a receiver of the rents and profits of the whole or any part of the mortgaged property.

In any suit for foreclosure or sale, the Court may, if it think fit, appoint such a receiver pending the proceedings in the suit, unless the mortgagee is already in possession of the mortgaged property.

34. The mortgagee may sue the mortgagor for the mortgage-money in the following cases only :—

(a) where the mortgagor expressly binds himself to repay the same :

(b) where the mortgagor remains in possession of the mortgaged property and fails to pay arrears of revenue or rent due in respect thereof, and the property is consequently sold or attached :

(c) where the property is destroyed by diluvion, fire or other superior force :

(d) where the mortgagee is deprived of his security by the wrongful act or default of the mortgagor :

(e) in the case of an usufructuary mortgage, where the rents and profits of the property are to be taken in lieu of interest only, or where the mortgagor fails to deliver to the mortgagee possession of the property or to secure the possession thereof to him without disturbance by the mortgagor or any other person.

35. A power conferred by the mortgage-deed on the mortgagee, or on any person on his behalf, to sell or concur in selling the mortgaged property, or any part thereof, is invalid, except where the mortgagee is the Secretary of State for India in Council, or the mortgaged property is situate within the towns of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Karachi or Rangoon.

Act No. XXVIII of 1866, section 6, is repealed so far as it is inconsistent with this section.

36. If, at the date of the mortgage, the mortgaged property is insured against loss or damage by fire, the mortgagee, in case of such loss or damage, may, in the absence of an express contract to the contrary, require any money which the mortgagor actually receives under the policy, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be laid out in reinstating the property.

37. If, after the date of the mortgage, any accession is made to the mortgaged property, the mortgagee, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, and subject to the law relating to alluvion for the time being in force, shall, for the purposes of the security, be entitled to such accession.

Illustrations.

(a) A mortgages to B a certain field bordering on a river. The field is increased by alluvion. For the purposes of his security, B is entitled to the increase.

(b) A mortgages a certain plot of building-land to B and afterwards erects a house on the plot. For the purposes of his security, B is entitled to the house as well as the plot.

38. When the mortgaged property is a lease for a term of years, and the mortgagor while in possession of the property, obtains a renewal of the lease, the mortgagee, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, shall, for the purposes of the security, be entitled to the new lease.

39. When, during the continuance of the mortgage, the mortgagee takes possession of the mortgaged property, he has the following rights and liabilities :—

(a) he shall manage the property as a person of ordinary prudence would manage it if it were his own ;

(b) he shall use his best endeavours to collect the rents and profits thereof ;

(c) he shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, out of the income of the property pay the Government revenue, all other charges of a public nature accruing due in respect thereof during such possession and any arrears of rent in default of payment of which the property may be summarily sold ;

(d) he shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, make such necessary repairs of the property as he can pay for out of the rents and profits thereof after deducting from such rents and profits the payments mentioned in clause (c) and the interest on the mortgage-money ;

(e) he may spend such money as is necessary (1) for the due management of the property and the collection of the rents and profits thereof, (2) for its preservation from destruction, forfeiture or sale, (3) for supporting the mortgagor's title to the property, (4) for making his own title thereto good against the mortgagor, and (5), when the mortgaged property is a renewable leasehold, for the renewal of the lease ; and may, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, add such money to the mortgage-money, at the same rate of interest ;

(f) where the property is by its nature insurable at ordinary rates, he may, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, insure and keep insured against loss or damage by fire the whole or any part of such property, and add the premiums paid for any such insurance to the mortgage-money at the same rate of interest; and, in case of such loss or damage, shall apply any money which he may actually receive under the policy, or so much thereof as may be necessary, in reinstating the property;

(g) he shall keep clear, full and accurate accounts of all sums received and spent by him as mortgagee and, at any time during the continuance of the mortgage, give the mortgagor, at his request and cost, true copies of such accounts and of the vouchers by which they are supported;

(h) his receipts from the mortgage property, or, where such property is personally occupied by him, a fair occupation-rent in respect thereof, shall, after deducting the expenses mentioned in clauses (c), (d), (e) and (f), and interest thereon, be debited against him in reduction of the amount (if any) from time to time due to him on account of interest on the mortgage-money and, so far as such receipts exceed any interest due, in reduction or discharge of the mortgage money. The surplus, if any, shall be paid to the mortgagor;

(i) when the mortgagor tenders, or deposits in court under section twenty-three, the amount for the time being due on the mortgage, the mortgagee must, notwithstanding the provisions in the other clauses of this section, account for his gross receipts from the mortgaged property from the date of the tender or from the earliest time when he could take such amount out of court, as the case may be.

If the mortgagee fail to perform any of the duties imposed upon him by this section, he may, when accounts are taken in pursuance of a decree made under this chapter, be debited with the loss, if any, occasioned by such failure.

40. Nothing in section thirty-nine, clauses (g) and (h), applies to cases where there is a contract in writing between the mortgagee and the mortgagor that the receipts from the mortgaged property after deducting the said expenses, shall, so long as the mortgagee is in possession of the property, be taken in lieu of interest on the mortgage money.

41. A mortgagee in possession of the mortgaged property must not commit any act which is destructive or permanently injurious thereto.

42. When a mortgagor in possession of the mortgaged property fails to pay arrears of revenue or rent due in respect thereof, and the property is consequently sold, the mortgagee has a charge on the surplus, if any, of the proceeds, after payment thereout of the said arrears, for the amount remaining due on the mortgage.

43. Any second or other subsequent mortgagee may, at any time before a sale of the mortgaged property has taken place under this chapter, tender to the next prior mortgagee the amount due to him on account of his mortgage. Such mortgagee is bound to accept such tender and to give a receipt for the sum due, and on such receipt being registered, the person making the tender shall acquire, in respect of the property, all the rights and powers of the mortgagee, as such, to whom he has made such tender.

Priority.

44. Where, through the fraud or gross neglect of a prior mortgagee, another person has been induced to advance money on the security of the mortgaged property, the prior mortgagee shall be postponed to the subsequent mortgagee.

45. If a mortgage made to secure the balance of a running account expresses the maximum to be secured thereby, a subsequent mortgage on the same property shall, if made with notice of the prior mortgage, or if the instrument effecting the prior mortgage is registered, be postponed to the prior mortgage in respect of all advances or debits not exceeding the maximum, though made or allowed with notice of the subsequent mortgage.

Illustration.

A mortgages Sultānpur to his bankers, B & Co., to secure the balance of his account with them to the extent of Rs. 10,000. A then mortgages Sultānpur to C, to secure Rs. 10,000; and C gives notice thereof to B & Co. At the date of the second mortgage, the balance due to B & Co. does not exceed Rs. 5,000. B & Co. subsequently advance to A sums making the balance of the account against him exceed the sum of Rs. 10,000. B & Co. are entitled, to the extent of Rs. 10,000, to priority over C.

46. No mortgagee paying off a prior mortgage, whether with or without notice of an intermediate mortgage, shall thereby acquire any priority in respect of his original security. And, except in the case provided for by section forty-five, no mortgagee making a subsequent advance to the mortgagor, whether with or without notice of an intermediate mortgage, shall thereby acquire any priority in respect of his security for such subsequent advance.

Marshalling and Contribution.

47. If the owner of two properties mortgages them both to one person and then mortgages one of the properties to another person who has not notice of the former mortgage, the second mortgagee is entitled to have the debt of the first mortgagee satisfied out of the property not mortgaged to the second mortgagee, so far as such property will extend; but not so as to prejudice the rights of the first mortgagee or of any other person having an incumbrance on either property.

48. Where several properties, whether of one or several owners, are mortgaged to secure one debt, the several properties shall contribute rateably to the debt secured by the mortgage, after deducting from the value of each property the amount of any other incumbrance to which it is subject.

Where of two properties belonging to the same owner, one is mortgaged to secure one debt, and then both are mortgaged to secure another debt, and the former debt is paid out of the former property, each property shall contribute rateably to the latter debt, after deducting the amount of the Subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, section 437, all persons having an interest either in the right of redemption or in the security ought to be joined as parties to any suit under this chapter, and the first or any subsequent mortgagee who institutes a suit for foreclosure or sale ought to make every mortgagee and other incumbrancer whose security is subsequent to his own, a party to the suit.

Foreclosure and Sale.

50. In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree, ordering that an account be taken of what will be due to the plaintiff for principal and interest on the mortgage and for his costs of the suit, on the day next hereinafter referred to, or declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree, and ordering that, upon the defendant paying to the plaintiff or into court the amount so due, on a day within six months from the date of declaring in court the amount so due, to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall deliver up to the defendant, or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall transfer the mortgaged property to the defendant free from all incumbrances created by the plaintiff or any person claiming under him, or, where the plaintiff claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims; and shall, if necessary, put the defendant into possession of the mortgaged property; but that, if such payment is not made on or before such day, the defendant shall be absolutely foreclosed of all right to redeem such property.

51. If payment is so made of such amount and of such subsequent costs as are mentioned in section fifty-nine, the defendant shall (if necessary) be put into possession of the mortgaged property.

If such payment is not so made, the plaintiff may apply to the Court for an order absolute for the foreclosure of the said mortgage, and the Court shall then pass an order absolute that the defendant be foreclosed of all right to redeem the mortgaged property, and may, if necessary, deliver possession of the property to the plaintiff; and thereupon the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished:

Provided that the Court may, upon good cause shewn, from time to time postpone the day appointed for such payment.

In the Code of Civil Procedure, schedule IV, No. 129, for the words "Final Decree," the words "Order absolute" shall be substituted.

52. In a suit for a sale under this chapter, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall, and in any other suit by the mortgagee under this chapter, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court may, at his instance, pass a decree ordering as provided in the first and second paragraphs of section fifty and also ordering that, in default of the defendant making payment as therein mentioned, the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court and applied in payment of what is so found due to the plaintiff and that the balance, if any, be paid to the defendant or other persons entitled to receive the same.

Decree for sale.

Power to decree sale at instance of mortgagee.

When the mortgagee sues only for a foreclosure, if the Court considers that he will not be damaged by such sale and if the defendant furnishes such security, if any, as the Court thinks sufficient for the payment of the balance due for the time being by him on the mortgage, the Court may, at the instance of the defendant, pass a like decree.

Any decree under this section may also direct the defendant to pay any balance remaining due to the plaintiff upon the mortgage after the proceeds of sale have been dealt with as above provided.

53. If in any case under section fifty-two, the defendant makes payment as mentioned in section fifty-one, he shall (if necessary) be put in possession of the mortgaged property; but if such payment is not so made, the plaintiff or the defendant, as the case may be, may apply to the Court for an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged property, and the Court shall then pass an order that such property, or a sufficient part thereof, be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale be dealt with as is mentioned in section fifty-two; and thereupon the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished.

Procedure when defendant pays amount due and subsequent costs. in section fifty-one, he shall (if necessary) be put in possession of the mortgaged property; but if such payment is not so made, the plaintiff or the defendant, as the case may be, may apply to the Court for an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged property, and the Court shall then pass an order that such property, or a sufficient part thereof, be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale be dealt with as is mentioned in section fifty-two; and thereupon the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished.

Order absolute for sale. the mortgaged property, and the Court shall then pass an order that such property, or a sufficient part thereof, be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale be dealt with as is mentioned in section fifty-two; and thereupon the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished.

54. When the net proceeds of any such sale are insufficient to pay the amount due for the time being on the mortgage, the balance, if payable according to the contract between the parties by the defendant otherwise than out of the property sold, may be recovered either (if the Court thinks fit) in the same suit in the same manner as under a decree for money, or by any other legal process open to the mortgagee.

Recovery of balance due on mortgage. pay the amount due for the time being on the mortgage, the balance, if payable according to the contract between the parties by the defendant otherwise than out of the property sold, may be recovered either (if the Court thinks fit) in the same suit in the same manner as under a decree for money, or by any other legal process open to the mortgagee.

Redemption.

55. Besides the mortgagor, any of the following persons may institute a suit for redemption of the mortgaged property:—

(a) any person (other than the mortgagee) having any interest in or charge upon the property;

(b) any person having any interest in or charge upon the right to redeem the property;

(c) any surety for the payment of the mortgage-debt or any part thereof;

(d) the guardian of the property of a minor mortgagor;

56. In a suit for redemption, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree ordering that an account be taken of what will be due to the defendant for principal and interest on the mortgage, and for his costs of the suit, on the day next hereinafter referred to, or declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree ; and ordering that upon the plaintiff paying to the defendant or into court the amount so due on a day within six months from the date of declaring in court the amount so due, to be fixed by the Court, the defendant shall deliver up to the plaintiff, or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall (if such property has been transferred to the defendant) re-transfer it to the plaintiff free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the defendant or any person claiming under him, or, when the defendant claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall, if necessary, put the plaintiff into possession of the mortgaged property ; but that if such payment is not made on or before such day, the plaintiff shall be absolutely foreclosed of all right to redeem such property.

Bill II, s. 60.

57. If payment is made of such amount and of such subsequent costs as are mentioned in section fifty-nine, the plaintiff shall, if necessary, be put into possession of the mortgaged property.

If such payment is not so made, the defendant in default, foreclosure or sale, may apply to the Court for an order absolute either for the foreclosure of the said right to redeem, or for a sale of the mortgaged property.

If he apply for an order for foreclosure, the Court shall pass an order absolute ordering the plaintiff to be foreclosed of all right to redeem the mortgaged property, and may, if necessary, deliver possession of the property to the defendant.

If he apply for an order for sale, the Court shall pass an order that such property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court and applied in payment of what is found due to the defendant and that the balance be paid to the plaintiff or other persons entitled to receive the same.

On the passing of any order under this section the plaintiff's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished :

Provided that the Court may upon good cause shewn, from time to time, postpone the day fixed under section fifty-six for payment of the amount due.

Redemption and Foreclosure.

58. When property is mortgaged for successive debts to successive mortgagees, any mesne mortgagee may institute a suit to redeem the interests of the prior mortgagees and to foreclose the rights of those that are posterior to himself and of the mortgagor.

Costs.

59. In finally adjusting the amount to be paid to a mortgagee in case of a redemption or a sale by the Court under this chapter, the Court shall, unless the conduct of the mortgagee has been such as to disentitle him to costs, add to the mortgage-money such costs of suit as have been properly incurred by him since the decree for foreclosure, redemption or sale up to the time of actual payment.

Sale of Property subject to prior mortgage.

60. If any property the sale of which is directed under this chapter is subject to a prior mortgage, the Court may, with the consent of the prior mortgagee, order that the property be sold free from the same, giving to such prior mortgagee the same interest in the proceeds of the sale as he had in the property sold.

61. Such proceeds shall be brought into court and applied as follows :—

first, in payment of all expenses incident to the sale or properly incurred in any attempted sale ;

secondly, if the property has been sold free from any prior mortgage, in payment of whatever is due on account of such mortgage ;

thirdly, in payment of all interest due on account of the mortgage in consequence whereof the sale was directed, and of the costs of the suit in which the decree directing the sale was made ;

fourthly, in payment of the principal money due on account of that mortgage ; and fifthly, the residue (if any) shall be paid to the person proving himself to be interested in the property sold, or if there be more such persons than one, then to such persons according to their respective interests therein or upon their joint receipt.

Anomalous Mortgages.

62. In the case of a mortgage not coming within any of the definitions contained in section twenty-one, the rights and liabilities of the parties shall be determined by their contract as evidenced in the mortgage-deed, and, so far as such contract does not extend, by local usage : Provided that, in the absence of an express contract to the contrary, the mortgaged property shall be deemed to be the only security for payment of the mortgage money.

Charges.

63. If by any assurance other than a mortgage-deed, or by any will, or under the provisions of this or any other Act, or by operation of law, certain immovable property of one person is made security for the payment of certain money to another, the latter person is said to have a charge on the

CHAPTER V.

OF LEASES OF IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY.

65. In the absence of a contract or local usage to the contrary, Rights and liabilities of the lessor and the lessee of immovable property, as against one another, respectively possess the rights and are subject to the liabilities mentioned in the sixteen rules next following, or such of them as are applicable to the property leased:—

(a.) The lessor is bound on the lessee's request to put him in possession of the property leased:—

(b.) The lessor shall be deemed to contract with the lessee that the latter paying the rent reserved by the lease and performing the contracts binding on the lessee may hold the property leased during the time limited by the lease without interruption by the lessor or his transferees, or any person lawfully claiming through him or them:—

(c.) The lessee is entitled to the enjoyment of all easements annexed to the property leased at the time when the lease was made until the lease determines or such easements are extinguished, whichever event first happens:—

(d.) The lessee is bound to keep, and on the termination of the lease to restore, the property leased in as good condition as it was in at the time when he was put in possession, subject only to reasonable wear and tear, and to allow the lessor and his agents, at all reasonable times during the term, to enter into the property leased and inspect the condition thereof, and to give or leave notice of any defect in such condition and to make good all such defects within three months after such notice has been given or left:—

(e.) If during the continuance of the lease any accession is made to the property leased, such accession (subject to the law relating to alluvion for the time being in force) shall be deemed to be comprised in the lease:—

(f.) If by fire, tempest or flood, or violence of an army or of a mob, or other superior force, any part of the property leased be wholly destroyed or rendered substantially unfit for the purposes for which it was let, the lease shall be void as to that part, and any rent or fine payable under the lease shall proportionately abate, and a proportionate part of any fine paid by the lessee shall be returned by the lessor:—

If the injury be occasioned by the wrongful act or default of either party, such party shall not be entitled to avail himself of the benefit of this provision:—

(g.) If the lessor neglects to make, within a reasonable time after notice, repairs which he is bound to make to the property leased, the lessee may make the same himself, and deduct the expense of such repairs with interest from the rent, or otherwise recover it from the lessor:—

(h.) If the lessor neglects to make any payment which he is bound to make, and which, if not made by him, is recoverable from the lessee or against the property leased, the lessee may make such payment himself, and deduct it from his rent, or otherwise recover it from the lessor:—

(i.) Every lessee who becomes aware of any proceeding to recover the property leased or any part thereof, or of any encroachment made upon, or any interference with, the lessor's rights concerning such property, is bound to give notice thereof to the lessor with reasonable diligence; and, in default of so doing, he is liable to make compensation to the lessor for any loss or expenses occasioned by such omission:—

(j.) The lessee may use the property leased and its products (if any) as a reasonable owner would use them; but he must not use the property for a purpose other than that for which it was leased, or fell timber, pull down or damage houses, open mines or quarries, or commit any other act which is destructive or permanently injurious thereto.

The prohibition in this clause does not apply to mines which were open when the lease was granted:—

(k.) No lessee shall, without the lessor's consent, erect on the property leased any permanent structure, except for agricultural purposes; and no such lessee who erects thereon any building, engine or machinery for agricultural purposes shall remove the same without first giving to the lessor or his agent one month's previous notice in writing of his intention so to do, and thereupon the lessor or his agent may elect to purchase the thing so proposed to be removed, and the lessee's right to remove the same shall thereby cease, and the same shall belong to the lessor, and the value thereof shall in case of dispute be ascertained and determined by two referees, one to be chosen by each party, or by an umpire to be named by such referees, and shall be paid or allowed in account by the lessor:—

(l.) Subject to the provisions of clause (k), the lessee has a right to remove, at any time during his possession of the property leased, all things which he has affixed to the soil: but he is liable to make compensation to the lessor for all damage caused to the property by such removal:—

of Act XIX of 1868, (n.) When a lease of uncertain duration determines by any means except the fault of the lessee, he or his legal representative is entitled to all the crops planted or sown by the lessee and growing upon the property leased for the season current when the lease determines, and to free ingress and egress to reap and carry them :

(o.) If the lessor transfers the property leased, or any part thereof, or any part of his interest therein, the transferee shall possess all the rights and, if the lessee so elects, be subject to all the liabilities, of the lessor as to the property or part transferred so long as he is the owner of it ; but the lessor shall not by reason only of such transfer cease to be subject to any of the liabilities imposed upon him by the lease, unless the lessee elects to treat the transferee as the person liable to him : Provided that the transferee is not entitled to arrears of rent due before the transfer, and that if the lessee pay rent to the lessor without having reason to believe that such transfer has been made, the lessee shall not be liable to pay such rent over again to the transferee :

Where only a part of the property leased is transferred by the lessor, he may determine what proportion of the rent reserved by the lease is payable in respect of the part so transferred :

(p.) The lessee may transfer, absolutely or by way of mortgage, the whole or any part of his interest in the property leased, and any transferee of such interest or part may again transfer it. The lessee shall not, by reason of such transfer, cease to be subject to any of the liabilities attaching to the lease, unless the lessor elects to treat the transferee as the person subject to such liabilities. Subject as aforesaid, each successive transferee, so long as he is entitled to the property leased, possesses all the rights, and is subject to all the liabilities, of the lessee as such.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize a tenant having a right of occupancy, the farmer of an estate in respect of which default has been made in paying revenue, or the lessee of an estate under the management of a Court of Wards, to assign his interest as such tenant, farmer or lessee.

Disclosures required from lessor and lessee.

(a) an omission of the lessor of immoveable property to disclose to the lessee any defect therein of which the former is, and the latter is not, aware, and which the latter could not with ordinary care discover ;

(b) an omission of the lessee of immoveable property to disclose to the lessor any fact as to the nature or extent of the lessor's interest therein, of which the lessee is, and the lessor is not, aware, and which increases the value of such interest.

67. A tenancy begins when the lessee enters, under the lease, into possession of the property leased, and until he so enters, he cannot sue for compensation for an unlawful entry thereon.

68. In the absence of a contract in writing or local usage to the contrary, a lease of immoveable property for purposes of cultivation shall be a lease from year to year terminable on the part of either lessor or lessee, by six months' notice expiring with the end of a year of the tenancy ; and a lease of immoveable property for any other purpose shall be a lease from month to month, terminable, on the part of either lessor or lessee, by fifteen days' notice expiring with the end of a month of the tenancy.

Every notice under this section must be in writing signed by or on behalf of the party giving it and tendered or delivered to the party who is intended to be bound by it, or affixed on a conspicuous part of the property.

69. Where the time limited by a lease of immoveable property is expressed as commencing from a particular day, in computing that time such day shall be excluded. Where no day of commencement is named, the time so limited begins from the making of the lease.

Where the time so limited is a year or a number of years, in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary, the lease shall last during the whole anniversary of the day from which such time commences.

Where the time so limited is expressed to be determinable before its expiration at the option of the parties or one of them, the lessee, in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary, shall have such option.

70. A lease of immoveable property determined by the death of the lessor—

(a) by efflux of the time limited thereby :
(b) where such time is limited conditionally on the happening of some event—by the happening of such event :

(c) where the lessor can only alienate for his own life the property leased—by the death of the lessor :

(d) where the lessor holds the property leased for the term of the life of another person—by the death of such person :

(e) on the expiration of a notice to determine the lease duly given in pursuance of a power therein contained :

(f) in case the interests of the lessee and the lessor in the whole of the property leased become vested at the same time in one person in the same right :

(g) by express surrender, that is to say, in case the lessee yields up his interest under the lease to the lessor, by mutual agreement between them :

(h) by implied surrender, that is to say, in case the lessee accepts from the lessor a new lease of the property leased, to take effect during the continuance of the existing lease :

(i) by forfeiture, that is to say, (1) in case the lessee breaks an express condition which provides that, on breach thereof, the lessor may re-enter, or the lease shall become void ; or (2) in case the lessee renounces his character as such by setting up a title in a third person or by claiming title in himself, and in either case the lessor or his transferee does some act evidencing his intention to determine the lease :

Provided that the lessor is aware that the forfeiture has been incurred:

78. Provided also that, where rent is accepted after the institution of a suit to eject the lessee on the ground of forfeiture, such acceptance is not a waiver.

72. A notice given by the lessor under section seventy, clause (j), is waived, with the express or implied consent of the lessee, by acceptance of rent which has become due since the expiration of the notice, or by distress for such rent, or by duly giving to the lessee a second notice to quit, or by any other act on the part of the lessor shewing an intention to treat the lease as subsisting.

s. 77, cl. 2: P. 1867, Ex. 1. 73. Where a lease of immoveable property has been determined by forfeiture for non-payment of rent and the lessor sues to eject the lessee, if, at the hearing of the suit, the lessee pays or tenders to the lessor the rent in arrear, together with interest thereon and his full costs of the suit, or gives such security as the Court thinks sufficient for making such payment within fifteen days, the Court may, in lieu of making a decree for ejectment, pass an order relieving the lessee against the forfeiture; and thereupon the lessee shall hold the property leased as if the forfeiture had not occurred.

Nothing in this section applies to suits under Act No. X of 1859, or Bengal Act No. VIII of 1869.

1. 384: 1. 281: P. 1871, p. 63. 74. The surrender, express or implied, of a lease of immoveable property does not prejudice an under-lease of the property or any part thereof previously granted by the lessee: but, unless the surrender is made for the purpose of obtaining a new lease, the rent payable by, and the contracts binding on, the under-lessee shall be respectively payable to, and enforceable by, the lessor.

The forfeiture of such a lease annuls all such under-leases.

(b.) A lets a farm to B for the life of C. C dies, but B continues in possession with A's assent. B's lease is renewed from year to year.

CHAPTER VI.

OF EXCHANGES.

76. When two persons contract to mutually give one thing for another, neither thing being money only, the contract is called a contract of exchange. Bill II, s. 21: Bill, s. 48: N. Y. Code, ss. 906: 1 Mad. 100.

77. The party deprived of the thing he has received in exchange by reason of anything done by the other party or any person through whom the latter claims, may, at his option, sue for compensation or sue for the thing given by him. Bill II, s. 22, clause 2.

78. Save as otherwise provided in this chapter, each party has the rights and is subject to the liabilities of a seller as to that which he gives, and has the rights and is subject to the liabilities of a buyer as to that which he takes. Bill II, s. 23: Bill, s. 48, para. 2.

79. On an exchange of money, each party thereby warrants the genuineness of the money given by him. Bill II, s. 24: Bill, s. 48, para. 1: 1 Mad. 105.

CHAPTER VII.

OF TRANSFERS OF DEBTS.

80. No transfer of, or charge on, any debt, or any beneficial interest in moveable property, shall have any operation against the debtor or against the person in whom the property is vested, until express notice of the transfer or charge is given to him, unless he is a party to such transfer or charge; and every dealing by such debtor or person, not being a party to, and not having received express notice of, a transfer or charge, with the debt or property shall be valid as against such transfer or charge. Bill II, s. 136: Bill, s. 99: Report, s. 99: 36 & 37 Vic., c. 6 s. 25 (b): 1 Mad. 150. See 5 W. R. 230. But see 10 N. W. 474, cited Ma 122.

(b) A has jewels deposited with B, a jeweller. A mortgages them to C. A then executes an instrument transferring them to D, who takes it to B and gets the jewels from him before he, B, has received any notice of C's mortgage. B is justified in handing the jewels to D, and C has no remedy against D.

81. Every such notice must be in writing signed by the person making the transfer or charge, or by his agent duly authorized in this behalf. Bill II, s. 137: Report, s. 100.

82. On receiving such notice, the debtor or person in whom the property is vested shall give effect to the transfer or charge, unless where the debtor resides, or the property is situate, in a foreign country and the title of the person in whose favour the transfer or charge is made is not complete according to the law of such country.

83. The person to whom a debt or charge is transferred shall take it subject to all the liabilities to which the transferor was subject in respect thereof at the date of the transfer.

Illustration.

A debenture is issued in fraud of a public company to A. A sells and transfers the debenture to B, who has no notice of the fraud. The debenture is invalid in the hands of B.

84. Where a debt is transferred for the purpose of securing money advanced or to be advanced by way of loan, or an existing or future debt, the original debt, if recovered by either the transferor or transferee, is applicable, first, in payment of the costs of such recovery, secondly, in or towards satisfaction of the amount for the time being secured by the transfer; and the residue, if any, belongs to the transferor.

85. Nothing in this chapter applies to debts secured by negotiable instruments.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF APPORTIONMENT.

86. All rents, annuities, pensions, dividends and other periodical payments shall, upon the determination by death or otherwise, of the interest of the person entitled to receive such payment, be apportioned as if they had been made to accrue due from day to day, but to be payable on the days appointed for the payment thereof.

Nothing in this section shall affect any express provision in any instrument binding on such person.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 5th March, 1879, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 4 OF 1879.

A Bill to amend the Presidency Banks Act, 1876.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Presidency Banks Act, 1876, in manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Presidency Banks Act, 1879;" and it shall come into force on the first day of May, 1879.

Short title.
Commencement.

2. To the first clause of section 28 of the Presidency Banks Act, 1876, the following proviso shall be added, that is to say:

Amendment of Act XI of 1876, section 28.

"Provided that no person shall be chosen to be President or Vice-President twice in succession."

3. In the same Act, section 34, before the words "no Khazānchi," the words "without the previous sanction of the Board" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section
34 of same Act.

4. In the same Act, section 36, clause (a), sub-clause (4), after the words "municipal body," the words "or any body of Commissioners for making improvements in any port or of trustees of any port" shall be inserted.

Amendments of section 36.

In the same section, the words "in the case of the Bank of Madras" shall be omitted in both the places in which they occur.

In the same section, after clause (m), the following clause shall be inserted, that is to say, "(m n) the borrowing of money in India for the purposes of the Bank's business and the giving of security for money so borrowed by pledging assets or otherwise."

5. In section 37 of the same Act, for clause (d), the following shall be substituted, that is to say,

Amendment of section 37.

"(d) Nor shall they (except upon the security mentioned in section 36, paragraph a, Nos. 1 to 5 inclusive) discount bills for any individual or partnership-firm for an amount exceeding in the whole at any one time such sum as may be prescribed by the bye-laws for the time being in force, or lend or advance in any way to any individual or partnership firm an amount exceeding in the whole at any one time such sum as may be so prescribed."

6. In section 63 of the same Act, clause (a), for the words "lent by discount of bills or otherwise to," the words "lent to or for which bills may be discounted for" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 63.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. THE necessity for this Bill has arisen chiefly from a doubt which has been expressed as to whether the Presidency-banks have power under the Presidency Banks Act, 1876, to borrow money for the purposes of their business by pledging assets or otherwise. The need of such a power is obvious.

As observed in a memorial recently submitted to the Governor General in Council by the banks, "it is an ordinary incident of banking-business to obtain funds for temporary purposes by pledging assets. If banks are prohibited from raising money by pledge of assets when occasion arises, they may, on a sudden requisition for cash, be obliged to make forced sales of property at a disadvantage; and this applies with great force to the Presidency-banks of India whose action in forcing Government or other securities on the market might cause a public panic."

The power required will be conferred by a new clause which the Bill (in the last clause of section 4) proposes to add to section 36 of the Act; but it is limited to borrowing in India, because so long as the Government finances are in the custody of the Presidency-banks, it is not considered expedient that the banks should engage in foreign exchanges or have the power of creating a foreign agency in England, which would be the necessary results of conceding a power to borrow out of India.

2. The other sections of the Bill provide for certain minor amendments of the Act which it has been thought desirable to take this opportunity of making.

Section 2 provides that no person shall be, in two successive years, chosen as President or Vice-President of a Presidency-bank.

3. Section 3, which admits of a khazānchi, cashier or shroff at the principal office of a bank engaging in business with the previous sanction of the Board, has been introduced at the instance of the Bank of Bengal, who represent that the absolute prohibition contained in the present law makes it difficult to secure the services of a suitable person, and that the necessity for any such absolute prohibition has ceased to exist, now that the khazānchi has no longer any concern with the discount business in Native Bills, and is, in fact, a mere cashier.

4. Lastly, clauses have been added to clear up an ambiguity which, in the opinion of Counsel, attaches to section 37, clause (d), and section 63, clause (a), of the Act; to include in the securities on which loans may be made, and in which the banks may invest, debentures and other securities issued by the Port Trusts under Acts of the Indian legislatures, and to concede to the Banks of Bengal and Bombay the power already possessed by the Bank of Madras of drawing and dealing in negotiable instruments, and issuing bank-post-bills and letters of credit, payable in Ceylon.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Railways in India was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 26th February, 1879:—

REPORT.

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Railways in India was referred, have considered the papers noted in the annexed list; we have also had the advantage of receiving through our Hon'ble colleague Sir Andrew Clarke, many valuable suggestions from the members of the Railway Conference recently assembled at Calcutta, and we now submit our final report.

2. We have re-distributed the sections contained in the first chapters of the Bill No. 11 in what appears to us a more convenient way; and in the remarks which we are about to submit, we shall follow the order of the new arrangement.

3. The definition of "Railway," it will be observed, has been to some extent recast, but the only substantial changes made in it are—

1st.—That, by the omission of all reference to the Government or Companies, it is now made to comprise railways owned and worked by private persons or Native States;

2ndly.—That, by the substitution of the words "vessels and rafts" for "ferry-boats," the flotillas worked in connection with Railways will be treated as a part of such Railways;

3rdly.—That section 4 (giving the right to run locomotives) has been extended to Railways under construction, and section 52 (empowering the Government to require a line to be fenced) has been included in the provisions of the Bill applicable to Railways under construction and to Railways not used for the public conveyance of passengers and goods.

4. We have enlarged the definition of "Railway-servant," so as to include in certain sections the employés of Railway-contractors.

5. We have substituted for the definition of "Magistrate" a section (50) directly providing that offences against the Act shall not be tried by any Magistrate inferior to a Magistrate of the second class.

6. We have introduced a section (5) providing that no Railway shall be opened for traffic until it has been inspected and passed by a Government officer. This is in accordance with the law in England and with the practice that has hitherto prevailed in this country.

7. In section 6 we propose to maintain the time allowed by the present law for reporting accidents, and have somewhat enlarged the class of cases in which a report of an accident is required.

8. We have, at the suggestion of the members of the Railway Conference, omitted certain headings from the list of subjects on which the Railway-Administration was by Bill No. 11 empowered to make general rules, and so altered the wording of the section (now section 8) as to render it obligatory on the Railway-Administration to make rules on the remaining subjects.

9. On further considering the question of the liability of carriers by Railway for loss or damage to ordinary goods, as distinguished from goods for which a special insurance-rate, as it is sometimes called, is chargeable, we are of opinion that no mere adaptation of section 7 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, such as is proposed in paragraph 7 of our former report, will suffice to put the law into as clear and simple a form as is desirable. The amendment we propose in section 10 will be found when the entire law bearing on the point is looked to, to be, except in one particular to which we shall presently advert, an amendment in point of form only; but it is nevertheless desirable that we should explain it in some detail.

10. The law now governing the liability of Railway Companies in India in such cases has recently come under the consideration of the High Court at Bombay in the case of Kurari Toolsee Dass v. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company. It has to be collected with some pains from sections 151, 152 and 161 of the Indian Contract Act, which treat of the responsibility of bailees in general, the Carriers Act of 1865, which treats of the responsibility of common carriers, and section 11 of the Railway Act of 1854.

By these enactments it was intended to provide* that a Railway Company should be liable for loss of, or damage to, ordinary goods only when such loss or damage arose from the neglect or misconduct of its servants; and, further, that no Company should by any special contract be able to relieve itself of liability in such cases. But, though the Bombay High Court, in the case just referred to, held that the effect of these enactments when taken together was, at all events as regards the main point, in accordance with the intention of the framers, it arrived at this conclusion only after a discussion which makes it clear that some simplification in point of form is desirable.

11. What we now propose is to remove contracts to carry by Railway altogether from the operation of the Carriers Act of 1865 and to frame the section of this Bill regarding them in such a manner that the whole law will be found in that section and the provisions of the Contract Act relating to bailments.

Under sections 151 and 152 of the Contract Act, carriers by Railway will be bound to take the same care of the goods entrusted to them as a prudent man would take of his own; and where they take such care, they will not be liable for any loss or damage that may occur.

Under section 10 of the Bill, they will be prohibited, as a rule, from freeing themselves by any special contract from the obligation thus imposed upon them.

* See as regards the Railway Act, the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Carriers Act, 1865.

12. So far the law will be in strict accordance with the existing law or what the existing law was intended to be; but here we have introduced an alteration of some, though not of very great, importance by excepting from the general rule prohibiting special contracts such contracts in writing as may be in a form approved of by the Governor General in Council, and may be signed by the consignor.

It will be observed that this exception corresponds to the proviso regarding special contracts in section 7 of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, with this difference that, while the latter Act provides that the special contract shall be effectual and relieve the Company only, if it is held by the Court to be reasonable, thus leaving the validity of the contract to be determined ex post facto, our exception makes the contract good, if in a form to be approved beforehand, and thus avoids the uncertainty which, owing to the different views that may be taken by different Judges as to the reasonableness of a contract, frequently attaches to such transactions in England.

13. It need hardly be said that contracts going to relieve absolutely from liability for neglect or misconduct would usually be held unreasonable in England; but there are cases in which it has been held that a carrier by Railway may reasonably exempt himself, at least conditionally or partially, from such liability as, e. g., where he stipulates that he shall not be liable unless a claim is made within a certain time after the loss or damage has occurred,¹ or where he is willing to carry subject to the ordinary liability at a fair rate, but offers as an alternative to carry free from all liability at a lower rate,² or where he exempts himself only from liability for damage arising from loss of market caused by delay.³ It is to meet cases of this sort that the exception has been introduced.

14. Our attention having been directed since the submission of our previous report to the danger to which carriers by Railway in this country are exposed of having fraudulent claims brought against them in respect of valuable property of small bulk alleged to have been lost in transit (a point dwelt on at some length by the Select Committee in the Act of 1854), we have deemed it well to omit the limitation of Rs. 100, which we introduced into Bill No. 11, and to require (section 11) that such property shall (as at present) be declared in all cases, whatever be its value.

15. The only other points which it is necessary to mention in connection with this portion of the Bill are that we have struck out the second sentence of section 5 of the Bill No. 11, which was intended to relieve the Government or the Company in certain cases from liability for loss or damage to luggage occasioned otherwise than by the neglect or default of a Railway-officer, but which is obviously unnecessary now that it is made clear that the carrier is in all cases so relieved; and that we have embodied in section 13 the provision of the Carriers Act of 1865, by which the onus of showing in what way the loss or damage was occasioned is thrown upon the carrier.

16. We have (section 14) enlarged the power of selling property left in the hands of the Railway-Administration with charges for conveyance, demurrage, &c., due upon it by empowering the Administration—

(a) to sell such property at once if it is perishable, and

(b) to sell the whole of it if they think fit instead of only such portion as may be sufficient to defray their charges.

This last power is, we understand, indispensable, as otherwise the Railway-Administration will be liable in certain states of the market to have its premises incumbered with unclaimed goods.

17. We have added to chapter IV a section (20) empowering Railway-servants to remove from railway-carriages and from the railway-premises persons suffering from infectious diseases.

18. We have, chiefly at the instance of the members of the Railway Conference, enhanced or reduced several of the penalties imposed by chapter V.

19. We have modified the restrictions on smoking by omitting in section 32 of the present Bill the words of section 6 of Act XVIII of 1854 which made it an offence to smoke on the Railway-premises.

20. We have, in section 40, imposed a penalty for needlessly interfering with the means of communication between the guard and the engine-driver or passengers.

21. We have, at the instance of many of the authorities consulted, extended to girls section 44, which provides for the case of children throwing stones at a train or tampering with the permanent-way. There being, however, no legal penalty suitable for the case of girls under seven years of age, we have been compelled to content ourselves with holding their parents or guardians liable. As regards the liability of the parent or guardian, we have, on further consideration, deemed it better to require him to enter into a bond binding himself to prevent his child repeating the offence, instead of subjecting him in the first instance to a penalty for an act of misconduct on the part of the child which he might have had no reason to foresee.

22. We have, in section 50, provided that a person committing an offence against the Act or the rules made under it may be tried in any place which the Local Government may appoint, as well as in any place in which he may now be tried for such offence. This, it has been repre-

23. We have added a section (54) to the Bill empowering the Governor General in Council to extend the whole or any portion of it to tramways worked by steam.

24. We have added in the second schedule :—

in clause (g), " Government-stamps : " in clause (j), " other works of art : " in clause (k), " marble : "

in clause (p), " sandalwood-oil : "

in clause (q), " scientific instruments. "

25. We have made numerous other additions and amendments, but they are of so trifling a description that we deem it unnecessary to specify them.

26. The Bill No. II and report of Select Committee thereon have been published in English in all the local Gazettes except those for Bengal, Assam and Rājputāna. Publication of the Bill and report in the vernacular has been reported only by the Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and of the Panjāb; we do not consider that the changes now made are such as to render republication necessary, especially as most of these changes have met with the approval of the Members of the Railway Conference; and we accordingly recommend that the Bill as amended be passed.

SILK OF THE TASAR WORM.

No. 1.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Department of Revenue, Agriculture, and Commerce, dated Calcutta, the 25th February 1879.

[FIBRES AND SILK.]

Read the Resolution of the Government of India on the subject of the development of an industry in the silk of the tasar worm, No. 5—156-165, dated the 23rd November 1875.

Read the following papers containing such further information as has been gathered in connection with the production of tasar cocoons, and the processes of reeling and dyeing the silk in compliance with the request made in the foregoing Resolution :—

Letter from the Government of Madras, No. 662, dated the 13th February 1877, and enclosure.

Letters from the Government of Bombay, No. 113, dated the 11th January 1876, and enclosures, No. 1791, dated the 12th June 1877, and No. 1381, dated the 29th April 1878, and enclosure.

Letter from the Government of Bengal, No. 712, dated the 8th March 1877.

Letter to the Government of Bengal, No. 119, dated the 18th September 1878.

Letter from the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, No. 1094, dated the 28th March 1876.

Letter from the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 2746A., dated the 27th November 1877, and enclosure.

Letters from the Government of the Punjab, No. 1287, dated the 6th November 1876, and enclosures, No. 266S., dated the 25th July 1877, and enclosure, and No. 488, dated the 20th April 1878, and enclosures.

Letters from the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, No. 1185—49, dated the 29th March 1876 and No. 2417—98, dated the 28th June 1876, and enclosure, Letter from the Chief Commissioner of British Burma, No. 320—14, dated the 28th October 1876.

Letter from the Chief Commissioner of Mysore, No. 9231—188G., dated the 23rd January 1878, and enclosures.

Letter from the Chief Commissioner of Assam, No. 256, dated the 9th February 1877.

Letter from the Resident at Hyderabad, No. 11, dated the 20th May 1876, and enclosures.

Read the following despatches from the Secretary of State, having reference to the experiments made under the instructions of Mr. T. Wardle of Leek, Staffordshire, with the tasar silk of India :—

No. 25 (Revenue), dated the 22nd March 1877, and enclosure.

No. 61 (Revenue), dated the 29th August 1878, and enclosures.

Read also two letters from M. Rondot, Delegate from the Chamber of Commerce of Lyons to the Paris Exhibition, and President of the Jury of Silk Industry, soliciting information connected with wild silks, including tasar, in India.

RESOLUTION.

In the Resolution of the 23rd November 1875, the Government of India stated the facts regarding the production of tasar silk so far as they were known to it, as well as the steps taken or under consideration in reference to the utilisation of this article and the development of a regular industry. The general conclusion which seemed to be justified by the information before it was that the domestication of the tasar worm offered no prospect of remuneration even if the process were in itself possible; but that if certain difficulties arising from natural conditions connected with the collection of the worm in its wild or in a semi-domesticated state could be overcome, and that if the silk could be satisfactorily reeled and dyed,—for difficulties had been encountered in connection with both processes,—a regular and extensive export trade from India to Europe, either in the shape of cocoons or as raw silk, would spring up; for it seemed certain that European manufacturers would take the raw produce if laid down at reasonable prices.

2. The first step to be taken, however, was to procure further information. It was obviously premature to take any measures having in view the creation of a regular industry without first obtaining definite information on important points on which information was wanting either wholly or in part. Such points were: the exact cost at which the raw material could be collected or produced in commercial quantities, both in the wild and semi-domesticated state; the cost of reeling the silk; the weight of silk in proportion to cocoon; the degree in which the filaments would bear distension; and the consequent ultimate value of the silk in the market. As a first step towards the obtaining of such data, the Government of Bombay and the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces were requested to collect a quantity of cocoons in order that careful experiments might be made with them in this country, as also under the direction of Her Majesty's Secretary of State in some of the leading filatures in France and Italy. This was done, and the results of the experiments undertaken by Mr. Wardle under the direction of the Secretary of State with the cocoons thus supplied are now before the Government of India and are stated in his reports attached to this Resolution. No experiments were made in this country, the gentlemen to whom cocoons were supplied for the purpose having pronounced them to be old and unfit for reeling, especially in this country, where the special machinery and appliances required for this purpose are not available. This is of little consequence, however, considering the success of the experiments in Europe, and having regard to the fact that in all probability filatures in India for tasar silk will not be required, and that only a trade in cocoons will prove remunerative.

3. At the same time that these cocoons were collected in the Central Provinces, the other local Governments and Administrations were invited to make proposals and suggestions in the matter.

4. The result of the enquiries and experiments made in India has not, on the whole, advanced matters very far. In the Bombay Presidency the experiments undertaken by Major Coussmaker for the semi-domestication of the worm were interrupted by the drought and famine. They have since been renewed, but as yet with inconclusive results. These are stated in a letter from Major Coussmaker, from which the following paragraphs are extracted :—

* * * * *

" 2. My former experiments, as well as those conducted by Mr. Woodrow, had proved that it was a mistake to attempt to rear these worms on twigs, either those cut from road-side trees, or from those which had received some care and attention in a garden, and that the plan most likely to succeed was to feed them on shrubs in localities where they could be protected from their enemies, and, if need be, from unfavourable weather. With this view, I began to collect young plants.

" 3. I had noticed in 1876 that the tasar worm thrived well on Lagerstræmia indica, an ornamental shrub, fairly abundant in the cantonment of Poona; this is a plant which throws up a good many suckers during the monsoon, and I soon got a few plants together. I took a house which was well supplied with shade and water, and my gardener managed to collect 172 plants between December and July, many of them only a few inches high, but some were large enough to be of use. There were also in the ground six bushes, and my first care, when I came in from the districts, was to cut them all back to the hard wood, and apply to their roots a fair amount of manure. The consequence was that as soon as the rain commenced the plants shot most freely into leaf.

" 4. Mr. Woodrow had not been able to save any seed cocoons, but I had found three female cocoons in the districts, and the Marathi woman, who had been my chief assistant in looking after these worms before, had collected twelve. I soon had several moths from these cocoons, and found, as I had noticed before, that there was no difficulty in getting an abundant supply of fertile eggs. Hardly any females were wasted; it was only necessary to put them out overnight on any bush, and it was almost a certainty to find them paired at daybreak. I found that it was not necessary to tether them; they rarely moved from the twig on which I placed them. As fast as the young worms hatched out, I put the trays containing them among the leaves of the plants and in a few hours they commenced feeding. The weather was everything I could desire, showery with a few breaks of fine weather; the bushes were full of young shoots, and the worms thrived as I have never seen them thrive before. I tied bamboo screens together and covered over the plants as they stood in the open. The worms changed their skins at intervals of 4 to 5 days instead of 5 to 8, as had been the case when I reared them indoors on gathered food, and they spun their cocoons in 28 to 35 days instead of 40 to 50, as I had noted before. The moths came out of these cocoons in 27 to 30 days, and their eggs proved fertile, producing caterpillars which grew as fast and as large as the first. The only difference that I observed was that the 'cement' of the cocoons of the later crops was less uniformly white; this may have been due to the changes in the weather or the quality of the leaf, some shrubs having been eaten off three and four times this monsoon.

" 5. The Lagerstræmia bush proved an excellent food; it flushed so quickly that a plant 2 feet high, after being fed off quite bare, cut back, and re-potted, was again in thick leaf in a fortnight, and the same batch of worms stripped it again. In changing the plants, and in daily examining the cages, a few accidents occurred; but 100 worms yielded 71 cocoons.

" 6. I enclosed an old Curissa carandas, which had neither been pruned nor manured, with bamboo screens, and liberated 50 worms there. In the course of a month I gathered 31 cocoons, a little larger than those of the Lagerstræmia, but much harder and yellower. The caterpillars seemed to thrive a little better on this bush, and completely stripped it, but the tree did not recover quickly, and did not yield another supply of food the whole monsoon.

" 7. I put six worms on to a young Zizyphus jujuba tree in my garden, but neither enclosed it, pruned it, nor manured it. It had a great deal of leaf and flower on it, and the worms ate both. They grew very large and healthy, being in every stage of their existence a little ahead of some of the same batch feeding on Lagerstræmia. Five cocoons were spun here, larger than any that I had gathered from off the other trees.

" 8. I let the majority of the moths fly away, for as soon as the male has left her, the female is quite ready to go and look for suitable trees to deposit her eggs on. I had not enough food for more than 100 worms at a time in my own compound, and almost every attempt which I made at bringing them up elsewhere, unsheltered by the screens, failed. Crows, squirrels, and other enemies carried them off, and I hardly got a single cocoon; but in my own compound I continued to rear a few at a time, changing them from one tree to another as I found it expedient. The result of the experiments which I made showed me plainly that plants in the ground, with or without screens over them, gave the most suitable food; that it mattered not whether the young shoots were eaten down by the caterpillars or cut off by the pruning shears. The Lagerstræmia never sprouted again, and it was only the very limited supply of food which I had that prevented me rearing many more worms.

"9. From the single experiment I have mentioned, Carissa does not seem to recover quickly. Zizyphus seems to grow very fast, principally at the extremities of its long straggling branches; but as I only had one tree in my compound, I could not be sure about its usual habit of growth.

"10. I baked some of the cocoons gathered from each of these three trees and sent them home to Mr. Wardle, asking him to give me an opinion on the qualities of the respective fibres. I had all the burst and injured cocoons cleaned, and sent them, together with those which Mr. Woodrow had on hand, to the Alliance Mills in Bombay to be converted into yarn. I have kept some fifty seed cocoons for next year's experiments.

"11. I have got together a good many plants for next season's experiments—353 Lagerstræmia indica, 10 Lagerstræmia parviflora, 13 Conocarpus latifolia; plants and cuttings all rooted and in leaf: also 136 Carissa carandas, 135 Zizyphus jujuba, 105 Pentaptera tomentosa, seedlings. There are besides 3 Zizyphus bushes in the compound, and if my gardener will but take care of these during my eight months' absence from Poona, I hope to resume my experiments under better auspices.

"12. The past season has been very favourable for tasar worms. Mr. Lyle, who was cultivating them to a small extent at Dapuri in 1876, tells me that some of the men who were under him then came to him lately and asked him whether he wanted any more cocoons as they had seen several. He happened to be on the spot and sent a man to see how many he could collect within three hours. He came back with 300, and said that he had heard that some people had been taking them into Poona for sale, presumably to the native physicians. I myself have already found many more casually this year in the districts than I usually do."

5. In Madras, in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, in Burma, and in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, as also in Mysore, there would seem at present to be no prospect of establishing any traffic in the cocoons or raw silk of the undomesticated worm.

6. The late Chief Commissioner of Assam thought that any attempt to foster the trade in Sylhet would prove unsuccessful, and refrained from offering any suggestions beyond drawing attention to the existing and old-established silk industries of Assam, which in his opinion might have opened up a wide field for private enterprise were it not for the extraordinary delays that exist in communications between the province and the rest of India. Government have under consideration the question of improving the facilities for communicating with Upper Assam. It is hoped that when the contemplated improvement is effected, Colonel Keatinge's expectations will to some extent be realised; for there is at least as great a demand in the European markets for the cocoon of the eria and moonga worm as there is for that of the tasar.

7. In Bengal the tasar worm appears to abound in various localities generally in all the tree and scrub jungle lying south and west of a line marking the southern and western limit of the continuous cultivation of the Gangetic alluvial and of the Orissa littoral. Whether the insect is of one or of several species, is a matter of doubt, and the season and mode of breeding and collecting appear to vary with the locality where it is found. The price of cocoons, it is alleged, ranges from Rs. 6 to Rs. 10 per kahan (1 kahan=16 pans of 80 cocoons each, i.e., 1,280 cocoons); and in regard to its yield, one kahan makes in Bankurah two pairs of dhotis, in Sooree 15 chittacks of silk, and in the Sonthal Pergunnahs from 1½ to 2 seers. These and other more detailed particulars, furnished by the Government of Bengal, though admittedly incomplete and unauthenticated in some respects, are useful as far as they go, and the Government of India will be glad to be informed of the measures which are being taken to gather further particulars as well as of their results. The Lieutenant-Governor's opinion on the proposal made by Mr. J. Deveria, to the effect that the State should undertake the rearing of tasar cocoons in the jungle mahals of Chota Nagpore for sale to reelers and exporters is also awaited.

8. From the Punjab, some samples of tasar silk, reeled from cocoons produced in the Hoshiarpur district by the Deputy Commissioner, were reported on by the authorities whom the Government of India consulted as fairly successful. Some specimens of cloth, which were also received from Hoshiarpur, were found to have been very creditably manufactured.

9. The Secretary of State, in acknowledging in his despatch No. 25, dated the 22nd March 1877, the receipt of the cocoons gathered in the Central Provinces, has forwarded a report by Mr. T. Wardle, from which it appears that although the cocoons, when made over to the filatures in France and Italy, were found to be very old and imperfect, the reelers spoke most hopefully of the results that might be attained with fresher cocoons properly gathered and prepared. Mr. Wardle, too, said that he was prepared to dye tassar silk as reeled in Europe by his improved processes in almost any colour, even to very pale shades.

10. The first part of a further report from Mr. Wardle has meanwhile been received under cover of the Secretary of State's despatch No. 61, dated the 29th August 1878; as also some samples of tassar silk displayed at the Paris Exhibition, as prepared under Mr. Wardle's instructions. These specimens, which can be seen at the office of this Department by persons interested in the matter, are far superior to anything ever yet seen of the same kind, the organzine especially being remarkable for its excellence. The grège is softer, cleaner, and altogether better than the best raw tassar silk as yet reeled. It is clear from these samples that such difficulties as existed in the reeling of this silk have been completely overcome. Mr. Wardle's process produces silk so fine as to be capable of adaptation to any purpose for which mulberry silk is used. Excellent results have also been obtained in the spinning of tassar thread and the weaving of fabrics from spun silk. Mr. Wardle's experiments with the dyeing of the silk have also been quite successful. On the whole it is certain now that there is no inherent obstacle to the utilisation of this silk for manufacturing purposes.

11. The main question now to be answered is that of cost. Whether silk of this kind will be extensively consumed, depends upon the price at which it can be placed in the market. Mr. Wardle states that the cost of making organzine and tram from the cocoons is 20 francs the kilogramme, viz., 10 francs for reeling and 10 francs for throwing. This is double the price at which ordinary tassars are now sold, and it is not easy to say whether purchasers will be found for the improved product, greatly superior as it is, though it seems that the price is susceptible of reduction. As yet the only indication of the prices likely to be given for tassar silk is an offer made by M. David, a silk manufacturer of St. Etienne, who expresses his readiness to take one or two thousand kilogrammes of cocoons delivered at Marseilles at the price of one franc the kilogramme. This price, it is clear, is much too low, for, according to the information before the Government, cocoons could not profitably be laid down in Europe at less than three or four times the sum mentioned. This, however, is a matter which admits of local verification, and it should form the subject of enquiry.

12. The results obtained by Mr. Wardle, as well as by others working independently, are so important and so full of promise as regards the manufacture of this silk and the utilisation of the manufacture for apparel and other purposes, that it is eminently desirable to thoroughly investigate the question of production. Information on this subject has been sought from various quarters, but the information in the possession of Government is not sufficient to enable it to furnish precise answers, yet it is necessary, if the attention of capitalists is to be attracted to the development of this industry, that full information should be forthcoming. M. Natalis Rondot, a delegate from the Chamber of Commerce of Lyons to the Paris Exhibition, and President of the Jury in the Silk Section, has written to the Government of India, asking for information on the following points, not only as regards the tassar worm but also as regards other undomesticated worms:—

- (1) an enumeration of the different kinds of wild worms;
- (2) the districts from which each kind is obtained, and in what quantities;
- (3) the species of worm from which each kind of silk is manufactured;
- (4) the trees on which the worms feed;
- (5) the uses to which the silk is put by the natives;
- (6) the markets where they are to be purchased;
- (7) the probable prices of dry cocoons of each kind and of the silk as reeled by the natives;
- (8) the probable quantities retained for local consumption and available for exportation to European silk mills;

- (9) and the outturn in money value of the silks woven in India, which M. Rondot thinks must be considerable, especially if tasar and other similar silks commonly worn by the natives are taken into account.

13. M. David, of St. Etienne, also asks^e for information on the following points:—

- (1) the nature of the chemical agent used by natives to soften the cocoon;
- (2) whether the natives can reel a cocoon more than a year old;
- (3) the length of time elapsing from the spinning of the cocoon and the emergence of the moth;
- (4) whether the dark and light coloured cocoons which are found mixed in the bales sent from India are of different varieties, and whether they are found in the same localities;
- (5) also, whether it would be possible to obtain bales containing only light coloured cocoons.

14. Some information, but of a vague and general kind, exists on a good many of the points enumerated by M. Rondot, and the Governor General in Council desires that an effort may be made to cause such specific information as is obtainable, with special reference to the quantity obtainable and the prices on the spot, to be furnished with as little delay as possible. It is also much to be desired that particulars of manufacture should be obtained as far as possible.

The particulars of the outturn of the filatures in Bengal are unknown; for, though the quantities exported and their values are ascertainable, Government is unable to say how much of the outturn of the filatures (there are a great many native filatures) is kept in the country, or what it is worth. Of the small local native reeling (small separately, but large in the aggregate), no more is known than of the handloom village weaving of cotton. In Assam and Burma, silk reeling and weaving are a domestic occupation of the women of the house; in other provinces it is a trade. In Bombay, there are two mills worked by steam in which silk is woven, but the extent of their operations is unknown. In short, no precise statistical account of the silk industry in India is extant, though there is a good deal of information of a more or less vague and general character. As regards silk production, Mr. Geoghegan's account of silk in India contains practically all the information that Government possesses, although for some years past much attention has been paid to the production of tasar silk. The same is to be said of the other kinds of wild silk. These are all separately distinguished and shewn in Mr. Geoghegan's book, in the section given to the wild silk producers, as well as in the appendix by Captain Hutton. Interesting information, though in most cases of a general character, has been furnished by the local Governments and Administrations, but more precise information is now desirable, and the Government of India will be glad if the Government of Bengal and the Chief Commissioners of the Central Provinces and Assam will take measures to collect it, and furnish a report giving a categorical reply to the enquiries of both M. Rondot and M. David.

ORDER.—Ordered, that, for the purposes indicated above, a copy of the Resolution, of the despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 61, dated the 29th August 1878, and extracts from M. Rondot's letters, be forwarded to the Government of Bengal and to the Chief Commissioners of the Central Provinces and Assam; and also that they be forwarded to the Government of Bombay for communication to Major Coussmaker.

Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution, and of the despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 61, dated the 29th August 1878, be forwarded for information to the Governments and Administrations mentioned on the margin.

Ordered, that this Resolution and the papers read in the preamble thereof be published for general information.

Resolution of the Government of India, No. 5—156-165, dated the 23rd November 1875.

For some years past the attention of Government and of private individuals has been given to the possible development of a profitable industry in the silk of the undomesticated silk-spinning worms of India, the most important of these being the tasar (Antheraea Paphia and other varieties).

2. The worm abounds in most forest tracts in India. Mr. Geoghegan (page 110 of his Account of Silk in India) says that it is found "in the Sub-Himalayan tracts almost throughout the extent of the range, through the hills from Assam to Chittagong, in the Sundarbans, everywhere in the great belt of hill and forest inhabited by the Santal, the Kol, the Khond, and the Gond, in the Western Ghâts, and in portions of the Madras Presidency." Captain Coussmaker says he has found it in the jungles between Tanna and Ankola (Bombay Presidency), a distance of 330 miles, and he has reared the worm successfully in the three districts of Satara, Kolhapur, and Dharwar. The worm also abounds in the tract between the Burrakur and the Soane (Bengal Presidency), a tract of country measuring 200 miles in length by 80 miles in width, and it is largely distributed in the districts of Gurdáspur and Siálkot and in the Jummo territory.

3. Hitherto the worm has ordinarily been confined to the jungles, but Captain Coussmaker's and other experiments seem to prove that it is quite capable of domestication. Its habitat, however, is undoubtedly the jungle tracts, and owing to this and to the collection of the cocoons having hitherto been left entirely to certain classes of aboriginal tribes inhabiting the forests, there are no accurate data on which to found an estimate of the supply available. It seems clear, however, that even now the supply is more than equal to even a greatly increased demand, and that this supply is capable of indefinite extension.

4. At present there is practically no demand in the European market for this silk, except in the shape of fabrics prepared in this country, and for these the demand is limited. Whether it is possible to create a sufficiently large demand to remunerate outlay on the part of Government is a question which cannot yet be positively answered, but the probabilities are in favour of the creation of such a demand if certain difficulties hereafter to be described can be overcome.

5. In 1872 Captain Coussmaker, an Assistant Superintendent in the Bombay Revenue Survey, who had for some years given his attention to this matter, had some tasar silk reeled off and woven into fabrics, under his superintendence, in the Dharwar jail. Samples of these fabrics were sent by the Government of Bombay to the Government of India, and were sent by them for report to Calcutta, where the samples, especially a twilled kind, were much approved. In connection with the report on these samples, it was stated to the Government of India that certain difficulties connected with the reeling and dyeing of the silk which had hitherto operated to prevent the creation of a regular and extensive trade in tasar silk had recently been overcome in Italy. Copies of the papers were sent to the Governments of Bombay and Bengal and the Central Provinces for information. The Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces having asked to be furnished with particulars of the processes of the reeling and dyeing said to have been discovered, Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India was requested in despatch No. 6, dated the 23rd June 1873, to cause enquiries to be made in England and the large centres of silk manufacture on the Continent, and to communicate the results. While this enquiry was being originated by the Government of India, Captain Coussmaker went on leave to England, proposing, with the concurrence of the Government of Bombay, to devote some time to enquiries into the subject.

6. A reply to the despatch to Her Majesty's Secretary of State has now been received, and the result of Captain Coussmaker's enquiries has also been embodied in a letter to the Government of Bombay, of which a copy has been communicated to the Government of India. The outcome of the researches made is as follows:—

From the papers received from the Secretary of State it appears—

(i)—That a person at Lyons, unnamed, holding the position of chief chemist to the firm of Guinon and Picard, manufacturers of chemical products at Lyons, has discovered how to reel and dye tasar silk. The reeling process, he states, is thoroughly inexpensive. He has submitted samples of the results of his process to Mr. Haden, British Vice-Consul at Lyons, and this gentleman pronounces them to be “really remarkable,” adding that “he has reason to believe that if experiments carried on under inspection resulted in similar success, the Government of India would possess the information it desires.” The dyeing process the inventor declares to be absolutely successful, “except as to one point which he thinks could be satisfactorily dealt with.” The inventor has patented his processes in France, and would require similar protection in Italy, Great Britain, and India before doing anything for the Government of India. He declines to come to India, and he expects a fixed sum (not stated) for communicating and practically demonstrating all he knows about the matter.

(ii)—The Vice-Consul at Lyons has also been in communication with a person named Chalon, a worker in velvet at Beaurepaire in the Department of the Isère, who professes that he can reel off a thread a thousand mètres (nearly 1,100 yards) in length from the unpierced cocoon. This person also requires a fixed sum before imparting the secret of his process. The Vice-Consul adds that this is probably the process to which the Government of India referred in its letter to the Secretary of State.

(iii)—The Consul at Genoa has been in communication with, amongst others, Mr. Mylius, a silk manufacturer at Buffalora, who has tried experiments in a small way, but without much success. He says, however, that no serious trials have yet been made with tasar, and expresses his willingness if the Government of India will send him a parcel of cocoons to make a series of experiments with them. The Consul says that Mr. Mylius’ standing and reputation are unexceptionable and his works on a large scale.

(iv)—The Consul has also heard of an invention patented jointly by Mr. Gaddum of Latour and Mr. Bosshardt of Turin for carding the silk produced from difficult cocoons. It appears that tasar cocoons have been successfully treated by this process.

(v)—Mr. Thomas Wardle, a silk dyer of great experience, states that he has discovered a way of dyeing tasar silk in brilliant colours and of giving it the lustre of Chinese silk. Mr. Wardle is ready to continue his experiments and also to teach his process to natives of India. It is not stated whether this gentleman is ready to come to India and on what terms, but the Secretary of State has asked to be furnished with samples of dye-stuffs, and of tasar and other wild silks, so that Mr. Wardle may be in a position to continue his experiments. Local Governments have been asked to supply these samples.

7. Captain Coussmaker’s enquiries in regard to reeling in England have been unsuccessful. Messrs. Mason and Company, silk spinners, have bought this and other wild silks as “waste” and have carded it, and Messrs. Lister and Company of Bradford are ready to take a large supply of pierced cocoons for the same purpose, converting them into spun silk, but no English manufacturers seem to have attempted or to be disposed to attempt the reeling of the unpierced cocoon. But Captain Coussmaker succeeded, by the good offices of Chevalier G. Jervis, Conservator of the Royal Industrial Museum at Turin, in inducing an Italian spinner to try experiments, with the result that the silk can, it is stated, be reeled at a cost of something over £2 per cwt. of cocoons. If this is actually the case, the rate is extremely low, but there is probably some mistake in the figures. The firm, which is not named, say that the reeling can be done much cheaper eventually after perfection of the process and adaptation of the machinery to this particular kind of silk. The specimens thus reeled were valued in London at from 1s. to 2s. per lb. more than the samples reeled at Dharwar by Captain Coussmaker, and these were in Calcutta thought very good, and in London were considered equal to anything of the kind sent from India and China.

8. In addition to the results thus obtained, reference has been made direct to the Government of India by Mr. Jules Deveria of Rampore Baulea, who states that he has discovered a process of reeling tasar in an ordinary filature. The sample of the skein of the silk which he reeled under this process was not entirely successful, and a report obtained on it by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce was unfavourable.

9. With the preliminary information thus obtained, the Government of India is in a position to consider what should be the next steps to be taken in view to the development of a new industry, which may perhaps take to some extent the place of the trade in the manufacture of silk from domesticated worms. This latter industry, of which Bengal is the principal seat, is in a languishing condition and seems indeed doomed to gradual but inevitable decay. Even, however, if the Bengal silk trade were to revive and again assume the flourishing position it once held, it is quite clear that in an almost purely agricultural country like India the introduction of new manufacturing industries is desirable, and that it is of great importance to find external and internal markets for produce of which India possesses a monopoly, but which is not now utilised.

10. In stimulating the production of tasar silk, the State may aim at supplying either the local or the European markets with manufactured silk or at creating an export trade in the raw material with Europe. But before any great step in this direction can be taken, it is necessary to make further cautious and preliminary detailed enquiries, for besides the two difficulties already mentioned, both of which will probably soon be overcome, there are still others, of a somewhat more formidable character, perhaps, which tend to leave in doubt the question whether the silk of the tasar worm may be profitably employed on a large scale.

11. The two great obstacles to which attention has hitherto been directed are:—

1st.—Defective reeling in connection with the difficulty of properly dissolving the natural gum exuded in spinning by the worm.

2nd.—Difficulties in dyeing.

As regards the first, owing to the defective way in which the silk is reeled, the thread is not continuous and retains more or less of the peculiar cement (compared to plaster of Paris by Captain Coussmaker) which the worm exudes, the presence of this cement detracting from the appearance of the fibre, rendering it unfit for fine fabrics, and preventing it from taking fine colours. It has, however, it is understood, been proved by actual experiments made within the last year, that by the use of a simple alkaline solvent and by keeping the basins of water in which the cocoons are plunged when being reeled off at a temperature of about 200° Fahr., or a little higher, all difficulties of reeling, so far as the mere unwinding of the silk is concerned, disappear.

In respect to the second, there seems to be little doubt that no real effort to dye the silk has been thoroughly made, and that if attention were turned to the subject by competent persons the difficulties in question could easily be overcome.

12. The other and more serious difficulties which will require to be overcome appear to be: 1st, the manner in which the cocoons are naturally distributed. It is true that the supply is inexhaustible, but owing to its distribution over a vast area, a thousand square miles will, in the natural condition of things, seldom probably yield as many cocoons as a single hamlet in Italy produces of the domesticated worm, and although the cocoons can be obtained for nothing, yet, as the search for them has to be made over enormous areas, if large quantities, such as a filature would require, are to be obtained (and it is only during one brief period of the year when the trees the Antheraea chiefly haunt are shedding their foliage that any successful search can be made), it appears doubtful whether, under these conditions, the wild cocoons would not cost more than cocoons obtained from domesticated worms.

13. It is true that the tasar worm can be entirely domesticated, but if regularly domesticated like the Bombyx mori, the produce obtained would perhaps be more costly than that of the B. mori, inasmuch as many more worms would be required to produce an equal value of silk, and if the manufacture of silk from the Bombyx worm is not remunerative, as seems sufficiently proved by the state of the industry in Bengal, à fortiori the tasar worm will not yield any profit.

14. Again, the tasar may be half domesticated, a certain number of moths being kept for laying purposes yearly, the eggs hatched, and the young worms turned out to feed themselves, thus avoiding the heavy expense (especially during the later stages) of constantly supplying fresh leaves to the worms; but here also it appears doubtful how far it will be possible to concentrate the worms or protect them from birds or other enemies if they are at all abnormally numerous on any group of trees. Under these circumstances it appears probable that it is only in a nearly wild condition that the tasar can prove remunerative.

15. The second difficulty (which is even greater than the first) depends upon an inherent defect in the filaments spun by the worm. It must be remembered that the thread of the tasar silkworm is spun from a double spinnaret, and that these filaments are not parallel, lying close side by side, but are spirals touching each other only at the exterior points of their curves, but united by the natural gum in and with which they are exuded, and it is on this spirality that the elasticity of the silk depends. Now, in reeling the silk, it is necessary that the spirals should be ground well into each other so as to form an even round thread, but it is doubtful whether the filaments can be brought to bear the amount of croissance necessary to produce the round thread, and without this it will be impossible to provide an article of export which will be acceptable in a European market.

16. Granting that this difficulty may be surmounted, it appears certain that it can only be done under skilled European supervision, aided by the best mechanical appliances in properly appointed filatures. It will be hopeless to expect that such reeling as is required to fit tasar for manufacture into superior fabrics for the European market can be done by natives working in their own homes. If success is to be expected in the manufacture of tasar silk, the operations of villagers must be confined to the production or collection of the cocoons. The reeling processes, if manufacture is to be attempted at all in India, must be carried out in properly organised filatures, possessing means and appliances, machinery and systematic supervision, such as are wholly unattainable by villagers in their own homes. Thus, for the proper reeling of tasar, where the basins must be kept at a heat of from 200° to 205° Fahr., nothing but steam can keep them uninterruptedly at precisely that temperature which is essential not only to enable the silk to unwind, but to keep the gum still retained by the filaments at just such a temperature when they reach the croissance as to be soft and yielding, but not so soft as to be worked out.

17. The conditions of successful manufacture being such, there does not appear to be any prospect of reviving the reeling of silk as a village industry, whether the silk is produced for local consumption or export. Under no circumstances would there appear to be any reasonable prospect of any proximate material enlargement of the local demand. If, therefore, anything is to be done for the country in silk, whether for the domesticated or the tasar worm, it must, it seems to the Government of India, be in the way of increased exports, either in the shape of cocoons or as raw silk so reeled as to be acceptable to the European purchaser.

18. In regard to tasar, many of the most important data necessary towards forming a satisfactory conclusion in the matter are altogether wanting, and the Government of India are of opinion that the subject should be systematically investigated, so as to set at rest all doubts which now exist.

19. Towards the attainment of this end, the first thing in regard to which it is requisite to obtain definite information, is the exact cost at which the raw material can be collected or produced in commercial quantities, both in its wild and semi-domesticated state. The next points on which further information is requisite are the cost of reeling off the silk, the amount of silk there is in proportion to cocoon, the degree in which the filaments will bear croissance, and the consequent ultimate value of the silk in the market.

20. With this object in view, the Government of Bombay and the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces will be asked to collect cocoons in order that careful experiments may be made with them in some of the leading filatures in this country, and also under the direction of Her Majesty's Secretary of State in some of the leading filatures in France and Italy. Careful and full reports on all the points noted above will be asked for, and all reasonable expenses incurred in these experiments will be re-imbursed. The Secretary of State will be asked to have experiments efficiently carried out to test the dyeing capacities of this silk, the material furnished from the experiments to be made in the filatures in France and Italy being used for the purpose. His Lordship will also be asked to cause experiments in carding to be undertaken with pierced cocoons.

From the Government of Madras, to the Government of India, No. 662, dated the 13th February 1877.

Referring to the Resolution of the Government of India, No. 5—156-165, dated 23rd November 1875, on the development of an industry in the silk of the tasar worm, &c., I am now directed by the Governor in Council to submit copy of the Proceedings of the Board of Revenue, No. 309, dated 26th January ultimo, and to state that His Grace concurs in the opinion at which the Board have arrived after communication with the Collectors and the Superintendent of the Museum at Madras, that a traffic in the cocoons or raw silk of the undomesticated worm is never likely to be established in this Presidency.

ENCLOSURE TO FOREGOING LETTER.

Proceedings of the Board of Revenue, Madras, No. 309, dated 26th January 1877.

In their Resolution embodied in G. O., dated 10th January 1876, No. 27, the Government of India review the steps which have been taken towards the development of a profitable industry in the silk of the undomesticated silk-spinning worms of India, and, after noticing the progress made in solving the two great difficulties to which attention has hitherto been chiefly directed, viz., the defective reeling and dyeing of the silk, proceed to point out that there are other and more serious obstacles to be overcome: firstly, the cost of collecting the cocoons of the undomesticated worm, owing to the vast area over which they are distributed; and, secondly, the impracticability of attempting such reeling as is required to fit tasar for the European market without skilled European supervision and the best mechanical appliances owing to certain peculiarities of the filaments spun by the worm. It was remarked that the conditions of successful manufacture are such as to prevent the reeling of silk being carried on as a village industry, and that, if anything is to be done for the country, it must be in the way of increased exports either of cocoons or the raw silk. Information concerning the cost of collection of cocoons, reeling, &c., being deficient in regard to tasar, the Government of India directed careful experiments and enquiries to be made with a view to a settlement of the doubtful points, and the Board were called upon for any suggestions they might have to offer. No information being available in the Board's Office, Collectors were requested to enquire and report as to the existence of tasar and other undomesticated silk-worms in their districts, and as to whether the raw material is utilized locally, with particulars of quality, cost of production, &c.

2. From the foregoing replies, it appears that the tasar silk-worm exists in most of the districts in the Presidency, but is nowhere very abundant. In Ganjam it is found in the Maliah tracts, but the only use to which the silk is put is as ligatures to fasten barrels of match-locks to the stocks and in the construction of arrows, for which purpose it is prized by the hill-men on account of its strength; the price is stated to be 8 annas a hundred. The cocoons do not appear to be collected for the manufacture of fabrics, as the raw material is imported from the Central Provinces and Bengal into Berham-pore for the weaving which is carried on there.

Mr. Goodrich reports that the tasar worm is found in the extreme north-west of Jeypore and in the adjacent district of Bustar; that the cocoons are collected to a certain extent, but are sent northwards to be reeled. He mentions having seen the cocoon in great abundance in Kalahandy, whence the cocoons are sent to Sonopore on the Mahanadi. The price of the best tasar silk cloth at Sonopore is stated to be a rupee a yard, the width being a yard and a half. The only portion of the Kistna district in which the tasar silk-worm is found is the Vissanapett division, but the use and value of the silk is not understood. The Deputy Tahsildar states, however, that in the Nizam's dominions, adjoining the Kistna district, considerable attention is paid to the breeding of the worm, and the process of reeling is reported to be understood. The worm is also found to a limited extent in all the other districts, except the Godavery, Bellary, Chingleput, Tanjore, Tinnevely, Trichinopoly, Nilgiri, and Salem districts, but it appears to be confined to a few scattered villages and to be generally scarce. No mention is made of the cocoons being utilised except in the Kadiri taluq of Cuddapah, and in the Head Assistant Collector's division of North Arcot. The manufacture of silk from the domesticated worm at Kadiri is stated to have been discontinued of recent years, owing to the mulberry trees having died; but in former days, when the industry was in a more thriving condition, it appears that cocoons of undomesticated species were collected and attention paid to breeding from them. In North Arcot it is stated that no attempt is made to reel off the silk, but the filaments are torn to pieces and then subjected to a process, which the Collector terms "flipping," like cotton, i.e., beaten with a bow, it is presumed, after which the silk is spun into thread and used in the manufacture of coarse cloth. The Collector of Salem reports that silk-reeling was formerly carried on in the Oosoor taluq, but has been discontinued, owing to the want of success experienced. The Collector of Coimbatore considers that the difficulties in the way of collecting the cocoons of the wild species at the exact period, when they are fit for use, and in protecting the worms in a semi-wild state from destruction, are insuperable. Mr. Thomas draws attention to the utilisation of the tasar worm in the manufacture of catgut for fishing, and suggests the advisability of encouraging the manufacture of this article as a means of employing women and children and the aged and infirm. The practical question is, as he observes, whether there is any probability of a sufficient market being found for such a product, and in the absence of statistics no conclusion can be arrived at on this point.

3. From Dr. Bidie's report it appears that there are only three important species of undomesticated silk-producing moths in Southern India, of which coloured plates have been furnished. Dr. Bidie states that the tasar moth is very generally distributed over the Presidency, but is nowhere very abundant, and the cocoons are not sufficiently abundant to repay the cost of collecting. On a microscopic examination of the filaments taken direct from the tasar cocoon, however, he has failed to detect any such quality in structure as is mentioned in paragraph 15 of the resolution of the Government of India; a representation of the filament is given in Plate I. The second species mentioned, viz., Actias Selene, is less common than the tasar; and the third is not found in this Presidency, but is common in Coorg. Dr. Bidie understands that the silk of the former has been reeled at Pondicherry, but considers that that of the latter could never be turned to any practical purpose. The specimens of cocoons received from the districts were sent to Dr. Bidie for examination. In reply, he states that the cocoons received from Cuddapah, Kistna, Nellore, and Madura are those of the common tasar of fair quality, but rather small, those from North Arcot and Kurnool rather coarse, those from Ganjam and Vizagapatam large, dark in colour, with much glutinous matter; the single cocoon sent from Malabar is dark and imperfect. He adds that the cocoons forwarded from Ganjam and Vizagapatam, which differ considerably from those sent from other districts, may be the product of the common tasar, the extra size and dark colour being due to food and climatic peculiarities, or they may be the product of other species. Specimens of the moth are required to decide the point; the Collectors of Ganjam, Vizagapatam, and Malabar will be requested to procure them for further investigation.

4. From the information now furnished, it is clear that a traffic in the cocoons or raw silk of the undomesticated worm is never likely to be established in this Presidency. The papers will be submitted for the information of Government.

From the Government of Bombay, to the Government of India, No. 113, dated 11th January 1876.

With reference to your letter No. 154, dated 23rd November last, I am directed by His Excellency the Governor in Council to forward herewith copy of an interesting report by Captain G. Coussmaker, Assistant Superintendent, Revenue Survey, Southern Mahratta Country, No. 3, dated the 20th December following, and to state that, as pointed out therein, the tasar silk industry being still in its infancy, this Government are not yet able to supply the information called for in your letter under acknowledgment.

ENCLOSURE TO FOREGOING LETTER.

From CAPTAIN G. COUSSMAKER, to the Government of Bombay, No. 3, dated 20th December 1875.

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your memorandum No. 3666 of 9th instant, calling upon me for any remarks which I might have to offer as to the manner in which the requests contained in the letter No. 154, dated 23rd November last, from A. O. Hume, Esq., C.B., Secretary to Government of India, in the Department of Revenue, Agriculture, and Commerce, could best be complied with.

2. In the above-mentioned letter, No. 154, the Government of India calls upon this Presidency to supply 10 maunds of wild cocoons and 10 maunds of semi-domesticated cocoons of Antheraea Paphia with the two-fold view of testing their quality and of estimating the cost of their production.

3. I am afraid that this Presidency will not be in a condition to comply with these demands for some time yet to come, certainly not this year of 1875-76. Not that I think that there will be any ultimate difficulty in producing this supply and much greater, but at present we have only just begun to teach our natives to collect, and until they are thoroughly aware of the fact that these cocoons are marketable, we cannot expect them to devote much time to search for them.

4. On 4th September in the present year, after the foliage had become fully developed and consequently the cocoons were hard to find, this Government sanctioned my attempt to carry out the scheme, by which I hope to stimulate the collection, and placed a sum of money for that purpose at my disposal. In accordance with this permission, I have had circulars drawn up in English, Mahratti, Canarese, and Guzarathi (I believe, but I have not yet heard from the officer to whom I entrusted the translation). I have also had a most excellent photograph taken, life-size, shewing the insect in all its stages. These circulars I have distributed among the officials of the Forest and Revenue Departments, asking them to give all possible publicity to the facts therein detailed. In these circulars I have given a description of the insect and its habits, with a few suggestions regarding the mode of collection. I have also offered a liberal price for the cocoons and arranged to take them over from the villagers in whatever way may be most convenient to them, and with this view I have lodged sundry small sums of money with various officials, and I am glad to be able to state that one and all have cordially offered to co-operate.

5. I send a copy of my circular; the photograph and a coloured copy of the same I have already forwarded to Government.

6. I propose, in furtherance of my scheme, to sort the cocoons when I collect them; to clean those which are pierced; to destroy the life in those which contain chrysalids; and to put by a certain proportion for breeding purposes, my idea being in future to depend upon three sources of supply, viz., those gathered wild in the jungles, those collected at different stages of their existence and brought up upon trees in the immediate neighbourhood of the cultivators, and lastly, those hatched out and reared under supervision either upon twigs under a roof or on small bushes easily watched over. I do not commit myself to the advocacy of any one of these methods in particular, but I think that they should all be tried. Next year I propose to issue instructions relative to semi-domestication ; this year I have simply proposed gathering, and have, with the object of giving a great and marked stimulus to the industry, offered a price above the ordinary market rate. I shall not offer so much in future, but when I shall have found out where the greatest supply is obtainable, I will then use every means in my power to instruct the producers how to increase their stock with little trouble and at little expense. Granted the supply, the next step is to find out how best to prepare the cocoons for the market.

7. With this view, as soon as I was assured of the substantial support of Government in this matter, I wrote to Chevalier Jervis at Turin, who had kindly offered to reel the uninjured cocoons for me, and to the Messrs. Satterthwaite at Lancaster, who had similarly undertaken to work up pierced cocoons, and, informing them that I had now begun to collect cocoons in large quantities, asked for instructions as to how I should treat the cocoons when I got them preparatory to shipment.

8. For, besides the defects pointed out as inherent in ordinary tasar silk by Mr. Hume, I may mention that there is another on which I have heard the manufacturers in England lay great stress, viz., the bad smell that it possesses. From enquiries which I have made, I have reason to believe that this is simply owing to the fact that the chrysalids are not desiccated before coming into the hands of the reelers, and therefore when these latter work up the cocoons, the fibre is mixed with putrid and decaying insects. The desiccation of the cocoons is a point to which I mean to pay attention.

9. In June 1871, Mr. Colnaghi, Her Majesty's Consul at Turin, reported to the Secretary of State the method by which Professor Castrogiovanni destroyed the chrysalids of Bombyx mori; and this seems to me so simple that I am intending to prepare my cocoons for the manufacturers in a similar way, but I must first ensure a steady supply.

10. I have entered thus fully into the subject that Government may see how difficult it is for me to promise to supply the amount of cocoons required in letter No. 154 of the Government of India. It would be almost suicidal if we were to part with any quantity before we had seen a promise of a supply for the future; it would be impossible to base any calculations on the supply collected this year under an artificial stimulus. I therefore respectfully beg to suggest that the Government of India be informed that this Presidency having only just begun to devote its attention to the tasar silk industry, is not yet able to state with any degree of certainty how soon it can provide the twenty maunds called for; but as soon as it can do so without detriment to the above-mentioned trade, it will do so.

11. I may add that it is my intention, after the silk shall have been worked up in Italy and England, to submit the specimens to our Bombay mill-owners, some of whom have already commenced to correspond with me on the subject; and I believe that when their attention is directed in earnest to the matter, their enterprise will prompt them to take measures to foster the cultivation of the tasar worm, and we shall then see this industry established on the firm basis of the mutual self-interest of the producer and consumer.

Circular from CAPTAIN G. COUSSMAKER, to the Mamledars, Forest Officers, and other Officials.

In many places in your districts, especially those where the Aien or Mutti, the Bher or Bori, the Kurunda, the Nandrook or Pimproon, and the Kala Koor or Lendee trees are found, a caterpillar feeds on the leaves of these trees and makes cocoons, from which a kind of silk called tasar is made. This is not very fine but is very strong, and, if carefully prepared, could be made very useful, and the collection of it would be the means of livelihood to many thousands of poor people. I have for many years made enquiries regarding this business, and now Government has ordered me to take steps to spread this knowledge and to see whether we in our Presidency cannot carry on this trade as well as the Gonds and Sonthals of Central India. The history of this insect is of this wise: about the end of May or beginning of June, a moth issues from these cocoons and lays its eggs, looking somewhat like small, flat grains of jowarce on the leaves of the trees; after a few days a small dark worm comes out, which feeds upon the leaves and, growing very quickly, becomes first yellow, with black rings and spots, and afterwards green, with beautiful small blue gold and reddish spots upon it, and sometimes besides three or four spots like silver on its side. It continues to grow till it is as big as a man's finger, and then putting two or three leaves together it makes this cocoon or house for itself, which is all made of separate threads strong enough for every purpose, like cotton. There are two crops of these cocoons in the year: the moths come out first in May, June, and July, then the caterpillars live for fifty days and make their cocoons; from these the moths come out in August, September, and October, and the caterpillars, which are their young ones, make cocoons again in October, November, and December; and then as the cold weather, and after that the hot weather, comes on, the insects inside remain asleep till the rains come again, when the leaves are nice and fresh and afford good food for their young ones. I have sent a picture of the moths, caterpillars, and cocoons, which I have raised in my own house on the Nandrook, to the Collector of your zilla, and have asked him to let everybody who likes to go to his office see it. I have also sent cocoons, whole and burst, to the Collector and asked him to send them with this letter to you. Do you now call for wood-cutters, shepherds, and men who often go into the woods, get some one to read this letter to them, and shew them the cocoons and inform them that if they will get cocoons I will send money to them and buy as many as ever they get. I want cocoons of all kinds; those that are new, heavy, and whole as well as those that are old, burst, stained, light, gnawed, or cut; all will come in to use, but of course the first kind are the most valuable. I will pay whatever price you put upon them, but I do not think that it should exceed eight annas per 100 for heavy new ones, and four annas per 100 for injured and light ones. I leave you, however, to fix the price, which should be according to the facility of procuring them. As this is the first year, a little extra price might be paid, but I expect in a short time men will collect them for six and three annas per 100. At this time of the year the caterpillars will be found feeding in great numbers on the trees I mentioned, and the men should look for them so that they may know where to look for the cocoons in two months' time. If they have trees of this kind near their own houses they can cut off twigs with the caterpillars hanging to them (the caterpillars being very delicate should not be touched), and fasten the twigs on to their trees and leave them; the caterpillars will climb up of their own accord, and after a time will make their cocoons. Thus, after a very short time, the men will recognize these caterpillars wherever they see them, and then they will easily find the cocoons. When these caterpillars eat, they devour one leaf after another, leaving the twigs bare, and as they do not move much, the ground underneath becomes strewn with their dung, which is at the last as big as that of a sheep, only very rough and deeply grooved. When the men find the cocoons, they should take them carefully off the trees, and tie all that are good and heavy on to strings, which they should put away (say hanging from the rafters of the house) safe out of the reach of rats and squirrels, and, if possible, ants as well; for all these eat the insects. As regards payments, do you pay for them this one year, let me know every two months what progress is being made, and I will send a man up to receive and pay for them at your office or the villages according to the rates you fix and the quality of the cocoons, and my man will bring them away to me. No one shall be compelled to leave his own village unless he has any complaint to make to me, or is dissatisfied at the valuation made by my man.

From MAJOR COUSSMAKER, to the Government of Bombay, No. 1, dated 5th February 1877.

" 4. With reference to the sum spent on collecting and forwarding cocoons (Rs. 216-6-11), I received through the Forest and Revenue Departments, to whom the above-mentioned circular were sent, 46,016 cocoons, for which they paid Rs. 164-1-3. These were sent to me by rail, by banghy, by return cart, and by coolies, and the expenditure on carriage of these cocoons, as well as of 8,900 sent by one of my own men from Chiplun in Ratnagiri to Bombay by boat and thence to Poona by rail, amounted to Rs. 52-5-8. The rest of my men brought in their own collections, coming to me at regular intervals with their reports. The before-mentioned 46,016 cocoons were collected as below :—

| Collectorate. | Taluka. | In detail above 1,000. | Remarks. |

The greatest amount of these cocoons were obtained from the jungles of the Konkan ; and as from thence to the Bombay market the carriage by boat and by rail is both easy and inexpensive, it may be presumed that, eventually, in this part of the country, the cultivation of the tasar silk-worm will become a permanent industry.

" 5. I have mentioned in the preceding paragraph that one of my men in Ratnagiri collected 8,900 ; the other men in the vicinity of Poona collected 7,300, which, with the collections above detailed, make the total amount collected during the year 62,216, all gathered from the trees in hilly tracts of country. The trees on which they were principally found were, in the Konkan, Zizyphus jujuba, and Zizyphus xylopyra, Pentaptera tomentosa : Bauhinia parviflora, Carissa carandas, and Celastrus montana. In the districts of Poona, Satara, Gujarat, and Khandesh on these trees, and also on Ficus Benjaminia and Ficus Tjela, Conocarpus latifolia and Lagerstræmia parviflora. I heard that in the Panch Mahals they were also found on Chloroxylon Swietenia. In the Konkan the men who collected them were Mussulmans, Mhars, and Mahrattas, more especially Katkarees, Kolies, Kunbees, Warlees, and Thakurs : men who from February to May are in the habit of cutting branches off the forest trees and spreading them, on their fields, then, placing upon these straw and manure, they weigh the whole down with a few clods of earth and set fire to it, thus applying a top dressing of ashes to their land.

6. The sum of Rs. 497-10-4 was paid for house-rent and to the people whom I employed to collect,—three men working in the neighbourhood of Poona and one man in the Konkan,—to the silk-worm tenders and other labourers. It was expended during the fifteen months under review. The monthly payments varied according to the work I found for the people to do. I tried men, women, and boys ; these latter I did not find attentive enough, but the women were careful, handled the worms tenderly, and in doors were much more useful and reliable than the men, who, however, were found necessary, as leaves and twigs had to be cut and brought in from a distance ; worms were looked after on the neighbouring hills and in the kooruns, and the peons also went round to the villages and collected cocoons, purchasing them from the ryots. I had a detached office building in my compound repaired, and there, and in some of the rooms of my house in the verandah, and in cages suspended from branches of the trees, I attempted to rear the worms ; but, I regret to say, I failed, through the scarcity of suitable food.

7. The item Rs. 123-13-0 was expended on the construction of cages and feeding trays, some of which I suspended from the rafters of the rooms, from hooks, and from trees ; others were fastened to uprights driven into the ground. In this way with wire and string-netting and with bamboo chicks, I succeeded in restraining the wandering propensities of the caterpillars, and in protecting them from their enemies ; but the food failing, batch after batch died from starvation.

8. Having thus briefly accounted for my expenditure of the public money, I now propose to detail my experiments and to record my observations. Throughout the whole of the time, between the middle of August 1875 and the end of October 1876, I was hardly ever without moths ; for the gathering of the cocoons from the trees, and the moving them about, shutting up in the baskets and bags, and generally disturbing them, had the effect of exciting them and caused the moths to come out repeatedly during the months of February and March. I had upwards of 100 moths out a night, and whenever a fresh batch of seed cocoons arrived, whatever the temperature or the time of year, moths came out in large quantities. The first supplies from the district officials arrived in February, and consisted of both full and empty cocoons packed in baskets and bags. It was not easy to find out, on arrival, how many full cocoons had been sent and how many burst; for, as I have already mentioned, the shaking had so disturbed them that the consignments were found to contain many moths more or less damaged. I therefore had them all moved out on to open trays and put into a spare room. I kept a monthly record, as below, showing what moths came out, how many females paired, and after the 14th April the number of worms hatched :—

| Month, | Males, | Females, | Paired, | Worms hatched. |
|----------------------------|--------|----------|---------|-----------------|
| February from 10th to 29th | 355 | 119 | 19 | No record kept. |
| March | 1,126 | 1,217 | 399 | |
| April | 578 | 636 | 289 | 20,770 |
| May | 539 | 557 | 115 | 11,781 |
| June | 501 | 523 | 424 | 38,579 |
| July | 430 | 113 | 372 | 43,097 |
| August | 423 | 320 | 309 | 15,851 |
| September from 1st to 10th | 112 | 120 | 89 | 7,553 |
| Total | 4,097 | 4,235 | 2,015 | 170,631 |

9. Before the supplies from the districts came in, my men had only gathered in the neighbourhood some 300 cocoons, and these and the moths that came out of them, as well as the caterpillars which were hatched, were mostly sacrificed in experiments; and the result was, that I confirmed my former theory that the males require more liberty than the females, that these latter rarely move away from their empty cocoons, or from the twigs on to which they crawl when their wings are stiffening, while the former fly away as soon as their wings are stiff enough; and as during the rainy season there are generally several male moths flying about the station, females, when tied out, are soon paired, their tale-like discs, shining like little moons at night, act like the light of the glowworm to attract the male. In this way I succeeded in getting nearly all the females which came out during the monsoon of 1875 paired, but I failed in the rearing; my space was limited, and my cages were badly ventilated, and although I hatched out several hundreds I only gathered 50 cocoons during that season. I afterwards moved into a larger house and gave up much more room. Working on a system, I joined chairs and tables together, with bamboos connecting them so as to form a succession of benches: on these I placed bamboo-mat trays, and above I hung twigs on strings, entirely giving up the indoors cage system. In some places I put rows of small pots with twigs in them, filling them with moist earth; but I did not find this answer, as the caterpillars were always more ready to crawl down the pots than up them, and the free circulation of air was much hindered; so I determined to trust to the strings alone. For a short time everything went on well. I had plenty of good fresh leaves; the worms were not crowded, and they grew considerably; but long before the 50 days of their life were at an end, the leaves on the trees became hard or diseased, and although I had any amount in quantity at my disposal, I had none of a good quality. Caterpillar after caterpillar pined and withered away, and this has been the story the whole season. Although the trees have from time to time flushed and sent out quantities of beautiful fresh shoots, these efforts have only been spasmodic, and owing to the great scarcity of rain throughout the neighbourhood, I found it simply impossible to ensure a steady supply of suitable food from the way-side trees, numerous though these are.

10. I found that a considerable number of the young worms crawled down the legs of the chairs and tables and disappeared, so I altered my arrangement of the trays. I fastened ropes on to the rafters and to hooks in the ceiling, and passing them through broken bottle fair-lead-ers, so as to prevent the enemies of the worms descending and they themselves ascending. I made a succession of swinging trays, over which I put the strings of twigs as before. By this method there was great saving in the labour of tending; the worms were much more secure, and the ventilation was good; but again it was the same story, the food failed. I changed the place of the swinging trays; some I put on boughs of trees, some in one verandah, some in another; but the food was no better. I let some loose on trees in the station; but there were no fresh leaves, and they died or were taken by the birds and squirrels and lizards. I then found on a range of hills of few miles out of Poona a tract of grassy country containing many bushes and saplings of Terminalia, Lagerstromia, and Carissa. Here I turned down some thousands and set men to watch them during the day. For some 5 weeks they got on well; we had a very large quantity of worms and a fair amount of leaves, when a very hot fortnight intervened, the saplings and small bushes lost their leaves, and I lost nearly all of the worms, and my men missed their chance of premia and full pay, for they were paid by the results, and were to the very last as sanguine as myself. I consider that I failed in rearing entirely through the unprecedented drought and the consequent insufficiency of suitable food.

11. Although I failed in rearing, I succeeded in breeding and in procuring fertile eggs. During the hot weather there were no wild males flying about, so I found that it was not much use tying the females out, but during the rains I was quite successful. I therefore, from February to May, turned all the moths, as they came out, into a bedstead covered with mosquito curtains, and a fair proportion paired there; but after May I adopted the following system, which I shall always follow in future. I rigged up syinging trays as already described, and in the mat trays resting on them I placed the cocoons, covering the whole with bamboo chicks fastened up like a pent house about 3 feet high. The moths, after they came out of the cocoons, crawled up the chicks and there hung while their wings were expanding. I found that several pairs took place in these cages: each morning I looked at them, and leaving the pairs inside the cages undisturbed, I put all the rest of the moths into a large basket and covered them up. About 4 in the afternoon I looked at them and found that some pairs had taken place; these were left undisturbed, and all the unpaired females tethered to a small frame of trellis work. At dark this frame was hung up to a tree, and all the unpaired and free males liberated near it. I generally found in the morning that the majority of the tethered females were paired; the frame was then brought in doors and hung up out of the way. Great care was always taken that no pairs should be separated by force; they were always allowed to free themselves, and after they had done so, the females were put under inverted baskets to lay their eggs, while the males were put into a basket to be liberated at sunset. By systematically carrying out this method, the majority of females paired and their eggs proved fertile, but the average was less than I had formerly noticed, only 106 per moth. I did not have the eggs laid counted, only the number of worms hatched.

12. My head silk-worm tender was a Mahratta widow, who had been educated in the Female Normal School at Poona; and it is principally to her that I am indebted for the figures I have quoted. She tried every contrivance in the way of closing windows and doors, hanging up wet cloths, putting kuskas tatties to the doors, sprinkling the twigs, dipping them in water: but it was of no avail. We had no disease, no epidemic, no bad smell, but simply starvation. We kept accounts of deaths in some instances and compared the proportions of deaths among the different sizes, and found that two-thirds of those which died were under a week in age; but of 170,634 hatched between 1st April and 10th September, only 2,623 grew up and spun cocoons, and this we laid entirely to the difficulty of getting suitable food. Under this woman I had two other women and five lads at different times, some looking after the worms in my compound and some tending them in the jungles on the hills near, and at odd times they all cleaned the burst cocoons and prepared them for the manufacturers.

13. The majority of the cocoons sent to me were those of Antheraea Paphia and belonged to the common variety of that moth. In September 1875, Major Bowie, Deputy Commissioner at Sambulpore, sent me some belonging to another variety called by the natives of the Central Provinces the "Chateesgarh" cocoon; these were larger but much thinner and softer, and the moths slightly darker, but they paired readily with the small, hard cocoon kind, and I think that the difference between the two cocoons was simply owing to climate and feeding. The Chateesgarh moths were more delicate and limp-bodied. The remaining cocoons I received from the Bombay jungles were of Attacus Edwardesii and of Cricula trifenestrata; several moths of both these species came out, but none paired, so I can make no report about their domestication. The former of these seems distributed over the whole Presidency, and I have also received some from Mysore; the latter came from the jungles of North Kanara only; they are both described by the late Captain Thomas Hutton, and I can add nothing to his description.

14. The tree which I used for indoors rearing was the Nandruk (Ficus Benjaminia); the leaves stand travelling well (I sent at one time 20 miles down the line for food), and keep fresh long; it has constant flushes of young leaves, and being planted for shelter in many places along the road-side, was in every way the best suited for an experiment on a large scale; but as the trees are neither pruned nor watered, the supply of suitable leaves proved unreliable. I tried the Bher (Zizyphus jujuba), but it withers very quickly. However, on it, the Ain (Terminalia, or Pentaptera tomentosa), the Lendeyan (Lagerstrœmia parviflora), and the Karanda (Carissa carandas), a few caterpillars grew to maturity out of doors.

15. Having thus fully detailed my own experiments, I will now relate what others have done this year. Mr. Woodrow, the Superintendent of the Botanical Gardens at Ganesh Khind, had a small sum placed at his disposal by the Collector of Poona for the purpose of experimentalising in tasar sericulture. He has laid down a great many cuttings of Ficus Benjaminia, which will in the course of a few years grow into an extensive plantation, and from these we may be sure of getting leaves of the most suitable quality. As there are many of these same trees planted along the roads in the neighbourhood of the gardens, we expected that he would easily get a supply of food for this year's worms, so he erected a light, commodious shed, with the sides and top of coir-matting,—an economical and very effective kind of structure, which I hope hereafter to try myself. Mr. Woodrow succeeded in getting a few seed cocoons, and I also from time to time gave him fertile eggs. The result of his experiments was the same as of mine; every now and again the caterpillars thrived well, but when the leaves deteriorated, the caterpillars starved and died; he got 923 good cocoons at the close of his experiments. Mr. Lyle, one of the employes of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company, an American by birth, tried a series of experiments in rearing these silk-worms at his house, near Dapuri: as he had no room or shed to keep them in, he constructed with much skill and ingenuity a set of large pens or cages fixed on to uprights driven into the ground under some good shade-giving trees. The sides and tops of his cages were made of bamboo chicks closely fastened together, so that no caterpillars could escape, but plenty of air could get in, and none of the silk-worms' enemies could get at them; coating the uprights with tar and castor-oil mixed, he effectually prevented anything climbing up. Inside his cages Mr. Lyle stretched wires lengthways of the cages, and on these he hung the twigs. A good deal of light rain fell at Dapuri during the month of August when he had his cages full, and the wind driving moisture through the interstices of the chicks kept his leaves fresher than mine; and here certainly the worms thrive well, quite as well as on the trees. He got some cocoons from trees along the line, and I also provided him with some fertile eggs; from these (which he began to rear on the 7th August, and which had all spun by the 20th September) he gathered 1,509 cocoons, the majority of which were as fine as any jungle-reared specimens which I have seen in this neighbourhood. He tells me that he had as many as 180 spun in a single day. He had a greater choice of food than I had, and managed to secure a superior quality of leaf throughout the 45 days. He fed the worms on Ficus Benjaminia and Ficus Tjiela, on twigs 18 inches in length, and put very close together. He noticed that they fed impartially on these two kinds of leaf; sometimes one was of better quality than the other, and this fact the worms were quick enough to find out. The great objection to Ficus Tjiela is that when it dries or fades the leaf rolls up and hurts the caterpillar resting on it, especially at time of moulting. This was exactly my own experience; and he also verified the fact which I had noticed, that the caterpillars would not go from Nandruk to Bher, or from Bher to Nandruk, if they had begun to eat one kind. Mr. Lyle by accident found that the worms thrive very well on Lagerstræmia Indica, a very leafy, ornamental, flowering shrub found in most gardens; both he and I put some caterpillars on these trees, and found that they grew enormously and spun very large cocoons. I shall pay much attention to the cultivation of this shrub another time, but fear that it is a very slow grower.

There were also experiments made in Dharwar with regard to rearing the tasar silk-worm; but, owing to the small amount of seed cocoons obtained, no important result was noted. I trust this next season to make arrangements by which a constant supply of fertile eggs shall be secured from the central breeding establishment at Poona.

16. Unfortunately I shall not be in Poona myself, as on being relieved I shall, before the monsoon sets in, return to Dharwar to take up my substantive appointment in the Revenue Survey at that station; but I will hand over every thing, including 2,000 seed cocoons, to Mr. Woodrow, and give him full written instructions as to the manner in which I think it best to carry out the scheme; and I will write to each place whence I received supplies of over 1,000 cocoons, and find out whether there is any one there who will receive eggs gratis, and sell the cocoons afterwards at a fixed rate, no distinction being made between full and burst cocoons. The temptation of being dishonest on the part of agents will then be removed, and finding that full cocoons produce moths which lay eggs, the cultivators may be induced to treat them carefully and take steps to prevent any life being wasted.

17. This year's experiments have shown me the following facts, and by them my future attempts will be ruled:—

- (1.)—Seed cocoons should be moved about as little as possible, for fear that the moths might come out when the weather is unsuitable.
- (2.)—Feeding on twigs gathered from unpruned trees planted by the roadside is a mistake, as on twigs 18 inches long there are only 3 or 4 leaves of a suitable quality.
- (3.)—Plantation should be made of the kinds of trees and shrubs which thrive best in the selected localities, and these trees should be grown as pollards. When the worms are fed out of doors, the trees should be protected with cages or nets when under shelter, either in coir-matting, covered sheds, or in portable pens or cages; the 3rd, 4th and 5th leaves from the terminal leaf of the twig should only be used, and these should be renewed three or four times daily.
- (4.)—Fertile eggs can always be ensured by the system of cages, baskets, and tethering mentioned by me in paragraph 11; only the eggs of the healthiest moths should be kept for distribution or for home rearing.
- (5.)—Since the silk mill in Bombay can work up the burst cocoons so beautifully, there is no need to kill a single chrysalis; all the moths should be allowed to come out of the cocoons.
- (6.)—After the moths come out there are generally a few drops of excrement left in the cocoon: these should be shaken out and the cocoons put on one side to dry; after four or five days these cocoons should be carefully cleaned, all pieces of leaf or twig cleaned off from the outside, and all exuvium, as cast skin of caterpillar and chrysalis, removed from the inside; there will then be nothing left to attract beetles, and the cocoons will be clean and ready for the market.
- (7.)—The habits of the trees or shrubs used for feeding the worms on should be carefully watched, with the view of finding out the best way to treat them, so as to ensure a steady supply of suitable food.

18. The result of the manufacturing of the tasar cocoons into fabrics is as follows:—When I commenced these experiments under report I was under the impression that it would be necessary to send the cocoons or the raw silk to Europe; for, although I knew that there were mills in Bombay, I did not think that there were any in which silk was manufactured; however, I was fortunate enough to get into correspondence with Messrs. Tapidass Vurjdass and Company, Secretaries and Treasurers of the Alliance Spinning and Weaving Company, Limited. This Company has been manufacturing water-twists for the last thirteen years, and the weaving establishment has been at work for a very little over a twelve month. In this mill, spun silk has been made from Bengal chasm and from damaged cocoons of B. Mori. No reeling is as yet done on the premises, but raw silk is bought in China and also in the local market; both aniline and vegetable dyes are used for the raw and spun silk. "Poplin," "Satin," "Japanese," and "Korah" silk pieces are wove, which meet with a ready sale in the local market. This enterprising Company has got out from the English silk mills four superintendents to instruct the mill hands in weaving, spinning, and managing the machinery: over the whole mill there is a (Bombay educated) Parsee Manager. The Company has ample plant for carrying on the work in all its branches, and turns out some hundreds of pounds of spun and neat silk per week; they use up this themselves, and have disposed of a large quantity besides, having largely contracted for the delivery of much more. Under these circumstances it speaks much for their public-spiritedness that they were so ready to give up time and money to work out this experiment for me. I placed the whole matter unreservedly in Messrs. Tapidass Vurjdass' hands, and sent them 112 lbs. of cocoons cleaned as well as could be done by my labourers without boiling the same. Messrs. Tapidass informed me that from these cocoons about 10 per cent. pure silk and about 30 per cent. noils or refuse were obtained, while about 30 per cent. was lost in the boiling; this loss being, I suppose, the natural cement, the dirt, and foreign matters left in by the cleaners. The Company, therefore, had about 45 lbs. to experimentalise upon: some of this they wove into all tasar cloth, some into tasar poplin; a considerable quantity was used in experiments made with the view of bleaching it, and a small amount is still on their hands. Samples of these fabrics, as well as a small skein of the yarn, are herewith attached. Of these, Nos. 2 and 4 are pure tasar throughout; the remaining six have tasar for the warp and polished coloured yarn (presumably of wool) for the weft. The skein of silk is "ungassed;" before being used for weaving it is passed through jets of gas, and the greater portion of the minute fibres which give it a woolly appearance are singed off. Messrs. Tapidass regret that they can put no value upon this material in either the form of cocoons, of yarn, or of piece-goods; as hitherto they have not found that there is any demand for tasar. If they could be supplied with the yarn as white, or as nearly white, and as capable of taking every dye, as the B. Mori silk is, they could then use it, but in its present condition they can make no use of it: still they are glad of having had the opportunity of experimenting on the raw material, and feel confident that, if a demand for tasar goods should arise in the local market, they would be able from this indigenous product of the Presidency to manufacture whatever may be called for. I shall continue to make inquiries and carry on correspondence with firms who will give this stimulus, and hope that, as I have succeeded in collecting the raw material and in getting it manufactured in our Presidency, I may similarly succeed in finding the purchasers.

From the Government of Bombay, to the Government of India, No. 1791, dated 12th June 1877.

With reference to the correspondence ending with Mr. Under Secretary Lyall's letter No. 31, dated 26th ultimo, relative to experiments in the hybridising of the tasar and the oak-feeding silk-worm, I am directed to state, for the information of the Government of India, that Mr. Mowis, in spite of repeated calls from Government, has forwarded no report, and that it has been ascertained indirectly that he declines to make known the results of his processes, preferring to use his knowledge for his own benefit. He has, however, shewn the result of his experiments both in the shape of the hybridised worms and their produce to many private individuals, and there can be no doubt as to their complete success. They undoubtedly, in the opinion of this Government, open out a prospect of the rise of a most valuable industry in India, where the food on which the worm lives, viz., the Nandrook (Ficus Benjaminia) and other varieties of the Ficus are indigenous and abundant, and it is strongly recommended that a supply of eggs of the Yama Mai be procured from Japan, and distributed to the different model farms in this country with a view to the experiment becoming widely known, and encouraged.

2. As regards Captain Coussmaker, I am to state that he has been relieved of his employment in Poona, where he experimented on tasar silk-worms and has been transferred to the Southern Mahratta Country on famine duty, from which it will be impossible to relieve him for the present; but that when the crisis has passed, arrangements will be made to carry out the suggestions of the Secretary of State relative to his employment to superintend the collection of a further supply of cocoons.

From the Government of Bombay, to the Government of India, No. 1381, dated 29th April 1878.

I am directed by His Excellency the Governor in Council to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. Assistant Secretary O'Connor's letter No. 25C., dated 30th ultimo, enquiring whether any progress has been made in the collection, under the superintendence of Captain (now Major) Coussmaker, of the further quantity of tasar cocoons required by Her Majesty's Secretary of State.

2. In reply, I am directed to forward herewith copy of a letter from Major Coussmaker, No. 9, dated 16th instant, and to state, for the information of the Government of India, that the duties of this officer as Assistant Superintendent, Revenue Survey, prevented him unavoidably from making the desired collections of tasar silk cocoons.

ENCLOSURE TO FOREGOING LETTER.

From CAPTAIN G. COUSSMAKER, to the Government of Bombay, No. 9, dated 16th April 1878.

With reference to your memorandum No. 120 of the 6th instant, asking "what progress has been made in the collection of tasar cocoons for the Secretary of State," I beg to inform you that I myself have collected none; that owing to my absence from Poona since April last, when I gave over charge of the Photozincographic Office and went on famine relief duty to the Belgaum Collectorate, only returning in December, and again leaving Poona after a very few days to join my appointment in this survey, I have not been able to personally superintend any experiments in rearing tasar worms.

2. When I left Poona the first time, I, in accordance with the instructions which I received, handed over my batch of seed cocoons (some 2,000) to Mr. Woodrow, asking him to try and rear as many worms as he could, to distribute seed, and to procure, if possible, the cocoons produced therefrom. He informs me that during the monsoon many moths had come out of my cocoons and had laid fertile eggs; that somehow or another he had not been very successful in the rearing, but that he had obtained a few cocoons as a first crop, and from the moths which came out from these cocoons he had got some fertile eggs, thus proving that a second crop was obtainable; but of this batch nearly all the worms had died and he had hardly any cocoons left for another year. I have asked him to get all the burst cocoons cleaned, but, as mentioned before, I myself had no time to examine them and see how many are fit to be sent to England or elsewhere for manufacturing purposes.

3. Mr. Woodrow also informed me that the worms did not seem to thrive well under shelter, that some which he had placed upon trees seemed to feed for a time and then to disappear; he gathered very few cocoons of these. He sent away a good many eggs, but had not heard what had been the result. He had sent some to Mr. Moore, the Collector of Satara, who informs me that he liberated some on trees, but saw no more of them; he could not feel sure whether they had died, or had been carried away by any of their many enemies. Mr. Woodrow also sent me some eggs, and I let the worms loose on trees in the talukas of Belgaum where I was at work. I certainly saw them for a time and then they disappeared. On two trees in particular they thrived very well for some days, but I was not able to go near them for a fortnight, and then there were none left. Owing to press of work, I was unable to keep any daily notes or watch them closely, so I cannot feel sure why this experiment failed.

4. I sent letters to twelve mamledars and forest officers, asking them whether any people in their districts would rear worms, collect and sell the cocoons if eggs were distributed gratis. From the answers which I received, it appeared that no one would engage to do so.

5. From the imperfect observations which I was able to make this last year, I gather that home-reared cocoons can be safely put by in Poona from the end of one monsoon to the beginning of another; that the moths which issue from these will lay an abundance of fertile eggs; that from this, the first crop, it is possible to obtain a supply of fertile eggs for a second crop. But why this year the first crop did not yield a full supply of cocoons, and the second crop still less, I cannot say; the weather or the food may have been against the worms, or there may have been facilities for their enemies to get at them. Mr. Woodrow himself says that he cannot for certain assign any reason.

6. My next experiments will be directed towards rearing the worms on bushes and shrubs, which can either be moved in and out of shelter or be easily covered over with cages; but close and daily observation is requisite, and the habits of the plants must be studied as well as those of the worm.

7. I have heard from Mr. Thomas Wardle, who has sent me some samples of tasar silk, thrown, dyed, wove, and printed in England, shewing manufacturers have made great progress of late in working up this material, getting almost as beautiful results from it as from B. mori silk, and most clearly showing, as I have always held, that if once a steady supply of tasar cocoons raised under the most favourable circumstances could be ensured, the goods made therefrom would command a good price in the market.

From the Government of Bengal, to the Government of India, No. 712, dated 5th March 1877.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 7, dated the 13th February 1877, in the last paragraph of which it is stated that steps should be taken to ascertain the extent to which the tasar silk-worm is found in Bengal, and directing that, after the necessary enquiries, a report on the subject should be submitted as speedily as possible.

2. In reply, I am to state that on receipt of Mr. Hume's letter No. 244, dated 26th September 1872, the subject of the production of tasar in the Lower Provinces of Bengal was specially brought under the consideration of Government and of local officers. The two points suggested in that letter were much the same as those now under discussion, viz., (1) to endeavour to obtain a more correct approximation to the probable supply of tasar-cocoons available, and (2) to set on foot experiments in order to ascertain the possibility of profitably utilizing in some way the supply existing.

3. To obtain these data, a circular was addressed to the Commissioners of the Burdwan, Chota Nagpore, Orissa, and Bhagulpore divisions, in which the following questions were specifically put:—

- (1) Is tasar silk (under any name) usually collected in the state of cocoons, or are eggs collected and hatched in so-called gardens (or enclosures in the jungle), and are the worms tended with care by the growers?
- (2) Are tasar eggs produced by moths in captivity ever fruitful, and are they kept for a future crop of worms?
- (3) On what trees do the worms feed?
- (4) If tasar cocoons are collected in the jungle, can any estimate be formed of the weight annually collected in the district? Is the right to collect them farmed out by the zemindars, and what is approximately the area on which they are collected?
- (5) What caste collects the cocoons, who rears the tasar worms, and what caste sells the tasar silk, and how? How does such silk sell?
- (6) Are there any, and (if any) what, varieties of insect-producing silk besides the ordinary silk-worm and tasar-worm?

A full collection of reports was finally received, and Mr. Geoghegan, who was at that time Secretary to the Board of Revenue, and is, as the Government of India are aware, exceptionally qualified to form an opinion, was good enough to examine the reports and favour this Government with observations on the subject, upon which the following remarks are principally based.

4. The result of the enquiries that were then made shews that the insect (or insects) known as the tasar moth or Antheraea Paphia is found in the jungles of Bankoora, Midnapore (west), in the northern part of Balasore, Bhagulpore (south), Sonthal Parganas (chiefly Doomka, Godda, and Rajmehal), Hazareebagh (particularly in Gaddies Gawan and Satgawan, and parganas Gola, Ootara Kunda, and to some extent in Gaddies Palgunge and Seerampore), Lohardugga (Palamow, Bilounjah, Tamar police-station, part of Toorpa, Palkote, and Bira circles), Singbhoom, and Manbhoom. It is also found throughout the Orissa hills, though it is strange that the replies of the Chota Nagpore tributary chiefs report little or no tasar. It is probable that, though the cocoons may not be collected, the insect is to be found in those tracts. On the Orissa side Keonjhar is expressly mentioned as one of the sources of the tasar worked in Burdwan.

Roughly speaking, it appears that the tasar insect will be found throughout all tree and scrub jungle lying south and west of a line marking the southern and western limit of the continuous cultivation of the Gangetic alluvial and the Orissa littoral tracts of country.

5. In this region it is variously said to feed on the sâl, the asan, the dhao, the deota, sedda, kokore, ber, koa, tend, arjun, asta, and "plum" trees. Of these, the sâl is the Shorea robusta, the asan the Terminalia tomentosa, the ber the Zizyphus jujuba, the arjun the Pentaptera arjuna, the "plum" is probably Syzgium jambolanum. The main feeding grounds are the sâl, asan, and ber forests.

6. Whether the insect is of one or many species has not been determined. Captain Hutton maintains that several species are now included under the one name of tasar or Antheraea Paphia, and there is certainly great variety between individuals; but it is not easy to say whether these differentiae constitute distinct species. With regard to Captain Hutton's remarks in the paper which forms appendix A to Mr. Geoghegan's Silk in India, it is observed by Mr. Geoghegan that the pairing of the sexes is left to nature; the females are left in the open air and are sought by free males. Hence, if several species interbreed so readily as Captain Hutton supposes, the present state of things must be a perfect chaos, from which it would be impossible to extract any pure breed. The natives certainly divide the insects, or their cocoons, into several classes; but the classifications (as native classifications so often are) defy all categories; nor was Mr. Geoghegan able to find that the idea of race enters into them at all.

7. The classification noticed by the Board of Trade in 1819 (see Silk in India, pages 110 and 111) seems to be this—

- (1.) The "bonbunda" or cocoon found in its natural state in the forest.
- (2.) (a) the mooga, female, and (b) the teerah, male, of cocoons formed by worms bred in domesticity of the first generation, i. e., from eggs laid by moths issuing from wild cocoons collected in July or August.
- (3.) (a) "dabba," (b) "buggoy," (c) "tarroy." It is not apparent how these are classed; the buggoy seems to depend on its colour, the tarroy on the season at which it is bred. The account is very confused.

Dr. Buchanan Hamilton (see page 111, Silk in India) complained of a similar difficulty in the accounts given him by the natives in Bhagulpore. He gives four kinds—dabba, ~~sar~~an, jarhan, and langga. According to one account the dabba were wild cocoons, the others successively degenerating.

8. According to the Beerbhoom tasar-weavers there are three classes of cocoons—northern, western, and southern, the southern yielding silk in much larger proportion to number of cocoons than the northern (in fact, 800 southern will yield as much as 1,280 of the northern kind). The Collector of Bankoora says the cocoons are of two sorts—tunti, smaller, and muga, larger. The report of the Collector of Burdwan gives an eight-fold division as follows:—

- | | | |
|--------------|-----|--|
| (1.) Moodeh | ... | Apparently Board of Trade's bonbunda, the wild cocoon. |
| (2.) Bowra | ... | The cocoon from which the moth has eaten out. This is obviously illogical, as a different method of classification is here introduced. |
| (3.) Nereh | ... | Not defined. |
| (4.) Dabba | ... | "Said to be offspring of moodeh." |
| (5.) Buggoy | ... | |
| (6.) Tereh | ... | |
| (7.) Mooga | ... | Male and female respectively in the second generation. |
| (8.) Ampatia | ... | |
| | | Produces an inferior quality of silk and is principally used as a seed-cocoon. |

Perhaps, putting this and the minute of the Board of Trade together, it is possible to get an explanation for certain kinds depending on their nearness to the original wild cocoon: The report of the Deputy Commissioner, Manbhoom, however, puts them in a different order. He says there are three kinds—the ampatia, collected in April and May; the mooga, collected in June and July; the dabba, in August and September. The dabba is best of those reared artificially, but the jungle cocoons are best of all.

Whether or not these classifications can be explained and reconciled, Mr. Geoghegan does not think that they point to any notion of different species prevailing in the native mind.

9. The Deputy Commissioner of Singbhoom gives still another account. According to him the mooga and terch are the female and male jungle cocoon. Cocoons in the next generation are of two sorts—loreah and buggoy; the dabba is the next generation and is the best, and is ready in September.

10. In the list of contributions from Bengal to the London Exhibition of 1873 were sets of cocoons, thread, and cloth of the three kinds named ampatia, dabba, and buggoy. There was a difference perceptible in the cloth, but none in the cocoons. Each set contained cocoons of very various shades—deep slate colour, ashen, yellowish white, and reddish white. If the names mean (as they seem to do) “having the appearance of a mango leaf” (see Captain Coussmaker’s description of the worm), “white” (dhabala), and “tiger-striped” (baghai), they may point to some distinctive appearance of the larva. But the whole question—one species or several—can only be satisfactorily solved by a naturalist observing the insect in all stages.

11. For the most part the wild cocoon, as first plucked from the branch where it has been placed by the insect in a state of freedom, is not sent at once to market. But in Bankoora and Manbhoom, at any rate, some portion of the wild cocoons is at once converted into thread. Speaking generally, however, the jungle-borne crop is kept for seed.

The seed is not carried on from year to year, but is annually renewed from the jungle.

12. In Bankoora, the first jungle cocoons seem to be collected in Asharh, Sraban, or Bhadra (i. e., from June to August), and the eggs laid in Bhadra (August). In Midnapore, the season of breeding is not given. In Bhagulpore, Jyaishta and Asharh (May and June) are said to be the collecting months. In the Sonthal Pargana, January and February, September and October. In Hazareebagh the season varies; in some parts there are three crops, in others only one. In Manbhoom the jungle cocoons must be collected about March; in Singbhoom about April.

13. The mode of breeding seems everywhere nearly the same. As soon as the moths emerge from the cocoons kept for seed, the females are exposed and left to form their own connexions, whether with the males emerging from the same batch of cocoons or with jungle moths. Impregnation having taken place, the eggs, which are immediately laid, are collected in baskets, trays, pots, or on tufts of grass; and when, in some eight days, the worms begin to emerge, they are placed on the asan or sâl trees growing in sites defended from their enemies (birds and insects), and moved from tree to tree as they devour the foliage of their first location, till finally, in about fifty days and after five moults, they spin their cocoon upon the tree.

14. How many complete cycles there are in the year cannot be easily stated. In Midnapore it is not apparent how often the process is repeated in the year, nor is the Collector’s account for Bankoora very intelligible. It is meant apparently that the jungle cocoon is collected in June, that its eggs are laid at once, and that moths from these eggs lay eggs in August, which produce cocoons in September; that the eggs laid by moths emerging from these cocoons produce cocoons in January, while from January to June they are left to nature. There must be a cycle in that interval; so in Bankoora the insect would appear to be quadrivoltine. The same would appear to be the case in Bhagulpore and in Singbhoom and Manbhoom. In the last, three out of the four bunds are formed in captivity, i. e., on the trees of the breeder’s plantation. Mr. Geoghegan adds that he is not sure whether, between the dabba cocoon formed in August, and the jungle cocoons which must be collected about February, two cycles do not intervene. This would make it quinquivoltine.

15. Mr. Forbes, the Sub-divisional officer of Palamow, gives a different account. According to him the domesticated tasar is reduced to a bivoltine. Cocoons are formed once in August and once in November. From November to the next June "the cocoons kept for seed are carefully packed in kodo-straw, just as seed-dhan is packed and stored in some dry place till June following." Not only then, if Mr. Forbes' account be strictly accurate, has the insect been thoroughly domesticated, but it has been so completely changed in habit as to become a bivoltine, the cocoons formed in November not opening to let out the moth till the following June. The whole subject requires more careful consideration. In the first place it appears open to question whether the facts are ascertained beyond all doubt. If they are correct, it might be possible to domesticate the worm without reducing the rapidity of reproduction. If without degeneracy of the breed a tasar domesticated, yet quadrivoltine, could be raised, we should have a silk-producer of twice the value of this Palamow worm.

16. With regard to outturn, whether of cocoons collected from the jungle or cocoons regularly reared, it was not to be expected that any very accurate estimate could be framed. The Collectors have (wisely) not even hazarded guesses on the subject. Perhaps some estimate might be got of the amount of cocoons sold at the marts in Burdwan, Beerbhoom, Bhagulpore, Bankoora and in Gya or Patna, and possibly of the exports to Mirzapore; but we should still be unable to reckon the amount absorbed by the local village weavers.

17. As to any cess levied by zemindars, it is said that in Midnapore the collectors pay 8 annas or 12 annas per head for the right to collect; in Balasore they pay as much as a rupee or a rupee and a half; in Bankoora no cess is said to be levied; in Bhagulpore the rate is 5 annas a head; in the Sonthal Parganas the charge is either so much a tree, or 12 annas to Re. 1-8 per patch of jungle used as feeding ground; in Hazareebagh each rearer pays 6 annas to 8 annas for the privilege; in Palamow a "koa" revenue appears to be paid to Government. In consideration of this the proprietor levies a rate which ultimately assumes the shape of a bansua-tax, or tax on the bill-hook of 4 annas per annum.

18. The chief collectors and breeders of the tasar are the aboriginal tribes—Sonthals, Paharias, Kols, Oraons, Cheros, Kherwars, &c., and the lower Hindu or semi-Hindu castes—Bagdis, Bowris, Tewars, Bhuiyas, Bhogtar, Samantas, Chamars, Dosads, Koormees, and Gowals are also mentioned. The breeders seem to collect their own wild cocoons from the jungle,—a different practice from that which prevails in the Central Provinces. The breeders sometimes deal direct with the weavers, but generally receive advances from a baniya or mahajan, who thus receives the cocoons and makes them over to the local weavers, or exports them to some of the marts outside the district. The belief in the necessity of ceremonial purity, and the exclusion of women from the operation of rearing tasar on this ground seem universal.

19. The price of cocoons seems to vary a good deal. Mr. Geoghegan expresses his doubts of the accuracy of much of the information on this point. In Midnapore prices run from Rs. 6 to Rs. 10 per kahan (1 kahan=16 pans of 80 cocoons each \therefore =1,280). At Kalipore, near Soory, the Sonthals are said to get Rs. 8 per kahan; yet the Deputy Commissioner puts the price in the Sonthal Parganas at 350 to 450 per rupee, or, say, Rs. 3 to Rs. 4 per kahan. In Bankoora the Tantis are said to pay Rs. 6 or Rs. 7 per kahan.

The Burdwan Collector's report gives prices varying from 120 to 450 per rupee, according to the eight kinds furnished; this would be from about Rs. 3 to Rs. 10 per kahan. Yet it is said that the cheapest sort (ampatia) fetches Rs. 16 per kahan, if bought for breeding. This is not very intelligible, for it is not clear how the purpose of the buyer can affect the demand of the seller. The information is hearsay. In Hazareebagh the rearers get indebted to the baniya, and sell at Rs. 5 to Rs. 6 the kahan of 1,680, or about Rs. 4 to Rs. 5 the kahan. The baniya gets about $7\frac{1}{2}$ to $8\frac{1}{2}$ per kahan. In pargana Golah the rearers seem to get a trifle better price. In Palamow, after repaying advances at 50 per cent., the breeder gets from Rs. 4 to Rs. 6 per kahan; in Singbhoom the price is Rs. 8 to Rs. 10 per kahan; in Manbhoom the price averages Rs. 6 per kahan. The cocoons of Chota Nagpore seem almost entirely exported to Bhaugulpore, Gya, Burdwan, Benares, Azingurh, and Mirzapore. They are not even wound off on the spot.

20. An alkaline lye is always used in reeling off; the process is of the rudest, and the thread produced foul and uneven.

21. Details as to prices of raw tasar or tasar cloth are meagre. In Midnapore raw tasar is said to fetch 6 tolahs to 8 tolahs the rupee. At Soory a piece of stuff containing 15 chittacks of raw tasar fetches Rs. 12. In Bankoora a kahan of cocoons will make two "pairs of dhotis," fetching Rs. 14 to Rs. 18; a than of twilled tasar fetches Rs. 9 or Rs. 10, but the weight of silk is not given. At Soory a kahan of cocoons is said to yield 15 chittacks of silk. Prices of the Burdwan stuffs of tasar, or tasar mixed with cotton, are not given. At Bhagulpore the raw silk fetches Rs. 10 to Rs. 13 per seer: width of stuff is not mentioned, so details on that point are useless. In the Sonthal Parganas a kahan of cocoons is said to yield $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 seers silk, which fetches Rs. 9 to Rs. 13-8 per seer.

22. With regard to the last question, enquiring if there are any varieties of insect-producing silk besides the ordinary silk-worm and tasar-worm, it is observed by Mr. Geoghegan that there are doubtless to be found in the jungles many other insects of the list given by Captain Hutton, but they are not specified by collectors, and their fibrous product does not seem to be worked up into thread.

23. In concluding this letter, I am to say that the above account incorporates the best information that is available to this Government on the subject of tasar silk in Bengal; and although the information conveyed is not very complete, it is hoped it will prove of some service to the Government of India in the investigations which are now on hand regarding the progress and development of the tasar industry. If information on other subjects is required, the Lieutenant-Governor would be glad to be favoured with specific instructions on each point to which the attention of those interested in the industry may be called. The directions in which it has been suggested by Mr. Geoghegan that further inquiry should be made are (1) the unity or diversity of the species known as tasar; (2) the possibility of complete domestication and how many breeds in the year can be had under this system; and (3) the value of the silk if properly reeled. If we cannot get this tested in this country (and the regular Bombyx-silk planters may have objections to furnishing information), it is possible to send cocoons home. The chrysalis can be killed by boiling, and the cocoons will not suffer in the least, as they are as hard as iron. If the cocoons are sent home, the lye necessary in winding off must not be forgotten. It is, however, believed that the Government of India expected Captain Coussmaker to make some experiments on this point, and that Government are already probably in possession of information on the subject.

From the Government of India, to the Government of Bengal, No. 119, dated 18th September 1878.

I am directed to forward, for such consideration as it may seem to merit, the accompanying communication from Mr. J. Deveria of Lakhanhāti, in which he proposes that Government should undertake the rearing of tasar cocoons in the jungle mchals of Chota Nagpore for sale to reelers and exporters.

2. I am to request that the Government of India may be informed of the conclusions arrived at in the matter by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor.

ENCLOSURE TO FOREGOING LETTER.

From J. DEVERIA, Esq., to the Government of India, dated Calcutta, 25th August 1878.

* * * *

2. The silk cocoons of Bengal are, from various causes, which I do not purpose to discuss here, deteriorating a good deal in quality, and, owing to the very unsatisfactory and unstable market ruling in Europe, the production of silk in quantity has also decreased, and is falling off from day to day. Under these circumstances, the tasar cocoon could, I believe, be taken in hand and utilised to very great advantage.

3. The tasar cocoon, as you are aware, is spun by a hardy caterpillar that works in the open air, and requires no other aid from man than protection against bird and beast.

4. The food naturally required by the tasar worm is found growing vigorously in all the jungle tracts of Western Bengal wherever there is a laterite soil. Thus, there is no reason at all why the Government of Bengal should not cause its Forest Department to work up the production of the cocoons in aid of its forest revenues.

5. The silk manufacturers both in India and in Europe would gladly buy up tasar cocoons in large quantities, and the Department could add largely to its income by the step.

6. In Chota Nagpur the Government own over 800 khas mahals in one portion of the district alone, and it recovers therefrom a royalty of between Rs. 1,800 and Rs. 2,300.

7. This royalty is levied by the Government from the people who rear the cocoons, through the intervention of middlemen or farmers, who buy up the right of collecting the royalty at an auction-sale for a lump sum, and thereafter recoup themselves out of the rearers.

8. The farmers, it is needless to urge, are very hard upon the growers of cocoons or *jeebuniah*s (as I shall call them for the future), and in reality, by exacting the royalty, the Government hamper the extension of the cocoon-growing operations.

9. Instead of this, if the Government were to register the names of all *jeebuniah*s, give them small advances, as is done in the Opium Department to assamees, and take in return cocoons at a fair rate, the extension of the business would be secured. The Government could, when its crops of cocoons have come in, give notice of sale of the same, and thus ensure to itself a fixed and standing source of revenue. The cocoons are being sought after in France, and this season a gentleman came out to India simply to buy tasar cocoons for a firm in France.

10. The pecuniary aspect of the business is easy to work out, thus :—

Creditor.—

| | Rs. | A. | P. |
|---|-----|----|----|
| Three men for 45 days, at Rs. 4 each per month, for protecting the worms | 18 | 0 | 0 |
| Seed for 30,000 caterpillars, say, at 200 eggs per month, 150 cocoons at Rs. 4-8 per 1,000 cocoons, say | 0 | 12 | 0 |
| Total expense | 18 | 12 | 0 |

Debtor—

| | | | |
|---|-----|---|---|
| Value of 30,000 cocoons, at Rs. 4 per 1,000 | 120 | 0 | 0 |
| Less half-share to be given to rearers | 60 | 0 | 0 |
| Total balance | 60 | 0 | 0 |

Refund of salary paid to the men or rearers 18

Balance in favour of account 78 0 0

11. I calculate that three men will be able to protect 300 trees between them. These trees each will yield at least 100 cocoons, so the crop will amount to 30,000 cocoons, which, at the lowest rate of Rs. 4 per 1,000, will leave the Government a profit of Rs. 78.

12. That I have not over-estimated the crop will be evident from the fact of my having obtained 32 cocoons here off two small branches only of an almond tree.

13. There will be the expense of drying, sorting and housing the cocoons ; but, on the other hand, when working largely, there are means of grouping men so as to protect whole hill sides at very small extra cost, and the profits are then much greater.

14. Another great advantage is that the outlay of Government money will come back in the course of three to four months. I mean the advances made to the *jeebuniah*s.

15. I have before stated that the Government possess over 800 khas mehals in one portion of Chota Nagpur, and that royalty derived from it was about

Rs. 2,300. For the purpose of an example, if the Forest Department were to appropriate 20 acres in each village or, say, 20 acres \times 800 villages = 16,000 acres in the khas mehals, and that each acre contained only 30 trees, 16,000 acres \times 30 trees = 480,000 trees. Now, if each of these trees could yield 50 cocoons, $50 \times 480,000 = 24,000,000$ cocoons.

16. Applying my previous calculation of Rs. 78 profit for each 30,000 cocoons reared, the Government ought to be able to earn $800 \times 78 =$ Rs. 62,400 out of those khas mehals in cocoons. Or, if the establishment, thus—

| | Per month. Rs. | Yearly. Rs. |
|---|-------------------|----------------|
| Salary of Superintendent | 500 | 6,000 |
| „ of Moonshee | 50 | 600 |
| „ of 20 peons, at Rs. 5 | 100 | 1,200 |
| House-rent, travelling, and contingencies | 300 | 3,600 |
| Total | | 10,400 |

were deducted, the Government would still have a clear profit of 52,000 per year left.

17. Hitherto the Government have been in the habit of leasing these khas mehals to ticcadars at a nominal rent, and the mehals continue uncared for and without being improved in any way; whereas, if they were resumed and made the base of operations for the Government tasar silk business, they would yield an enormous revenue.

18. I have been all over the jungle country I allude to; can converse freely with the Sonthals and other jungly tribes in their own languages; so that what I write is after personal observation and information procured from the men themselves.

19. The revenue of the khas mehals could be collected by the superintendent of the tasar mahal, and, as the profit of the middlemen would fall into the hands of the Government, there would be no loss at all by the arrangement.

20. As there never has been a recognized market for the tasar cocoon, it may be urged that the enormous quantities that could be reared under the Government could not be disposed of. This matter need not be taken into consideration, because, if the supply could only be ensured at a cheap figure, the demand would be unlimited.

21. I may mention that one silk firm alone in India could give up 10,000 basins a day for the reeling of tasar cocoons for at least five months in the year, or $150 \text{ days} \times 10,000 = 1,500,000$; each basin will work off 100 cocoons a day, whence $1,500,000 \times 100 = 150,000,000$ cocoons, and turning it into weight by calculating at 4,000 cocoons to the maund, the firm could work off each season 37,500 maunds of cocoons, representing, at Rs. 16 (cost price) per maund, Rs. 6,00,000. The said firm usually lay out about three times that amount each year in manufacturing silk, and would, I believe, be glad to obtain the quantity of cocoons I mention so as to keep their men from idling during the rains.

22. The tasar cocoons keep, if well sunned and taken care of, for several years; so even if there is no immediate demand, the cocoons could be stored up in godowns if necessary without any loss in their value. Before concluding, I beg to point out that in Lower Bengal, where the laterite soil is wanting, the Government could have the Terminalia Catappa, or common almond tree, planted out for the tasar cocoons.

23. I have just reared a crop of tasar cocoons (obtained from seed from Chota Nagpur) off the Terminalia Catappa, and they were in every respect as good as the parent stock.

24. The Terminalia grows fast and vigorously, and the worms I reared fed on the trees out in the open air through a very rainy season.

From the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, to the Government of India, No. 1094, dated 28th March 1876.

In reply to your communication No. 5—160, dated 23rd November last, inviting suggestions in regard to the development of the tasar silk industry, I am desired to say that the only points on which the Chief Commissioner feels competent to express an opinion are the extent to which the raw material is forthcoming, the cost at which it can be collected or produced in commercial quantities, and the prospect of increasing the supply of the wild or semi-domesticated article.

2. Sir George Couper can say with the greatest certainty that the supply is altogether insignificant, the cost of collecting the cocoons where they are to be found, though only in scanty numbers, would be prohibitive, and there is no reasonable prospect of increasing the supply. In some districts the cocoons of a worm called the "kaswari" are occasionally found on hair trees; these are rare now, but are said to have been more plentiful some years ago when the raw silk was used for tying matchlock barrels on to the stocks. The silk was never used for manufacture, nor did it form an article of commerce.

3. As regards the supply in the Oudh forests, the Conservator reports that "though there are some tasar silk-worms in the Oudh forests, they are very scarce indeed; and without protection and cultivation it would not pay to collect the cocoons. During the past week I have been on the look-out for cocoons in the forests in which they are found, viz., in the Tulsipur forests, and have only seen six cocoons, four on dhao (Conocarpus latifolia), one on chittonia (Zizyphus xylopyra), and one on sâl (Shorea robusta)."

From the Director of Agriculture and Commerce, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 985A—CLIV-5, dated 16th November 1877.

I have the honour to submit the report of the tasar silk promised in this office No. T—368A., dated the 3rd August last.

2. The worm occurs to such a small extent in these provinces that it would be needless for me to make any proposals or suggestions regarding the development of the trade in tasar silk; but if the Government of India desire, attempts can be made to introduce it into the forest tracts of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

3. Enquiries were made from the Commissioners of Meerut, Bareilly, Allahabad, Benares, Jhansi, and Kumaun, being the divisions in which there are large areas under forest, and also from the officers of the Forest Department. It appears from their reports that the tasar silk is either not found, or is not known in any district, except Mirzapur, Lalitpur, and Garhwal, the quantity found in the last two being very insignificant.

4. The Commissioner of Jhansi reports that the "worm is found in the jungles of his division, but evidently it is scarce, and so little is known about it that I have not been able to obtain any satisfactory report on the subject. I can, however, state that no trade in the cocoons or silk exists at present." A few samples of the cocoons procured by him from Lalitpur are herewith forwarded.

5. The Assistant Conservator of Forests, Garhwal Division, states that he believes, from the enquiries he has made, that cocoons are not procurable in his division, but he has sent specimens of a few in the hills further north, obtained from the villagers, who make no use of them.

6. The only place in the North-Western Provinces, then, where any appreciable amount of tasar cocoons is gathered, is the wild tracts lying to the south of the Mirzapur district, which belong more properly to the region of Central India than of the North-Western Provinces. Cocoons are there collected by Kols, Chamars, and other jungly castes in the month of October, and are sold at the local bazars to putwas and other traders, who take them for sale to the Patna and Gya districts, and also to Ahraura Bazar in Mirzapur. From the last place the greater part of the cocoons are exported to Bengal and the Central Provinces, and a small part reeled there. The silk thus reeled is sent in its raw state to Benares, Patna and other districts. No weaving of cloth worth the name is carried on, there being only one family in Ahraura engaged in the manufacture. The selling price of cocoons in Mirzapur is from Rs. 5 to Rs. 5-8 per one thousand, but the trade is by no means extensive. Five specimen cocoons received from Mirzapur are herewith forwarded.

From the Deputy Commissioner of Hoshiarpur, to the Commissioner and Superintendent, Jullundhur Division, No. 507, dated 4th October 1876.

I informed you in my No. 447, dated 26th August last, of the first results of my experiments in the domestication of the tasar silk-worm.

2. I mentioned that cocoons were being produced by the worms hatched in my verandah, that these cocoons were produced very sparingly by hand-fed worms, most of which, indeed, died off, but pretty freely by the worms reared in the open on the ber tree (I have not been able to ascertain that the worms feed on any other tree but the ber tree). It is found on the grafted or Cabuli, as well as the common country ber, but it does not live on the hill variety of the ber which is distinguished by small leaves and by a white under side of the leaf. The cocoons from the earliest batch of worms appeared about the 10th August, or about 25 days from the birth of the worms. Cocoons went on being formed till about the 25th August, or a little later.

3. But hardly had the last cocoons formed when a second generation of moths began to hatch out from this batch of cocoons, and about the 3rd of September the second generation of worms began to appear.

4. I had these moths of the second hatching taken to Bharwain, and there I found, that wild males visited the females at night. I got a considerable number of eggs from this batch, and have distributed them over the district in all directions with a view to seeing how the insects would thrive under simple treatment in various parts of the district. They are all hatched now, and cocoons of the second batch will be formed immediately.

5. I now send specimens of reeled silk of one, two, three and five strands, and also of carded cocoons, which have all been turned out by a native, under my observation, from tasar cocoons of this district. This man sometimes said that he had learned the art from a Bengali, and sometimes that, being a silk grower, he had experimented on the native cocoon and found how to reel it, but had never reeled it in any quantity. He has reeled a good deal for me with great ease, and it appears to be of very excellent quality.

6. The process is most simple; the difficulty was dissolving the gum, and that has been entirely overcome, and under this treatment the thread reels off easily and rapidly. The preparation of the cocoons for reeling is extremely easy, and the whole process of preparation and the method of reeling could easily be learned in a day, and be carried out by women and children.

7. If, then, the silk proves to be of any mercantile value, the prospects of development of a new industry may fairly be entertained, for, from first to last, there is almost no expense, and the trouble involved, which consists in watching the worms while feeding on the trees and in reeling the silk, is small, and the labour, such as it is, of the lightest description.

8. I will be very glad to learn if the silk, of which I send samples, both reeled and corded, should be submitted to competent judges and what its commercial value may be. I should mention that these samples are mostly made from old cocoons, and that if fresh cocoons were used and a little extra care taken, the silk could probably be turned out even more glossy and soft.

From the Deputy Commissioner of Hoshiarpur, to the Commissioner and Superintendent, Jullundhur Division, No. 13, dated 10th January 1878.

I have the honour to report on the progress of my tasar silk experiment during the past year, with reference to correspondence ending with your No. 350 of 23rd February 1877.

2. I collected a large number of cocoons and they hatched out freely, as many as 100 moths being sometimes in the netted verandah together. This was at Bharwain in the latter half of July. I thus secured a large number of fertile eggs, and these were distributed throughout the district to persons likely to take an interest in the matter, with suitable directions for raising the worms on trees in the open.

3. The eggs hatched; but just then occurred the severe drought, and almost every worm throughout the district died. It seems absolutely necessary for the health, and even existence of the worm, that it should have damp weather during the month of its life in the larva stage. As regards rearing cocoons then, the experiment has this year been a total failure, but from an explained cause, viz., the exceptional circumstances of the season.

4. I tried to rear the worms by feeding them with leaves, in the method practised with the Bombyx mori, but was no more successful than last year. Most of the worms died, and the few that survived to spin turned out small and weak cocoons. It seems established that this worm will not thrive except on the tree in the open. There again it has a terrible enemy in the ichneumon-fly and in birds; to these numbers succumb. But, as reported last year, I think with care it will be possible to rear them in this semi-domesticated state. I have now a plantation of young ber trees close to my house, in which an experiment under favourable conditions can be made next rains.

5. The past year, however, and the Government grant of money, have not in other respects been unproductive of results.

6. Securing the services of the reeler I had last year, I located him in the Industrial School, and got him to teach four boys, Rajputs and Brahmins from Unah tahsil, and they were apt pupils, and learned the art of reeling, which I hope will be useful hereafter.

7. I enclose specimens of reeled tasar produced in our Industrial School; also of tasar yarn and of thread spun from the yarn, this latter dyed. Also, I send a sample of silk cloth woven in a Jullundhur loom from the silk thus reeled at Hoshiarpur. I venture to think that this cloth is better than the ordinary specimens of Berhampur tasar.

8. I have had the opportunity of getting a reliable opinion from England as to the merits of this Hoshiarpur tasar, and I enclose a copy of the correspondence for the information of Government. Messrs. Dresser and Company of Coventry are a first-class firm.

9. I have also ascertained that the tasar thread is valued at Amritsar at Rs. 10 per seer, which is, I believe, a remunerative price, once the rearing of cocoons and the reeling of them (a very simple operation) was established as a cottage industry.

ENCLOSURE TO FOREGOING LETTER.

From MESSRS. T. BILL DRESSER & COMPANY, to MESSRS. SIR TITUS SALT, BART., SONS & COMPANY, Saltaire, dated Coventry, 24th November 1877.

In reply to your letter of yesterday. Tasar raw silk, such as the sample you have sent us, and which we have ticketed and marked S, is thrown into various descriptions of net silk, such as organzine, tram and singles. For tasar organzine, tram, we are to-day asked 7s. 6d. nett, which will be probably obtained, or somewhere thereabouts. We have an enquiry now for these silks.

At our last public silk sales in London in October, tasar singles and trams fetched, however, very low prices—3s. 6d. to 5s.

Your sample S seems to us superior to the bulk of the tasar now offering; and speaking for ourselves, if the quality of your sample can be maintained in the bulk, we should be glad of a consignment of one or more bales from India to test the market. Should this meet the views and designs of your correspondents, we shall be most happy to do our best to obtain as good a price as possible.

Any further information we can give you is very much at your service.

We return your sample by post.

We have a house in London and many foreign connections.

Copy of memorandum from SIR TITUS SALT, BART., SONS & COMPANY, Saltaire, Bradford, to TITUS SALT, ESQ., dated 27th November 1877.

Noil worth 1s. to 1s. 3d. here. It fluctuates as much as 50 per cent. in 7 days' time: last year it was in demand, caused by the Metallassa trade.

The noil yarn is worth about 1s. 6d. to 1s. 10d.

From F. HALSEY, ESQ., to the Secretary to the Financial Commissioner, Punjab, dated Madhopur, 14th June 1877.

In reply to your letter of 9th June, I am sorry to be unable to give a satisfactory report of the tasar cocoons sent to me from the Central Provinces.

Without the use of a strong alkali, it is found impossible to reel off the silk from the cocoons, and if an alkali be used, the reeled silk becomes almost useless.

The cocoons sent to me from the Central Provinces were also mostly rat-eaten or pierced (caused by the exit of the moth), and consequently not adapted for reeling.

I am generally of opinion that where the Bombyx mori thrives, few will be found who will undertake the rearing or reeling of the tasar; also, I think, it would be a mistaken policy to encourage the cultivation where the more valuable Bombyx mori exists.

There is no doubt that the tasar cocoon would be made use of; but before it can, special machinery will have to be constructed, and no manufacturer will go to the expense of this, unless he be sure of a constant and large supply of the raw material.

*From the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, to the Government of India
No. 1185—49, dated Nagpur, 29th March 1876.*

In your letter No. 155, dated 23rd November last, on the subject of tasar cocoons, it was requested that 50 maunds of cocoons might be collected at the proper season at different railway stations in the Central Provinces, exact accounts being kept showing the cost of collection, &c. Of these 50 maunds, 10 to 15 might be pierced. Some other information was also called for, and lastly it was asked that, if possible, a couple of maunds of cocoons (live, if available), might be sent to Mr. F. Halsey at Madhopur in the Punjab.

2. In paragraph 3 of this office letter No. 4533—199, dated 16th December, the Chief Commissioner stated how he proposed to get together the cocoons required by Government, and in the 4th paragraph he said that he would try to send a couple of maunds of cocoons to Mr. F. Halsey.

In January the Deputy Commissioner of Chanda reported that he would be able to send two maunds of cocoons to Mr. Halsey, and he was directed to do so. The cost of these two maunds he estimated as follows:—

| | Rs. |
|---|-------------|
| Price of two maunds of cocoons, at Rs. 20 per maund ... | 40 |
| Carriage up to Hinganghat Railway Station ... | 4 |
| Railway charges beyond ... | (not known) | and these two maunds have since been sent.

3. Replies regarding the 50 maunds required by Government have now been received from the District Officers of Chanda, Betul, Seoni, Raipur, and Sambalpur, and the replies may be epitomised thus:—

The District Officer has now got together 8 maunds of unpierced cocoons and a few seers of pierced ones, and the cost of the 8 maunds of unpierced ones is 8 maunds, at Rs. 32 per maund = Rs. 256.

They will be carried by Dhimars to Hinganghat, and the exact payment on this account is hence not accurately known and will be reported hereafter. The Deputy Commissioner further reports that the outturn of cocoons in the Khalsa is estimated at 375 maunds.

The Deputy Commissioner can collect no cocoons until October next, and then he will only be able, he thinks, to collect about 3 maunds, which, inclusive of transport to the Itarsi station of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, cost about Rs. 105, that is, Rs. 35 per maund put down on the line of rail.

The Deputy Commissioner reported a little time ago that the tasar crop had entirely failed, and that the Koshtas were importing cocoons in large quantities from Benares. The Deputy Commissioner, however, purchased 1 maund 36 seers (4 seers of which were pierced) of the Seoni crop for Rs. 102-9-7, which he now has. The estimated average outturn in the Seoni district is 80 maunds per year, and this outturn, the District Officer thinks, could be increased up to 150 maunds, if the cultivation of tasar in the reserved forests were permitted. The cost of transport to Jubbulpore would be stationary, and about Re. 1 per maund. The Deputy Commissioner thinks there would be no difficulty in his arranging for 10 maunds in October next by his giving advances to the rearers. The price per maund he estimates at about Rs. 40.

The Deputy Commissioner reports that the increased attention paid to lac has caused tasar cultivation to recede, and he thinks that even if he made arrangements beforehand, it would be difficult for him in October next to get together from 50 to 60 maunds of cocoons, pierced and unpierced. The price per maund at Raipur would be about Rs. 38, or, if sent on by cart to Sambalpur to go thence by boat to Calcutta, Rs. 40.

The Deputy Commissioner does not think that the industry in his district is ever likely to expand, even if the demand for cocoons were brisk.

The Deputy Commissioner cannot get any cocoons before the close of the present year, but by making arrangements beforehand, he thinks he could get a limited quantity at a cost of Rs. 60 per maund of unpierced cocoons of the small variety, and Rs. 40 per maund of the large variety at Sambalpur.

The Deputy Commissioner does not think that the cost of collection and transport would vary much whether a large quantity had to be collected or a small. He thinks that if funds were made available to him, he would find little difficulty in collecting 500 maunds. "To do so I would," he writes, "require a special establishment of, say, a mohurrir on Rs. 15 and three chuprasis on Rs. 5 per mensem for a period of six months. With this establishment it might perhaps be possible for us even to collect 1,000 maunds of cocoons; but as there are no data on which anything like an accurate estimate of the annual outturn of cocoons in this district can be based, I fear that if Government were to enter the market as a very large purchaser, it would cause a serious increase in price, and perhaps ruin the tasar silk weavers of the district."

4. The information above given may perhaps enable Government to determine whether it will collect cocoons in any quantity during the present year; if it should determine to do so, the local authorities should be permitted to make advances in April or May next. For the present there are only some 10 maunds collected, nearly 2 maunds of which are at Seoni, and which can be sent at once to Jubbulpore, and 8 maunds now ready at Chanda. The Chief Commissioner will be glad to hear what Government wishes done with these 10 maunds, that is, where are they to be sent, and to whom?

From the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, to the Government of India, No. 2417-98, dated 28th June 1876.

With reference to your letter No. 51, dated 21st April 1876, I am directed by the Chief Commissioner to say that the Deputy Commissioners of Seoni and Chanda having satisfied themselves, to the best of their ability, that the worms were killed and the cocoons properly dried, forwarded them to the Bombay Government for transmission to the Secretary of State, and I am now to annex copy of a letter, No. 26 of 1876, from the Bombay Government to the Under Secretary of State for India, intimating the despatch of the Chanda cocoons and the probable transmission at an early date of those for Seoni.

2. With reference to paragraph 4 of your letter under reply, I am to say that the Chief Commissioner fears it will not be possible to put down cocoons at a railway station at a price not exceeding Rs. 30 per maund; the lowest price at which the Deputy Commissioner of Chanda reported his ability to supply them was at Rs. 37 per maund put down at Mul, a tahsili thirty miles distant from Chanda, and so much farther from the line of rail.

3. The Deputy Commissioner of Chanda mentions a curious fact regarding excessive dryage among the cocoons, which the Chief Commissioner will give in his own words :—

“The cocoons reached Chanda about the middle of March. Since then the dryage has been so great as to reduce their weight by about a half. This will be seen from the following table. They were received in two consignments :—

| Date of despatch from Mul. | Weight at Mul. | | Weight when received at Chanda. | | Weight on 6th May. | | No. of cocoons reported by Tahsildar of Mul. |

| | 7 | 30 | 7 | 19 | | | 70,850 |

“The weighing on the 6th May was carried out by the Deputy Commissioner, and on the 7th the cocoons were counted before him. The number was found to be 70,680, or only 170 short of the number reported by the Tahsildar of Mul. It is possible that there may have been some slight mistake in the Tahsildar's counting, and a few may have dropped in transit. I fear the Chief Commissioner may be surprised at the great dryage, but I have no reason to believe that there has been any unfair dealing anywhere. Since their receipt at Chanda the cocoons have been kept in a large chest in the malkhana, the key of which is kept by the District Nazir.”

No. 320—14, dated 28th October 1876.*

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your endorsement No. 5—161, dated the 23rd November 1875, forwarding a copy of Resolution No. 5—156-165 of the same date, regarding the development of an industry in the tasar and other wild silk-spinning worms of India, and asking for proposals or suggestions on the subject.

2. In reply, I am to say that from reports received it appears that the tasar worm is not found in the Pegu Division; that in the Arakan Division cocoons are to be found only in the town of Akyab, and in the Tenasserim Division only in the Amherst District. In the latter district the Deputy Commissioner reports that the worm is found on a variety of trees, and that the natives recognise it as a silk-producing creature, but make no use of the cocoons.

3. Specimens of a cocoon were received from the Deputy Commissioner of Henzada. These were sent to Calcutta, and on examination were found to belong to the mulberry silk-worm, Bombyx mori, the manufacture of silk from which has been found by experiments in Bengal to be unremunerative.

4. Two attempts were made at the Magayee plantation by the Forest Department to breed the worm, but both have resulted in failures.

am directed to submit copies of the marginally noted Proceedings of the Chief Commissioner on the subject, from which it will be seen what action has been taken in the matter to give effect to the orders of Government, and that further little or nothing is known of the tasar-worm by the officials or people of this province.

2. The Chief Commissioner much regrets the delay in the collection and submission of the information called for, which, I am directed to state, is mainly attributable to the pressure of work owing to the prolonged famine and failure of rains throughout the country.

Order thereon by the Chief Commissioner of Mysore.

In the Chief Commissioner's Proceedings above recorded, the Commissioners of Divisions, Deputy Commissioners of Districts, Superintendent of Coorg, &c., were desired to make careful enquiries as to the localities (if any) where the tasar cocoons could be obtained, the probable quantity procurable, and as to other particulars of interest.

2. The services of Captain M. F. Coussmaker, Assistant Superintendent, Mysore Revenue Survey, who had offered his assistance in procuring photographs and papers descriptive of the worms and cocoons, were also enlisted, and before his departure to England that officer reported that he had himself circulated notices to all the districts in which the tasar-worm was likely to be met with.

3. The enquiries made in this office order No. 7308—162G., dated 20th December last, have elicited replies from several district officers and from the Commissioner of the Nundydroog Division, who forwards reports from the Bangalore and Tumkur districts. The Commissioners of the Ashtagram and Nagar divisions have not yet replied.

4. The result of the reference is to show that little or nothing is known of the tasar worm by the officials or people, though the enquiries made have led to the discovery of the cocoons in certain taluks of the Bangalore District, where forest abounds, and also in the Manjarabad forest country. Mr. Ricketts, the Deputy Commissioner of Bangalore, reports that "the cocoons are reported to be found on yelachi, nayibela, heddarane, and certain other trees, the tender leaves thereof being the natural food of the worms, and that they are said to be rare and procurable only in small quantities." He adds that "during the early rains another kind of tasar cocoon of a smaller size is found in the jungles of Magadi and Closepet," and that offers have been made to him by some silk manufacturers to make experiments on both these products. The result of these experiments will be awaited.

5. The Chief Commissioner concludes that if the appearance and habits of the tasar-worm and cocoons were more generally known, they would be found more or less in all the forest tracts of the province. In order to effect this object, the following descriptive notice, prepared by Captain Coussmaker of the Bombay Revenue Survey, will be separately printed and distributed in all taluks. Copies of the photographs illustrative of the tasar caterpillar and its cocoons will also be forwarded to the Deputy Commissioners, who might circulate them among the taluk amildars for inspection.

7. The Chief Commissioner desires that all cocoons may be sent to the Superintendent, Central Jail, and that Dr. Henderson will make such experiments as the means at his disposal admit, in order to ascertain the character and value of the thread, a report being submitted on the subject as soon as practicable.

Descriptive notice of the Tasar Silk-worm.

In order to ascertain whether the silk produced by the tasar-worm can be developed into a useful industry, to supply the place of the silk-worm, which of late years has been found very difficult, if not impossible, to rear, the Government of India have directed enquiries to be made as to the localities in which the tasar-worm is to be found, the probable quantity procurable, and such other particulars of interest regarding it.

The tasar-worm is usually found in forests, and is said to feed on the yelachi, nayibela, and heddarane, and other trees, the tender leaves of which are its natural food. The Deputy Commissioners have received the Chief Commissioner's instructions as to the measures to be taken for searching for the tasar caterpillar or worm and its cocoons, and the following description is given to aid this object.

About the end of May or beginning of June a moth issues from these cocoons and lays its eggs, which look somewhat like small flat grains of jowari on the leaves of the trees; after a few days a small dark worm emerges, which feeds upon the leaves, and growing very quickly, becomes first yellow with black rings and spots, and afterwards green with beautiful small blue, gold and reddish spots upon it, and sometimes besides three or four spots like silver on its side. It continues to grow till it is as big as a man's finger, and then, pulling two or three leaves together, it makes a cocoon or house for itself, which is all made of separate threads strong enough for every purpose like cotton. There are two crops of the cocoons in the year: the moths come out first in May, June and July, then the caterpillars live for 50 days and make their cocoons; from these the moths come out in August, September and October, and the caterpillars make cocoons again in October, November and December, and then, as the cold weather and after that the hot weather comes on, the insects inside remain dormant till the rains come again, when the leaves are nice and fresh, and afford good food for their young ones. Cocoons of all kinds those that are new, heavy and whole, as well as those that are old, burst, stained, light, gnawed, or cut, will come to use, but the first kind are the most valuable.

During the rainy season the caterpillars will be found feeding in great numbers on the trees above-mentioned, and also on those marginally detailed, and the men should look for them, so that they may know where to look for the cocoons in two months' time. If they have trees of the above kind near their own houses, they can cut off twigs with the caterpillars hanging to them (the caterpillars being very delicate should not be touched), and fasten the twigs on to their trees and leave them; the caterpillars will climb up of their own accord, and after a time make their cocoons. Thus, after a very short time, the men will recognize these caterpillars wherever they see them, and then they will easily find the cocoons. When the caterpillars eat, they devour one leaf after another, leaving the twigs bare, and as they do not move much, the ground underneath becomes strewn with their dung, which is at the last as big as that of a sheep, only very rough and deeply grooved. When the men find the cocoons, they should take them carefully off the trees, and tie all that are good and heavy on to strings, which they should put away (say hanging from the rafters of the house) safe out of the reach of rats and squirrels, and if possible ants as well, for all these eat the insects.

2. The amildars of taluks will explain the above to all the people in the taluk, and induce them to try the experiment which has proved very successful and remunerative in Bombay.

Adverting to your circulars as per margin and the Chief Commissioner's

No. 533, dated 2nd January 1876.

Proceedings therein alluded to, I have the honour to report that, on the receipt thereof, I addressed Captain Coussmaker on the subject with a view of ascertaining the Kanarese names of the trees on which it was stated the tasar silk cocoons were to be found. I also asked for specimens of the cocoons for circulation to the amils. That officer very kindly furnished me with a pamphlet, a photograph of the worms, &c., as well as with a few cocoons. The latter were circulated to the amils with the following results.

2. The accompanying two specimens in packet marked A were received from the amil of Lakvalli. Some were found in Yedehalli Hobli, in a clump of bamboo, the others in the Lakavalli Hobli on the "Karemati mara" (Terminalia tomentosa). These were collected in the hot weather, and the amil states that a few only could be procured, but promises to continue his enquiries during the monsoons, and report if the cocoons are procurable in any large quantities. He also adds that he was informed by the Forest Ranger that on the "Bandarika mara," as well as on the tall grasses known to the natives as "Gardabullu" and "Nuggihullu," and several shady forest trees in his range, he was asked to watch and report to the amil the places where he might come across them again in his rounds.

3. The amil of Banavar sends two specimens (vide packet marked B) found on the "Hirikalgudda," and reports that they are procurable on the "Belvantha mara," "Jala mara" and "Dindiga mara."

4. The other amils report that cocoons are not at present procurable.

5. I have desired the amils to get the village officials, shepherds, &c., to make a search during the monsoons, and to direct them, when looking for them, to search under the trees and mark those which have the ground strewn with the dung of the caterpillars, which is said to be as big as that of sheep, only very rough and deeply grooved, so that eventually they will be able to procure the cocoons more readily. Should I succeed in getting a suitable supply, I shall submit a further report. It will be seen that the Lakavalli and Banavar specimens differ from each other.

From DR. J. SHORTT, Inspector of Vaccination, Madras Presidency, to the Chief Commissioner of Mysore, No. 1459, dated 26th January 1877.

I observed some little time ago in the newspapers that an interest was evinced in the matter of "tasar silk" and that arrangements were about being made for collecting the worm; under the circumstances, I have the honour to send you a short account of the tasar silk-worm, with the original drawings of the worm in its different stages, and to request the favour of the same being presented to the Chief Commissioner.

Should the Chief Commissioner wish it, I dare say I shall be able in a little time to send him some cocoons from this. I was not in Madras at the time, or I should have sent this before.

A brief account of the Tasar Silk-worm, by SURGEON J. SHORTT, M.D., Superintendent General of Vaccination, Madras Presidency.

(REPRINTED FROM THE "MADRAS MONTHLY JOURNAL OF MEDICAL SCIENCE.")

Some time ago I observed that accounts of the silk-worm were called for by the Board of Revenue, especially of those that are indigenous to the country, and as I was then in camp I could not attend to the subject, but having had drawings of the tasar silk-worm by me for some time, and believing that the subject is one of great interest, I now beg to submit the following remarks explanatory of the drawings that accompany it:

The Phalaena pipa, Linn; Antheraea Mylitta, Saturnia Mylitta, Drury, is commonly met with in most parts of Southern India. My attention was first attracted to the subject in 1855-56 whilst in the jungles of Orissa with the Topographical Survey. I there observed that it was bred in the most of the hill villages, and that a large quantity of tasar silk was exported from thence to Calcutta, Madras and other places. The hill natives, Oorials, and some of the lower tribes, as well as Tellingas, first collect cocoons, and in most instances, from their size and form, they are able to recognize the male from the female cocoons pretty correctly, and carefully preserve them till the moths emerge, when the males are let loose, while the females are carried to a tree they select for the purpose in the vicinity of the asan or Pentaptera tomentosa (Terminalia (omentosa), on which they are placed, where they soon begin to creep along the branches with quivering wings, and in a short time, varying from one to eight hours, the males by some instinct get attracted to the spot that contains the females, and an immediate union of the sexes takes place. This lasts from three to four hours, and shortly after the female begins to deposit from 100 to 200 eggs on various parts of the twigs of the tree; 33 of these eggs weigh five grains. These eggs when freshly deposited are sticky, but as they dry they adhere firmly to the bark of the stem where they were deposited, and often to each other, forming a cluster. The moth dies the next day and the male also, perishes about the same time.

I should mention here that the natives watch the tree to keep away crows and the birds from destroying the moth, as well as to ascertain the time of the arrival of the male, by which they pretend to prognosticate the success or failure of the undertaking, attributing the rapidity of arrival as a sign of prosperity, and a lateness of arrival as indicative of non-success; but, as I have ascertained for myself, there is no truth in such assertions.

Others, again, keep the moths on small branches or twigs of the asan or ber trees about the outside of their huts, or tied on to other trees till the union is effected and the eggs are deposited. The eggs are of the size of a split peppercorn: nine of them in line occupy the space of one inch in length. They are circular and bi-convex with a light creamy colour. These they keep till the young larva begin to emerge from the eggs, when they are taken and tied on to asan trees, on which the young disperse themselves. A watch is kept during the day to keep away squirrels, birds, crows, &c., and at night a fire is kindled in the vicinity to frighten away bats, while the root stem is surrounded with ashes to prevent ants having access to them; and in the selection of trees, care is taken to avoid those that are infested with ants.

The worm is very small, scarcely perceptible when first hatched, but before it attains maturity it is from three to four inches long and from two to three lines in girth. The larva is of a light green colour with a slightly yellowish streak on either side, and the sixth and seventh segments are marked with an oblong yellow spot, and on the back are several round darker coloured spots surmounted with a few dark coarse hairs, while smaller ones are scattered all over the body. The larva is chiefly found on the bair or Zizyphus jujuba, asan or Pentaptera tomentosa, and the teak or Tectona grandis. I have found them chiefly on the bair tree in Madras, although I got one cocoon from a teak tree, and another from a casuarina at Mr. H. Church's, Perambore. The larva when ready to undergo transformation forms a cord round a twig from a peculiar resinous substance it secretes, and with which it also encircles the selected part of the branch, and then prolongs it to the extent of one or two inches. If the branch is thick the cord is short and stout and about a line in girth, but if it be a twig the cord is thin, from three to four inches long, and fastened to an upper and thicker branch and prolonged to the end of the twig with several intermediate ties of the same material. From the end of the cord, which is solid, begins the expansion of the cocoon, which is reticulated with fine fibres of the same stuff as the cord is made of on the outer surface, thus giving firmness and solidity to the cocoon; and as it approaches completion, a few of the leaves in the vicinity are drawn to line and conceal the cocoon externally, and thus to a certain extent mask it from observation; but this only occurs on the bair tree, for I have seen no such leaves attached to the cocoons found on other trees where the foliage is large and dense. The larva now imprisons itself within the cocoon, and the same secretion that forms the cord is freely applied to all parts to make it water-tight. Having done this, the transformation commences, and lasts nine months before the moth is perfected, having its head at the upper part next to the cord, from whence it appears to discharge an acid secretion which readily dissolves the plastering from the cocoons, and the fibres of silk giving way, the perfected moth emerges from its prison, as a rule early in the morning about daybreak. That the secretion is an acid can be readily ascertained by examining an empty cocoon immediately after the moth has emerged, as, the part being moist, it can be readily tested with litmus when it is seen to give an acid re-action. This knowledge I have practically applied by adding diluted sulphuric acid to the water in which the cocoons are boiled to dissolve the gummy substance out and loosen the thread, and it can then be readily wound off on a hand-reel.

The male and female moths differ in size, the male measuring from the tip of one wing to the other between four and five inches, whilst the female measures from six to seven inches in expanse of wing. Both are of a uniform yellowish brown, having a couple of lunated transparent tale-like spots in each wing, and it is chiefly in the form of these spots that they differ from other moths of the same kind, namely, the Saturnia atlas, in which they are of a triangular form, and the moths themselves have a greater expanse of wings.

It takes from ten to twelve days for the eggs to hatch, and from six to seven weeks from the extrusion of the young larva to the completion of the cocoon.

When the cocoons have been collected they are taken home and placed in an earthen chatty containing water, to which a quantity of wood ashes is added to facilitate the solution of the gummy substance, and weighted with stones to keep them under water. Should the ashes not suffice, the boiling is prolonged for hours before the cocoons are softened and the threads loosened, when they are reeled off on a hand-reel, and the fibres from several cocoons are reeled off together to form a single strand of thread, and are subsequently formed into hanks for disposal. By this means a good many natives get their living about the hill villages of the Tributary Mehals of Cuttack, as also in the Sumbulpore district.

The cocoon is slightly rough, of a greyish white colour, and slightly reticulated externally with an internal smooth varnished surface; is of an oval form measuring one and a half inches in length and one inch in breadth: the average weight with the chrysalis is 150 grains, that of the chrysalis itself 130 grains, the empty cocoon twenty grains, and the prepared thread twelve grains. But the cocoons vary much in size, and while some are large others are small.

I have now over thirty cocoons in my possession, some of which were in my keeping for the last five months, whilst others were but recently collected. The Orissa Paiks and other hillmen cut the cocoons up into circular strips to tie around their matchlocks to keep the barrel firm in the stock; they also use it as a cord for various other purposes, and it is reckoned to be very strong and durable.

The soundness of cocoons may be ascertained by their weight, as well as by movement of the chrysalis within when they are shaken, and should my duties keep me at the Presidency, I intend trying some experiments for their propagation, and will, if desirable, submit a drawing of the larva, with an account of any further experiment that I may conduct. The difficulty in carrying out such an experiment for the propagation of the species consists in securing at the same time both male and female moths, and for this purpose a large number of cocoons is necessary, as otherwise it is possible that the few one possesses may turn out either all males or all females, as has happened to me more than once. For instance, on the 17th June, a female moth emerged, and on the 23rd two other females issued; shortly afterwards they discharged a slightly viscid secretion, and from three to four hours after their escape from the cocoons they began to deposit a large number of eggs (about 200) without a previous union of the sexes, which union is essential for fertile eggs, otherwise the eggs do not perfect. Of the cocoons now in my possession I am indebted to G. H. Cammiade, Esq., for several very good specimens; to R. H. Bell, Esq., for a couple that that gentleman has had for some months in keeping; F. Church, Esq., for a couple of cocoons and a female moth. A large quantity of cocoons may be collected from the bair trees about Madras, but the labour of searching for them will cost more than the silk produced will realize. I lately heard of a gentleman in Madras who succeeded in collecting and reeling off about ten pounds of this silk.

From the Chief Commissioner of Assam, to the Government of India, No. 256, dated 9th February 1877.

3. After careful inquiry, the Chief Commissioner has come to the conclusion that the tasar silk-worm (Antheraea Paphia) is either not to be found in the forests of this province at all, or is very seldom to be met with. There is an undomesticated silk-spinning worm, called the "katkuri mugá," found in Upper Assam. When found in mangoe trees, this silk-worm is called by the natives "ampat." But this silk-worm is very scarce, and any attempt to collect "katkuri" cocoons, and to develop an industry in that silk, could not fail to be unprofitable. It is believed that the "katkuri" might be domesticated, and it might then be possible to secure a fair supply of cocoons. But the filaments spun by the "katkuri mugá" are delicate and brittle, and are not continuous; and considerable difficulty would be experienced in reeling. The Chief Commissioner thinks that when we possess a semi-domesticated silk-worm in the "muga" worm eminently adapted to the circumstances of the country and of the people, and from the cocoons of which a good description of thread can be obtained without difficulty, to attempt to create a "katkuri" silk industry would be but to court failure. The tasar worm is said to be found in the jungles of Cachar and in Sylhet, in the terai jungles under the Khasi and Jaintia and North Cachar Hills. But Colonel Keatinge much doubts if the tasar worm is found so far east. Still in Sylhet, at least, there is found an undomesticated silk-spinning worm, more or less closely related to the Antheræa Paphia. Mr. Weynton, a tea-planter in Sylhet, has made experiments with this worm. Half of the worms he collected he placed out in the open on a common banian tree (Ficus Indica), and the other half he kept in the house. He discovered that the silk from the cocoons raised under cover was far inferior to that from the cocoons gathered from the tree in the open; and he strongly recommends the open-air system of rearing. In regard to the reeling of the filaments of the tasar cocoons, Mr. Weynton writes as follows:—

"The gum alluded to in paragraph 10 [of the Government of India Resolution] is dissolved by mixing in the water ashes of burnt bamboo, any particles that adhere being easily removed during reeling by an occasional flick of the thread by the finger and thumb. The constant breakage of the thread during reeling I have seen obviated, or rather repaired, by the reeler rejoining the ends by a rapid twist of the forefinger and thumb, moistened by a pinch of the gum from a half steeped cocoon kept at hand for the purpose. The rapidity with which the splicing is done by an experienced woman is remarkable.

"My own impression is that this breakage can be got over by well steeping the cocoons in the ashes and water, to thoroughly dissolve the gum; and if the 'lye' could be clarified by filtering or straining, so as to remove the woody particles while retaining the potash, tasar skeins would soon form an important item of export. * * * Care must be taken that the solution of potash be not too strong, and that the threads led into the reeler be sufficiently wide apart to ensure a thorough drying."

4. The Chief Commissioner, however, is of opinion that any attempt to foster the growth of a tasar silk industry in Sylhet would prove abortive. The extent of country in which the cocoons are to be found is limited, and Colonel Keatinge does not think that the domestication of the wild worm on any large scale is feasible in Sylhet.

5. With regard to the general issues raised, the Chief Commissioner has no suggestions to offer. The difficulty in connection with the unwinding of the filaments from the cocoon appears to have been got over, and some such operation as that described by Mr. Weynton might prove successful in combating the difficulty in regard to the brittleness of the tasar filament.

6. While, however, deprecating any attempt to create a tasar silk industry in this province, Colonel Keatinge would draw attention to the existing and old-established silk industries of Assam which might open a wide field for private enterprise if it were not for the extraordinary delays that exist in communications between Assam and the rest of India,—delays which make it impossible for European merchants to visit the province or to supervise operations in which they have invested capital.

7. The three principal silk-worms of Assam are—

- I.—The pát silk-worm (Bombyx mori).
- II.—The cria silk-worm (Attacus ricini).
- III.—The mugá silk-worm (Antheræa Assama).

8. The culture of the Bombyx worm, which is reared on the leaves of the "nuni" tree (Morus Indica) presents very great difficulties in Assam; and the question of extending the pát silk industry need not be seriously discussed.

9. The eria worm is a domesticated worm. In Lower Assam it is reared chiefly on the leaves of the castor-oil plant (Ricinis communis), and in Upper Assam it is reared almost entirely on the leaves of the "kesseru" tree (Hetero-panax fragrans). Both these plants are easily cultivated, and could be raised in sufficient quantities to supply the largest filatures. The eria silk industry is in a fairly flourishing condition, owing to the very high esteem in which eria silk stuffs are held by the neighbouring hill tribes and the Thibetans. Eria thread sells at about Rs. 3 per seer.

10. We now come to the mugá worm. In former years the mugá silk industry was most important; but latterly it has been gradually falling into decay. The mugá worm produces two distinct kinds of silk, according to the description of tree on which it is reared—the "mugá" silk and the "mejánkuri" silk. When the object is to produce mugá silk, the worm is reared (in Upper Assam) on the soom tree (Machilus odoratissimus) and (in Lower Assam) on the sualu tree (Tetranthera monopetala). When it is wished to obtain mejánkuri silk, the worm is reared on the adakuri tree (Tetranthera polyantha). The mugá thread sells for about Rs. 8 per seer. The mejánkuri thread is much finer, glossier, and of a lighter colour (and therefore more easily dyed) than the mugá thread, and fetches about fifty per cent. more. Both threads are very easily reeled. As has been stated in my letter No. 3832, dated 21st November 1876, the soom tree is gregarious, and hundreds of square miles of soom forest are to be found in Upper Assam. The adakuri tree is plentiful in Upper Assam; but it is not, like the soom, a gregarious tree; and if the production of mejánkuri silk on a large scale were to be attempted, it would be necessary to form nurseries from which plantations could be stocked.

11. The manner in which the Antheraea Assama is reared in the soom forests of Upper Assam has been described frequently in various reports, and need not be detailed here. The Chief Commissioner would, however, remark that the semi-domestic culture of the mugá worm would appear to be the culture best suited to the tasar worm.

12. The mugá and eria silk stuffs, which in former times were the dress of the whole population in this province, are being gradually superseded by less expensive English piece-goods; and Colonel Keatinge is of opinion that any efforts to stimulate the local consumption of these silks would be useless; that we must look to creating an export trade of cocoons or silk thread if we would wish to maintain the silk production of Assam. To this end it will be necessary to decide the points noted in paragraph 19 of the Government Resolution, in respect to the cocoons of the Assam silk-worms, and the Chief Commissioner would be very glad if the Government of India would cause experiments to be made on them in some of the leading filatures in India.

From the Resident at Hyderabad, to the Government of India, No. 11, dated 20th May 1876.

With reference to your ~~order~~ ^{orderment} No. 5—161 of the 23rd November last, forwarding copy of the Resolution of the Government of India regarding the development of the industry in tasar silk, and inviting proposals and suggestions on the subject, I have the honour, by desire of the Officiating Resident, to forward, for the information of His Excellency the Viceroy and

* No. 1527—334, dated 12th May 1876.

Governor General in Council, copy of a report,* with enclosure, received from the Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts.

2. It will be perceived from these papers that the tasar silk-worm does not abound in any of the forests in Berar, that there is no silk industry in the province, and Sir R. Meade has consequently no proposals to submit on this subject at present in connection with the Hyderabad Assigned Districts.

ENCLOSURES TO FOREGOING LETTER.

From the Commissioner of the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, to the Second Assistant Resident at Hyderabad, No. 1527—334, dated 12th May 1876.

I have now the honour to reply to your letter No. 940, dated 13th December 1875, forwarding copy of Resolution by the Government of India, in the Department of Revenue, Agriculture, and Commerce, No. 5—156-165 of the 23rd November 1875, on the subject of the development of the tasar silk industry in India.

2. The officers whom I consulted were the Deputy Conservator of Forests and the Deputy Commissioners of Booldana, Woon and Bassim, the three districts in which there are forests.

3. The Deputy Commissioner of Booldana reports that there are no wild silk-spinning worms in his district.

4. The Deputy Commissioner of Woon states that he has been able to collect very little information about the tasar worm, which is not found in any quantity, and about which no trouble is taken. The inhabitants of the jungles collect the few cocoons they find and sell them to the grain-dealers, who again sell them at Chanda in the Central Provinces. The worm when found is usually on the daora and ain trees. On a rough estimate, about 10,000 cocoons are found in the year, but no silk is reeled in the district. The Deputy Commissioner's informants told him that tasar worms found in a black soil country were not to be compared with those found in a red soil district, and therefore they could not compete with cocoon-gatherers in Chanda.

5. The Deputy Commissioner of Bassim reports that tasar worms are rarely seen there. In the Poodsud talook a few cocoons are found, but there are no purchasers for them. Silk is neither reeled nor woven into fabrics, nor do any of the inhabitants know how to rear the worms.

6. A copy of the Deputy Conservator's reply is appended for the Resident's perusal.

From the Deputy Conservator of Forests, Hyderabad Assigned Districts, to the Commissioner of the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, No. 121—208, dated Chickulda, 8th May 1876.

In reply to your letter No. 217-18, dated 18th January 1876, I have the honour to state that to the best of my belief the tasar silk-worm does not abound in any of the forests of Berar.

2. In the Melghat, some years ago, small quantities of cocoons used to be collected by the Koorkoos and sold to purchasers from Boorhanpoor in the Central Provinces, but since the introduction of strict forest conservancy, the collection of cocoons and such like articles of minor produce has been discouraged owing to the great danger of fire that results from allowing people to wander over the forests indiscriminately, as must be done if minor produce is to be collected in any quantity.

3. In a few more years, when the forests will have become denser and the present rank growth of grass in a great measure eradicated, I hope to be able to take steps for developing the resources of the Melghat and other forests in Berar in the matter of minor produce.

From the Secretary of State for India, to the Government of India, No. 25 (Revenue), dated 22nd March 1877.

With reference to Your Excellency's despatch, dated 21st April (No. 3, Silks and Fibres) 1876, I have to inform you that the tasar cocoons from Bombay and the Central Provinces arrived last July, and that samples were sent to Mr. T. Wardle, to Mr. Mylins, of Buffalora, in Lombardy, to Messrs. Lister of Bradford, to Mr. A. B. Farn, and to Messrs. Durant and Company of Copthall Court. With regard to experiments in the south of France and Italy, Mr. Wardle himself undertook a journey with a view to getting samples of the cocoons wound at filatures in France and near Milan.

2. Messrs. Lister, of Bradford, were unable to make the experiments with the tasar cocoons, as they are not silk winders (filateurs). Only one other reply has as yet been received, namely, a preliminary report from Mr. Wardle, written after his return from Italy, a copy of which is herewith transmitted for the information of your Government, together with some samples sent with it.

3. It will be seen that the cocoons are reported to have been very old and imperfect, but the experiments indicated that good results would be obtained with new and fresh cocoons. If, therefore, you are desirous that the experiments should be continued, it is desirable that another more carefully selected supply should be sent home; and I would suggest that the collection should be made under the superintendence of Captain Coussmaker.

4. Further reports will be transmitted for the information of Your Excellency's Government as soon as they are received at this office.

5. Mr. Wardle reports that he has made improvements in the dyeing of the tasar silks. It is important that his dyeing experiments should be continued, and I therefore request that the collection of the Indian dye stuffs may be completed and forwarded to me with as little delay as possible.

ENCLOSURE TO FOREGOING LETTER.

From THOMAS WARDLE, Esq., to J. FORBES WATSON, Esq., M.D., India Office, dated Leek, 3rd January 1877.

Since my return from France, in November last, I have been so much occupied with my dyeing operations as to have been unable to write my report sooner.

I took with me some of the tasar cocoons, and gave out a small quantity to one of the best silk reelers in the south of France, who at once put them in process of reeling.

The cocoons were so imperfect, that in submitting them to the first preparation, a great part, almost three-quarters, proved to have holes in their top ends, which made reeling impossible, and prevented my giving you an account of the quantity of silk which may be obtained from cocoons in a good state. They are too old by ten or twelve years, very likely more, and are very defective, the reelers thinking they had been over suffocated or killed, and that they appear to be of the second crop or pickings, being extremely small and weak, twice as much so as those the reelers possessed, and which had more body in them.

I have since sent a kilogramme to this firm, and shall be able to have some more particulars from them shortly.

The cost of working them into organzine and tram would not be above 10 francs to 12 francs per kilogramme. This seems to me a little high, but of course it was difficult to form an exact opinion; but the reelers said the cost might be lower. They were reeled by the ordinary French process, two to five cocoons at once.

I went on to Italy by appointment to a large silk reeling establishment near———in Piedmont, and had some cocoons wound there, and I have to report that the cocoons having (in the opinion of these reelers) been either hatched wholly or partially, or eaten through by a grub, owing to their being so old, that but very little silk could be reeled from them, at least 50 per cent. of the cocoons were unreelable. From one kilogramme of cocoons only the enclosed small quantity was obtained. The superior reeling of the Italians over the rough and imperfect native reeling shows itself very markedly in these samples, which possess so much more excellent a lustre and silkiness, indicating what a great improvement may be made in this article by proper management in manufacturing it.

A beautiful result would be obtainable with new and fresh cocoons.

The size of these samples of organzine is 50/65 "deniers." The samples labelled singles were simply the first attempts at reeling.

I have forwarded to this firm the remainder of the case of cocoons you sent me, and expect in the course of a month to have them back reeled, with a full report of costs, quantities, &c., as you wished.

I tried several modes of softening the cocoons, including those you suggested. I found the cocoons yield best to soap, potash, and glycerine combined.

If the whole of the 800 lbs. of cocoons you have had collected, and sent over from India are similar in age and imperfections, I fear the result will be disappointing in quantity; but the reelers, both French and Italian, spoke most hopefully of the results with properly gathered and prepared cocoons.

I have been pursuing my experiments in dyeing tasar silks, and am very much pleased to inform you that I am now prepared to dye this silk in almost any kind of colour, even to very pale shades.

If there is any hope of a large quantity of tasar or other wild silks being annually produced, a splendid industry may be commenced in India, or may be worked here, first, by a new and improved system of reeling, by which each cocoon can be reeled separately, instead of at present, in several threads; secondly, by my improvements in dyeing and finishing these silks.

I hope to call very shortly on you to show you the remarkable improvements in the dyeing of these silks,—results which will make the relationship of them vastly nearer to those of the mulberry worm silks. I am now ready to examine and apply the dye-stuffs of Indian native produce which you have ordered to be collected. When do you expect them to arrive? My improvements will render their application to tasar and kindred silks much more effective and varied than under my previous methods.

From the Secretary of State for India, to the Government of India, No. 61 (Revenue), dated 29th August 1878.

Referring to my predecessor's despatch No. 25 of the 22nd March 1877, I now transmit, for Your Excellency's information, copies of the first part of a further report by Mr. Thomas Wardle on tasar silk and Indian dye-stuffs, and of a memorandum thereon by Dr. Birdwood, C.S.I., together with the samples of silk referred to in the report; and also copies of a letter from Mr. Wardle, of the 31st July last, and of its enclosure, relative to an offer by M. David, of St. Etienne, to purchase 2,000 kilogrammes of tasar cocoons for the purpose of making manufacturing experiments at his own cost.

2. With regard to this latter subject, Mr. Wardle has been informed that M. David should be advised to procure the cocoons he requires in the ordinary course of trade through some firm in Bombay or Calcutta. I desire, however, that the information which M. David wishes for, relative to the native method of dealing with tasar cocoons, &c., may be procured and transmitted to me at an early date for communication to him.

3. It seems impossible to attach too much importance to the improvements introduced by Mr. Wardle in the manufacture of this silk, the results of which may confidently be expected to open up a large field of enterprise for the supply of this article to the European markets, and to bring into more extended use one of the raw products of India for which there has hitherto been but a limited demand.

4. I shall address Your Excellency further on this subject upon receipt of the second part of Mr. Wardle's report.

Memorandum by Dr. GEORGE BIRDWOOD, C.S.I., dated 10th August 1878, on Mr. T. WARDLE'S Report on Tasar Silk and Indian Dye-stuffs of 1st August 1878.

It would be difficult to speak too highly of the patience, ability and perseverance with which Mr. Wardle has carried out these experiments, or of the importance of the results obtained. These are, in brief, that he has succeeded in preparing Indian wild silk almost as fine as the finest Chinese silk, and in dyeing it almost any colour.

Whereas 1,000 yards of Indian wild silk formerly weighed from 10 to 15 drachms, it can be now prepared of the weight of only 3 drachms and under, the same quantity of the finest Chinese silk weighing 2 drachms to 4 drachms. In dyeing this wild silk Mr. Wardle's success has hitherto been chiefly with the aniline dye series. The defect of these colours is that they are crude, glaring and inharmonious, but a process has been suggested to Mr. Wardle by which it may be possible to dye silks and other stuffs with the aniline series in rich, deep, and artistic tones. I would suggest that Mr. Wardle's paper should be communicated at once to the Government of India. The portion of the report still due from him, on the application of the native dye-stuffs of India to Indian wild silk and other woven fabrics, will be principally of artistic interest. The present report is of very pressing practical interest, as M. David's letter shows. For nearly 100 years the Indian Government went on endeavouring to increase the export of Indian silk by importing eggs from China and mulberry trees and expert labour from France and Italy and elsewhere, but all in vain. Even after the abolition of the Company's trading monopoly the same false and costly course was pursued, until in 1858 the attention of the Government of Bombay was officially drawn to the wild silk of the country, undoubtedly originally derived from China, and thoroughly acclimatised. Beyond ascertaining that wild silk was produced all over the Bombay Presidency, nothing was then done by Government. But Dr. MacKenzie and Captain Coussmaker and others continued to give great attention to the subject, and the result of their enthusiastic labours, combined with Mr. Wardle's long interest in their researches, has been to lead to the experiments now reported, which afford a substantial ground of hope that a staple may have at last been added to the export trade of India. In fact, if the results of Mr. Wardle's experiments are confirmed, he will have succeeded in making Indian wild silk merchantable wherever silk is woven and worn.

As to M. David's letter, it may be submitted to the Government of India; but probably the better plan, in his own interest, would be for him to write to some firm in Bombay or Calcutta to send him direct the 2,000 kilogrammes of cocoons he wants.

When the second part of Mr. Wardle's report on the native dye-stuffs of India is received, it might be desirable to make a comprehensive report on the whole subject of those experiments.

MR. WARDLE'S Report on Tasar Silk and Native Dye-stuffs of India.—(First Part).
Dated Luck, 1st August 1878.

I have completed the first part of my examination, and have now the honour of laying the results before the Government of India.

Last winter I received a communication from Dr. Birdwood asking me to undertake the arrangement of exhibits of Indian silks and dye-stuffs in the India Section at the Paris Exhibition.

I have done so, and the results of those exhibits form the basis of this report, especially that part which relates to the tasar and other wild silks of India.

I have not had sufficient time to examine all the dye-stuffs of India which were sent to me. In a few months the examination will be completed and will form the substance of my second report.

In dealing with the tasar cocoons sent to me, I have endeavoured, with signal success, to improve the manufacture of this silk.

This has been accomplished to an extent that will greatly increase its importance in the silk industry of Europe, as well as making it much less unyielding in its resistance to tinctorial matters.

Much of the import of tasar silk is of such low and badly reeled quality as to be totally unfit for nearly all European textile work; and even where the quality happens to be better than it usually is, it is much too coarse in thread for any but the coarsest kind of work; consequently its use is and has always been extremely circumscribed.

I shall be able to show that there is no longer any necessity for this, nor for any obstacles to be interposed for the extended use and cultivation of this silk, and that it promises to be as useful in degree as that of the mulberry worm.

I believe also that the same may be said for several other species of Indian wild silks.

Several of the samples to illustrate this accompany my report; the rest, including the dyed specimens, are under exhibition at Paris, but shall be described here.

I have given the samples now sent the same numbers as those in the Paris Exhibition case. The report will, therefore, correspond in numbering and explanation with the monograph I have written, and which is appended to the second edition of Dr. Birdwood's Handbook of the Indian Section.

Nos. 8 and 9 are samples of tasar, organzine, and tram, illustrative of the quality and state of manufacture such as is now used in England for weaving, and a good representation of the present state of its manufacture, which gives a size of 255 deniers (15 drachms per 1,000 yards). The sizes of tasar generally used in England run from 152 deniers (9 drachms) to 255 deniers (15 drachms). These are very coarse sizes, and must necessarily be unfit to produce such fine textile work as the mulberry silk, which can be and is manufactured into organzine and tram of 21 deniers and upwards (1½ drachms), and from which are made the finest silk fabrics.

Nos. 13 to 17 are samples reeled for the market by the natives from the cocoons in various parts of India. They show the more or less rude and imperfect states in which it is prepared for the market and for native use.

I send them only to point out the contrast between them and the next sample, 17a, which shows what, under proper management, this fibre is capable of. This is raw tasar silk reeled from the cocoons I received from India.

In September 1876 I proceeded, with your permission, to Italy with some of the cocoons, to have my ideas of cocoon-reeling and throwing carried out (cocoon-reeling being a branch of silk industry not practised in England), and I am glad to report that I there met with the success I anticipated. The house which I employed to make the experiments, Messrs. Gaddum and Company, were so much impressed with the importance of the results as to say to me they would send out to India a person for the purpose of collecting tasar cocoons on their own account.

I have subsequently heard of their interesting themselves in this manufacture.

This sample, 17a, is raw silk as wound from the cocoon, the fibres of six cocoons being wound together, forming one thread ready to be thrown into organzine or tram in the usual way, and capable of yielding sizes of from 51 deniers upwards, i. e., 3 drachms and upwards, per 1,000 yards.

In addition to this greater fineness of thread, as compared with that of the present tasar silk of commerce, you will notice an almost entire absence of lumps, technically called "foul slubs," which have hitherto prevented tasar silk being substituted for the mulberry silks.

So that instead of organzine and tram of 15 drachms to 9 drachms per 1,000 yards, you have before you the improved silk capable of yielding organzine and tram of 51 deniers, or 3 drachms per 1,000 yards skein, and this with a silk primarily so much thicker in fibre than the mulberry silks.

At the end of the report, I have added a table of microscopic measurements which I have made of the thickness of the primary fibres of the mulberry silks (China, India, Italy, France, Japan, and those of the tasar and other wild silks of India). From this it will be seen that tasar silk is from three to four times thicker in fibre than the mulberry silks.

Tasar silk possesses the greatest strength and tensile power, and it has as much lustre as any silk.

No. 19 is a sample of tasar organzine (51 deniers or 3 drachms per 1,000 yards) manufactured in Italy from the cocoons under my own instructions and superintendence. The improvement in quality, fineness, and cleanness will be seen to be most marked, and that, instead of the coarse sizes of tasar now used, of 152 to 255 deniers (9 to 15 drachms), there may be obtained by proper management organzine and tram of excellent quality from the same cocoons of 51 deniers (3 drachms) and upwards, which can be woven into a great variety of stuffs, for which until now only the mulberry silks have been available.

The attention of all interested in or connected with silk manufacture cannot be too strongly drawn to this fact, nor can its value be overrated.

There is a most important future in store for the tasar silk industry, and as great improvements will take place as those which resulted from the introduction of proper machinery and skill many years ago in the mulberry silk district of Bengal, when it was found that Bengal silks, in place of being then almost unworkable, could be manufactured in such a way as to bring them into extended use in Europe, so as even to rival French and Italian silks. The cost of making organzine and tram from the cocoons with the improved mode is about 20 francs per kilogramme—10 francs for reeling and 10 francs for throwing.

You will observe from the samples, and from what I have just stated, that the success in improving this manufacture is complete, and that tasar silk, when properly made, is ready to take its place in all the silk textile industries where extreme fineness is not required, such, for instance, as cloths of which a material is all tasar, or mixed cloth, with tasar weft, for trimmings, braids, elastic boot webs, where silk of 3 to 6 drachms is in constant use, also for the weft or shute of ribbons, the chief obstacle to its use hitherto for this last purpose having been its foulness (slubbiness). Now this imperfection is removed, there will be an extensive demand for it in the ribbon trade.

The difference between the ordinary tasar, selling with difficulty at 3s. to 4s. per lb., and the samples I submit is due to improved methods of manufacture, which I am ready to communicate to you, and even to teach to the native workmen if that course is thought more useful.

In the meantime, however, I would strongly urge that the greatest encouragement be given to the proper gathering and collecting of tasar cocoons and the exportation of them in a compressed state, and that encouragement be given to the planting and cultivation of the most suitable trees and plants which feed the tasar worm in the likely labour centres, near good roads where the cost of carriage can be minimized.

The worm feeds on the following trees and plants :—

Rhizophora calceolaris, Linn.
Terminalia alata glabra. (Assam tree.)
Terminalia tomentosa. (The Saj tree.)
Terminalia Catappa. (Country Almond tree.)
Tectona grandis. (Teak tree.)
Zizyphus jujuba. (Ber tree.)
Shorea robusta. (Sāl tree.)
Bombax heptaphyllum. (Semul.)
Careya spherica.
Pentaptera tomentosa.
Pentaptera glabra.
Ricinus communis. (Castor Oil plant.)
Cassia lanceolata.

I am quite sure that a very largely increased production of cocoons will meet with a ready sale, especially in France and England. Even the unwindable and pierced cocoons and waste will have a ready market, since our spinners, as I shall show further on, can utilize all such refuse, and make excellent yarns and cloths from them.

I may mention that I took the opportunity, whilst on the jury of the Paris Exhibition, to draw the attention of M. Colcombet, a juror, and M. David, two of the largest manufacturers of ribbons in St. Etienne, to the improved tasar. After thoroughly inspecting it, they said that if the Government of India could enable them to obtain cocoons, or point out how they may be obtained at about one franc per kilogramme, they would buy all that India produced, so certain were they of finding a ready sale and extended use for this, in place of the more costly silks.

M. David has since written to me asking me to obtain 2,000 kilogrammes (4,400 lbs.) of tasar cocoons for experiment. He says many uses may be found for well reeled tasar, the only important question is that of an economical means of doing so.

These economical means are at hand; for in place of the ordinary mode of reeling and throwing silk from the tasar cocoons into organzine and tram, which costs about 35 francs per kilogramme, or 12s. 8d. per lb., it can be done by the improved mode at about 20 francs per kilogramme, or 7s. 3d. per lb., and this cost will be decreased when the cocoons are properly collected and the industry better regulated.

Not less important than manufacturing is the dyeing of tasar silk, in the investigation of which I have been so long engaged.

I am happy to be able to report that the dyeing of this silk can now be successfully accomplished in all shades of colour.

The results I have exhibited at Paris in three grades. The first consists of organzine and tram of the same coarse quality as at present used in England for weaving into self-coloured dress pieces, dyed in a variety of reds, blues, greens, yellows, and tertiary colours, with the dye-stuffs native to India, and with which I was furnished by the Government of India for examination.

An exposure of upwards of two months to the sunshine of Paris has only very slightly affected them, although placed in a position exposed to the direct rays of the morning and mid-day sun. The colours are not of the vivid intensity and crudeness of those produced by the aniline dyes, but they possess more tone and are fitter for all purposes of true decorative art, and possess much more permanency: but on those points I hope to treat more definitely when I have the honour of presenting my report on the dye-stuffs of India, and their applicability to tasar silk, at present under examination.

By the advice of Dr. Birdwood, I also exhibit tasar silk dyed with ordinary aniline dyes, in order to show what could be done on it with these dyes, which in Europe have almost replaced the better and faster materials. I have therefore dyed two grades of tasar organzine in a variety of delicate shades of aniline dyes—one, the second, is the improved organzine, the third is ordinary tasar organzine of good quality.

In dyeing the improved organzine, a very important fact appears. The silk takes the dyes with less difficulty. I have no doubt that one of the main reasons why the natives cannot dye tasar silk will be in the fact that the methods of their rude manufacture partly destroy whatever affinity such silk has for tinctorial impregnation.

It is not unlikely that before tasar silk can be really well dyed in India, a considerable improvement must be effected in all the manufacturing operations, even from the time the cocoon becomes completed.

It would, perhaps, be hardly within the scope of this Report to go into the chemical reasons for this opinion, but they are no less important than real.

I have also to report similar success in applying printed colours upon tasar silk cloths, samples of which I send with the Report Nos. 21 and 25. It is, as far as I am aware, the first time any attempt has been made, either in Europe or in the East, to print on wild silk cloth of any kind.

So that now printed tasar silk can be successfully used for wall damasks, curtains, furniture coverings, hangings, women's and girls' dresses, with great effect, and I would draw the attention of upholsterers and broad silk manufacturers to these specimens, and especially three under No. 55 of twill silk, made of this material from the warp and weft of Nos. 8 and 9, 255 deniers.

The fabrics made of tasar silk are very strong, most durable, and possess much lustre. The patterns printed in blue are the first successful application of indigo on silk as a print, and not as a pencil blue as formerly.

The tone of blue is very rich, modified to some extent by the natural ground colour of the silk (which is fortunately incapable of being made vividly white), and has consequently controlled too great a brightness.

They will prove remarkably fast; in fact, none of the colours are printed in aniline or any other fugitive dyes.

These fabrics are woven with organzine and tram of the coarse native-reeled and English-thrown tasar of 15 drachms per 1,000 yards, and are not really such good examples of what can be done in printing on fabrics of improved manufacture, samples of which I hope before long to submit to you, but they effectively serve the purpose of showing that now a great variety of colours can be applied to tasar silk fabrics in printing as well as in dyeing, and I cannot conceive of any more beautiful application of them than to the walls of rooms after the manner of damask, if well designed.

I come now to treat of spinning tasar silk. This is effected after the manner of spinning cotton, wool, flax or any other short fibre that cannot be wound off in a continuous thread.

Since the important improvements which have been made in England of late years in silk spinning machinery, a new and large industry has sprung up whereby all refuse silk and unwindable cocoons of the mulberry silk manufacture are submitted to the operations of carding, combing, and spinning, and threads of beautiful regularity and silkiness are made.

I have exhibited a series to show to what uses the waste of tasar silk and the cocoons pierced by the exit of the moth can be put after being spun in this way.

There are probably not less than forty firms in England engaged in this operation, and many more in Switzerland, France, and Italy, but it is only recently that tasar waste silk has attracted notice, and large quantities have been a drug in the market for a long time. They have been bought up, and have been spun and woven into fabrics for upholstery and dresses of surprising perfection and interest, and a demand which cannot be fully supplied has arisen for a further supply.

I send sample No. 56a which I have had spun and woven from unwindable cocoons out of those I received from India; also five samples, No. 57, made of tasar waste and printed in colours.

Also samples of yarns spun from tasar waste for weaving, sewing, and knitting stockings.

Probably of not less importance in the future are the other wild silks of India, particularly that of the Arrindi or Eria worm of Assam, known under the following names:—

Phalæna Cynthia, (Roxburgh).

Bombyx Cynthia, (Oliver).

Samia Cynthia, (Hübner).

Saturnia Cynthia, (Westwood).

Saturnia Arrundi, (Royle).

The Arrindi or Arrundi silk-worm moth (Roxburgh).

With this I must connect the Attacus ricini (Boisduval), the same insect, as far as I can gather, except that it is fed on the Ricinus communis, or Palma Christi plant, and is reared in a domesticated state in Assam, and over a great part of Hindustan, more especially in the districts of Dinagepur and Rangpur.

Mr. Hugon gives the following interesting particulars about it:—"The larva, when at full size, is about $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches long. It spins its cocoon in four days. The hill tribes settled in the plains are fond of eating the chrysalis."

The cocoon is much smaller than that of the tasar, and is soft. The natives cannot wind the silk, but spin it like cotton. Dr. Helfer says that the insect is so productive as to give sometimes twelve broods a year, and that the worm grows rapidly, and offers no difficulty whatever for an extensive speculation.

Mr. Atkinson says the filament is so delicate as to render it impracticable to wind off the silk; it is therefore spun like cotton. The yarn thus manufactured is woven into a coarse kind of white cloth, of a seemingly loose texture, but of incredible durability, the life of one person being seldom sufficient to wear out a garment made of it.

The winding of the Eria cocoon is said to have been recently accomplished. The thickness of the Eria filament is $\frac{1}{3800}$ of an inch.

Leaving the question as to whether it be successfully wound or not, one important consideration respecting its use presents itself, namely, its capability of being spun like cotton or wool. The great improvements made in late years in England in spinning machinery have proved that marvellous results in making an even thread from waste silk and unwindable cocoons for sewing and weaving purposes may be attained, and I will venture to predict a future for this and the produce of all unwindable silk-worm cocoons that will compensate for collection.

The industry of the natives should be stimulated to the gathering in of all kinds of wild silk cocoons, whether windable or not, for there is no doubt that those kinds which cannot be wound can be most easily spun, and there is at the present moment a request on the part of silk spinners for a larger supply of tasar silk cocoons and tasar silk waste for spinning purposes, and no doubt other silk cocoons would be gladly bought up.

A worm so prolific, and yielding such exceedingly fine silk gives a large promise of future supply to the spinner. I should be glad to have your authority for a further and thorough effort to make silk marketable in Europe.

Besides the Eria worm there are also the following which furnish good silk cocoons, all of which I have exhibited in Paris:—

The Attacus Atlas.

The Mooga or Moonga silk (Antheraea Assama) giving five broods a year. I send a sample of this silk, No. 35. It promises to be useful silk under proper care.

The Bombyx Attacus, "Yama mai," a native of Japan, but found in India. In Japan the silk of this worm is said to be most highly prized, and reserved for the use of royalty, but this I am inclined to doubt, as the silk is of a coarseish character. This I was assured by the Japanese at the Paris Exhibition is not now the case; they showed me several highly interesting fabrics made with it. The cocoon is of a beautiful pale green colour and is easily wound. It has been reared in Europe, and a cross between it and Bombyx Attacus pernyi is a success in France, being so hardy that the eggs will hatch at freezing point. A successfully encouraged cultivation of it in India would make a valuable addition to our Eastern sericulture.

The thickness of the fibre is $\frac{1}{950}$ part of an inch, being a little finer than tasar silk. It is also very much whiter in colour, which is an advantage for dyeing.

In addition to these are the following:—A silk called "Ya baine," from Prome, in Burma; Pat silk from Assam (Bombyx textor); Mezankuri silk, rare; Actias Selene.

In Simla, Balfour states there are eight or nine species of Bombyx, probably all silk-producers.

I plead for the utilization and extended cultivation of all these wild silks, particularly the Tasar, Mooga, Eria and Yama mai.

The difficulties of manufacturing, dyeing, and printing are, I am thankful to report, overcome.

It only remains for the Government of India, if I may presume to urge it, to give that encouragement and constant support to the increased production of the wild silk industry of India, and not to the wild silk only, but also to the mulberry silk, that has for centuries been accorded by Sovereigns and Statesmen in France to the permanent establishment and encouragement of the silk trade in that country, to make India a chief exporter of raw material, as France now is of the manufactured products.

The following table contains the series of microscopic measurements to which I referred in the earlier part of this report:—

From MR. WARDLE, to the Under Secretary of State for India, dated Luck, 31st July 1878.

Since writing my report I have received from M. David, who I am told is the largest silk manufacturer at St. Etienne, an order for 2,000 kilogrammes of tasar cocoons, for the purpose of making manufacturing experiments with this silk at his own cost.

I enclose a translated copy of part of his letter.

Will you have the kindness to inform me if the Government of India will authorize the collection of the cocoons, and supply them to M. David with the information he desires?

I have no opportunity of obtaining them for him.

Copy of a letter from M. DAVID, of St. Etienne, to MR. WARDLE.

I offer to buy one to two thousand kilogrammes tasar cocoons delivered at Marseilles at one franc per kilogramme; these cocoons to be of the year's crop, and well killed, not pierced. Kindly impress on your Bombay friends to kill the worms in the cocoons well. In case the moths come out on the road, the cocoons would be useless. A friend of mine has just received a bale of these cocoons and the moths came out of them at Marseilles.

In order to facilitate the reeling in France, kindly give me the following information:—

- 1st.—What is the chemical agent made use of by the natives to soften the cocoon and make it ready for reeling?
- 2nd.—Can the natives reel a cocoon more than a year old?
- 3rd.—What is the length of time elapsing from the making of the cocoon and the time of the coming out of the moth: does not that time vary greatly?
- 4th.—The cocoons in the bales are mixed in colour, dark and light: are these different varieties, and are they found on the same spots? Would it be possible to get only light coloured ones?

I shall be thankful for answers to the above questions, which will facilitate my task.

Many uses may be found for well reeled tasar. The only important question at present is that of an economical means of so doing.

From M. NATALIS RONDOT, to the Government of India, dated Paris, the 29th July 1878.

Le jury de l'industrie de la soie a examiné avec un vif intérêt l'exposition des soies provenant des vers à soie sauvages de l'Inde, et en particulier la collection formée par M. Thomas Wardle.

Le jury a jugé que ces travaux, quoique incomplets, avaient une grande valeur, et il a cherché le moyen de mettre en lumière son jugement.

Sur ma proposition, il a décerné le diplôme d'honneur, qui est la récompense la plus haute, au Gouvernement des Indes.

* * * * *

Tout en reconnaissant que l'exposition actuelle fournit, bien plus que les précédentes, du point de vue de la production de la soie des vers sauvages dans l'Inde, un ensemble de faits et de spécimens dignes d'une sérieuse attention, le jury a été frappé de l'indifférence au moins apparente qu'on a montrée pour les soies autres que celles du tussah, et, quel que soit le mérite des résultats obtenus par M. Thomas Wardle, le jury n'est pas convaincu que ce soient les produits du tussah qui aient le plus de valeur pour l'industrie européenne.

Tandis que nous avons obtenu sur les soies du tussah des renseignements nombreux, j'ai le regret de dire que nous n'avons eu que de très rares informations sur les autres soies des vers sauvages.

Je me propose de présenter dans un livre, comme je l'ai fait à la suite de l'exposition de Vienne, un aperçu de l'état de l'industrie de la soie. Je voudrais pouvoir m'étendre sur les soies de l'Inde.

Je connais les résultats des essais qui ont été faits de ces soies, mais nous n'avons en Europe aucune notion certaine de la provenance réelle de la plupart de ces soies et des quantités qu'il serait possible d'obtenir. Je ne parle pas du prix qu'on ne connaît pas.

Permettez-moi, Monsieur, de vous prier de m'aider dans ma recherche des faits relatifs à ces soies.

Je désirerais distinguer nettement ces soies, signaler les provenances des unes et des autres, les espèces qui les fournissent, les arbres qui nourrissent les vers, les usages qu'en font les indigènes, les prix probables des cocons secs de chaque sorte ou des soies filées par les indigènes.

Je désirerais pouvoir donner une idée des quantités de ces cocons ou de ces soies que les fabriques européennes pourraient se procurer.

Dans des notes que la Commission Royale m'a transmis, je n'ai trouvé que des généralités très vagues. On parle de quantités énormes, on parle de prix égaux à ceux du coton.

Tout ce que vous voudrez bien, Monsieur, me dire sur le sujet sera fort intéressant pour moi.

Ce qui ne le serait pas moins, ce serait un aperçu de l'importance en valeur de la fabrication des tissus de soie dans l'Inde. La collection exposée par S. A. R. le Prince de Galles ne nous a rien appris de nouveau, mais elle nous a forcés de nous occuper de nouveau de ces manufactures dans lesquelles on trouve des preuves d'une habileté peu commune.

Certainement, on ne saurait dire exactement le nombre des métiers ou celui des ouvriers employés à ce travail, mais il ne serait pas impossible d'apprécier la valeur de cette fabrication.

Elle doit être considérable, surtout si l'on tient compte de la production des tissus qui entrent dans la consommation générale, comme les tissus de tussah et autres de ce genre.

On a beaucoup écrit sur l'Inde et cependant nous ne savons que fort peu de chose de l'état de son industrie. Sur quels points de son immense territoire le tissage de la soie est-il entrepris dans une large mesure; dans quelles villes fabrique-t-on encore les tissus de soie, d'or ou d'argent qui rappellent l'ancienne fabrication hindoue? ou fait-on les velours qu'on couvre ailleurs de broderies? nous l'ignorons, ou plutôt ce que nous en savons est douteux ou peu de chose.

From M. NATALIS RONDOT, to the Government of India.

J'ai reçu la lettre que vous m'avez fait l'honneur de m'écrire le 6 Septembre dernier, ainsi que les documents qui l'accompagnaient. Je vous remercie des informations que vous avez bien voulu me communiquer.

* * * * *

Le jury a voulu marquer, par sa décision prise à l'unanimité, l'importance qu'il attache à toutes les mesures, comme à tous les travaux pris ou accomplis dans l'Inde en vue de fournir à l'industrie européenne les soies des vers sauvages.

Par suite du cours actuel des modes, par suite aussi d'une direction différente de la consommation, la soie du ver du mûrier est moins employée, moins recherchée, et cette moindre recherche a amené une moindre demande, non seulement dans l'Inde, mais en Chine, au Japon, en Italie, en France, &c.

Il faut à présent des soies d'un prix moindre, et les soies de l'eria, du moonga, du tussah, auraient dans les circonstances présentes une application avantageuse à plusieurs titres. Les fabricants ont fait de nombreux essais, et l'exposition présente les résultats de ces essais, soit pour la filature et l'ouvrage, soit pour la teinture, soit pour le mariage avec d'autres matières textiles et le tissage.

La question est de savoir si la récolte de ces soies, ou de ces cocons, donnera des produits assez abondants pour que l'industrie soit assurée d'approvisionnements suffisants pendant la période qui paraît s'ouvrir pour l'emploi de ces soies.

Nous savons que ces soies sont en abondance en Chine, et l'Ambassadeur de Chine, en ce moment à Paris, a transmis des instructions pour obtenir des informations. Toutefois la qualité des soies de vers sauvages de Chine laisse à désirer, et l'on préférerait les soies de l'Inde qui sont plus nerveuses.

Le jury a jugé qu'il convenait d'exposer l'état des choses dans le travail d'ensemble que je dois faire en son nom, et c'est pourquoi j'attache tant de prix à posséder sur ces soies et leur emploi dans l'Inde, comme aussi sur leur prix, des données aussi étendues que possible.

Son Altesse Royale Monseigneur le Prince de Galles m'a fait l'honneur de me promettre de faire réunir, au département de l'Inde, à Londres, les documents et les indications qui s'y trouvent et de me les communiquer, mais, d'après ce qui m'a été déjà dit par M. le Dr. Birdwood et M. Thomas Wardle, je m'attends à n'avoir à cette source que des renseignements d'un ordre très général et peu actuels.

Je prends donc la liberté de vous prier de me donner, si l'occasion se présente à vous, Monsieur, de nouveaux faits sur la quantité probable de soies vers sauvages récoltés dans l'Inde, sur les marchés où elles peuvent être achetées, sur le prix moyen de chaque sorte courante, sur la quantité probable retenue par la consommation locale.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS
FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 4th MARCH 1879.

GENERAL REMARKS.—In Madras general prospects are on the whole fair. In the Bombay Presidency, where the hot weather has commenced, the rabi harvest is in progress; there has been slight rain in Sind and Kaladgi. As regards the latter place, it is said that the season of employment is over, and that there are symptoms of distress among the poor; but these circumstances can scarcely be related by way of cause and effect, inasmuch as the report further states that the rabi harvest continues. Some distress is also noted in part of Broach, but no specific cause is assigned. Matters remain very satisfactory in Mysore, and prices are falling. In the Central Provinces the harvesting of the rabi is going on, and fairly good results are anticipated; the weather is clear and warm. It is believed that the outturn, so far, has been better than was expected. In Berar the crops are being gathered in, and in Central India prospects are fair. Excepting in Ajmere good rain has fallen in Rajputana, and the outlook is generally promising. Rain is still wanted in many parts of East and Central Bengal and in part of Mozafferpore, but the crops on the ground are on the whole in good condition; the rabi is being harvested and a fair crop is expected, except in Rajshahye, where it is below the average; ploughing is going on and sowings of early staples have commenced in parts; small-pox in many and cholera in some places continue. The report from Assam shews that rain is much wanted there. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the rabi harvest is in progress, and prospects are fair. The condition of the Punjab is reported to have much improved. It is, in particular, fortunate that there has been rain in the frontier districts and in Multan and Rawalpindi, parts of the Province where prices, owing no doubt in some measure to the operations in Afghanistan, have been ruling high.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE.

Fort William, the 21st March 1879.

No. 1375.—Ordered that the following be published in the Gazette of India for general information:—

FINANCIAL.

INDIA OFFICE,

No. 45.

London, 6th February 1879.

To His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council.

M^r LORD.—I have to acquaint you that the rate of exchange for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and Indian Governments, for the year 1879-80, has been fixed, with the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, at one shilling and seven pence half-penny (1s. 7½d.) the rupee, and I have to request that you will give the necessary instructions for the due observance of this rate in respect of all transactions, to which it is applicable.

I have the honor to be, &c.,
CRANBROOK.

REVENUE—SEPARATE REVENUE—OPIUM.

The 22nd March 1879.

No. 1368.—In exercise of the powers conferred by the Opium Act I of 1878, the Hon'ble the President in Council is pleased to direct that the said Act shall come into force in the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of Assam on the 1st day of April 1879.

POST OFFICE.

The 7th March 1879.

No. 1170.—Ordered that the following Resolution be published in the Gazette of India:—

It has been brought to the notice of the Government of India, that articles liable to Sea Customs duty are frequently imported into India through the Letter Post and thus escape the duty to which they are liable. Such importations are in direct contravention of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866, Section 60 of which Act declares that any cover supposed to contain articles subject to Customs duty may be opened by the Post Office authorities after due notice to attend has been given to the addressee.

His Excellency the Governor General in Council desires to remind the public that the importation through the Letter Post of goods liable to duty is illegal, and to notify for general information that the provisions of Section 60 of Act XIV of 1866 will be strictly enforced.

Ordered, that this Resolution be communicated to the several Local Governments and Administrations, and for information and guidance to the Director General of the Post Office of India.

REVENUE—SEPARATE REVENUE—POST OFFICE.

The 21st March 1879.

No. 1403.—The International Postal Convention signed at Paris on the 1st of June 1878, having necessitated various changes in the postal rates and conditions respecting correspondence with places abroad, the Governor General in Council, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by the Indian Post Office Act, 1868, is pleased to sanction the following revised rules, conditions, and postage rates in respect of articles transmitted by Foreign Post.

The new postage rates, rules and conditions shall have effect from the 1st April 1879, excepting those relating to Post Cards, regarding which a further Notification will be issued on the Cards in course of manufacture becoming available for use.

| India and Aden | { British India Steam Navigation Company via Kurrachee. |

It also includes the land post between India and Ceylon. Also all mails sent by private ships or vessels, whether from one Indian Post Office to another, or to and from places abroad. Also all mails sent by Her Majesty's British packets (Peninsular and Oriental Company), or by Colonial packets, or by the French mail packets, whether from one Indian Post Office to another, or to and from places abroad.

Foreign Correspondence by private vessel.

2. Mails can be sent by any private vessel leaving a port in India, but only such classes of mails are forwarded as can be received under the postal regulations of the country of destination. Banghy parcels cannot be sent to any foreign country by private vessel.

Letters, &c., intended for despatch by private vessel should be marked as such by the sender, the name of the vessel being given if transmission by a particular vessel is desired. Letters, &c., not so marked may be forwarded by private vessel if there be no regular mail communication with the country of destination.

Letters, &c., intended for despatch by private vessel must be fully prepaid by stamps at the ordinary Indian inland rates, and they will be liable on delivery in any foreign country to such postage as may be chargeable under the regulations of that country. This rule does not, however, apply to correspondence sent by private vessel to Ceylon, Hong-Kong, Mauritius, Seychelles or the Straits, for which see those entries in the Foreign Post Schedule.

Letters, &c., cannot be registered by private vessel.

Route by which forwarded.

3. The route by which an article is intended to be sent should be marked on the upper left-hand corner of the address side, and when possible the instructions so given will be followed. An article marked for a particular route, but not fulfilling the conditions of that route (e. g., in respect of compulsory prepayment of postage), will be treated as if not marked for any particular route. Articles not marked for any particular route will, as a general rule, be sent by the route which stands first in the Schedule, except where there is a quicker despatch by some other route, or where the first route may involve special expenses (e.g., by special train via Brindisi), or where it may require the compulsory pre-payment of a higher rate of postage than that which has been prepaid, or where the amount of postage paid may leave no doubt as to the route intended.

Correspondence from or to Aden or Zanzibar.

4. Correspondence passing direct between Aden and places abroad is ordinarily governed by the same conditions and is conveyed by the same routes as correspondence between India and places abroad: in cases where there are special conditions or routes applicable to correspondence from Aden, special mention thereof is made in the Schedule.

Correspondence from Aden to India or any Indian Post Office is charged at the rates shewn in the Schedule for correspondence from India to Aden. Zanzibar stands in the position of a branch office to Aden: correspondence to Zanzibar is governed by the conditions mentioned in the Schedule: and correspondence from Zanzibar is governed by the same conditions as if it were posted at Aden, unless it be addressed to Aden itself, when it is subject to ordinary inland rates and conditions.

Letters for Erzeroum and the interior of Armenia, West Arabia, Persia, Turkey, Asia Minor, Kashmir, Gilgit, Ladakh, Cabul, &c.

5. It is recommended that letters for Erzeroum and other parts of the interior of Armenia be addressed to the care of some agent at Samsoun or Trebizond.

Letters for Hodeida, Jedda, Mecca, Mocha or other places in West Arabia and Massowah (in Abyssinia) should be prepaid as far as Suez at the rate of postage prescribed for letters to Suez. From Suez they are forwarded to destination by Egyptian Post, or such opportunity as may offer. Any letter for Jedda or Mecca which may be specially marked by the senders for transmission through Aden, and prepaid at the rates of postage prescribed for letters to Aden, will be forwarded direct from Aden by the first private vessel.

Letters for Kiermanshah and Hamadan in Persia should be sent by the Indian inland post to the Indian Post Office at Bagdad, addressed to the care of some agent there: and letters for Teheran, Ispahan, Shiraz, Julfa or other places in Persia will be sent to the Persian Post Office at Bushire, which will forward them to destination.

Letters for such places in Turkey and Asia Minor or Syria, as have no British, Austrian or French Post Offices (see list of British, Austrian and French Offices in Turkey given in the Schedule), should be addressed to the care of an agent at the nearest port at which a British, Austrian or French Office has been established.

Letters and other articles for Kashmir are forwarded during the summer months (15th April to 1st November) through the Indian Post Office at Murree and thence by Kashmir Post to Srinagar, where an Indian Post Office is maintained temporarily. During the summer, letters, &c., sent by this route are subject to the ordinary Indian inland rates of postage and to the ordinary rules as respects prepayment; but additional postage equal to half Indian postage is levied on delivery on behalf of the Kashmir Government. During the winter months, letters for Kashmir are forwarded to the Indian Frontier Post Office at Sialkot, and thence by Kashmir Post to Jummoo. This route is closed during the summer, when the Murree route is open.

Letters and other articles for Gilgit and Leh (Ladakh) are forwarded during the summer months (15th April to 1st November) through the Indian Post Office at Murree, and thence by the Kashmir post. During the winter months, letters for Gilgit and Leh are forwarded through the Indian Post Office at Sialkot, and thence by Kashmir post. The delivery at Leh is effected through an Indian Office at that place: but the transit to Leh is under the control of the Kashmir post. By either route, letters, &c., are charged on delivery by the Kashmir Government with postage equal to half Indian postage, in addition to ordinary Indian inland rates.

Letters for Cabul, if fully prepaid with ordinary Indian inland postage, are forwarded to the Indian Frontier Post Office at Peshawar, and there made over to the Postal Agent appointed by the Ameer of Cabul for delivery under local conditions and rates of charge. Mails are forwarded by the Agent towards Cabul about three times a week.

Addresses on Foreign Articles.

6. In the case of letters for places abroad, the name of the country (written clearly in large, well-formed characters), as well as the town or city, should be given in full. Attention to this rule will often assist in deciphering the name of the town or city, and will prevent the letter from being mis-sent when there are towns of the same name in different countries. The address of every letter to a place abroad should end with the name the country. Names of foreign towns, cities or countries should be spelt in the address in the same way as in the Foreign Post Schedule: and the attention of foreigners is particularly directed to this point, as many of them are in the habit of spelling foreign names according to the foreign method. If the route by which the article is intended to be sent be given by the sender, it should be written on the upper left-hand corner, and if the name of the sender be given, it should be written on the lower left-hand corner.

Addresses on letters for Russia.

Letters, &c., for Russia should have, besides the name of the town, the name of the Province or Government in which they are situated; and further, the address must be plainly written. If these conditions be not complied with, the Russian Post Office declines to undertake the delivery of the correspondence.

Registration to places abroad.

7. Letters may be registered to those places abroad to which registration is available (vide Foreign Post Schedule), provided that the postage is fully prepaid, as well as the full amount of the registration fee shewn in the Schedule. Letters for places mentioned in clause 5 cannot be registered, except in the cases of those addressed to Srinagar and Leh, where Indian Post Offices have been established, or to Persia.

It is to be understood that registration to places abroad applies only to letters or packets prepaid at letter rates, except in respect of the United Kingdom and other countries belonging to the Universal Postal Union (marked I in column 2 of Schedule), to which correspondence of all kinds may also be registered.

The sender of a registered article can obtain an acknowledgment of the delivery of such article, when addressed to a Union country (marked I in column 2 of the Schedule), by prepaying two annas in postage stamps in addition to the usual registration fee.

As stated in clause 2, letters, &c., cannot be registered by private vessel.

Registration of Initial Addresses to the United Kingdom forbidden.

No letter or other article addressed to initials, or to a fictitious name, and destined for the United Kingdom can be registered. Such articles, if tendered, will not be accepted for registration.

Transmission of dangerous or offensive substances prohibited.

8. The prohibition against the transmission of dangerous or offensive substances contained in paragraph 9 of Section II applies also to Foreign Post articles.*

No letter or packet containing gold or silver money, jewels or precious articles, or any article liable to customs duty, may be sent through the post to places abroad. This does not apply to the Overland Parcel Post.

Newspapers, Books, &c., regarded as dutiable in the United States of America.

In the United States of America all imported newspapers and books are regarded as dutiable: but in the case of articles intended for the personal use of the addressee, the officers of the Post Office are authorised to exercise their discretion in admitting without duty unsealed packages of newspapers not exceeding 2 lbs. 3 ozs. in weight, as well as books, and other articles of merchandise not exceeding a dutiable value of one dollar.

Newspapers.

9. Newspapers may be sent in packets as printed papers under clause 10, but if sent either singly or separately folded and tied in a bundle (the bundle being superscribed with the number of separate newspapers contained in it), they are conveyed at the privileged rate (prepayment compulsory) of postage shown in the Schedule under the column headed "Each Newspaper."

* NOTE. - This rule is, however, modified as regards correspondence for France and French colonies, to which the following articles may be sent under the conditions named below, viz.: - (a) Liquids, or fatty substances easily melted, which must be enclosed in bottles hermetically sealed and afterwards packed in wooden boxes containing sufficient cotton, sawdust, or other absorbing material to retain anything that may escape from the bottle if it should be broken; the wooden box must be finally enclosed in a metal case. (b) Fatty substances not easily melted, such as resin, soft soap, &c., must be enclosed in a cover of linen, parchment, or wood, and finally placed in an outer cover of wood or metal. (c) Dry powders (if not dangerous) may be packed in two separate coverings, provided that nothing can escape to stain or damage other articles.

Articles dangerous, inflammable, explosive, or of bad odour, or in any way exceeding the limits of size or weight laid down in this section, will under no circumstances be transmitted. The articles specified must have no intrinsic value, and the smallest quantity necessary to serve as a sample should be sent.

Printed Papers and Legal and Commercial Documents.

10. The following conditions, &c., being those of the Universal Postal Union, apply generally to all countries, with the special exceptions mentioned in the Schedule opposite particular countries.

Attention is drawn to the limit of weight, viz., 2 Kilogrammes or 4 lbs. 6 ozs. fixed for a packet of printed papers or legal and commercial documents. See Schedule and exception opposite the United Kingdom.

Under the head of "Printed Papers" are included newspapers and periodicals, stitched or bound books, pamphlets, music, visiting cards, address cards, proofs of printing with or without the manuscript relating thereto, engravings, photographs, drawings, plans, maps, catalogues, prospectuses, announcements and notices of various kinds, whether printed, engraved or lithographed or means of printing, lithography, or any other mechanical process easy to recognise, except the copying press.

The following articles are considered as "Legal and Commercial Documents," viz., all deeds or documents, written or drawn, wholly or partly by hand, which have not the character of an actual and personal correspondence, such as papers of legal procedure, deeds of all kinds drawn up by public functionaries, way-bills and bills of lading, invoices, the various documents of insurance companies, copies or extracts of private deeds, written on stamped or unstamped paper, scores or sheets of manuscript music, manuscripts of works forwarded separately, &c.

NOTE.—The definition of "Legal and Commercial Documents" given above is held to include such written articles intended for publication in Newspapers as are not of the nature of a personal letter as well as written descriptions or hand sketches of places which are sent for publication; it is held also to include written letters of old date which have previously passed through the post and served their original purpose.

Articles posted as "Legal and Commercial Documents" must be placed under bands or in an unclosed envelope. "Printed Papers" must be either placed under band, upon a roller, between boards, in a cover open at one side, or at both ends, or in an unclosed envelope, or simply folded in such a manner as not to conceal the nature of the packet, or, lastly, tied by a string easy to unfasten. An address card or a printed article presenting the form and consistency of an unfolded card may be forwarded without band, envelope, fastening or fold.

Printed papers may contain manuscript to the following extent:

(a.)—Signature of sender or designation of his name or of his firm, his rank, the place of origin, and the date of despatch;

(b.)—Dedication or compliments inscribed by the author;

(c.)—Simple marks drawing attention to certain passages;

(d.)—Prices added to stock or share lists, prices current or market reports;

(e.)—Quotations or corrections on proofs of printing or musical compositions.

Articles posted as "Printed Papers" or "Legal and Commercial Documents" which do not fulfil the foregoing conditions, or are not prepaid to the extent of one anna, at least, for "Printed papers," and two annas for "Legal and Commercial Documents," will not be forwarded.

NOTE.—As an exception to the above rule, unpaid articles posted as "Printed papers" or "Legal and Commercial Documents," and fulfilling all conditions except that of partial prepayment, will, when addressed to the United Kingdom, be forwarded, but will be liable on delivery to double the deficient postage.

Samples of Merchandise.

11. The following conditions, &c., being those of the Universal Postal Union, apply generally to to all countries, with the special exceptions mentioned in the Schedule opposite particular countries.

Attention is drawn to the limit of size, viz., 8 by 4 by 2 inches, and of weight, viz., 8 ounces fixed for a packet of samples. See Schedule and exception opposite the United Kingdom.

Samples of merchandise are chargeable with the reduced postage under the following conditions:

(a.)—They must be placed in bags, boxes or envelopes removable, so as to admit of an easy examination of their contents.

(b.)—They must not have any saleable value, or bear any manuscript writing other than the name or the trade or firm of the sender, the address of the person for whom the packet is intended, a manufacturer's or trade mark, numbers and prices.

Samples not packed in accordance with these conditions, or not prepaid to the extent of one rate at least, will not be forwarded, nor will any of which the conveyance would be attended with inconvenience or danger.

NOTE.—As an exception to the above rule, unpaid articles posted as "samples of merchandise," and fulfilling all conditions except that of prepayment, will, when addressed to the United Kingdom, be forwarded, but will be liable on delivery to double the deficient postage.

Articles grouped in one despatch.

It is permitted to enclose in the same packet samples of merchandise, printed papers and legal and commercial documents, but subject to the following conditions:

(a.)—That each article taken separately shall not exceed the limits of weight and size applicable to it;

(b.)—That the total weight shall not exceed 4 lbs. 6 ozs. per packet;

(c.)—That the lowest amount prepaid shall be two annas if the despatch contains legal and commercial documents, and one anna if the despatch consists of printed papers or samples.

Unpaid or insufficiently paid correspondence which does not come under the conditions given in the Schedule.

12. Such correspondence will be returned to the sender through the Dead Letter Office. The sender has no claim to a refund of the postage originally paid, but, in the case of recent alterations of postage rates and conditions, the Post Master General (or officer exercising the powers of Post Master General) may exercise discretion in authorising such refunds in special cases.

Correspondence re-directed to places abroad.

13. Letters, &c., re directed in India to places abroad will be sent forward charged with the Non-Union postage (if any) due at the time of re-direction, no extra claim being raised for the re-transmission so far as the Indian Post Office is concerned. The postage levied in the country of destination will be governed by the regulations of that country. Letters, &c., re-directed to the United Kingdom or countries served through it will, if originally received from such countries, be forwarded by the route by which they came: and in other cases by the route via Brindisi.

This rule does not apply to articles re-directed by Overland Parcel Post.

Correspondence received from places abroad.

14. Post cards received from countries of the Union (marked I in Schedule) will be delivered in India as paid letters.

By routes marked I.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters and insufficiently paid printed papers, &c., received from any country of the Union (marked I in Schedule), will be charged on delivery with double the deficient postage. Fractions of half an anna will be raised to half an anna. Letters from the Portuguese Offices of Goa and Diu are charged at Indian inland rates without regard to any stamps which may be affixed to them. Unpaid printed papers, &c., received from the United Kingdom (or exceptionally received from other places), will be charged at double the rates fixed for the prepayment of similar articles going in the opposite direction.

Letters received in Aden from Zanzibar by British Packet are subject to the ordinary Indian inland rate and conditions.

By routes marked II.

Letters received from any Non-Union Country through a Union Country (routes marked II in Schedule) as unpaid or insufficiently paid, will be charged with double the deficient postage. Fractions of half an anna will be raised to half an anna.

Any articles other than letters which may be exceptionally received from such places either unpaid or insufficiently paid will be charged in the same manner.

By routes marked III.

Letters and other articles received from Ceylon, Hong-Kong, Mauritius, Seychelles or the Straits by private vessels (marked III in Schedule) are all received fully prepaid and delivered without charge.

Letters and other articles received from any place (except Ceylon, Hong-Kong, Mauritius, Seychelles or the Straits) by private vessels are charged with ordinary Indian inland postage at prepaid rates, according to weight in tolas, together with (in the case of letters) one anna each, being the sum paid to the Commander of the vessel.

By routes marked IV.

Letters, newspapers, and packets are all received fully prepaid (and are delivered without charge) from the places and by the routes marked IV in the Schedule, viz. :

Australia by British Packet.

East Africa (i. e., Cape, Delagoa Bay and Natal) by British Packet through Aden.

Unpaid or insufficiently paid letters exceptionally received from Australia or other places in the same category are charged at the rates shown in the Schedule for similar articles sent from India.

Re-direction of articles received from places abroad.

15. Prepaid articles received from places abroad, and re-directed after arrival in India to another place in India, will not be charged with any additional postage on account of such re-direction. The exemption contained in this clause applies to overland parcels.

An article re-directed from a Union Country to India will be treated in India as follows:—(1) if originally fully prepaid at its first address, it will be charged with the difference between the postage already paid, and the postage which would have been required for prepayment from the country of origin direct to its destination in India. (2) if originally unpaid or insufficiently prepaid, it will be charged as if it had come direct from the country of origin as an unpaid or insufficiently paid letter.

The rule contained in this clause does not apply to overland parcels.

Addresses on letters, &c., for passengers on board.

16. Letters posted in India for delivery to persons on their way to or from India should preferentially be addressed to the care of the local agent of the vessel or company to which the vessel belongs, full particulars being given of the name, re., of the vessel (describing it as outward bound or homeward bound); if the addressee is travelling by one of the mail steamers (P. and O. Company), it may be sufficient to give the port of departure (Brindisi, Southampton, Calcutta or Bombay) of the steamer, with the time-table date of such departure and port of destination: for example, "A. B., passenger by outward Mail Steamer, Southampton (24th March) to Calcutta," care of &c., &c., &c., &c.

It is recommended that the name and address of the sender be written on the lower left-hand corner of the letter, preceded by the word "from," so as to save the opening of the letter in the Dead Letter Office in case of non-delivery, and it is recommended also that all such letters be fully prepaid.

If a letter be posted in India via Bombay to the address of a passenger proceeding from Calcutta or Madras by a steamer of the P. and O. Company timed to reach Aden or Suez at or about the same time as the mail steamer which carries the letter from Bombay, it may be addressed as follows :

Name of Addressee.

Passenger by Calcutta Mail Steamer (here enter name of vessel if known or Calcutta date of departure).

Care of Marine Travelling Post Office, Bombay.

N. B.—Full pre-payment at Southampton rates is compulsory.

Such letters will be made over to the Marine Post Office on leaving Bombay, and will be left at Aden for delivery, if the Bombay mail steamer precedes the Calcutta steamer, or be taken out for delivery through the Peninsular and Oriental Company's Agency at Suez if the Calcutta steamer has preceded. The delivery at Suez will be effected on board the Calcutta steamer as soon as possible after the arrival of the Bombay steamer.*

* NOTE.—These letters will be delivered through the Peninsular and Oriental Company's Agency, as the local Post Office at Suez is closed from 11 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily.

SCHEDULE OF RATES.

Containing the Rates of Postage chargeable in India upon Letters, Newspapers, &c., addressed to places abroad, and forwarded by Mail Packets or other organised Posts.

The maximum size of any articles is 2 feet in length by one foot in breadth or depth, except samples which may not exceed 8 inches in length by 4 and 2 inches in breadth and depth. Where no special conditions as to weight are given, the maximum weight of printed paper or legal or commercial documents is 4 lbs. 6 oz. and of samples 8 oz. For definition of printed papers, legal and commercial documents and samples, see Clauses 9 to 11 of remarks preceding this Schedule.

The registration and acknowledgment fees (see Clause 7 of remarks preceding this Schedule) as well as the postage must, in all cases of registration, be prepaid in full by stamps; full prepayment is in every case compulsory for newspapers sent as such, i. e., at the privileged rates quoted for newspapers; full prepayment is also compulsory for packets of printed papers, &c., addressed to Non-Union Countries; and the prepayment of at least one rate is compulsory for like articles addressed to Union Countries (except the United Kingdom).

Full prepayment is also compulsory both for letters and other articles when addressed to Countries (Union or Non-Union) by route marked "C" in the Schedule.

Post cards can only be sent to Union places marked I in column 2.

Where the means of conveyance from India is not specified in column 1, it is always by British Packet, i. e., P and O. Co.

Where the description of the route in column 1 contains no mention of a particular Indian Office, the mails are sent via Bombay, or via Aden in the case of correspondence posted at Aden.

The name immediately following the word "through" in column 1 is that of the country or office to which the mails are consigned the Indian Post Office.

"Via C. M." in column 1 means that the route is via Calcutta or Madras, according to the locality where posted.

For further explanations, &c., see the remarks preceding this Schedule.

Special train transit through Europe. The Post-card rate of 2 annas, for Brindisi must be made up by attaching a ½ anna adhesive stamp to the Foreign Post-card

The maximum size of any article is 2 feet in length by one foot in breadth or depth, except samples which may not exceed 8 in length by 4 and 2 inches in breadth and depth. Where no special conditions as to weight are given, the maximum weight of printed papers or legal or commercial documents is 4 lbs. 6 oz. and of samples 8 oz. For definition of printed papers, legal and commercial documents and samples, see clauses 9 to 11 of remarks preceding this Schedule.

The registration and acknowledgment fees (see Clause 7 of remarks preceding this Schedule), as well as the postage must, in all cases of registration, be prepaid in full by stamps; full prepayment is in every case compulsory for newspapers sent as such, i. e., at privileged rates quoted for newspapers; full prepayment is also compulsory for packets of printed papers, &c., addressed to Non-Union Countries; and the prepayment of at least one rate is compulsory for like articles addressed to Union Countries (except the United Kingdom).

Full prepayment is also compulsory both for letters and other articles when addressed to Countries (Union or Non-Union) by registered mail marked "C" in the Schedule.

Post-cards can only be sent to Union places marked I in column 2.

Where the means of conveyance from India is not specified in column 1, it is always by British Packet, i. e., P. and O. Co.

Where the description of the route in column 1 contains no mention of a particular Indian Office, the mails are sent via Bombay from Aden in the case of correspondence posted at Aden.

The name immediately following the word "through" in column 1 is that of the country or office to which the mails are consigned by the Indian Post Office.

"Via C. M." in column 1 means that the route is via Calcutta or Madras, according to the locality where posted.

For further explanations, &c., see the remarks preceding this Schedule.

Special train transit through Europe. The Post-card rate of 2 annas via Brindisi must be made up by attaching a ½-anna adhesive stamp to the Foreign Post-card

The maximum size of any article is 2 feet in length by one foot in breadth or depth, except samples which may not exceed 8 inches in length by 4 and 2 inches in breadth and depth. Where no special conditions as to weight are given, the maximum weight of printed papers or legal or commercial documents is 4 lbs. 8 oz. and of samples 8 oz. For definition of printed papers, legal and commercial documents and samples, see Clause 9 to 11 of remarks preceding this Schedule.

The registration and acknowledgment fees (see Clause 7 of remarks preceding this Schedule), as well as the postage must, in all cases of registration, be prepaid in full by stamps; full prepayment is in every case compulsory for newspapers sent as such, i. e., at the privileged rates quoted for newspapers; full prepayment is also compulsory for packets of printed papers, &c., addressed to Non-Union Countries and the prepayment of at least one rate is compulsory for like articles addressed to Union Countries (except the United Kingdom).

Full prepayment is also compulsory both for letters and other articles when addressed to Countries (Union or Non-Union) by registered "C" in the Schedule.

Post-cards can only be sent to Union places marked I in column 2.

Where the means of conveyance from India is not specified in column 1, it is always by British Packet, i. e., P. and O. Co.

Where the description of the route in column 1 contains no mention of a particular Indian Office, the mails are sent via Bombay, from Aden in the case of correspondence posted at Aden.

The name immediately following the word "through" in column 1 is that of country or office to which the mails are consigned by Indian Post Office.

"Via C. M." in column 1 means that the route is via Calcutta or Madras, according to the locality where posted.

For further explanations, &c., see the remarks preceding this Schedule.

* Special train transit through Europe. The Post-card rate of 2 annas via Brindisi must be made up by attaching a 4-anna adhesive stamp to the Foreign Post-card.

The maximum size of any article is two feet in length by one foot in breadth or depth, except samples which may not exceed 8 in length by 4 and 2 inches in breadth and depth. Where no special conditions as to weight are given, the maximum weight of papers or legal or commercial documents is 4 lbs. 6 oz. and of samples 8 oz. For definition of printed papers, legal and commercial documents, see Clauses 9 to 11 of remarks preceding this Schedule.

The registration and acknowledgment fees (see Clause 7 of remarks preceding this Schedule), as well as the postage must in a of registration, be prepaid in full by stamps; full prepayment is in every case compulsory for newspapers sent as such, i. e., at the leged rates quoted for newspapers; full prepayment is also compulsory for packets of printed papers, &c., addressed to Non-Union Countries and the prepayment of at least one rate is compulsory for like articles addressed to Union Countries except the United Kingdom).

Full prepayment is also compulsory both for letters and other articles when addressed to Countries (Union or Non-Union) by marked "C" in the Schedule.

Post-cards can only be sent to Union places marked I in column 2.

Where the means of conveyance from India is not specified in column 1, it is always by British Packet, i. e., P. O. and O. Co.

Where the description of the route in column 1 contains no mention of a particular Indian Office, the mails are sent via Bom from Aden in the case of correspondence posted at Aden.

The name immediately following the word "through" in column 1 is that of country or office to which the mails are consigned Indian Post Office.

"Via C. M." in column 1 means that the route is via Calcutta or Madras, according to the locality where posted.

For further explanations, &c., see the remarks preceding this Schedule.

OVERLAND PARCEL POST.

N. B.—Information respecting parcels to India from Foreign countries can be had at the Post Offices of those countries. The Post Office does not receive parcels for transmission to India (see below under United Kingdom).

The rules governing the despatch of parcels from the United Kingdom to India are, however, published in the British Postal and exhibited in every British Post Office. Persons in India ordering goods to be sent out by Parcel Post may refer the sender to the means of information about the transmission of parcels.

Parcels from the United Kingdom may be sent either paid or unpaid.

The rate charged for parcels of books from the United Kingdom, is 6d. per lb. The charge for other parcels from the United dom is 1s. per lb.

(1).—Parcels are received at any Post Office in India (see note* at foot of this Statement respecting Aden) under the condition rates of charge mentioned below, for transmission to the following countries, viz.:—

| Countries. | Rate of Charge per lb. or fraction thereof. Prepayment compulsory. | Remarks respecting special conditions, &c., applicable to particular countries. |
|---|--|--|
| The United Kingdom ... | Annas. 8 | The prepayment carries the parcel as far as London: any additional charge which may be due on account of British custom duty or carriage beyond London being realised by the addressee. Parcels must not exceed £50 in value. Any parcel which on examination of the declaration at Bombay may be found to exceed this value will, instead of being forwarded by the Parcel Post, be transferred to the Bombay Agency of the P. & O. S. N. Company for transmission independently of the Post Office, and subject to such regulations and charges as may be applicable thereto under the Company's regulations. (Note.—The Company's present charge is an ad valorem rate of 2 per cent., which does not include Marine Insurance.) The attention of the public is invited to the fact that the British Post Office has no connection with the Overland Parcel Post; all arrangements out of India are made by the P. and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, and enquiries proceeding from the United Kingdom should be addressed to that Company's Office, 122, Leadenhall Street, London, E.C. |
| Aden See note* at foot of this statement. | | |

* Note.—Parcels may be sent from Aden to the United Kingdom or from Aden to India (but not to other places) or from India to Aden under the same conditions as parcels sent from India to the United Kingdom, except that the address on the outer cover will be different (see Rule 4). On parcels from Aden containing ostrich feathers the charge is one rupee four annas per pound instead of eight annas.

| Countries. | Rate of charge per lb. or fraction thereof. Prepayment compulsory. | Remarks respecting special conditions, &c., applicable to particular countries. |
|-----------------------|--|--|
| Annas. | 8 | The prepayment carries the parcel to destination. Should any custom duty become due, the amount will be charged on delivery. |
| Straits, i. e.,— | | The route is via Tuticorin for Southern India and via Bombay for other parts of India: see Rule (4). |
| Singapore | 8 | The prepayment carries the parcel to destination. The ports of destination are free ports, so that no custom duty will be chargeable therein. |
| Penang | | The routes are by opium steamers (Jardine, Matheson, and Apear), monthly through Calcutta to Singapore; by B. I. S. N. Company fortnightly through Calcutta or Madras or Rangoon to Singapore, Penang and Malacca; and by P. & O. S. N. Company fortnightly through Bombay to Singapore and Penang: see Rule (4). |
| Malacca | | The prepayment carries the parcel to destination. Should any custom duty become due, the amount will be charged on delivery. From Rule 3 it will be seen that second or duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, declarations of contents and value are required. See also Rule 9, respecting compensation for damage or loss. |
| Austria-Hungary | | The prepayment carries the parcel to destination. Should any custom duty become due, the amount will be charged on delivery. See also Rule 9, respecting compensation for damage or loss. |
| Denmark | | The prepayment carries the parcel to the limit of German conveyance, a separate charge being made on delivery for conveyance beyond the German frontier, as well as for custom duty, should any become due. See also Rule 9, respecting compensation for damage or loss. |
| Germany | 8 | The prepayment carries the parcel to the limit of German conveyance, a separate charge being made on delivery for conveyance beyond the German frontier, as well as for custom duty should any become due. From Rule 3 it will be seen that there must be also a second or duplicate declaration of contents and value. See also Rule 9, respecting compensation for damage or loss. |
| Netherlands (Holland) | 8 | The prepayment carries the parcel to the limit of German conveyance, a separate charge being made on delivery for conveyance beyond the German frontier, as well as for custom duty, should any become due. From Rule 3 it will be seen that there must be also a second or duplicate declaration of contents and value, and that the second or duplicate declaration should contain a statement of the weight (lbs. & ozs. or tolas) of the contents, and should, if possible, be written in the French language. See also Rule 9, respecting compensation for damage or loss. |
| Belgium | | |

(2).—Every parcel should be securely packed in a closed cover or case, and should bear the name and address of the person in the United Kingdom or foreign country for whom it is intended. Parcels containing valuables should be sealed.

N. B.—The public are specially warned against the use of flimsy covers for articles transmitted by the Parcel Post. Heavy articles sometimes sent with only paper covering, insecurely tied with string: friction in transit detaches this cover, and damage and loss ensue. Covering of stout cloth or wax-cloth sewn at the edges is recommended; but if the contents are liable to suffer from pressure, boxes of wood or tin should be used.

(3).—Every parcel should be accompanied by a separate paper headed with the address of the parcel and containing a declaration (early written) of its contents and value under the signature of the sender. Below the signature the address of the sender should be given.

For the parcels addressed to—

| | | | |
|---------------------------|-----|-----|---|
| The United Kingdom | ... | ... | } Only one declaration as above described is required. |
| Ceylon | ... | ... | |
| Straits | ... | ... | |
| Austria-Hungary | ... | ... | |
| Denmark | ... | ... | |
| Germany | ... | ... | } A second or duplicate declaration is also required for parcels under 5 pounds, and a triplicate declaration for parcels above that weight. |
| Sweden | ... | ... | |
| Norway | ... | ... | } A second or duplicate declaration is also required. |
| Switzerland | ... | ... | |
| France | ... | ... | } A second or duplicate declaration is also required: and the sender is requested to enter in the declaration a statement of the weight (lbs. and ozs. or tolas) of the contents and to write the second or duplicate declaration, if possible, in the French language. Should he be unable to do so, the Bombay Post Office will attach to the second or duplicate English declaration a French rendering thereof, but the sender is warned of the delay which may result from this. |
| The Netherlands (Holland) | ... | ... | |
| Belgium | ... | ... | |

It is not deemed necessary to require exact adherence to any particular form of declaration, but the following specimen form may be useful to the senders of parcels:—

Specimen form of declaration

| | | | |
|---|-----|-------|--------|
| Address of Parcel. | | | |
| Thomas B. Smith, 112, Piccadilly, London. | | | |
| Contents. | | | Value. |
| 1 Piece Putton cloth | ... | ... | £ s d. |
| 1 Rampore chudder | ... | ... | 2 0 0 |
| | | TOTAL | 4 10 0 |
| I declare the above to be a true statement of the contents and value. | | | |
| (Signed) A. R. ROBINSON, Amritsar. | | | |

N. B.—Declarations for parcels intended for France, the Netherlands or Belgium, should, in addition to the above, contain a statement of the weight (lbs. and ozs. or tolas) of the contents. This may conveniently be done by adding the words "weight—lbs.—ozs." underneath the total value, and the words "and weight" at the end of the sentence containing the declaration.

(4).—The parcel so addressed, and the separate paper or papers above referred to, should be enclosed in a separate cover. This outer cover should be superscribed and addressed as follows:—

If addressed from India to Ceylon.

If addressed from India to the Straits.

Overland Parcel Post.

Postage stamp
to be affixed.

To
The Post Master, Tuticorin }
or Bombay. }

Overland Parcel Post.

or Madras } or Bombay } or Rangoon. }

*N.B.—The address should be to Tuticorin if posted in Southern India, and to Bombay if posted in other parts of India.

† N.B.—The address to Calcutta or Madras or Bombay or Rangoon should be according to the locality of posting.

If addressed from Aden to the United Kingdom.

If addressed from India to the United Kingdom or to any other country (i.e., other than Ceylon and the Straits), or from Aden to India.

Overland Parcel Post.

Postage stamp
to be affixed.

To
The Post Master, Aden.

Overland Parcel Post.

Postage stamp
to be affixed.

The Post Master, Bombay.

The outer cover must contain one parcel only. If more than one parcel be sent by the same sender, such parcel should be sent separately.

(5).—The parcel so made up must be fully prepaid by means of postage stamps at the prescribed rate, affixed to the outer cover, care being taken that the stamps adhere firmly.

(6).—The parcel so made up must not exceed 50 lbs. (25 seers) in weight, or 2 feet in length by 1 foot in breadth or depth. It must be received at any Post Office at the hours fixed for the receipt of ordinary baggage parcels, the usual receipt being given to the sender without reference to the mode of packing prescribed in the case of inland parcels for which receipts are claimed.

(7).—On arrival at the Indian sea port town of address, the Post Master will take off the outer covering, and forward the inside parcel and the accompanying declaration or declarations to the country of inside address.

(8).—It is forbidden to send in these parcels opium or any liquid, or any substance or material of a dangerous, damaging, or offensive kind.

(9).—In the case of parcels for or from Germany or Austria-Hungary, and the foreign countries served through Germany, compensation will be given by the responsible Post Office to the sender for loss or damage sustained in transit (cases of sea risk or of vis major or of the own negligence of the sender in respect of packing or otherwise excepted). Such compensation will in no case exceed 1½ rupees each lb. weight or fraction thereof in respect of parcels forwarded from India, and 3 marks or 1½ florins for each 500 grammes or fraction thereof in respect of parcels from Germany or Austria-Hungary. Should the sender desire it, the compensation will be paid to the addressee instead of to himself.

SPECIAL RATES FOR FOREIGN LETTERS OF SOLDIERS AND SEAMEN.

Classes entitled and rates of charge.

(1).—Subject to the subjoined Regulations, Non-Commissioned Officers, Band Masters, Army School Masters (not being Superintendents or 1st Class School Masters), Army School Mistresses, Private Soldiers, or Seamen belonging to Her Majesty's ships, can send, and receive letters by British Packet for a postage of 9 pies; but if any such letters are sent wholly or partly by the post of a foreign country, they are subject in addition to the foreign postage, whatever that may be. Thus the postage by British Packet to the unmentioned countries (including the British Packet charge of 9 pies) is as follows:—

- | | | | | |
|---|--------|--|--------|---------------------------|
| (1) To the United Kingdom | | By Southampton, 9 pies | | } Pre-payment optional. |
| | | By India, 2 annas 6 pies | | |
| (2) To countries or places served through the United Kingdom | | Same as above, but if the place be foreign (not British), the letter will be liable to additional foreign postage on delivery. | | } Pre-payment optional. |
| (3) To any British or Indian office served direct by British or Indian packets, viz.: Aden, Australian Colonies, Bangkok (through Singapore), Bombay, Calcutta, Cape Colony, Ceylon, China (through Hong-Kong), Cyprus, Delagoa Bay, Fiji Islands, Gibraltar, Hong-Kong, Japan (through Hong-Kong), Labuan, Macao (through Hong-Kong), Madras, Malta, Natal, Straits and Zanzibar | | By British or Indian Packet or by land post to Ceylon, 9 pies. | | |
| (4) To any Union country served direct by British or Indian Packet | | 2 annas | | |
| (5) To Mauritius or the Seychelles | | By British Packet as far as Aden, and thence by French Packet 2 annas. | | } Pre-payment compulsory. |
| | | | | |

Conditions entitling to special rates.

(2).—The conditions entitling to special rates are as follows:—

(a).—The person claiming the privilege must at the time be actually employed in the Naval or Military service of Her Majesty, must not be either a Commissioned Officer or a Warrant Officer, or a Superintending or 1st Class School Master.

(b).—The postage must be prepaid, except in respect of letters addressed to the United Kingdom, or places served through the United Kingdom. Unpaid letters received in India are charged, on delivery, 1 anna 6 pies, together with any foreign postage which may be claimed.

(c).—The letter must not weigh more than half an ounce.

(d).—It must relate entirely to the private concerns of the soldier, seamen, &c.

(e).—Any cover sent by a soldier or seaman under privilege must contain the name of the writer and his class or description in Vessel, Regiment, Corps or Detachment to which he belongs, and must also bear the signature of the officer having the command of Vessel, Regiment, Corps or Detachment to which the writer belongs, as well as the name in full of such Vessel, Regiment, Corps or Detachment; and any cover addressed to a soldier or seaman under privilege must contain in the address the name in full of the Vessel, Regiment, Corps or Detachment to which the addressee belongs.

N.B.—In case of a letter sent under privilege by a soldier on the "unattached list" (see Section II, Division III, Part I of the Code for British Troops in India), the rule given above has been modified: the required entries thereon being the name of the writer, regimental rank, and the designation of the office held by him, as well as the signature, army rank and official designation of the head of the Department in which he is serving.

And any letter addressed under privilege to a soldier on the unattached list must contain in the address his regimental rank together with a specification of the designation of the office held by him. The heads of Departments referred to above are as follows:—

(3). —If the letter exceed half an ounce, or if any of the foregoing Regulations be not complied with, it will be forwarded, charged with the same postage as an ordinary letter.

Letters addressed to care of Agent, or sent by or addressed to Soldiers or Seamen in Civil employ, not entitled to privilege.

(4).—Soldiers' or seamen's letters received in India from abroad, if addressed to the care of an agent or any other person, are liable to the ordinary rate of postage, the privilege of receiving letters at reduced rates being confined to such letters as are addressed directly to them.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR DELIVERY OF OVERLAND CORRESPONDENCE (OFFICIAL AND PRIVATE) TO GOVERNMENT STAFFS, AND TO REGIMENTS WHEN ON THE MOVE.

Government Staffs.

(1) —The following arrangements have been made for the delivery in India of the overland correspondence (whether official or private) of the staffs of certain Governments and Administrations, with special reference to changes of Head-Quarters and Camp movements.

Special Mail.

(2).—A special mail will be made up by the Sea-Sorting establishment containing all fully prepaid letters, newspapers and book or pattern packets addressed according to one or other of the specimen forms given below. Persons desirous of availing themselves of this measure should instruct their correspondents in England respecting the particular address to be used. Special attention is drawn to the note at the top of the list of specimen forms.

List of Specimen Forms

Note. —The undermentioned forms of address, as will be observed, contain the name of no particular post town, and this point should be particularly noted, as the insertion of the name of any post town in the address will result in the article being sent to that post town instead of being included in the special bag.

Special bags.

(3).—These letters, &c., will be sorted by the Railway Travelling Post Office into special bags according to the addresses (Nos. 1 to 13), and these special bags will be forwarded to the Post Office at the Head-Quarters or Camp of the Government or Administration mentioned in the address.

Changes of Head-Quarters, Camp, &c.

(4).—Changes in the Head Quarters as well as the Camp movements of any of the Governments or Administrations should be communicated some days in advance to the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay.

The Secretary, Financial Department, will intimate the head-quarter station or office of delivery for the Supreme Government on the occasion of its movements to and from Calcutta.

Persons desiring special re-direction.

(5).—Any person expecting letters, &c., in any one of these special bags, and desiring them to be delivered at any other post town, must give instructions to the Post Master of the place to which the special bag is conveyed respecting the re-direction of such correspondence, or, if more convenient, he may request the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay, to cause his letters, &c., to be taken out in transit and re-directed according to his instructions. The officer above named will be ready to attend to all such instructions, provided that they are not of a complicated character.

Overland parcels and unpaid articles.

(6).—This arrangement does not apply to overland parcels or to unpaid or insufficiently paid articles: any overland parcels bearing these addresses will be disposed of by the Bombay Post Office in communication with the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay; and any unpaid or insufficiently paid articles other than parcels will be disposed of under the orders of the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay, and will be forwarded to the same post town as that to which letters in the special bag, bearing the same address, would be sent.

Regiments on the move.

(7). When a regiment is moved, the Officer Commanding may request the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay, to intercept all overland correspondence or the regiment addressed to the old post town, and to re-direct them to any other post town. Complicated instructions cannot be attended to.

SEPARATE REVENUE—STAMPS.

The 21st March 1879.

No. 1385.—In exercise of the powers conferred by sections nine, fifteen, seventeen, thirty-two, fifty-one and fifty-six of the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules:—

(1).—Preliminary.

1. These rules shall come into force

| | |
|-------------------------------------|--|
| No. 3908, dated 19th June 1874 | throughout British India on the 15th of April 1879, and on and from that day the |
| No. 1510, dated 11th March 1871. | Notifications noted on the margin shall |
| No. 2623, dated 1st September 1876. | be cancelled. |

2. All words and expressions used in these Rules and defined in the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, shall be deemed to have the meaning attached to them respectively by the said Act.

3. There shall be three kinds of stamps for indicating the payment of duty on instruments under the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, namely—

- (1.) Impressed stamps—that is to say, sheets of paper bearing the impression of stamps of different values engraved thereon and sold to the public for use by them in accordance with these rules.
- (2.) Adhesive stamps sold to the public for use by them in the case of instruments mentioned in section ten of the said Act.
- (3.) Stamped labels—to be affixed only by Government officers in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

(B).—Of Impressed Stamps.

4. All instruments chargeable with duty, except hundis, may be written on impressed stamps, and, except as provided by section ten of the said Act and by these rules, shall be so written.

5. When any instrument is to be written on an impressed stamp, if the amount of duty with which such instrument is chargeable does not exceed five hundred rupees, a single impressed stamp shall be used, unless—where the application for the required stamp is made at a treasury, the officer in charge of such treasury, or,

where such application is made to a stamp-vendor, the vendor certifies that he is unable to furnish a single stamp of the required amount.

When the amount of duty chargeable in respect of any instrument exceeds five hundred rupees, or a treasury-officer or stamp-vendor has certified that he is unable to furnish a single stamp of the value required, the number of stamps used for indicating the payment of duty shall not exceed the number which the treasury-officer or the stamp-vendor certifies in either case to be the smallest number which he can furnish so as to make up the required amount:

Provided that no certificate made by a stamp-vendor under this rule shall be of any effect when there is at the date of the certificate a public treasury at which stamps are kept for sale situate within two miles from the place where such vendor sells stamps.

When under this Rule two or more impressed stamps are used to make up the amount of duty chargeable in respect of any instrument, a portion of such instrument shall be written on each stamp used.

(C).—Of Stamped Labels.

6. Stamped labels may be affixed to the following instruments, namely—

- (1.) Administration-bonds :
- (2.) Affidavits :
- (3.) Appointments made in execution of a power :
- (4.) Articles of Association of a Company :
- (5.) Articles of clerkship :
- (6.) Bills of lading :
- (7.) Charter-parties :
- (8.) Declarations of trust :
- (9.) Instruments evidencing an agreement to secure the repayment of a loan made upon the deposit of title-deeds or other valuable security, or upon the hypothecation of moveable property :
- (10.) Memoranda of Association of Companies :
- (11.) Notes of protest :
- (12.) Petitions for leave to file specification of an invention, &c. :
- (13.) Policies of insurance :
- (14.) Revocations of trust :

and the following—when written in the English language—

(15.) Agreements or memoranda of agreements which, in the opinion of the officer empowered to affix the stamp, cannot conveniently be written on impressed stamps :

- (16.) Awards :
- (17.) Bills of exchange payable otherwise than on demand and drawn in British India :
- (18.) Bonds :
- (19.) Composition-deeds :
- (20.) Conveyances :
- (21.) Instruments imposing a further charge on mortgaged property :
- (22.) Instruments of apprenticeship :
- (23.) Instruments of co-partnership :
- (24.) Instruments of dissolution of partnership :
- (25.) Instruments of exchange :
- (26.) Leases :
- (27.) Letters of license :
- (28.) Mortgage-deeds :
- (29.) Reconveyances of mortgaged property :
- (30.) Releases :
- (31.) Settlements :
- (32.) Transfers of the description mentioned in No. 60 of the first schedule of the said Act.

7. The following officers are empowered to affix stamped labels to the instruments mentioned in Rule six, namely—

- (a) the Collectors of Calcutta and Karachi ;
- (b) the Superintendents of Stamps at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Rangoon, Maulmain and Akyab ;
- (c) the Commissioner of Stamps, North-Western Provinces ; and
- (d) the Financial Commissioner of the Panjáb.
- (e) the Superintendent of Stamps (Political Resident), Aden.

8. Every such officer shall, upon any instrument mentioned in Rule six being brought to him after it is completely written, but before it is executed, and application being made to him for that purpose, affix thereto a stamped label of such value as the applicant may desire and pay for, and deface such label by means of a stamping-machine before returning the instrument to the applicant.

When the value of the stamp amounts to twenty rupees or upwards, such officer shall, besides so defacing the label, attach his usual signature to the instrument immediately under the label.

9. Hundis other than hundis which can be stamped with an adhesive stamp under section ten of the said Act shall be written on paper supplied for sale by the Government and to which stamped labels have been affixed by one of the officers mentioned in Rule seven, clause (b), and defaced by him in manner provided by Rule eight.

10. Every sheet of such paper shall be of a size not less than $8\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$ inches, and no plain paper shall be joined to it.

11. The payment of duty on instruments (other than Bills of Exchange, Cheques and Promissory notes) executed out of British India and requiring to be stamped after their receipt in British India shall be indicated only by stamped labels.

When any such instrument is brought to the Collector under section seventeen of the said Act, the Collector shall send the instrument to one of the officers mentioned in Rule seven, stating the amount of duty paid in respect of such instrument ; and such officer shall stamp the instrument in the manner prescribed by Rule eight and return the same to the Collector for delivery to the person by whom it was produced.

(D).—Miscellaneous.

12. When it is necessary under section fifteen of the said Act to denote upon one instrument the payment of duty in respect of another, such payment shall be denoted by an endorsement under the hand of the Collector on the former instrument.

13. Every payment made under section thirty of the said Act shall be made in cash.

14. The Collector shall require every person claiming a refund or renewal under chapter VI of the said Act, or his duly authorized agent, to make an oral deposition on oath, or to put in an affidavit, setting forth the circumstances under which the claim has arisen. The Collector may also, if he thinks fit, call for the evidence of witnesses in support of the statement set forth in the deposition or affidavit of the claimant or his agent.

GOVERNMENT STATIONERY OFFICE.

No. 4, CHURCH LANE.

NOTICE.

Calcutta, the 21st February 1879.

The Stationery Store will be closed for the annual stock-taking from the 16th to the 31st March 1879, both days inclusive; during which period no stationery can under any circumstances be issued. The alteration in time herein announced is rendered necessary by Government requiring the submission of the annual report on the Stationery Department one month earlier than hitherto.

500 Rupees Reward.

The above reward will be given by the Government of India for the best Sanitary Primer suitable for use in Indian schools, both English and Vernacular. The work must be in the English language from which it will afterwards be translated into the principal languages of India: it must be simple, without theories, and thoroughly practical, showing in particular the chief sanitary defects of Indian towns and villages and the best means of remedying these defects, and it must not cover more than from 24 to 30 pages of print of small pica octavo size. Competing Primers, either in print or very legible manuscript, to be sent so as to arrive not later than the 1st April 1879 at the Home Office, Calcutta. Each should bear a motto and have a sealed envelope attached with the same motto outside and the name of the author within.

C. BERNARD,

Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

HOME DEPARTMENT;

SIMLA,

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, will appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series. The Parts of each Series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set :

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

(Second publication.)

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 8th March, 1879, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. III OF 1879.

An Act to authorize the destruction of Useless Records.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the destruction or other disposal of useless records, books and papers in Courts and Revenue-offices ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called "The Destruction of Records Act, 1879" : it extends to the whole of British India ; and it shall come into force at once.

2. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules respecting the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of such records, books and papers belonging to or being in the custody of such High Court, or the Courts of civil and criminal jurisdiction subordinate thereto, as the High Court may consider useless or unworthy of being permanently preserved.

Power to High Court to make rules for disposal of records, &c.

So far as regards his own Court, the Court of Small Causes in Rangoon and the Courts of the Magistrates within the local limits of his ordinary civil jurisdiction, the Recorder of Rangoon shall,

for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a High Court.

3. Each of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay may from time to time make rules respecting the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of such records, books and papers belonging to or being in the custody of Similar power to Presidency High Courts with respect to documents in Insolvency Courts and Administrator General's office.

(a) the local Court for the relief of Insolvent Debtors held under the provisions of the eleventh and twelfth of Victoria, chapter twenty-one,

(b) the local Administrator General, as the High Court may consider useless or unworthy of being permanently preserved.

4. The Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority may from time to time make rules respecting the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of such records, books and papers belonging to or in the custody of the Revenue Courts and offices as it may consider useless or unworthy of being permanently preserved.

5. All rules made under this Act shall, after being confirmed by the Local Government and sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

6. All rules and orders heretofore made by a Local Government, a High Court or a Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority for the validation of rules as to destruction of documents.

destruction or other disposal of useless records, books and papers belonging to or in the custody of any Court or Revenue-office shall be deemed to have had the force of law from the date on which they were made, and all such rules now in force shall continue to have the force of law until they are rescinded by rules made under this Act; and no suit or other proceeding shall be instituted, maintained or continued against any person for the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of any records, books or papers in accordance with any such rules or with any order made by a Local Government, High Court or Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority.

7. In this Act "Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority" means, in the Presidency of Fort St. George and the territories respectively under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces—the Board of Revenue; in the Presidency of Bombay, outside Sind and the limits of the town of Bombay—a Revenue Commissioner; in Sind—the Commissioner; in the Panjab—the Financial Commissioner; and elsewhere—the Local Government or such officer as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office.

8. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to authorize the destruction of any document which, under the provisions of any law for the time being in force, is to be kept and maintained.

9. The enactments specified in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column.

SCHEDULES.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Railways in India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Railways in India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Indian Railway Act, 1879."

Local extent. It extends to the whole of British India and, so far as regards subjects of Her Majesty the Empress of India, to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her said Majesty;

Commencement. And it shall come into force on the first day of July, 1879.

2. On and from that day, the Acts specified in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed.

All rules made, notifications published and powers conferred under any of such Acts, or any enactment thereby repealed, shall (so far as they are consistent herewith) be deemed to have been respectively made, published and conferred under this Act.

Nothing in the Carriers Act, 1865, shall apply to carriers by railway.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause. "Railway" means a railway for the public conveyance of passengers or goods.

It includes—

(a) all land within the fences or other boundary-marks presented under section fifty-two;

(b) all lines of rail, sidings or branches worked over for the purposes of, or in connection with, a Railway;

(c) all stations, offices, warehouses, fixed machinery and other works constructed for the purposes of, or in connection with, a Railway;

(d) all vessels and rafts used for the purpose carrying on the traffic of a Railway.

In section four, "Railway" includes a railway under construction, and in the remaining part of this section and in the following sections (namely), six, eight, sixteen, twenty-five, thirty, thirty-three, thirty-four, forty to forty-six (both inclusive), fifty-two and fifty-three, "Railway" includes a Railway under construction and a Railway not used for the public conveyance of passengers or goods :

"Railway-administration" means in the case of a Railway worked by Government or a Native State, the Manager of such Railway, and in the case of a Railway worked by a Company or private individual, such Company or individual :

"Railway-servant" means any person employed by a Railway-Administration, to perform any function in connection with a Railway, and in section twenty-five, last clause, sections twenty-six, twenty-seven, thirty-eight, and forty-two includes any person employed to perform any such function by any other person in execution of a contract into which he has entered with a Railway-Administration.

4. It shall be lawful, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to use on every Railway locomotive engines or other motive power, and carriages and wagons to be drawn or propelled thereby.

CHAPTER II.

DUTIES OF THE RAILWAY-ADMINISTRATION.

5. No Railway or portion or extension of, or addition to, a Railway shall be opened for the public conveyance of passengers until the Railway-Administration has given to the Governor General in Council notice in writing of the intention of opening the same and until an officer appointed by the Governor General in Council to inspect such Railway, portion, extension or addition has, after inspection thereof, reported in writing to the Governor General in Council that in his opinion the opening of the same would not be attended with danger to the public using the same.

6. Every Railway-Administration shall, within forty-eight hours after the occurrence upon the Railway of—

(a) any accident attended with loss of human life or serious injury to person or property,

(b) any accident of a description usually attended with such loss or injury, and

(c) any accident of any other description which the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, direct to be notified,

give notice thereof to the Local Government ; and the Station-master nearest to the place at which the accident occurs, or, where there is no Station-master, the officer in charge of the section of the Railway on which the accident occurs, shall without unnecessary delay give notice in writing or by telegraph of such accident to the nearest Magistrate and to the officer in charge of the Police-station in the jurisdiction of which the accident occurs or to such other Magistrate and Police-officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf.

7. Every Railway-Administration shall make up and deliver to the Governor General in Council a return of accidents occurring in the Returns of accidents. course of the public traffic upon the Railway, whether attended with personal injury or not, in such form and manner, and at such intervals of time, as the Governor General in Council from time to time directs.

8. Every Railway-Administration shall make general rules for the following purposes (that is to say) :

(a) for regulating the mode in which, and the speed at which, carriages and wagons used on the Railway are to be moved or propelled ;

(b) for regulating the maximum number of passengers which each carriage and compartment may carry, and the mode in which such number shall be denoted thereon ;

(c) for regulating the provision to be made for the accommodation and convenience of passengers ;

(d) for declaring what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, dangerous goods ; and

(e) generally for regulating the travelling upon, and the use, working and management of, the Railway ; and may, from time to time, alter any such rules.

Any such rule may contain a provision that any person committing a breach of it shall be liable to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees, or, in default of payment of such fine, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to two months.

No such rule shall take effect unless it is consistent with this Act and until it has received the sanction of the Governor General in Council.

All rules made under this section shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall be otherwise notified to the Railway-servants and the public in such manner as the Governor General in Council, from time to time, directs.

The Governor General in Council may at any time cancel any such rule.

9. An abstract of this Act, and a copy of the Time-tables and Tariff of charges which may, from time to time, be published for any Railway by any Railway-Administration, shall be exhibited in some conspicuous place at each station of such Railway, so that they may be easily seen and read.

All such documents shall be so exhibited in English and in the principal vernacular language of the district in which the station is situated, and in such other language, if any, as the Governor General in Council may direct.

CHAPTER III.

CARRIAGE OF PROPERTY.

10. Every agreement purporting to limit the obligation or responsibility imposed on a carrier by the Indian Contract Act, 1872, sections 151 and 161, in the case of loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to, property shall, in so far as it purports to limit such obligation or responsibility, be void unless—

- (a) it is in writing signed by, or on behalf of, the person sending or delivering such property, and
(b) is otherwise in a form approved by the Governor-General in Council.

11. When any property mentioned in the second

No liability for loss of gold, silver, &c., unless value declared and increased charge accepted. schedule hereto annexed is contained in any parcel or package delivered to a carrier by Railway, the carrier shall not be liable for loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to, such property, unless at the time of delivery the value and nature thereof have been declared by the person sending or delivering the same, and an increased charge for the safe conveyance of the same, or an engagement to pay such charge, has been accepted by some Railway-servant specially authorized in this behalf.

When any property of which the value and nature have been declared under this section has been lost, destroyed or damaged, or has deteriorated, the compensation recoverable for such loss, destruction, damage or deterioration shall not exceed the value so declared.

12. A carrier by Railway shall in no case be

No liability for un-booked luggage. answerable for loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to any passenger's luggage, unless a Railway-servant has booked and given a receipt for the same.

13. In any suit against a carrier by Railway for ticket or not showing or having such a ticket and not delivering up ticket. showing or delivering up the same when so required under section seventeen, shall be liable to pay the fare of the class in which he is found travelling, from the place whence the train originally started, unless he can prove that he has travelled a less distance only, in which case he shall be liable to pay the fare of the class aforesaid only from the place whence he has travelled:

Every such fare shall, on application by a Railway-servant to a Magistrate, and on proof of the passenger's liability, be recoverable from such passenger as if it were a fine, and shall, when recovered, be paid to the Railway-Administration.

32. Any person who defrauds, or attempts to defraud, any carrier by Railway—
For evading payment of fare.

(a) by travelling, or attempting to travel, on any Railway without having previously paid his fare;

(b) by riding or attempting to ride in or on a carriage, or by a train, of a higher class than that for which he has paid his fare;

(c) by using or attempting to use a ticket on any day for which such ticket is not available;

(d) by continuing his journey in or upon any carriage beyond the place to which he has paid his fare, without previously paying the fare for the additional distance;

or who, in any other manner whatever, attempts to evade the payment of his fare, or who wilfully alters or defaces his ticket so as to render the date, number or other material portion thereof illegible, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and shall also be liable to pay the fare (if any) which he ought to have paid; and such fare shall be recoverable in manner provided by section thirty-one and shall, when recovered, be paid to the Railway-Administration.

33. Any passenger who gets into or upon, or attempts to get into or upon, or quits, or attempts to quit, any carriage upon any Railway, while such carriage is in motion, shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees and any passenger who rides, or attempts to ride, on the steps, or any other part of a carriage, upon any Railway, except on those parts which are intended for the accommodation of passengers, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

34. Any person who, without the permission of the Railway-Administration, rides or attempts to ride upon any locomotive-engine or tender upon any Railway; or in or upon any vehicle not appropriated to the carriage of passengers, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

35. Any person who, without the consent of his fellow-passengers, if any, in the same compartment, smokes in or upon any Railway-carriage, except in a carriage or compartment specially provided for the purpose, shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees;

and any person who persists in so smoking (except as aforesaid) after being warned by any Railway-servant to desist may, in addition to incurring the liability above-mentioned, be removed by any

Railway-servant from any such carriage, and from the premises of the Railway, and where he has paid his fare and obtained a ticket, shall forfeit such fare and ticket.

36. Any person who is in a state of intoxication, or who commits any nuisance or act of indecency in any Railway-carriage, or upon any part of any Railway;

or who wilfully and without lawful excuse interferes with the comfort of any passenger, or extinguishes any lamp in any Railway-carriage, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees; and may be removed by any Railway-servant from any such carriage, and also from the premises of the Railway, and where he has paid his fare and obtained a ticket, shall forfeit such fare and ticket.

37. If any carriage, compartment, room or place be reserved by the Railway-Administration for the exclusive use of females, any male person who without lawful excuse enters such carriage, compartment, room or place knowing the same to be reserved as aforesaid, or remains therein after having been informed of its having been so reserved, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, and may be removed therefrom, and also from the premises of the Railway, by any Railway-servant, and, where he has paid his fare and obtained a ticket, shall forfeit such fare and ticket.

38. Whoever wilfully obstructs or impedes any Railway-servant in the discharge of his duty, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

39. Any passenger wilfully entering a carriage already full, or compartment containing the maximum number of passengers which has been denoted thereon in accordance with a rule made and notified under section eight, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

40. Any person who without authority or reasonable excuse makes, alters, shows, hides, removes or extinguishes any signal or light upon any Railway, or upon any engine, carriage, wagon or other vehicle upon a Railway, or who negligently damages any engine, carriage, wagon or other vehicle belonging to a Railway, or any warehouse, building, machine, fence or other thing so belonging, or who needlessly interferes with the means of communication provided in any train between the guard and the engine-driver or passengers, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

41. Any person who unlawfully enters upon a Railway shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees; and if any person so entering refuses to leave such Railway on being requested to do so by any Railway-servant, or by any other person on behalf of the Railway-Administration, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and may be immediately removed from such Railway by such servant or other person as aforesaid.

42. The owner or person in charge of any bulls, cows, bullocks, calves, elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids straying on any Railway provided with fences suitable for the exclusion of such animals, shall be punished with fine which may extend to ten rupees for each animal, in addition to any amount that may be recovered under the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871.

Whenever any such animals are wilfully and unlawfully driven, or knowingly and unlawfully permitted to be, on any Railway provided with fences suitable for the exclusion of such animals, and whenever any such animals are wilfully driven, or knowingly permitted to be, on any Railway not so provided, otherwise than for the purpose of lawfully crossing the Railway, or for any other lawful purpose, the person in charge of such animals, or if he cannot be identified, then the owner of the said animals, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees for each animal, in addition to any amount that may be recovered under the same Act.

All fines imposed under this section may, if the convicting Magistrate so direct, be recovered in manner provided by section twenty-five of the said Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, and may be appropriated in whole or in part in compensation for loss or damage proved to his satisfaction.

The expression "public road" in sections eleven and twenty-six of the same Act shall be deemed to include a Railway. And any Railway-servant may exercise the powers of seizure provided by the said section eleven.

43. Whoever knowing or having reason to believe that any engine or train is approaching along a Railway opens any gate which the Railway-Administration has set up on either side of the Railway across any road for the use or accommodation of any person, or passes or attempts to pass, or drives or takes, or attempts to drive or take, any vehicle, animal or other thing, across the Railway; and whoever at any time, in the absence of a gate-keeper, omits to shut and fasten such gate as soon as he and any vehicle, animal or other thing under his charge have passed through the same,

shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

44. Whenever any minor under twelve years of age unlawfully—

(a) places or throws, or attempts to place or throw, upon or across a Railway any wood, stone or other thing, or

(b) removes or displaces, or attempts to remove or displace, any rail, sleeper, spike, key or other thing belonging to the permanent way of a Railway, or

(c) throws or causes to fall, or attempts to throw or cause to fall, against, into or upon any engine, tender, carriage or other vehicle used upon a railway, any wood, stone or other thing, such minor shall be deemed guilty of an offence, and the convicting Magistrate may, in his discretion, direct either that the minor, if a male, shall be punished with whipping, or that the father or guardian of the minor shall, within such reasonable time as the Magistrate may fix, execute a bond binding himself, in such penalty as the Magistrate may direct, to prevent the minor from repeating such offence.

The amount of such bond, if forfeited, shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.

Any person neglecting or refusing to execute a bond when required under this section so to do shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

45. Whoever wilfully does any act, or wilfully omits to do what he is legally bound to do, intending by such act or omission to endanger, or knowing that he is thereby likely to endanger, the safety of any person travelling or being upon any Railway, shall be punished with transportation (or in the case of an European or American, penal servitude) for a term of not less than seven years or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to ten years.

46. Whoever rashly or negligently does any act, or omits to do what he is legally bound to do, and such act or omission is likely to endanger the safety of any person travelling or being upon a Railway, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both.

47. Every driver or conductor of an omnibus, carriage or other vehicle shall, while in or upon any station-yard or other premises forming part of a Railway, obey the reasonable directions of any Railway-servant duly authorized in this behalf; and every person offending against this section shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees.

(D).—Arrest of Offenders.

48. If any person commits any offence punishable under this Act and there is reason to believe that he will abscond or his name and address are unknown, and he refuses to give his name and address, or there is reason to believe that the name or address given by him is incorrect, any Railway-servant or Police-officer, or any other person whom such Railway-servant or Police-officer may call to his aid, may, without any warrant or written authority, arrest and detain such offender until he can be taken before a Magistrate or give sufficient security for his appearance before such Magistrate, or is otherwise discharged by due course of law.

49. Every person committing any offence mentioned in sections eight, twenty-five, twenty-six, thirty-six, thirty-seven, thirty-eight, forty-four, forty-five and forty-six may be arrested without any warrant or written authority by any Railway-servant or Police-officer, or by any other person whom such servant or officer may call to his aid ;

and every person so arrested shall, without unnecessary delay, be taken before a Magistrate authorized to punish him or to commit him for trial.

50. No Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate and a Magistrate whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the second class shall try any offence under this Act.

Any person committing any offence against this Act or the rules made under it, shall be triable for such offence in any place in which he may be found or which the Local Government may, from time to time, notify in this behalf, as well as in any other place in which he might be tried under any law for the time being in force.

Every notification under this section shall be published in the local official Gazette and a copy thereof shall also be exhibited in some conspicuous place at each of such Railway-stations as the Local Government may direct, so that it may be easily seen and read.

(F).—Saving of other Criminal Laws.

51. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent any person from being arrested, prosecuted or punished under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it:

Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

CHAPTER VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

52. The Governor General in Council, or the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, from time to time, make rules requiring—

(a) that boundary-marks or fences be provided for any Railway or any part thereof, and for roads constructed in connection therewith ;

(b) that gates or bars be erected at places where any Railway crosses a road on the level ; and

(c) that persons be employed to open and shut such gates or bars ;

and may by such rules determine what kind of fences shall, for the purposes of section forty-two, be deemed to be suitable for the exclusion of cattle, and direct that any Railway-Administration wilfully neglecting or violating any rule made under this section, shall forfeit to Government a sum not exceeding five hundred rupees for every such neglect or violation, or, when such neglect or violation is continuous, for every day during which it continues.

53. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India, declare what Government or other Authority shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government in respect of the whole or any part of a Railway.

54. The Governor General in Council may, by notification, extend this Act or any portion thereof to any tramway worked by steam.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 5th March, 1879 :—

REPORT.

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers specified in the annexed list.

2. In the interpretation-clause, we have expressly declared that an order finally disposing of an application for execution falls within the definition of 'decree.' This will remove a doubt which we understand has been felt in two of the High Courts. We have also provided that 'signed' shall include stamped. The use of a seal capable of producing an impression of the name and title of the person using it is common among Natives of rank.

3. To section 13 we have added an explanation declaring in effect, that a decision in a suit for arrears of rent under any local law relating to landlord and tenant, shall not be deemed to be res judicata in case of suits relating to the title to the property in respect of which the rent is claimed.

4. In section 44, we have provided for joining, with claims by and against a legal representative as such, claims which he was personally entitled to, or liable for, jointly with the deceased person whom he represents, e.g., on a promissory note jointly executed by the deceased and the person who becomes his executor.

5. We have altered the last paragraph of section 52, so as to require the examination of the witness to the verification of the plaint only when the Court entertains doubt as to the fact of the signature.

6. We have extended section 108 to all cases in which decrees have been set-aside ex parte, and provided for cases in which the summons was not duly served, as well as for those in which the defendant was prevented from appearing.

7. Section 131 does not as Act VIII of 1859, section 107, did, empower parties to give notice to produce documents generally. We have therefore made section 131 apply to the production of all documents in the possession or power of a party, whether they are or are not referred to in the plaint, written statement or affidavit of the latter.

8. We have struck out from section 230 the words as to granting subsequent applications for execution, when the Court is satisfied that on the preceding application due diligence had been used to procure complete satisfaction. The effect of these words appears to us to discourage leniency and to invite litigation. We have altered the same section, so as to provide (in accordance with the new Limitation Act, schedule II, Art. 179, paragraph 6) for a decree awarding maintenance, which has been held not to be a decree directing "the payment of money or the delivery of property by instalments."

9. We have amended section 215, so as to provide for non-compliance with the requirements not only of sections 235 and 236, but also of sections 256 and 237.

10. We have altered the first explanation to section 216, so as to bring within its scope decrees made over to a Court for execution.

11. We have amended sections 259 and 260, so as to make it clear that, when an attachment under either section has remained in force for the specified time, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree and the decree-holder has, within that time, applied for a sale, the property may be sold; but that, if the judgment-debtor has obeyed, and the decree-holder has not made such application, the attachment shall cease.

12. We have provided, in section 268, that, where a moiety of the salary of a public officer or railway-servant is attached, the attachment shall be made by an order requiring the officer whose duty it is to disburse the salary to withhold every month such portion as the Court may direct until the amount of the portions so withheld is equal to the amount of the decree; and we have authorized him to pay into Court every portion so withheld, and declared that such payment shall discharge the Government or the Railway Company. We have struck out the last paragraph of the same section.

13. We have altered section 291, so as to empower the Court directing an execution-sale, as well as the officer conducting one, to adjourn it.

14. Where the holder of a decree in execution of which property is sold purchases the property without the Court's permission, we have provided in section 294, that the Court may, if it thinks fit, set-aside the sale, and that any deficiency of price which may happen on a re-sale shall be paid by the decree-holder.

15. We think that mortgages, leases and sales made under section 305 by the judgment-debtor should not become absolute until they are confirmed by the Court; and we have added a provision to this effect.

16. We think that, besides the decree-holder and the owner of land sold in execution, any other person interested in the sale should have power to apply to set it aside on the ground of material irregularity; and we have amended section 311 of the Code accordingly.

17. Much doubt exists as to where the title to land sold at an execution-sale vests in the purchaser. We think it should vest from the date of the certificate, which is granted as soon as the sale becomes absolute; and we have added to section 316 a sentence to this effect.

18. We have recast sections 322 and 323 of the Code, so as to make them express clearly what we believe to have been the intention of their author, namely, that, where a money-decree in satisfaction of which the Court has ordered a sale of land has been transferred to the Collector, he should ascertain the amount of all existing decrees against the judgment debtor and raise the amount necessary to discharge all his judgment-debts with interest, by dealing with such land, and such land only, in any of the modes prescribed by section 322.

19. We have altered section 331, paragraph two, so as to express the provisions of the corresponding section (229) of Act VIII of 1859, and we have redrawn the latter half of section 332, so as to avoid the reference to the Specific Relief Act, section 9, whilst maintaining the procedure required by that enactment and the effect of an order passed thereunder.

20. We think that the first payment of a judgment-debtor's monthly subsistence-money should be made to the proper officer of the Court, and that the subsequent payments should be made to the officer in charge of the jail; and we have altered section 333 accordingly.

21. When an applicant for the benefit of the insolvency-chapter (XX) furnishes sufficient security that he will appear when called upon, we have empowered the Court to release him. The Recorder of Rangoon exercises under the Burma Courts Act insolvency-jurisdiction in the towns of Rangoon, Maulmain, Akyab and Bassein. We do not think it expedient that any other Courts should exercise such jurisdiction concurrently with him. We have therefore expressly excluded all Courts situate in such towns from the operation of chapter XX.

22. Where a pauper's suit is dismissed for non-appearance of either party, we have empowered the Court to order him to pay the fees which would have been paid by him if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper.

23. We have amended section 456 of the Code so as to provide for obtaining an order for the appointment of a guardian ad litem upon application by the plaintiff; and where there is no other person fit and willing to act as such guardian, we have authorized the Court to appoint any of its officers.

24. We have substituted for section 555 a section providing that in all cases the appellant shall begin.

25. We have made section 560 of the Code provide for the cases when notice is not served on the respondent, as well as for those in which he was prevented from appearing.

26. We have amended section 582 of the Code, so as to preclude the doubt whether the Appellate Court is bound (so far as may be) to perform the duties, as well as authorized to exercise the powers, of the Court of first instance.

27. In section 584, clause (a), we have omitted the words "some specified," which have been held by some to limit the 'law' there mentioned to a statutory enactment, and by others to require the appellant to express in formal terms the rule which he alleges to have been contravened.

28. We think that appeals should lie from orders under section 57, clause (a), returning a plaint on the ground that the suit has been instituted in the wrong Court; and from orders under section 513 refusing an application to set-aside a sale of immoveable property; and we have amended section 588 accordingly. We have also amended the last clause of the same section, so as to give a second appeal from all orders under section 244, as to mesne profits or relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree.

29. We have extended section 642, so as to exempt from arrest under the Code the parties to any matter pending before a tribunal having, or believing bond fide that it has, jurisdiction, their pleaders, mukhtars, revenue-agents and witnesses while going to, attending, or returning from, such tribunal. This will include not only civil Courts, but criminal Courts, Courts-martial and arbitrators, and accords with the existing law of England.

30. Sections 223—229 seem to provide sufficiently for the execution of decrees. We have therefore limited section 618 to arrests and attachments made otherwise than in execution, and provided for the release of any person arrested under that section who furnishes security for his appearance before the Court that issued the warrant.

31. We have added to section 619 a paragraph providing for the execution of the decrees of Courts which have ceased to exist, as for example, where a Court of Small Causes is abolished by the Local Government under Act XI of 1865, section 3, or where a Munsif invested with Small Cause jurisdiction, having passed a considerable number of decrees, is transferred to another Munsif, and his successor at the particular Munsif at which this jurisdiction was exercised has not been invested with similar jurisdiction.

32. We have inserted after section 659, a section providing for the service of foreign summonses when issued either by Courts established by the Governor General in Council, or by Courts to which the Governor General in Council has applied this provision.

33. We have amended the second schedule, so as to extend to the Small Cause Courts in the Mufassal sections 223—229, as to execution of decrees ;

section 360, enabling the Local Government to invest any Court with insolvency-jurisdiction ;

chapter XXXVI, as to Receivers ; and sections 523, 524, as to filing in Court agreements to refer to arbitration, and sections 525, 526, as to filing awards made on reference without the intervention of a Court.

34. We have made several corrections of clerical and typographical errors which need not be specified.

35. Lastly, we have amended the Registration Act, by inserting a clause providing that a copy of every certificate of sale of land granted under section 316 of the Code shall be sent to the local registering officer, who will file it in his Book No. 1. We have also taken the opportunity to amend three trifling errors in this Act, one of which is a misprint. And we have amended the Limitation Act, by inserting in its second schedule articles providing respectively for applications under sections 368 and 371 of the Code.

36. We recommend that the Bill thus amended be passed. The Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons have been published in English in all the local Gazettes except those for Assam and Ajmer. They have been published in the vernacular in all the Gazettes except those for the Central Provinces, British Burma, Assam and Ajmer. We do not think that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication.

[First publication.]

The following supplementary Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 19th March, 1879:—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure was referred, have the honour to submit the following supplementary Report.

2. Since our Report of the 5th March was presented, our colleague Mr. Stokes has received from Mr. Justice Ainslie a note on the Bill which has led us to make certain further changes therein.

3. It seems to us that the definition of "decree," even when made to include orders finally disposing of applications for execution, is not wide enough. It does not, for instance, comprise an order made on settlement of issues overruling pleas of law (such as that the suit is barred by the Limitation Act), and directing a trial of complicated questions of fact or the investigation of complicated accounts; for this does not "decide the suit," as the defendant may have a defence on the facts. Again, it does not include a decretal order for an account, for this does not "decide the suit;" inasmuch as, on taking the account, it may turn out that nothing is due, in which case the plaintiff's suit would in the end be dismissed. Yet a defendant ought not, if he has a good defence, to be put to the possibly enormous expense and inconvenience of an account for (say) twenty years. He should clearly have a right of appeal. The fact is that there may be more than one decree in a suit and that the various points arising may be decided at different hearings and the results embodied in different "formal orders." We have therefore widened the first sentence of the definition of "decree" as follows: "decree means the formal expression of a final adjudication upon any right claimed, or defence set up, in a Court of justice."

4. We have not overlooked the fact that some of the orders under section 244 of the Code, from which we propose to give two appeals by section 588 as now amended, may be held to be decrees within the meaning of this first sentence of the definition; but we deem it safer, in order to prevent all mistake, to give the appeals from these orders in express terms by section 588, and formally to exclude them from the definition of decree. We have also defined "order" as meaning the formal expression of any decision of a Court of justice which is not a decree, and we have defined "judgment" as the statement given by the Judge of the grounds of a decree or order.

5. There is much evidence to shew that the examination of a witness as to the fact of signature of the verification of the plaint by the person whose name it purports to bear is a useless form. We have therefore, instead of amending section 52 of the Code as proposed by the Bill as last settled, repealed the part of that section requiring such examination.

6. We think that the Court should fix a period within which the sum required to defray the costs of service of a process must be paid into Court by the party concerned. In the absence of such a provision (which was contained in Act XXIII of 1861, section 2), there is no rule by which the Court is to be guided in determining when a party is in default. We have therefore amended section 93 of the Code so as to require a period to be fixed for the payment of the Court-fee, and we have made a similar amendment in section 95, as to payment of postage.

7. It is strongly urged by Mr. Justice Ainslie that our proposed change in section 168 of the word "may" to "shall" would assist litigants to obstruct justice by obtaining unnecessary adjournments. We have accordingly omitted the section of the Bill by which it was proposed to make that change.

8. We have provided in section 289 for fixing up in the Court-house a copy of the proclamation of sale, and we have made a corresponding amendment in section 290.

9. The question is constantly arising whether a fresh proclamation is required when a sale is adjourned. We have provided in section 291 that, in case of such adjournment for a longer period than seven days, a fresh proclamation shall be made, unless the judgment-debtor consents to waive it.

10. In section 220 we have provided for the execution of orders as to costs.

11. In our report of the 5th of March we proposed to alter section 311 of the Code so as admit of other persons in an execution-sale besides the decree-holder and the owner applying to set-aside the sale. We have, at the suggestion of the High Court at Fort William, struck out this amendment of section 311 of the Code. The High Court urges that it would be of little practical benefit and that it might sometimes be misused to delay the completion of proceedings in execution by persons put forward by the judgment-debtor to dispute the regularity of the sale.

12. We have repealed the last nineteen words of section 13 of Act XI of 1865. They are, in the opinion of the same High Court, unnecessary and occasionally mischievous.

13. The importance of the change now made in the definitions of "decree" and "judgment," make it desirable in our opinion that the Bill should be republished, so as to afford an opportunity for the correction of any oversight into which we may have fallen; but the substance of the amendment has now been so fully discussed that we think that, unless some serious objection is brought to light, there can be no objection to the Bill being passed as it stands; and, looking to the urgency of some of its provisions, we think its passing should not be delayed more than two months.

No. III.

A Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, the Registration Act, 1877, and the Limitation Act, 1877.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Civil Procedure; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. The following portions of the said Code shall be repealed (namely):—
Repeal of certain portions of Act X of 1877.
 In section 4, the words and figures "The Panjāb Courts Act, 1865," and "The Panjāb Appeals Act, 1873:"

In section 5, the third sentence:

In section 51, the words "with the permission of the Court:"

In section 52, from and including the words "and when he makes it out of Court" to the end:

In section 61, the words "bill of exchange or other:"

In section 64, the words "or as soon thereafter as may be practicable:"

In section 80, the words "or to receive the copy of the summons:"

In section 131, the words "in whose plaint, written statement or affidavits reference is made to any document:"

In section 193, the words from and including "and in" to the end:

In section 221, the word "therewith:"

In section 230, paragraphs three and four, the words "unless the Court is satisfied that on the last preceding application due diligence was used to procure complete satisfaction of the decree; and the order of the Court granting any such subsequent application shall be conclusive evidence that due diligence was used to procure such satisfaction. And no such subsequent application shall be granted:"

In section 246, clause (e) and the letters (f) and (g):

In section 259, the words "and keeping the same under attachment until the further order of the Court:"

In section 339, paragraph three, the words "to the proper officer of the Court:"

In section 341, the word "third:"

In section 353, the words "within three months from its publication," and "within three months from the publication of the schedule:"

In sections 407 and 408, the words "upon such examination:"

In section 584, clause (a), the words "some specified:"

In section 588, clause (j), the words "of the same nature with appealable orders made in the course of a suit:" in the same section, clause (r), the figures "481:"

In section 638, the figures "261:"

In the second schedule, the words and figures "section 648 (so far as relates to arrest)."

2. In section 2, for the definitions of "judgment" and "decree," the following shall be substituted (namely):

"decree" means the formal expression of a final adjudication upon any right claimed, or defence set up, in a Court of justice. An order rejecting a plaint under section 53, clause (d), or under section 54, clause (e), is within this definition. An order on appeal remanding a suit for retrial is not within this definition, nor is any order specified in section 588:

"order" means the formal expression of any decision of a Court of justice, which is not a decree: "judgment" means the statement given by the Judge of the grounds of a decree or order."

In the same section, to the definition of "signed," the following words shall be added (namely), "it also includes stamped with the name of the person referred to."

3. In section 13, Explanation I, for the word "confessed," the word "admitted" shall be substituted; and to the same section, the following shall be added (namely):—"Explanation VII.—A Court trying a suit under any law for the time being in force regulating the procedure in suits between land-holders and their tenants or agents, shall not be deemed, as regards the title to the immoveable property in respect of which the suit is brought, a Court of competent jurisdiction within the meaning of the first paragraph of this section."

4. In section 43, paragraph one, for the words "arising out of," the words "which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of" shall be substituted: in the same section, paragraph two, for the word "for" (in each of the places where it occurs) the words "in respect of" shall be substituted; and in the same section, paragraph three, for the word "claim," the words "cause of action" shall be substituted.

5. To section 44, the following words shall be added (namely), "or are such as he was entitled to, or liable for, jointly with the deceased person whom he represents."

6. In section 45, for paragraph one, the following shall be substituted (namely), "Subject to the rules contained in section 44, the plaintiff may unite in the same suit several causes of action against the same defendant or the same defendants jointly, and any plaintiffs having causes of action in which they are jointly interested against the same defendant or the same defendants jointly may unite such causes of action in the same suit:"

in the same section, paragraph two, after the word "defendant," the words "or at any subsequent stage of the suit, if the parties agree" shall be inserted.

7. In section 50, for the word "abode" in each of the places where it occurs, the word "residence" shall be substituted.

8. To section 51 the following proviso shall be added (namely):—

"Provided that, if the plaintiff, by reason of absence or for other good cause, is unable to sign the plaint, it may be signed on his behalf by his duly authorized agent."

9. In sections 51, 53, 115, 346, 393 and 403, for the word "subscribed" (wherever it occurs), the word "signed" shall be substituted: in sections 115 and 346, for the word "subscribing," the word "signing" shall be substituted; and in section 403, for the word "subscription," the word "signing" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 58.

10. In section 58, for the word "filed," the word "produced" shall be substituted.

Amendment of sections 93 and 95.

11. In section 93, after the word "levied," and in section 95, after the word "paid," the words "within a time to be fixed by the Court" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 108.

12. In section 108, paragraph one, the words and figures "under section 100" shall be omitted; and in the same section, paragraph two, for the words "it be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the defendant," the words "he satisfies the Court that the summons was not duly served, or that he" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 131.

13. In section 131, paragraph one, for the words "such document," the words "any specified document" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 136.

14. In section 136, after the word "discovery" (in each of the places in which it occurs), the word "production" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 139.

15. In section 139, for the words "the production of which has been called for under section 138 and which has not been produced," the words "which should have been, but has not been, produced in accordance with the requirements of section 138" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 207.

16. In section 207, for the word "suit," the word "decree" shall be substituted; and for the words "or numbers" to the end, the following words shall be substituted (namely), "or by numbers in a record of settlement or survey, the decree shall specify such boundaries or numbers."

Amendment of sections 211 and 212.

17. In section 211, for the words "land or other," the words "the recovery of possession of immoveable" shall be substituted; and in section 212, before the word "immoveable," the words "the recovery of possession of" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 220.

18. To section 220 the following words shall be added (namely): "Every order relating to costs made under this Code and not forming part of a decree may be executed as if it were a decree for money."

Amendment of section 229.

19. In section 229, for the words "Native Prince or State in India," the words "Foreign Prince or State" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 230.

20. In section 230, clause (b), for the words "the payment of money or the delivery of property by instalments—the date of the default in paying or delivering the instalment," the following words shall be substituted (namely), "any payment of money, or the delivery of any property, to be made at a specified date—the date of the default in making the payment or delivering the property."

Amendment of section 235.

21. In section 235, for the words "in manner hereinbefore provided for the verification of plaints," the following words shall be substituted (namely), "by the applicant or, with the permission of the Court, by some other person proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be acquainted with the facts of the case."

Amendment of sections 236 and 237.

22. In sections 236 and 237, for the words "If the application be," the words "Whenever an application is made" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 241.

23. In section 241, clause (c), after the word "execution," the words "discharge or satisfaction" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 245.

24. In section 245, for the first sentence, the following shall be substituted (namely), "The Court on receiving an application for the execution of a decree shall ascertain whether such of the requirements of sections 235, 236, 237 and 238 as may be applicable to the case have been complied with, and if they have not been complied with, the Court shall reject the application, or return it for such compliance, or allow it to be amended then and there."

Amendment of section 246.

25. In section 246, for Explanation I, the following shall be substituted (namely):—
"Explanation I.—The decrees contemplated by this section are decrees capable of execution at the same time and by the same Court."

In Explanation II, after the words "assignor as," the words "in respect of judgment-debts due" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 259.

26. For the second paragraph of section 259, the following shall be substituted:—

"When any attachment under this section has remained in force for six months, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree and the decree-holder has applied to have the attached property sold, such property may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder, in cases where any amount has been fixed under section 208, such amount, and, in other cases, such compensation as it thinks fit, and shall pay the balance, if any, to the judgment-debtor on his application."

"If the judgment-debtor has obeyed the decree, and paid all costs of executing the same which he is bound to pay, or if, at the end of six months from the date of the attachment, no application to have the property sold has been made and granted, the attachment shall cease to exist."

Amendment of section 260.

27. In section 260 in the first paragraph, after the words "the performance of," the words "or abstention from" shall be inserted; and for the second paragraph the following paragraphs shall be substituted (namely):—

"When any attachment under this section has remained in force for one year, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree and the decree-holder has applied to have the attached property sold, the property may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder such compensation as it thinks fit, and may pay the balance, if any, to the judgment-debtor on his application."

"If the judgment-debtor has obeyed the decree and paid all costs of executing the same which he is bound to pay, or if, at the end of one year from the date of the attachment, no application to have the property sold has been made and granted, the attachment shall cease to exist."

28. In section 264, after the words "the same," the words "and not bound by the decree to relinquish such occupancy" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 264.

29. To section 265 the following words shall be added (namely), "and according to the rules for the time being in force for the partition, or the separate possession of shares, of such estates."

Amendment of section 265.

30. For the last paragraph of section 268, the following shall be substituted (namely):—

Amendment of section 268.

"In the case of the salary of a public officer or the servant of a Railway Company, the attachment shall be made by a written order requiring the officer whose duty it is to disburse the salary to withhold every month such portion as the Court may direct, until the amount of the portions so withheld is equal to the amount remaining due under the decree.

"A copy of every such order shall be fixed up in a conspicuous part of the court-house and shall be served on the officer so required.

"Every such officer may from time to time pay into Court any portion so withheld, and such payment shall discharge the Government or the Railway Company, as the case may be, as effectually as payment to the judgment-debtor."

31. To section 289, paragraph one, the following words shall be added, namely: "and a copy thereof shall be fixed up in the Court-house;" and in section 290, for the words "notification has been affixed" the words "copy of the proclamation has been fixed up" shall be substituted.

Amendment of section 289.

32. In section 291, for the first eight words, the following shall be substituted (namely): "The Court may in its discretion adjourn any sale under this chapter, and the officer conducting any such sale;" and in the same section, after the proviso, the following sentence shall be inserted namely: "whenever a sale is adjourned under this section for a longer period than seven days, a fresh proclamation under section 289 shall be made, unless the judgment-debtor consents to waive it.

Amendment of section 291.

33. To section 294 the following paragraph shall be added (namely):—

Amendment of section 294.

"When a decree-holder purchases, by himself or through another person, without such permission, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the judgment-debtor or any other person interested in the sale, by order set-aside the sale; and the costs of such application and order, and any deficiency of price which may happen on the re-sale, and all expenses attending it, shall be paid by the decree-holder."

34. In section 295, first proviso, after the words "shall not," the words "as such" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 295.

35. In section 305, paragraph two, after the word "therein," the words "and notwithstanding anything contained in section 276," shall be inserted; and for the last paragraph, the following shall be substituted (namely):—

Amendment of section 305.

"Provided also that no mortgage, lease or sale under this section shall become absolute until it has been confirmed by the Court."

36. In section 314, after the word "property," the words "in execution of a decree" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 314.

37. To section 316 the following sentence shall be added (namely): "And the title to the property sold shall be deemed to vest in him from the date of such certificate."

Amendment of section 316.

38. For sections 322 and 323 the following sections shall be substituted (namely):—

Substitution of sections for sections 322 and 323.

322. Whenever the execution of a decree, not being a decree ordering the sale of immoveable property in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same, but being a decree for money in satisfaction of which the Court has ordered the sale of immoveable property, has been so transferred, the Collector may either proceed as the Court would proceed under section 305, or, if he has reason to believe that all the judgment-debts of the judgment-debtor can be discharged without a sale of the whole of such property, he may publish a notice in the language of the district, calling upon all persons holding decrees against the judgment-debtor to notify in writing to the Collector, within sixty days from the date of such publication, the existence of such decrees, the respective dates thereof and the sums remaining due thereon, respectively.

"Such notice shall be published by being posted in the court-house of the Court which made the order under section 304, and at such other places (if any) as the Collector thinks fit.

323. The Collector shall ascertain the sums remaining due on such decrees respectively, and may then (notwithstanding any order under section 304, but subject to such rules as may from time to time be made in this behalf by the Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority) raise the amount necessary to discharge each of such sums, with interest thereon according to the decree under which it is due, or, if the decree makes no provision as to interest, then with interest (if any) at such rate as he thinks fit—

"(a) by letting in perpetuity, or for a term, or payment of a premium equivalent to such amount, the whole or any part of the property of which the sale has been ordered: or

"(b) by mortgaging the whole or any part of such property: or

"(c) by selling part of such property: or

"(e) partly by one of the modes mentioned in clauses (b), (c) and (d), and partly by another or others of such modes.

"For the purpose of managing under this section the whole or any part of such property, the Collector may exercise all the powers of its owner.

"So long as any letting or management under clause (d) or clause (e) continues, the judgment-debtor and his representative in interest shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate the property let or managed or any part thereof."

39. In section 331, paragraph two, for the words and figures "the Specific Relief Act, 1877, section 9," the word and figure "Chapter V" shall be substituted; and to the same section the following paragraph shall be added (namely), "Every such order shall have the same force as a decree and shall be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise."

40. In section 332, first paragraph, for the word "defendant," the word "judgment-debtor" shall be substituted; and for the other paragraphs, the following shall be substituted (namely), "If after examining the applicant it appears to the Court that there is probable cause for making the application, the Court shall proceed to investigate the matter in dispute, and if it finds that the ground mentioned in the first paragraph of this section exists, it shall make an order that the applicant recover possession of the property, and if it does not find as aforesaid, it shall dismiss the application."

"In hearing applications under this section, the Court shall confine itself to the grounds of dispute above specified.

"The party against whom an order is passed under this section may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the present possession of the property; but subject to the result of such suit, if any, the order shall be final."

41. For section 333 the following shall be substituted (namely), "Nothing in section 331 or 332 applies to a person to whom the judgment-debtor has transferred the property after the institution of the suit in which the decree is made."

42. In section 335, for the first paragraph, the following shall be substituted (namely) :—

"If the purchaser of any such property is resisted or obstructed by any person, other than the judgment-debtor, claiming in good faith a right to the present possession thereof, or, if in delivering possession thereof any such person is dispossessed, the Court, on the complaint of the purchaser or the person so dispossessed, shall enquire into the matter of the resistance, obstruction or dispossession, as the case may be, and pass such order thereon as it thinks fit ;"

and in the second paragraph of the same section, for the word "conclusive," the word "final" shall be substituted.

43. In section 339, paragraph four, after the word "made," the words "to the proper officer of the Court" shall be inserted; and to the same paragraph, the following words shall be added (namely), "and the subsequent payments (if any) shall be made to the officer in charge of the jail."

44. To section 349 the following words shall be added (namely), "or release him on his furnishing sufficient security that he will appear when called upon."

49. In section 373, paragraph one, for the words "for the part," the words "in respect of the part" shall be substituted; and to paragraph two, the words "or in respect of the same part" shall be added.

50. In section 377, for the first seven words, the following shall be substituted (namely), "Notice in writing of the deposit shall be given through the Court."

51. In sections 384, 477 and 483, after the word "affidavit," the words "or otherwise" shall be inserted.

52. In section 406, for the word "shall," the words "may if he thinks fit" shall be substituted.

53. In section 412, after the word "disappeared," the words and figures "or if the suit is dismissed under section 97 or 98" shall be inserted.

54. In section 413, for the word "Refusal," the words and figures "An order of refusal made under section 409" shall be substituted.

55. In section 424, after the words "against a public officer," the words "in respect of an act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity" shall be inserted; and in sections 428 and 429, after the words "public officer," the words "in respect of such act as aforesaid" shall be inserted.

56. In section 437, for the first sentence, the following shall be substituted (namely), "In all suits concerning property vested in a trustee, executor or administrator, when the contention is between the persons beneficially interested in such property and a third person, the trustee, executor or administrator shall represent the persons so interested, and it shall not ordinarily be necessary to make them parties to the suit."

Amendment of section 437.

57. In section 456, for the words "in the name of the minor," the words "in the name and on behalf of the minor or by the plaintiff" shall be substituted; and to the same section the following paragraph shall be added (namely): "Where there is no other person fit and willing to act as guardian for the suit, the Court may appoint any of its officers to be such guardian, provided that he has no interest adverse to that of the minor."

Amendment of section 456.

58. In section 481, after the word "decree," the following words shall be inserted (namely), "or if, pending the suit, he becomes able to give security for his appearance as aforesaid, until he gives such security."

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[First publication.]

The following preliminary Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 19th March, 1879 :—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to define and

- amend the law relating to alluvion, islands and abandoned river-beds was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin.
2. The Bill as introduced proposed that the division of the whole area of an island formed opposite several holdings should be made rateably among the owners in proportion to their respective frontages, and was framed so as merely to indicate those holders. If, for example, there were three such owners, A, B and C, whose respective frontages were 100 yards, 200 yards and 300 yards, it was intended that A should take one-sixth of the whole area of the island, B one-third and C one-half, and this division was to have been effected either by private arrangement or in default thereof by a suit for partition. It has, however, been strongly urged that, to preclude litigation and discrepancy of practice, the Bill should, at least in the case of land forming in rivers, contain rules not only for giving the areas, but for defining the plots, to which the several riparian owners are entitled. For this purpose rules have been suggested both by the Board of Revenue of the Lower Provinces and the High Court at Fort William, the former proposing that the alluvion should be divided by right lines perpendicular to the extremities of the frontages, the latter proposing a division by right lines bisecting the angles made by perpendiculars drawn from the extremities of adjacent frontages. But it will be seen on examination that, under either of these plans, alluvial lands formed in the bend of a river would sometimes fall to more than one estate, and further provision would then be required for a rateable division of those lands between the owners of the estates concerned. The subject is one of no small difficulty; but it seems to us that the following rule, which is said by a distinguished Settlement-officer (Mr. Ibbetson) to be practically the rule now in force in the Panjáb, and which is recommended for adoption by the Government of that Province, solves the problem satisfactorily and completely :—

“Where from natural causes an island or other land is formed in or on the bank of a river, either by accumulation of material or by recession of the river, each owner having a frontage on the river is entitled to so much of the land as is included by his frontage, the thread of the stream and lines drawn riverwards from the ends of such frontage to meet the thread of the stream in a direction normal to such thread.

[The term “normal,” we may observe, is here used instead of “perpendicular,” as the thread of the stream may be a curve. It is obvious that in such case several normals may possibly be drawn from the same point, and that these normals may be either of different or of the same length. The rule, therefore, proceeds as follows :—]

“Where more than one such normal can be drawn from one and the same end of any frontage and each of such normals is of different length, the shortest of such normals shall be deemed to be the including line; and where more than one such normal can be so drawn, and each of such normals is of the same length, the line bisecting the angle between the two extreme positions of the shortest normal shall be deemed to be the including line.”

It will be seen that the above rule applies not only to alluvion deposited on the banks of two contiguous holdings, but also to islands. Incidentally, this will have the effect of rendering immaterial the often difficult question whether a new deposit is an island or not.

3. The above is the chief substantial alteration which we have made in the Bill. We now proceed to specify the minor changes which we deem desirable.

4. In the tidal portion of rivers like the Hugli are many islands which are flooded by ordinary tides in the rainy season, but only by extraordinary springs, or not at all, in the dry season. These chars are cultivable in the dry season and should be included in the definition of "island." We have therefore added to that definition the words "throughout the year."

5. To fix with more precision the time at which, for the purposes of the Bill, an alluvial island is first formed, we have provided that it must be capable of being employed for cultivation, pasture or other useful purpose, such, for example, as the supply of reeds or brush-wood. The question of fordability will thus be decided after an island newly formed becomes, as the Privy Council puts it, "valuable and usable."

6. Where any formation takes place on a site of which the Government is proved to be the owner, we have declared that the Government is entitled to such formation.

7. In the case of land formed on the shore of the sea or of a lake and in that of an island formed in the sea or a lake, we have provided that the distribution in proportion to the frontage of the riparian owners shall be effected by such officer as the Local Government may appoint and in accordance with such rules (consistent with the proposed Act) as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe.

8. We think that, to entitle the Crown to alluvial islands, the channel between the island and each bank or shore should not be fordable during the dry season next after the formation.

9. In determining the right to abandoned river-beds, we think we should have regard to the thread of the stream in the preceding dry season, and not to what it was immediately before the abandonment—a matter which cannot be always ascertained. In other respects, the rule for the division of such beds among the riparian owners will be the same as that which we have provided in the case of alluvial lands.

10. We have empowered the Local Government to declare, with reference to any tidal river, where, for the purposes of the proposed Act, the river shall be deemed to end and the sea to begin; and we have provided that no declaration under the Act shall be cancelled or altered, save with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

11. In the Panjáb the ownership of lands subject to the action of rivers is mainly regulated by local usage. We have accordingly retained the section of the Bill as introduced, which provided that such usages should be respected and, in certain cases, presumed to be in force. But such provisions do not appear to be required in Madras, Bombay, Oudh or the North-Western Provinces, and though local usage is saved in the Lower Provinces and Assam by the Bengal Regulation XI of 1825, there seems to be only one instance in which there has been any attempt to establish it. We have, therefore, confined to the Panjáb the section saving usage. But there is ground for the belief that even in that Province some of the local usages referred to,—including the usage known as "the deep-stream rule"—besides being objectionable on economic grounds and adverse to imperial interests are more or less unsuited to the time and distasteful to the communities affected by them. In these circumstances we have deemed it right, on the recommendation of experienced officers, to provide a procedure whereby such usages may, if thought expedient, be discontinued, and fixed boundaries substituted for varying boundaries in riparian estates.

12. As the rights of mortgagees and tenants to alluvial lands are saved by the Transfer of Property Bill, No. III, sections 37 and 65, clause (e), we have not thought it necessary to provide for such rights.

13. The Bill in its present form is not to be taken as expressing our final views as to all the difficult and important subjects with which it deals. But we think that the changes which it has undergone are such as to render republication desirable, for the purpose of eliciting criticism from the public and from the judicial and executive officers by whom its provisions will be carried into effect. We also think that its further consideration should be stayed until the new Law Commission has reported thereon. We therefore recommend that the Bill as now amended be republished with this Report in the Gazette of India, and sent to the Local Governments for opinion and for publication in the local Gazettes.

14. The Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons have been published in English in the local Gazettes for Madras, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Panjáb, the Central Provinces and British Burma. Publication in English has not been reported from Bombay and Assam. Publication in the vernacular has been reported only from Madras, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Panjáb and the Central Provinces.

No. II.

A Bill to Define and amend the law relating to alluvion, islands and abandoned river-beds.

WHEREAS it is expedient to define and amend the law relating to alluvion, islands and abandoned river-beds; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

I.—Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Alluvion Act, 1879."

Local extent.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force at once.

2. The Acts, Regulation and Rules mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column. References to the Regulation and Rules so repealed, in enactments passed subsequently thereto, shall be read as if made to this Act.

Repeal of enactments.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act—

"island" means land surrounded by water and capable of being employed for cultivation, pasture or other useful purpose. It includes such land arising in a river or lake, submerged in the wet season and visible only in the dry season; but it excludes land arising in tidal rivers, tidal lakes or the sea, submerged by the flow of ordinary tides throughout the year:

"owner" means, in the case of a bank or shore held on raiyatwari tenure, the Government: in the case of a bank or shore forming part of land situate in the Presidency of Bombay and wholly or partially exempt from the payment of land-revenue, or held under a grant or lease fixing the Government demand in respect thereof in perpetuity, the holder of such land; and in the case of a bank or shore held by a village-community, or by one or more members of it, such community:

"sea" includes bay, inlet, creek and arm of the sea:

"frontage" means the right line connecting the corners of each holding where they strike the sea, lake or river:

"Thread of the stream" means (a) the middle line of the main-stream during the dry season, or, where there are two streams of equal depth and width, the line equidistant during such season from the outermost shores of the two streams; (b) the middle line of the river between what are the shores on each side when the water is at its average height, neither swollen by flood, nor shrunk by drought; or (c) the middle line or the particular channel in which the formation of ancient river-bed referred to occurs or is situate;

and a channel is said to be "fordable" when it does not exceed five feet in depth in the dry season next after the formation referred to and throughout the twenty-four hours.

II.—Alluvial Land and Islands.

4. Where, from natural causes, land forms gradually on the shore of the sea or of a lake, either by accumulation of material or Right to land formed on shore of sea or lake.

by recession of the sea or lake, the owners of the shore are severally entitled to the land so formed in proportion to the frontage which they respectively had on the sea or lake immediately before the formation; and the partition of the land so formed shall be made by such officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf, and in accordance with such rules, consistent with this Act, as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe:

Provided that, where the land or any portion thereof forms on a site which is proved to belong to the Government or a private owner, the Government or such owner, as the case may be, is entitled to the land or portion so formed.

5. Where an island is formed, from natural causes, in a river, the sea or a lake, either by accumulation of material or by recession of the sea or lake, if the island is separated from each bank or shore by a channel not fordable at any point, the Government is entitled to such island:

Provided that, where the island or any portion thereof is formed on a site which is proved to belong to a private owner, such owner is entitled to the island or portion so formed.

6. If, where an island is formed as aforesaid in the sea or a lake, the channels between it and either shore are fordable at any point, the owners of the nearest shore are severally entitled to the island in proportion to the frontage which they respectively have on the sea or lake; and the partition of the island so formed shall be made by such officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf and in accordance with such rules, consistent with this Act, as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe.

7. Where, from natural causes, an island or other land is formed in, or on the bank of, a river, either by accumulation of material or by recession of the river, and the Government is not entitled thereto under section five, each owner having a frontage on the river is entitled to much of the land as is included by his frontage, the thread of the stream during the dry season next after the formation and lines drawn riverwards from the ends of such frontage to meet the thread of the stream in a direction normal to such thread:

Where more than one such normal can be drawn from one and the same end of any frontage and each of such normals is of different length, the shortest of such normals shall be deemed to be the including line, and where more than one such normal can be so drawn and each of such normals is of the same length, the line bisecting the angle between the two extreme positions of the shortest normal shall be deemed to be the including line.

Provided that, where the land or any portion thereof is formed on a site which is proved to belong to the Government or a private owner, the Government or such owner, as the case may be, is entitled to the land or portion so formed.

8. If a river freshly divides and surrounds, or, by changing its course, cuts off, lands belonging to the owner of the bank, such owner is entitled to the lands so surrounded or cut off.

Islands formed by division of rivers.

III.—Abandoned River-beds.

9. Where a river suddenly abandons the bed Right to abandoned which it occupies during river-beds. the season of flood, each owner having a frontage on such bed is entitled to so much of the bed as is included by his frontage, the thread of the stream during the dry season next before the abandonment and lines drawn towards the bed from the ends of such frontage to meet such thread in a direction normal thereto.

Where more than one such normal can be drawn from one and the same end of any frontage, the rules contained in the second paragraph of section seven shall apply:

Provided that, when the ancient bed is proved to have belonged immediately before the abandonment to the Government or a private owner, it shall continue to be the property of the Government or of such owner, as the case may be.

IV.—Miscellaneous.

10. The Local Government may, from time to time, declare, with reference to any river, or any part of any river,—
Power to declare "main-stream," "dry season" and "thread of the stream."

(a) what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, the "main-stream" and the "dry season"; and

(b) which of the said definitions of "thread of the stream" shall be deemed to be in force.

The Local Government may also declare, with reference to any tidal river, where, for the purposes of this Act, the river shall be deemed to end and the sea to begin.

Every declaration made under this section, and all rules made under section four or section six, shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law. And no such declaration shall be cancelled or altered save with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

In the absence of a declaration made under clause (b) as to any river or part thereof, and having the force of law, the first of the said definitions of "thread of the stream" shall be deemed to be in force with reference to such river or part.

11. Nothing herein contained shall—Savings.

(a) affect any law relating to the assessment of land-revenue or to the enhancement or abatement of rent; or

(b) confer on any owner of a bank or shore in respect of which he is hereby declared to be entitled to alluvial land, to an island, or to an abandoned river-bed, any title to such land, island or river-bed, better than that which he has to the bank or shore; or

(c) enlarge any holding granted by Government, the area of which has been fixed by any sanad or other document executed under the authority of Government; or

(d) authorize any acts of private persons done in order to divert currents or cause accretions; or

(e) authorize any encroachments by private persons on the banks, beds or channels of navigable rivers; or

(f) prevent any officer duly empowered by the Local Government in this behalf from removing obstacles which appear to him to interfere with the safe and customary navigation of such rivers, or which obstruct the passage of boats by tracking on the banks of such rivers or otherwise; or

(g) prevent any officer duly empowered by the Local Government in this behalf from regulating the direction and flow of such rivers and the preservation and distribution of their waters.

12. In the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, nothing herein contained shall affect any definite and well-established local usage respecting the right to alluvial land, islands or abandoned river-beds; but (except in the cases provided for by the Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1871, section 16) the burden of proving such usage shall lie on the person alleging it:

Provided that the Local Government may from time to time (a) cause the bed of any river or part of a river, together with the islands and alluvial lands situate therein or adjacent thereto, to be surveyed and mapped, (b) appoint an officer to enquire into, determine and record the rights of private persons and the Government, in, to or over the said bed, islands and lands, and (c) declare that rights so recorded shall not be affected by any local usage. And the provisions of the Panjáb Land Revenue Act, 1871, chapter II, shall apply, so far as may be, to proceedings under this section, and the determination of the said rights shall be made after consideration of the gain and loss (if any) caused by changes in the course of the river for a period of twelve years next before the date of the survey-notification.

13. All land and islands formed, and all river-beds abandoned, as mentioned respectively in sections four, five and nine, and not vesting under any of the provisions hereinbefore contained, shall vest in the Government.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

LEGAL EFFECT OF SECTION 56 OF THE ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL'S ACT.

No. 309, dated Fort William, the 13th March 1879.

From—C. BERNARD, Esq., C.S.I., Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India, HOME DEPT.,

To—The Administrator General.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1296, dated the 18th December 1878, in which you—

- (1) draw attention to the law (Act II of 1874, Section 56) which forbids any person, other than the Administrator General, from receiving or retaining any commission or agency charges for anything done as executor or administrator under any probate or letters of administration;
- (2) report that a practice is extending up whereby private persons in Calcutta take commission on estates to which they administer;
- (3) ask that the advice of the Law Officers be obtained and that steps should be taken to make known that such taking of commission is illegal.

2. In accordance with your request the learned Advocate General has been consulted; and I am now directed to forward a copy of Mr. Paul's opinion. He holds that a private person, who, in India, takes commission for anything done as executor or administrator, breaks the law and renders himself liable to penalties. And he advises that steps be taken to bring this provision of the law to the notice of the Court of Chancery in England, as that Court may not be aware of the state of the Indian law on this point.

3. The Governor General in Council observes that the office of Administrator General was established in 1849, chiefly in order to provide safeguards against the mal-administration of the estates of deceased persons by private firms. Those safeguards are four, namely,—the requirement of competent legal ability on the part of the Administrator General; the requirement of large security for the due execution of his office; the stringent rules as to the investment of assets in the Administrator General's hands; and the half-yearly examination of his accounts by auditors appointed by Government. A provision of law, corresponding to Section 56 of the present Act which you quote, was inserted in Act VII of 1849, the first Administrator General's Act. Again in 1855, when Act VIII of that year was passed, an attempt was made to relax the rule prohibiting private executors and administrators from receiving commission for acts done as such. But the Legislative Council, guided by Sir Lawrence Peel, Sir. Barnes Peacock, and Mr. Allen, refused to alter the law. The clear rule of law, as embodied in Section 56 of Act II of 1874, has been explained by the learned Advocate General. The Governor General in Council, as at present advised, has no intention of asking the Legislature to repeal that section. That being so, it is inexpedient that the law should be habitually disobeyed. The best way of making generally known the provisions of the law on this point will be to publish the learned Advocate General's opinion. Your letter, Mr. Paul's opinion, and the present reply will accordingly be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India, and the result of such publication will doubtless be that the practices of which you complain will cease.

4. A copy of the present correspondence will be submitted to Her Majesty's Secretary of State, in order that he may, if he sees fit, cause the state of the Indian law on this point to be brought to the notice of the Court of Chancery, in any case which may arise respecting the allowance of commission to private persons administering to estates in India under the orders of that Court.

No. 71, dated Fort William, the 25th January 1879.

From—R. LEYCESTER UPTON, Esq., Offg. Solicitor to the Govt. of India,

To—The Offg. Under Secretary to the Govt. of India, HOME DEPT.

Referring to your letter No. 55 of the 14th instant, I have the honour to send you a copy of the Honourable the Advocate General's opinion on the questions therein referred to.

The original letter and its enclosures which accompanied your letter under reply are returned.

Opinion by the Honourable the Advocate General,—dated Calcutta, the 24th January 1879.

The sole principle upon which executors in England were allowed to charge commission on assets collected in India was that the Indian courts allowed commission—see note to (Cockerell v. Barber, 2 Rup., 559, and Mathews v. Bage, 14 Beur, 123). That last decision was in 1851. No reference is made in that report to the Administrator General's Act of 1849, probably because the collections were made before that Act passed, and possibly because no one knew of the Act; but there is a note (p. 126) which refers to that Act. I can find no case in which the question has since come before the English courts. I am, however, of opinion, should the present state of the law, embodied in Act II of 1874, which is a continuation of Act VII of 1849, and other intervening Acts, be brought to the notice of the Court of Chancery in any case which may arise there, that commission will not be allowed. Presumably the Administrator General's Act of 1849, passed soon after the failures in 1847-48, had for its object the protection of estates against failure of agents, and accordingly a public officer was appointed on the terms of giving security to Government, and submitting his accounts for audit by Government. The taking of commission by a private individual is contrary to law. An executor or administrator who appropriates part of the estate as commission takes what he is prohibited by law from taking, and is guilty of criminal breach of trust, because he takes to himself what has come into his hands for another.

In my opinion an Indian executor or administrator, other than the Administrator General, who charges or retains commission, is indictable under Section 405 of the Indian Penal Code coupled with Sections 23, 24. Before enforcing the law some public notice should, I think, be given, the matter having been brought to the notice of Government some time ago, and nothing having been done to stop what may be said to be a growing and improper practice.

No. 1296, dated Calcutta, the 18th December 1878.

From—F. S. COLLIS, Esq., Offg. Administrator General of Bengal,
To—The Offg. Secretary to the Government of India, HOME DEPT.

Enclosed will be found copies of the Solicitors' Journal, November 2nd, the Englishman, December 6th, and I have the honour to call your attention to an article in the former entitled "Administration of estates of persons dying in India," and notes on that article in the latter. That commission is taken by persons other than the Administrators General in administering to estates of deceased persons in India, and that the law, as laid down in Section 56 of Act II of 1874, is thus broken, I think, there can be no doubt. This illegal practice, in my opinion, amounts to a criminal breach of trust as defined by the Penal Code (see Section 405, coupled with Sections 23 and 24 which define "wrongful gain" and "dishonestly".) Putting the Penal Code to one side, I consider a person who takes commission or agency charges in cases contemplated by Section 56, and thus breaks the law, is guilty of a misdemeanour, and has committed an indictable offence. In Russell on Crimes, Volume 1, p. 86, it is stated that where an offence is not so at common law, but made an offence by Act of Parliament, an indictment will lie when there is a substantive prohibitory clause, though there may be afterwards a particular provision and particular remedy. See also p. 87, which shows that wherever a Statute forbids the doing of a thing, the doing of it wilfully, without any corrupt motive, is indictable. Now that a statement has appeared in the public press to the effect that the law is being frequently broken, and which statement the Government knows from previous communications from the Administrator General to be correct, I would respectfully, but strongly, urge on Government the desirability of referring the question to the Law Advisers of the Crown. So far I have put the matter on strict legal grounds, but I think by the present illegal practice the interests of those most concerned are sacrificed, inasmuch as estates administered to by my office reap advantages which could not be obtained elsewhere: for instance, all remittances are made by me through the Government channel, while my books are open for examination by the Government auditors. Again, ample security is furnished by the Administrator General for the faithful discharge of his duties. Moreover, I have every reason to believe that considerable cost is entailed on estates by the person administering thereto having to find security.

I have contented myself with looking at this matter from two points of view, namely, from the legal one, and from the one on which the parties interested might wish to be heard. There is a third view of the case, but which is so personal to the Administrator General that I do not care to discuss it, especially as the attention of Government has been already more than once called to it by Mr. Broughton. I may, however, be permitted to say that, while the illegal practice of which I complain was confined to one or two offenders, the result was not of very serious consequence to my office. Things are now changed, and I find this practice has considerably extended ever since I held office two years ago. Should the Law Advisers agree in my view of this question, and should their opinion be published, I hardly think this illegal course of conduct will be persevered in, and thus matters may be righted.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE, AGRICULTURE AND COMMERCE.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS
FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 18th MARCH 1879.

GENERAL REMARKS.—General prospects in Madras have not changed during the week. In Bombay also there has not been any material alteration in the crops; the weather is generally cool. No particulars of the distress in Kaladgi and Broach referred to in the report for the preceding week are given, but it is said that there is slight distress in two talukas of Satara. In Mysore matters remain as before, as also in the Central Provinces, where the rabi harvest continues. The reports from Berar, Central India and Rajputana do not contain anything calling for notice. In Bengal rain fell in a few districts only, and the want of it is much felt in several places; prospects are however on the whole promising; a severe hailstorm in Tipperah killed 17 and wounded 10 persons. Rain is needed in Assam. The report from British Burma is only on public health, which is generally fair. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the rabi harvest is progressing and the outlook is on the whole satisfactory. Rain has fallen generally in the Punjab, and there is a further improvement in harvest prospects.

PAY AND ALLOWANCES—TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE.
The 28th March 1879.

No. 1497.—Officers in the various Departments of the public service, travelling on duty by railway, are generally allowed 1st, 2nd, intermediate, or 3rd class railway fare, single or double, or mileage, according to the traveller's position in the public service.

When an officer travels in an inferior class to that in which he is entitled to accommodate, it is not open to him to draw mileage or railway fare in his proper class, unless his actual expenses for himself, family, servants and luggage for the railway journey amounted to not less than the amount of regulated mileage or fare for his class.

The Hon'ble the President in Council is, accordingly pleased to direct that every officer drawing railway mileage or fare shall attach to his bills one or other of the following two certificates at his option, viz., either—

1. "I certify that I travelled on this journey by the first class (or as the case may be, first or second class);" or
2. "I certify that I paid not less than the amount here charged in railway fares for myself, my family, my servants, and my personal luggage."

POST OFFICE.

The 7th March 1879.

No. 1170.—Ordered that the following Resolution be published in the Gazette of India:—

It has been brought to the notice of the Government of India, that articles liable to Sea Customs duty are frequently imported into India through the Letter Post and thus escape the duty to which they are liable. Such importations are in direct contravention of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866, Section 60 of which Act declares that any cover supposed to contain articles subject to Customs duty may be opened by the Post Office authorities after due notice to attend has been given to the addressee.

His Excellency the Governor General in Council desires to remind the public that the importation through the Letter Post of goods liable to duty is illegal, and to notify for general information that the provisions of Section 60 of Act XIV of 1866 will be strictly enforced.

Ordered, that this Resolution be communicated to the several Local Governments and Administrations, and for information and guidance to the Director General of the Post Office of India.

R. B. CHAPMAN,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, will appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series. The Parts of each Series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set:

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

| | Without Postage. | With Postage. |

Commencement.

2. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules respecting the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of such records, books and papers belonging to or being in the custody of such High Court, or the Courts of civil and criminal jurisdiction subordinate thereto, as the High Court may consider useless or unworthy of being permanently preserved.

Power to High Court to make rules for disposal of records, &c.

So far as regards his own Court, the Court of Small Causes in Rangoon and the Courts of the Magistrates within the local limits of his ordinary civil jurisdiction, the Recorder of Rangoon shall,

for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a High Court.

3. Each of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay may from time to time make rules respecting the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of such records, books and papers belonging to or being in the custody of Similar power to Presidency High Courts with respect to documents in Insolvency Courts and Administrator General's office.

(a) the local Court for the relief of Insolvent Debtors held under the provisions of the eleventh and twelfth of Victoria, chapter twenty-one,

(b) the local Administrator General, as the High Court may consider useless or unworthy of being permanently preserved.

4. The Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority may from time to time make rules respecting the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of such records, books and papers belonging to or in the custody of the Revenue Courts and offices as it may consider useless or unworthy of being permanently preserved.

Similar power to Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority.

5. All rules made under this Act shall, after being confirmed by the Local Government and sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Rules when to have force of law.

6. All rules and orders heretofore made by a Local Government, a High Court or a Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority for the validation of rules as to destruction of documents.

destruction or other disposal of useless records, books and papers belonging to or in the custody of any Court or Revenue-office shall be deemed to have had the force of law from the date on which they were made, and all such rules now in force shall continue to have the force of law until they are rescinded by rules made under this Act; and no suit or other proceeding shall be instituted, maintained or continued against any person for the disposal, by destruction or otherwise, of any records, books or papers in accordance with any such rules or with any order made by a Local Government, High Court or Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority.

7. In this Act "Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority" means, in the Presidency of Fort St. George and the territories respectively under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces—the Board of Revenue: in the Presidency of Bombay, outside Sind and the limits of the town of Bombay—a Revenue Commissioner: in Sind—the Commissioner: in the Panjáb—the Financial Commissioner; and elsewhere—the Local Government or such officer as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf by name or in virtue of his office.

8. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to authorize the destruction of any document which, under the provisions of any law for the time being in force, is to be kept and maintained.

9. The enactments specified in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column.

SCHEDULES.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Railways in India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Railways in India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

- Short title. 1. This Act may be called “The Indian Railway Act, 1879.”

It extends to the whole of British India and, so far as regards subjects of Her Majesty the Empress of India, to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her said Majesty;

Commencement. And it shall come into force on the first day of July, 1879.

2. On and from that day, the Acts specified in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed.

All rules made, notifications published and powers conferred under any of such Acts, or any enactment thereby repealed, shall (so far as they are consistent herewith) be deemed to have been respectively made, published and conferred under this Act.

Nothing in the Carriers Act, 1865, shall apply to carriers by railway.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,— “Railway” means a railway for the public conveyance of passengers or goods.

It includes—

- (a) all land within the fences or other boundary-marks prescribed under section fifty-two;
- (b) all lines of rail, sidings or branches worked over for the purposes of, or in connection with, a Railway;
- (c) all stations, offices, warehouses, fixed machinery and other works constructed for the purposes of, or in connection with, a Railway;
- (d) all vessels and rafts used for the purposes of carrying on the traffic of a Railway.

In section four, "Railway" includes a railway under construction, and in the remaining part of this section and in the following sections (namely), six, eight, sixteen, twenty-five, thirty, thirty-three, thirty-four, forty to forty-six (both inclusive), fifty-two and fifty-three, "Railway" includes a Railway under construction and a Railway not used for the public conveyance of passengers or goods :

"Railway-administration" means in the case of a Railway worked by Government or a Native State, the Manager of such Railway, and in the case of a Railway worked by a Company or private individual, such Company or individual :

"Railway-servant" means any person employed by a Railway-Administration, to perform any function in connection with a Railway, and in section twenty-five, last clause, sections twenty-six, twenty-seven, thirty-eight, and forty-two includes any person employed to perform any such function by any other person in execution of a contract into which he has entered with a Railway-Administration.

4. It shall be lawful, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to use on every Railway locomotive engines or other motive power, and carriages and wagons to be drawn or propelled thereby.

CHAPTER II.

DUTIES OF THE RAILWAY-ADMINISTRATION.

5. No Railway or portion or extension of, or addition to, a Railway shall be opened for the public conveyance of passengers until the Railway-Administration has given to the Governor General in Council notice in writing of the intention of opening the same and until an officer appointed by the Governor General in Council to inspect such Railway, portion, extension or addition has, after inspection thereof, reported in writing to the Governor General in Council that in his opinion the opening of the same would not be attended with danger to the public using the same.

6. Every Railway-Administration shall, within forty-eight hours after the occurrence upon the Railway of—

(a) any accident attended with loss of human life or serious injury to person or property,

(b) any accident of a description usually attended with such loss or injury, and

(c) any accident of any other description which the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, direct to be notified,

give notice thereof to the Local Government ; and the Station-master nearest to the place at which the accident occurs, or, where there is no Station-master, the officer in charge of the section of the Railway on which the accident occurs, shall without unnecessary delay give notice in writing or by telegraph of such accident to the nearest Magistrate and to the officer in charge of the Police-station in the jurisdiction of which the accident occurs or to such other Magistrate and Police-officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf.

7. Every Railway-Administration shall make up and deliver to the Governor General in Council a return of accidents occurring in the course of the public traffic upon the Railway, whether attended with personal injury or not, in such form and manner, and at such intervals of time, as the Governor General in Council from time to time directs.

8. Every Railway-Administration shall make general rules for the following purposes (that is to say) :

(a) for regulating the mode in which, and the speed at which, carriages and wagons used on the Railway are to be moved or propelled ;

(b) for regulating the maximum number of passengers which each carriage and compartment may carry, and the mode in which such number shall be denoted thereon ;

(c) for regulating the provision to be made for the accommodation and convenience of passengers ;

(d) for declaring what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, dangerous goods ; and

(e) generally for regulating the travelling upon, and the use, working and management of, the Railway ;

and may, from time to time, alter any such rules.

Any such rule may contain a provision that any person committing a breach of it shall be liable to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees, or, in default of payment of such fine, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to two months.

No such rule shall take effect unless it is consistent with this Act and until it has received the sanction of the Governor General in Council.

All rules made under this section shall be published in the Gazette of India, and shall be otherwise notified to the Railway-servants and the public in such manner as the Governor General in Council, from time to time, directs.

The Governor General in Council may at any time cancel any such rule.

9. An abstract of this Act, and a copy of the Time-tables and Tariff of charges which may, from time to time, be published for any Railway by any Railway-Administration, shall be exhibited in some conspicuous place at each station of such Railway, so that they may be easily seen and read.

All such documents shall be so exhibited in English and in the principal vernacular language of the district in which the station is situated, and in such other language, if any, as the Governor General in Council may direct.

CHAPTER III.

CARRIAGE OF PROPERTY.

10. Every agreement purporting to limit the obligation or responsibility imposed on a carrier by Railway by the Indian Contract Act, 1872, sections 151 and 161, in the case of loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to, property shall, in so far as it purports to limit such obligation or responsibility, be void unless—

- (a) it is in writing signed by, or on behalf of, the person sending or delivering such property, and
(b) is otherwise in a form approved by the Governor General in Council.

11. When any property mentioned in the second

*No liability for loss of gold, silver, &c., unless value declared and increased charge accepted. schedule hereto annexed is contained in any parcel or package delivered to a carrier by Railway, the carrier shall not be liable for loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to, such property, unless at the time of delivery the value and nature thereof have been declared by the person sending or delivering the same, and an increased charge for the safe conveyance of the same, or an engagement to pay such charge, has been accepted by some Railway-servant specially authorized in this behalf.

When any property of which the value and nature have been declared under this section has been lost, destroyed or damaged, or has deteriorated, the compensation recoverable for such loss, destruction, damage or deterioration shall not exceed the value so declared.

12. A carrier by Railway shall in no case be

No liability for un-booked luggage. answerable for loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to, any passenger's luggage, unless a Railway-servant has booked and given a receipt for the same.

13. In any suit against a carrier by Railway for Plaintiffs not required to prove negligence. compensation for loss, destruction or deterioration of, or damage to, property delivered to a Railway-servant, it shall not be necessary for the plaintiff to prove in what manner such loss, destruction, deterioration or damage was caused.

14. If any person fails to pay on demand any sum

Lien for money due for carriage, &c., of property. due by him to a carrier by any property by Railway, or for the custody of any property or for demurrage or wharfage in respect of the same, the Railway-Administration may detain the whole or any part of such property or, if the same have been removed from the Railway, any other property of such person then on such Railway or thereafter coming into the possession of the Railway-Administration;

and may also sell by public auction, in the case of perishable property at once, and in the case of other property on the expiration of at least fifteen days' notice thereof published in one or more of the local newspapers or, where there are no such newspapers, in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct, sufficient of such property to produce the sum payable as aforesaid, and all charges and expenses of such detention, notice and sale, or, if such person fails to remove from the Railway within a reasonable time any property so detained, the whole of such property;

and may, out of the proceeds of the sale, retain the sum so payable, together with all charges and expenses aforesaid, rendering the surplus, if any, of such proceeds, and so much of the property (if any) as remains unsold, to the person entitled thereto;

or such carrier may recover any such sum by suit.

15. The owner or person having the care of any

Written account of property to be given on demand. property which has been carried upon any Railway, or is brought into any station or warehouse for the purpose of being carried upon a Railway, shall, on demand by any Railway-servant appointed in this behalf by the Railway-Administration, deliver to him an exact account in writing signed by such owner or person of the quantity and description of such property.

16. No passenger shall take with him on a

Dangerous goods. Railway, and no person shall deliver or tender for carriage upon any Railway, any dangerous luggage or goods without giving notice of their nature to a Railway-servant, or, in the case of luggage or goods delivered or tendered for carriage, distinctly marking their nature on the outside of the package containing the same.

Any Railway-servant may refuse to carry upon a Railway any luggage or parcel which he suspects to contain dangerous goods, and may require such luggage or parcel to be opened to ascertain the fact previously to carrying the same and in case any such luggage or parcel is received for the purpose of being carried upon a Railway, any Railway-servant may stop the transit thereof until he is satisfied as to the nature of its contents.

CHAPTER IV.

CARRIAGE OF PASSENGERS.

17. Every person desirous of travelling on a

Passengers on payment of fares to be furnished with tickets. Railway shall, upon payment of his fare, be furnished with a ticket specifying in English and the principal vernacular language of the district in which the ticket is issued, the class of carriage for which, and the place from and place to which, the fare has been paid, and the amount of such fare;

and every passenger shall, when required, show

Tickets to be shown and given up on demand. his ticket to any Railway-servant duly authorized to examine the same, and shall deliver up such ticket upon demand to any Railway-servant duly authorized to collect tickets.

18. At the intermediate stations, the fares shall

Fares and tickets at intermediate stations. be deemed to be accepted and the tickets furnished only upon condition that there be room in the train for which the tickets are furnished.

In case there is not room for all the passengers to whom tickets have been furnished, those who have obtained tickets for the longest distance shall have the preference; and those who have obtained tickets for the same distance shall have the preference according to the order in which they have received their tickets:

Provided that all officers and troops of Her

Proviso Majesty on duty, and all other persons on the business of the Government who, by virtue of any contract with the Government or, in the case of a Railway worked by Government, of any direction of the Governor General in Council, are entitled to be conveyed on a Railway in preference to, or in priority over, the public, shall be entitled to such preference and priority without reference to the distance for which, or the order in which, they have received their tickets.

Any passenger to whom a ticket has been furnished at any station and for whom there is no room shall, on returning the ticket within a reasonable time after its issue, be entitled to have his fare at once refunded.

19. Except with the permission of the Railway-Administration or of such officer as it appoints in this behalf, no person shall enter any carriage used on any Railway for the purpose of travelling therein without having first paid his fare and obtained a ticket.

20. Any passenger found suffering from an infectious disease in a Railway-carriage or in any place on a Railway may, if his remaining in such carriage or place is likely to spread the infection of such disease, be removed from such carriage or place by any Railway-servant ;

any passenger so removed who has paid his proper fare to or at the place at which he is so removed, shall be entitled, on returning his ticket, to have such fare refunded.

CHAPTER V.

OFFENCES AND PROCEDURE.

(A).—Offences by the Railway-Administration.

21. Any Railway-Administration opening, in contravention of section five, any Railway, or any portion or extension of, or addition to, a Railway, shall forfeit to Government the sum of one thousand rupees for every day during which the same continues open in contravention of that section.

22. Any Railway-Administration omitting to give notice as required by section six, shall forfeit to Government the sum of one hundred rupees for every day during which such omission continues.

23. Any Railway-Administration failing to deliver any return mentioned in section seven within fourteen days after the same ought to be delivered, or to make or notify any rules as required by section eight, or to exhibit any abstract or copy mentioned in section nine in manner required by that section, shall forfeit to Government the sum of fifty rupees for every day during which such failure continues.

(B).—Offences by Railway-servants.

24. Any Station-master or other person omitting to give notice as required by section six, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

25. Any Railway-servant who is in a state of intoxication whilst actually employed upon a Railway in the discharge of any duty, or who negligently omits to perform his duty, or who performs the same in an improper manner, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees ;

or if the duty in any of the cases aforesaid be such that the negligent, omission or improper performance thereof would be likely to endanger the safety of any person travelling or being upon such Railway, such servant shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both.

26. If any Railway-servant in the discharge of his duty endangers the safety of any person—

(a) by disobeying any general rule sanctioned and published and notified in the manner prescribed by section eight ; or

(b) by disobeying any rule or order not inconsistent with the general rules aforesaid, and which such servant was bound by the terms of his employment to obey, and of which he had notice ; or

(c) by any rash or negligent act or omission, he shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

27. Every Railway-servant shall be deemed a " public servant " within the meaning of sections 161, 162, 163, 164 and 165 of the Indian Penal Code

In the definition of legal remuneration contained in the said section 161, the word " Government " shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to include any employer of a Railway-servant as such.

28. Any Railway-servant who compels or attempts to compel any passenger to enter a carriage or compartment containing the maximum number of passengers denoted thereon in accordance with a rule made and notified under section eight, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

(C).—Offences by Persons generally.

29. Any person required under section fifteen to give an account of the quantity and description of any property who neglects or refuses to give such account, or who wilfully gives a false account, shall be punished with fine which may extend to five rupees for every maund (of 3,200 tolahs) of such property ; and such fine shall be in addition to any charge to which such property may be liable.

30. Whoever, in contravention of section sixteen, takes with him any dangerous goods on a Railway, or delivers or tenders any such goods for the purpose of being carried upon a Railway, shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

31. Any passenger travelling on a Railway without a proper ticket or having such a ticket and not showing or delivering up the same when so required under section seventeen, shall be liable to pay the fare of the class in which he is found travelling, from the place whence the train originally started, unless he can prove that he has travelled a less distance only, in which case he shall be liable to pay the fare of the class aforesaid only from the place whence he has travelled.

Every such fare shall, on application by a Railway-servant to a Magistrate, and on proof of the passenger's liability, be recoverable from such passenger as if it were a fine, and shall, when recovered, be paid to the Railway-Administration.

32. Any person who defrauds, or attempts to defraud, any carrier by Railway—
For evading payment of fare.

(a) by travelling, or attempting to travel, on any Railway without having previously paid his fare;

(b) by riding or attempting to ride in or on a carriage, or by a train, of a higher class than that for which he has paid his fare;

(c) by using or attempting to use a ticket on any day for which such ticket is not available;

(d) by continuing his journey in or upon any carriage beyond the place to which he has paid his fare, without previously paying the fare for the additional distance;

or who, in any other manner whatever, attempts to evade the payment of his fare, or who wilfully alters or defaces his ticket so as to render the date, number or other material portion thereof illegible, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and shall also be liable to pay the fare (if any) which he ought to have paid; and such fare shall be recoverable in manner provided by section thirty-one and shall, when recovered, be paid to the Railway-Administration.

33. Any passenger who gets into or upon, or attempts to get into or upon, or quits, or attempts to quit, any carriage upon any Railway, while such carriage is in motion, shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees;

and any passenger who rides, or attempts to ride, on the steps, or any other part of a carriage, upon any Railway, except on those parts which are intended for the accommodation of passengers, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

34. Any person who, without the permission of the Railway-Administration, rides or attempts to ride upon any locomotive-engine or tender upon any Railway; or in or upon any vehicle not appropriated to the carriage of passengers, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

35. Any person who, without the consent of his fellow-passengers, if any, in the same compartment, smokes in or upon any Railway-carriage, except in a carriage or compartment specially provided for the purpose, shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees;

and any person who persists in so smoking (except as aforesaid) after being warned by any Railway-servant to desist may, in addition to incurring the liability above-mentioned, be removed by any

Railway-servant from any such carriage, and from the premises of the Railway, and where he has paid his fare and obtained a ticket, shall forfeit such fare and ticket.

36. Any person who is in a state of intoxication, or who commits any nuisance, or who commits any nuisance or act of indecency in any Railway-carriage, or upon any part of any Railway;

or who wilfully and without lawful excuse interferes with the comfort of any passenger, or extinguishes any lamp in any Railway-carriage, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees; and may be removed by any Railway-servant from any such carriage, and also from the premises of the Railway, and where he has paid his fare and obtained a ticket, shall forfeit such fare and ticket.

37. If any carriage, compartment, room or place be reserved by the Railway-Administration for the exclusive use of females, any male person who without lawful excuse enters such carriage, compartment, room or place knowing the same to be reserved as aforesaid, or remains therein after having been informed of its having been so reserved, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, and may be removed therefrom, and also from the premises of the Railway, by any Railway-servant, and, where he has paid his fare and obtained a ticket, shall forfeit such fare and ticket.

38. Whoever wilfully obstructs or impedes any Railway-servant in the discharge of his duty, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

39. Any passenger wilfully entering a carriage or compartment containing already full the maximum number of passengers which has been denoted thereon in accordance with a rule made and notified under section eight, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

40. Any person who without authority or reasonable excuse makes, alters, shows, hides, removes or extinguishes any signal or light upon any Railway, or upon any engine, carriage, wagon or other vehicle upon a Railway, or who negligently damages any engine, carriage, wagon or other vehicle belonging to a Railway, or any warehouse, building, machine, fence or other thing so belonging, or who needlessly interferes with the means of communication provided in any train between the guard and the engine-driver or passengers, shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

41. Any person who unlawfully enters upon a Railway shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees; and if any person so entering refuses to leave such Railway on being requested to do so by any Railway-servant, or by any other person on behalf of the Railway-Administration, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and may be immediately removed from such Railway by such servant or other person as aforesaid.

42. The owner or person in charge of any bulls, cows, bullocks, calves, elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kids straying on any Railway provided with fences suitable for the exclusion of such animals, shall be punished with fine which may extend to ten rupees for each animal, in addition to any amount that may be recovered under the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871.

Whenever any such animals are wilfully and unlawfully driven, or knowingly and unlawfully permitted to be, on any Railway provided with fences suitable for the exclusion of such animals, and whenever any such animals are wilfully driven, or knowingly permitted to be, on any Railway not so provided, otherwise than for the purpose of lawfully crossing the Railway, or for any other lawful purpose, the person in charge of such animals, or if he cannot be identified, then the owner of the said animals, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees for each animal, in addition to any amount that may be recovered under the same Act.

All fines imposed under this section may, if the convicting Magistrate so direct, be recovered in manner provided by section twenty-five of the said Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, and may be appropriated in whole or in part in compensation for loss or damage proved to his satisfaction.

The expression "public road" in sections eleven and twenty-six of the same Act shall be deemed to include a Railway. And any Railway-servant may exercise the powers of seizure provided by the said section eleven.

43. Whoever knowing or having reason to believe that any engine or train is approaching along a Railway opens any gate which the Railway-Administration has set up on either side of the Railway across any road for the use or accommodation of any person, or passes or attempts to pass, or drives or takes, or attempts to drive or take, any vehicle, animal or other thing, across the Railway; and whoever at any time, in the absence of a gate-keeper, omits to shut and fasten such gate as soon as he and any vehicle, animal or other thing under his charge have passed through the same, shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

44. Whenever any minor under twelve years of age unlawfully—
(a) places or throws, or attempts to place or throw, upon or across a Railway any wood, stone or other thing, or

(b) removes or displaces, or attempts to remove or displace, any rail, sleeper, spike, key or other thing belonging to the permanent way of a Railway, or

(c) throws or causes to fall, or attempts to throw or cause to fall, against, into or upon any engine, tender, carriage or other vehicle used upon a Railway, any wood, stone or other thing, such minor shall be deemed guilty of an offence, and the convicting Magistrate may, in his discretion, direct either that the minor, if a male, shall be punished with whipping, or that the father or guardian of the minor shall, within such reasonable time as the Magistrate may fix, execute a bond binding himself, in such penalty as the Magistrate may direct, to prevent the minor from repeating such offence.

The amount of such bond, if forfeited, shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.

Any person neglecting or refusing to execute a bond when required under this section so to do shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

45. Whoever wilfully does any act, or wilfully omits to do what he is legally bound to do, intending by such act or omission to endanger, or knowing that he is thereby likely to endanger, the safety of any person travelling or being upon any Railway, shall be punished with transportation (or in the case of an European or American, penal servitude) for a term of not less than seven years or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to ten years.

46. Whoever rashly or negligently does any act, or omits to do what he is legally bound to do, and such act or omission is likely to endanger the safety of any person travelling or being upon a Railway, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both.

47. Every driver or conductor of an omnibus, carriage or other vehicle shall, while in or upon any station-yard or other premises forming part of a Railway, obey the reasonable directions of any Railway-servant duly authorized in this behalf; and every person offending against this section shall be punished with fine which may extend to twenty rupees.

(D).—Arrest of Offender.

48. If any person commits any offence punishable under this Act and there is reason to believe that he will abscond or his name and address are unknown, and he refuses to give his name and address or there is reason to believe that the name or address given by him is incorrect, any Railway-servant or Police-officer, or any other person whom such Railway-servant or Police-officer may call to his aid, may, without any warrant or written authority, arrest and detain such offender until he can be taken before a Magistrate or give sufficient security for his appearance before such Magistrate, or is otherwise discharged by due course of law.

49. Every person committing any offence mentioned in sections eight, twenty-five, twenty-six, thirty-six, thirty-seven, thirty-eight, forty-four, forty-five and forty-six may be arrested without any warrant or written authority by any Railway-servant or Police-officer, or by any other person whom such servant or officer may call to his aid ; •

and every person so arrested shall, without unnecessary delay, be taken before a Magistrate authorized to punish him or to commit him for trial.

(E).—Jurisdiction.

50. No Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate and a Magistrate whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the second class shall try any offence under this Act.

Any person committing any offence against this Act or the rules made under it, shall be triable for such offence in any place in which he may be found or which the Local Government may, from time to time, notify in this behalf, as well as in any other place in which he might be tried under any law for the time being in force.

Every notification under this section shall be published in the local official Gazette and a copy thereof shall also be exhibited in some conspicuous place at each of such Railway-stations as the Local Government may direct, so that it may be easily seen and read.

(F).—Saving of other Criminal Laws.

51. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent any person from being arrested, prosecuted or punished under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it :

Provided that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

CHAPTER VI

MISCELLANEOUS.

52. The Governor General in Council, or the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, from time to time, make rules requiring—

(a) that boundary-marks or fences be provided for any Railway or any part thereof, and for roads constructed in connection therewith ;

(b) that gates or bars be erected at places where any Railway crosses a road on the level ; and

(c) that persons be employed to open and shut such gates or bars ;

and may by such rules determine what kind of fences shall, for the purposes of section forty-two, be deemed to be suitable for the exclusion of cattle, and direct that any Railway-Administration wilfully neglecting or violating any rule made under this section, shall forfeit to Government a sum not exceeding five hundred rupees for every such neglect or violation, or, when such neglect or violation is continuous, for every day during which it continues.

53. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time by notification, in the Gazette of India, declare what Government or other Authority shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government in respect of the whole or any part of a Railway.

54. The Governor General in Council may, by notification, extend this Act or any portion thereof to any tramway worked by steam.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 5th March, 1879:—

REPORT.

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers specified in the annexed list.

2. In the interpretation-clause, we have expressly declared that an order finally disposing of an application for execution falls within the definition of 'decree.' This will remove a doubt which we understand has been felt in two of the High Courts. We have also provided that 'signed' shall include stamped. The use of a seal capable of producing an impression of the name and title of the person using it is common among Natives of rank.

3. To section 13 we have added an explanation declaring in effect, that a decision in a suit for arrears of rent under any local law relating to landlord and tenant, shall not be deemed to be res judicata in case of suits relating to the title to the property in respect of which the rent is claimed.

4. In section 44, we have provided for joining, with claims by and against a legal representative as such, claims which he was personally entitled to, or liable for, jointly with the deceased person whom he represents, e.g., on a promissory note jointly executed by the deceased and the person who becomes his executor.

5. We have altered the last paragraph of section 52, so as to require the examination of the witness to the verification of the plaint only when the Court entertains doubt as to the fact of the signature.

6. We have extended section 108 to all cases in which decrees have been set-aside ex parte, and provided for cases in which the summons was not duly served, as well as for those in which the defendant was prevented from appearing.

7. Section 131 does not as Act VIII of 1859, section 107, did, empower parties to give notice to produce documents generally. We have therefore made section 131 apply to the production of all documents in the possession or power of a party, whether they are or are not referred to in the plaint, written statement or affidavit of the latter.

8. We have struck out from section 230 the words as to granting subsequent applications for execution, when the Court is satisfied that on the preceding application due diligence had been used to procure complete satisfaction. The effect of these words appears to us to discourage leniency and to invite litigation. We have altered the same section, so as to provide (in accordance with the new Limitation Act, schedule II, Art. 179, paragraph 6) for a decree awarding maintenance, which has been held not to be a decree directing "the payment of money or the delivery of property by instalments."

9. We have amended section 245, so as to provide for non-compliance with the requirements not only of sections 235 and 236, but also of sections 236 and 237.

10. We have altered the first explanation to section 216, so as to bring within its scope decrees made over to a Court for execution.

11. We have amended sections 259 and 260, so as to make it clear that, when an attachment under either section has remained in force for the specified time, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree and the decree-holder has, within that time, applied for a sale, the property may be sold; but that, if the judgment-debtor has obeyed, and the decree-holder has not made such application, the attachment shall cease.

12. We have provided, in section 268, that, where a moiety of the salary of a public officer or railway-servant is attached, the attachment shall be made by an order requiring the officer whose duty it is to disburse the salary to withhold every month such portion as the Court may direct until the amount of the portions so withheld is equal to the amount of the decree; and we have authorized him to pay into Court every portion so withheld, and declared that such payment shall discharge the Government or the Railway Company. We have struck out the last paragraph of the same section.

13. We have altered section 291, so as to empower the Court directing an execution-sale, as well as the officer conducting one, to adjourn it.

14. Where the holder of a decree in execution of which property is sold purchases the property without the Court's permission, we have provided in section 291, that the Court may, if it thinks fit, set-aside the sale, and that any deficiency of price which may happen on a re-sale shall be paid by the decree-holder.

15. We think that mortgages, leases and sales made under section 305 by the judgment-debtor should not become absolute until they are confirmed by the Court; and we have added a provision to this effect.

16. We think that, besides the decree-holder and the owner of land sold in execution, any other person interested in the sale should have power to apply to set it aside on the ground of material irregularity; and we have amended section 311 of the Code accordingly.

17. Much doubt exists as to where the title to land sold at an execution-sale vests in the purchaser. We think it should vest from the date of the certificate, which is granted as soon as the sale becomes absolute; and we have added to section 316 a sentence to this effect.

18. We have recast sections 322 and 323 of the Code, so as to make them express clearly what we believe to have been the intention of their author, namely, that, where a money-decree in satisfaction of which the Court has ordered a sale of land has been transferred to the Collector, he should ascertain the amount of all existing decrees against the judgment-debtor and raise the amount necessary to discharge all his judgment-debts with interest, by dealing with such land, and such land only, in any of the modes prescribed by section 322.

19. We have altered section 331, paragraph two, so as to express the provisions of the corresponding section (229) of Act VIII of 1859, and we have redrawn the latter half of section 332, so as to avoid the reference to the Specific Relief Act, section 9, whilst maintaining the procedure required by that enactment and the effect of an order passed thereunder.

20. We think that the first payment of a judgment-debtor's monthly subsistence-money should be made to the proper officer of the Court, and that the subsequent payments should be made to the officer in charge of the jail; and we have altered section 339 accordingly.

21. When an applicant for the benefit of the insolvency-chapter (XX) furnishes sufficient security that he will appear when called upon, we have empowered the Court to release him. The Recorder of Rangoon exercises under the Burma Courts Act insolvency-jurisdiction in the towns of Rangoon, Maulmain, Akyab and Bassein. We do not think it expedient that any other Courts should exercise such jurisdiction concurrently with him. We have therefore expressly excluded all Courts situate in such towns from the operation of chapter XX.

22. Where a pauper's suit is dismissed for non-appearance of either party, we have empowered the Court to order him to pay the fees which would have been paid by him if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper.

23. We have amended section 456 of the Code so as to provide for obtaining an order for the appointment of a guardian ad litem upon application by the plaintiff; and where there is no other person fit and willing to act as such guardian, we have authorized the Court to appoint any of its officers.

24. We have substituted for section 555 a section providing that in all cases the appellant shall begin.

25. We have made section 560 of the Code provide for the cases when notice is not served on the respondent, as well as for those in which he was prevented from appearing.

26. We have amended section 582 of the Code, so as to preclude the doubt whether the Appellate Court is bound (so far as may be) to perform the duties, as well as authorized to exercise the powers, of the Court of first instance.

27. In section 584, clause (a), we have omitted the words "some specified," which have been held by some to limit the 'law' there mentioned to a statutory enactment, and by others to require the appellant to express in formal terms the rule which he alleges to have been contravened.

28. We think that appeals should lie from orders under section 57, clause (a), returning a plaint on the ground that the suit has been instituted in the wrong Court; and from orders under section 315 refusing an application to set-aside a sale of immoveable property; and we have amended section 588 accordingly. We have also amended the last clause of the same section, so as to give a second appeal from all orders under section 244 as to mesne profits or relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree.

29. We have extended section 642, so as to exempt from arrest under the Code the parties to any matter pending before a tribunal having, or believing bona fide that it has, jurisdiction, their pleaders, mukhtárs, revenue-agents and witnesses while going to, attending or returning from, such tribunal. This will include not only civil Courts, but criminal Courts, Courts-martial and arbitrators, and accords with the existing law of England.

30. Sections 223—229 seem to provide sufficiently for the execution of decrees. We have therefore limited section 648 to arrests and attachments made otherwise than in execution, and provided for the release of any person arrested under that section who furnishes security for his appearance before the Court that issued the warrant.

31. We have added to section 649 a paragraph providing for the execution of the decrees of Courts which have ceased to exist, as for example, where a Court of Small Causes is abolished by the Local Government under Act XI of 1865, section 3, or where a Munsif invested with Small Cause jurisdiction, having passed a considerable number of decrees, is transferred to another Munsifi, and his successor at the particular Munsifi at which this jurisdiction was exercised has not been invested with similar jurisdiction.

32. We have inserted after section 650, a section providing for the service of foreign summonses when issued either by Courts established by the Governor General in Council, or by Courts to which the Governor General in Council has applied this provision.

33. We have amended the second schedule, so as to extend to the Small Cause Courts in the Mufassal sections 223—229, as to execution of decrees ;

section 360, enabling the Local Government to invest any Court with insolvency-jurisdiction ;

chapter XXXVI, as to Receivers ; and sections 523, 524, as to filing in Court agreements to refer to arbitration, and sections 525, 526, as to filing awards made on reference without the intervention of a Court.

34. We have made several corrections of clerical and typographical errors which need not be specified.

35. Lastly, we have amended the Registration Act, by inserting a clause providing that a copy of every certificate of sale of land granted under section 316 of the Code shall be sent to the local registering officer, who will file it in his Book No. 1. We have also taken the opportunity to amend three trifling errors in this Act, one of which is a misprint. And we have amended the Limitation Act, by inserting in its second schedule articles providing respectively for applications under sections 368 and 371 of the Code.

36. We recommend that the Bill thus amended be passed. The Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons have been published in English in all the local Gazettes except those for Assam and Ajmer. They have been published in the vernacular in all the Gazettes except those for the Central Provinces, British Burma, Assam and Ajmer. We do not think that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication.

[Second publication.]

The following supplementary Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 19th March, 1879 :—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure was referred, have the honour to submit the following supplementary Report.

2. Since our Report of the 5th March was presented, our colleague Mr. Stokes has received from Mr. Justice Ainslie a note on the Bill which has led us to make certain further changes therein.

3. It seems to us that the definition of "decree," even when made to include orders finally disposing of applications for execution, is not wide enough. It does not, for instance, comprise an order made on settlement of issues overruling pleas of law (such as that the suit is barred by the Limitation Act), and directing a trial of complicated questions of fact or the investigation of complicated accounts; for this does not "decide the suit," as the defendant may have a defence on the facts. Again, it does not include a decretal order for an account, for this does not "decide the suit;" inasmuch as, on taking the account, it may turn out that nothing is due, in which case the plaintiff's suit would in the end be dismissed. Yet a defendant ought not, if he has a good defence, to be put to the possibly enormous expense and inconvenience of an account for (say) twenty years. He should clearly have a right of appeal. The fact is that there may be more than one decree in a suit and that the various points arising may be decided at different hearings and the results embodied in different "formal orders." We have therefore widened the first sentence of the definition of "decree" as follows: "decree means the formal expression of a final adjudication upon any right claimed, or defence set up, in a Court of justice."

4. We have not overlooked the fact that some of the orders under section 244 of the Code, from which we propose to give two appeals by section 588 as now amended, may be held to be decrees within the meaning of this first sentence of the definition; but we deem it safer, in order to prevent all mistake, to give the appeals from these orders in express terms by section 588, and formally to exclude them from the definition of decree. We have also defined "order" as meaning the formal expression of any decision of a Court of justice which is not a decree, and we have defined "judgment" as the statement given by the Judge of the grounds of a decree or order.

5. There is much evidence to shew that the examination of a witness as to the fact of signature of the verification of the plaint by the person whose name it purports to bear is a useless form. We have therefore, instead of amending section 52 of the Code as proposed by the Bill as last settled, repealed the part of that section requiring such examination.

6. We think that the Court should fix a period within which the sum required to defray the costs of service of a process must be paid into Court by the party concerned. In the absence of such a provision (which was contained in Act XXIII of 1861, section 2), there is no rule by which the Court is to be guided in determining when a party is in default. We have therefore amended section 93 of the Code so as to require a period to be fixed for the payment of the Court-fee, and we have made a similar amendment in section 95, as to payment of postage.

7. It is strongly urged by Mr. Justice Ainslie that our proposed change in section 168 of the word "may" to "shall" would assist litigants to obstruct justice by obtaining unnecessary adjournments. We have accordingly omitted the section of the Bill by which it was proposed to make that change.

8. We have provided in section 289 for fixing up in the Court-house a copy of the proclamation of sale, and we have made a corresponding amendment in section 290.

9. The question is constantly arising whether a fresh proclamation is required when a sale is adjourned. We have provided in section 291 that, in case of such adjournment for a longer period than seven days, a fresh proclamation shall be made, unless the judgment-debtor consents to waive it.

10. In section 220 we have provided for the execution of orders as to costs.

11. In our report of the 5th of March we proposed to alter section 311 of the Code so as to admit of other persons in an execution-sale besides the decree-holder and the owner applying to set-aside the sale. We have, at the suggestion of the High Court at Fort William, struck out this amendment of section 311 of the Code. The High Court urges that it would be of little practical benefit and that it might sometimes be misused to delay the completion of proceedings in execution by persons put forward by the judgment-debtor to dispute the regularity of the sale.

12. We have repealed the last nineteen words of section 13 of Act XI of 1865. They are, in the opinion of the same High Court, unnecessary and occasionally mischievous.

13. The importance of the change now made in the definitions of "decree" and "judgment," make it desirable in our opinion that the Bill should be republished, so as to afford an opportunity for the correction of any oversight into which we may have fallen; but the substance of the amendment has now been so fully discussed that we think that, unless some serious objection is brought to light, there can be no objection to the Bill being passed as it stands; and, looking to the urgency of some of its provisions, we think its passing should not be delayed more than two months.

No. XL

A Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, the Registration Act, 1877, and the Limitation Act, 1877.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Civil Procedure; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. The following portions of the said Code shall be repealed (namely):—
 Repeal of certain portions of Act X of 1877. In section 4, the words and figures "The Panjāb Courts Act, 1865," and "The Panjāb Appeals Act, 1873:"

In section 5, the third sentence:

In section 51, the words "with the permission of the Court:"

In section 52, from and including the words "and when he makes it out of Court" to the end:

In section 61, the words "bill of exchange or other:"

In section 64, the words "or as soon thereafter as may be practicable:"

In section 80, the words "or to receive the copy of the summons:"

In section 131, the words "in whose plaint, written statement or affidavits reference is made to any document:"

In section 193, the words from and including "and in" to the end:

In section 224, the word "therewith:"

In section 230, paragraphs three and four, the words "unless the Court is satisfied that on the last preceding application due diligence was used to procure complete satisfaction of the decree; and the order of the Court granting any such subsequent application shall be conclusive evidence that due diligence was used to procure such satisfaction. And no such subsequent application shall be granted:"

In section 246, clause (e) and the letters (f) and (g):

In section 259, the words "and keeping the same under attachment until the further order of the Court:"

In section 339, paragraph three, the words "to the proper officer of the Court:"

In section 341, the word "third:"

In section 353, the words "within three months from its publication," and "within three months from the publication of the schedule:"

37. To section 316 the following sentence shall be added (namely): "And the title to the property sold shall be deemed to vest in him from the date of such certificate."

38. For sections 322 and 323 the following sections shall be substituted (namely):—

322. Whenever the execution of a decree, not being a decree ordering the sale of immoveable property in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same, but being a decree for money in satisfaction of which the Court has ordered the sale of immoveable property, has been so transferred, the Collector may either proceed as the Court would proceed under section 305, or, if he has reason to believe that all the judgment-debts of the judgment-debtor can be discharged without a sale of the whole of such property, he may publish a notice in the language of the district, calling upon all persons holding decrees against the judgment-debtor to notify in writing to the Collector, within sixty days from the date of such publication, the existence of such decrees, the respective dates thereof and the sums remaining due thereon, respectively.

"Such notice shall be published by being posted in the court-house of the Court which made the order under section 304, and at such other places (if any) as the Collector thinks fit.

323. The Collector shall ascertain the sums remaining due on such decrees respectively, and may then (notwithstanding any order under section 304, but subject to such rules as may from time to time be made in this behalf by the Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority) raise the amount necessary to discharge each of such sums, with interest thereon according to the decree under which it is due, or, if the decree makes no provision as to interest, then with interest (if any) at such rate as he thinks fit—

"(a) by letting in perpetuity, or for a term, on payment of a premium equivalent to such amount, the whole or any part of the property of which the sale has been ordered: or

"(b) by mortgaging the whole or any part of such property: or

"(c) by selling part of such property: or

"(c) partly by one of the modes mentioned in clauses (b), (c) and (d), and partly by another or others of such modes.

For the purpose of managing under this section the whole or any part of such property, the Collector may exercise all the powers of its owner.

"So long as any letting or management under clause (b) or clause (c) continues, the judgment-debtor and his representative in interest shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate the property let or managed or any part thereof."

39. In section 331, paragraph two, for the words "the Specific Relief Act, 1877, section 9," the word and figure "Chapter V" shall be substituted; and to the same section the following paragraph shall be added (namely), "Every such order shall have the same force as a decree and shall be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise."

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The following preliminary Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 19th March, 1879 :—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to define and amend the law relating to alluvion, islands and abandoned river-beds was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin.

2. The Bill as introduced proposed that the division of the whole area of an island formed opposite several holdings should be made rateably among the owners in proportion to their respective frontages, and was framed so as merely to indicate those holders. If, for example, there were three such owners, A, B and C, whose respective frontages were 100 yards, 200 yards and 300 yards, it was intended that A should take one-sixth of the whole area of the island, B one-third and C one-half, and this division was to have been effected either by private arrangement or in default thereof by a suit for partition. It has, however, been strongly urged that, to preclude litigation and discrepancy of practice, the Bill should, at least in the case of land forming in rivers, contain rules not only for giving the areas, but for defining the plots, to which the several riparian owners are entitled. For this purpose rules have been suggested both by the Board of Revenue of the Lower Provinces and the High Court at Fort William, the former proposing that the alluvion should be divided by right lines perpendicular to the extremities of the frontages, the latter proposing a division by right lines bisecting the angles made by perpendiculars drawn from the extremities of adjacent frontages. But it will be seen on examination that, under either of these plans, alluvial lands formed in the bend of a river would sometimes fall to more than one estate, and further provision would then be required for a rateable division of those lands between the owners of the estates concerned. The subject is one of no small difficulty ; but it seems to us that the following rule, which is said by a distinguished Settlement-officer (Mr. Ibbetson) to be practically the rule now in force in the Panjáb, and which is recommended for adoption by the Government of that Province, solves the problem satisfactorily and completely :—

“Where from natural causes an island or other land is formed in or on the bank of a river, either by accumulation of material or by recession of the river, each owner having a frontage on the river is entitled to so much of the land as is included by his frontage, the thread of the stream and lines drawn riverwards from the ends of such frontage to meet the thread of the stream in a direction normal to such thread.

[The term “normal,” we may observe, is here used instead of “perpendicular,” as the thread of the stream may be a curve. It is obvious that in such case several normals may possibly be drawn from the same point, and that these normals may be either of different or of the same length. The rule, therefore, proceeds as follows :—]

“Where more than one such normal can be drawn from one and the same end of any frontage and each of such normals is of different length, the shortest of such normals shall be deemed to be the including line ; and where more than one such normal can be so drawn, and each of such normals is of the same length, the line bisecting the angle between the two extreme positions of the shortest normal shall be deemed to be the including line.”

It will be seen that the above rule applies not only to alluvion deposited on the banks of two contiguous holdings, but also to islands. Incidentally, this will have the effect of rendering immaterial the often difficult question whether a new deposit is an island or not.

3. The above is the chief substantial alteration which we have made in the Bill. We now proceed to specify the minor changes which we deem desirable.

practice, the Bill should, at least in the case of land forming in rivers, contain rules not only for giving the areas, but for defining the plots, to which the several riparian owners are entitled. For this purpose rules have been suggested both by the Board of Revenue of the Lower Provinces and the High Court at Fort William, the former proposing that the alluvion should be divided by right lines perpendicular to the extremities of the frontages, the latter proposing a division by right lines bisecting the angles made by perpendiculars drawn from the extremities of adjacent frontages. But it will be seen on examination that, under either of these plans, alluvial lands formed in the bend of a river would sometimes fall to more than one estate, and further provision would then be required for a rateable division of those lands between the owners of the estates concerned. The subject is one of no small difficulty ; but it seems to us that the following rule, which is said by a distinguished Settlement-officer (Mr. Ibbetson) to be practically the rule now in force in the Panjáb, and which is recommended for adoption by the Government of that Province, solves the problem satisfactorily and completely :—

[The term “normal,” we may observe, is here used instead of “perpendicular,” as the thread of the stream may be a curve. It is obvious that in such case several normals may possibly be drawn from the same point, and that these normals may be either of different or of the same length. “Where more than one such normal can be drawn from one and the same end of any frontage and each of such normals is of different length, the shortest of such normals shall be deemed to be the including line ; and where more than one such normal can be so drawn, and each of such normals is of the same length, the line bisecting the angle between the two extreme positions of the shortest normal shall be deemed to be the including line.”

It will be seen that the above rule applies not only to alluvion deposited on the banks of two contiguous holdings, but also to islands. Incidentally, this will have the effect of rendering immaterial the often difficult question whether a new deposit is an island or not.

3. The above is the chief substantial alteration which we have made in the Bill. We now proceed to specify the minor changes which we deem desirable.

It will be seen that the above rule applies not only to alluvion deposited on the banks of two contiguous holdings, but also to islands. Incidentally, this will have the effect of rendering immaterial the often difficult question whether a new deposit is an island or not.

3. The above is the chief substantial alteration which we have made in the Bill. We now proceed to specify the minor changes which we deem desirable.

4. In the tidal portion of rivers like the Hugli are many islands which are flooded by ordinary tides in the rainy season, but only by extraordinary springs, or not at all, in the dry season. These chars are cultivable in the dry season and should be included in the definition of "island." We have therefore added to that definition the words "throughout the year."

5. To fix with more precision the time which, for the purposes of the Bill, an alluvial island is first formed, we have provided that it must be capable of being employed for cultivation, pasture or other useful purpose, such, for example, as the supply of reeds or brush-wood. The question of fordability will thus be decided after an island newly formed becomes, as the Privy Council puts it, "valuable and usable."

6. Where any formation takes place on a site of which the Government is proved to be the owner, we have declared that the Government is entitled to such formation.

7. In the case of land formed on the shore of the sea or of a lake and in that of an island formed in the sea or a lake, we have provided that the distribution in proportion to the frontage of the riparian owners shall be effected by such officer as the Local Government may appoint and in accordance with such rules (consistent with the proposed Act) as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe.

8. We think that, to entitle the Crown to alluvial islands, the channel between the island and each bank or shore should not be fordable during the dry season next after the formation.

9. In determining the right to abandoned river-beds, we think we should have regard to the thread of the stream in the preceding dry season, and not to what it was immediately before the abandonment—a matter which cannot be always ascertained. In other respects, the rule for the division of such beds among the riparian owners will be the same as that which we have provided in the case of alluvial lands.

10. We have empowered the Local Government to declare, with reference to any tidal river, where, for the purposes of the proposed Act, the river shall be deemed to end and the sea to begin; and we have provided that no declaration under the Act shall be cancelled or altered, save with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

11. In the Panjáb the ownership of lands subject to the action of rivers is mainly regulated by local usage. We have accordingly retained the section of the Bill as introduced, which provided that such usages should be respected and, in certain cases, presumed to be in force. But such provisions do not appear to be required in Madras, Bombay, Oudh or the North-Western Provinces, and though local usage is saved in the Lower Provinces and Assam by the Bengal Regulation XI of 1825, there seems to be only one instance in which there has been any attempt to establish it. We have, therefore, confined to the Panjáb the section saving usage. But there is ground for the belief that even in that Province some of the local usages referred to,—including the usage known as "the deep-stream rule"—besides being objectionable on economic grounds and adverse to imperial interests are more or less unsuited to the time and distasteful to the communities affected by them. In these circumstances we have deemed it right, on the recommendation of experienced officers, to provide a procedure whereby such usages may, if thought expedient, be discontinued, and fixed boundaries substituted for varying boundaries in riparian estates.

12. As the rights of mortgagees and tenants to alluvial lands are saved by the Transfer of Property Bill, No. III, sections 37 and 65, clause (e), we have not thought it necessary to provide for such rights.

13. The Bill in its present form is not to be taken as expressing our final views as to all the difficult and important subjects with which it deals. But we think that the changes which it has undergone are such as to render republication desirable, for the purpose of eliciting criticism from the public and from the judicial and executive officers by whom its provisions will be carried into effect. We also think that its further consideration should be stayed until the new Law Commission has reported thereon. We therefore recommend that the Bill as now amended be republished with this Report in the Gazette of India, and sent to the Local Governments for opinion and for publication in the local Gazettes.

14. The Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons have been published in English in the local Gazettes for Madras, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Panjáb, the Central Provinces and British Burma. Publication in English has not been reported from Bombay and Assam. Publication in the vernacular has been reported only from Madras, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Panjáb and the Central Provinces.

No. II.

A Bill to define and amend the law relating to alluvion, islands and abandoned river-beds.

WHEREAS it is expedient to define and amend the law relating to alluvion, islands and abandoned river-beds; It is hereby enacted as follows:-

I.—Preliminary.

Short title. 1. This Act may be called "The Indian Alluvion Act, 1879."

Local extent. It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement. And it shall come into force at once.

2. The Acts, Regulation and Rules mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column. References to the Regulation and Rules so repealed, in enactments passed subsequently thereto, shall be read as if made to this Act.

Interpretation-clause. 3. In this Act—

"island" means land surrounded by water and capable of being employed for cultivation, pasture or other useful purpose. It includes such land arising in a river or lake, submerged in the wet season and visible only in the dry season; but it excludes land arising in tidal rivers, tidal lakes or the sea, submerged by the flow of ordinary tides throughout the year:

"owner" means, in the case of a bank or shore held on raiyatwari tenure, the Government: in the case of a bank or shore forming part of land situate in the Presidency of Bombay and wholly or partially exempt from the payment of land-revenue, or held under a grant or lease fixing the Government demand in respect thereof in perpetuity, the holder of such land; and in the case of a bank or shore held by a village-community, or by one or more members of it, such community:

"sea" includes bay, inlet, creek and arm of the sea:

"frontage" means the right line connecting the corners of each holding where they strike the sea, lake or river:

"Thread of the stream" means (a) the middle line of the main-stream during the dry season, or, where there are two streams of equal depth and width, the line equidistant during such season from the outermost shores of the two streams; (b) the middle line of the river between what are the shores on each side when the water is at its average height, neither swollen by flood, nor shrunk by drought; or (c) the middle line of the particular channel in which the formation or ancient river-bed referred to occurs or is situate;

and a channel is said to be "fordable" when it does not exceed five feet in depth in the dry season next after the formation referred to and throughout the twenty-four hours.

II.—Alluvial Land and Islands.

4. Where, from natural causes, land forms gradually on the shore of the sea or of a lake, either by accumulation of material or by recession of the sea or lake, the owners of the shore are severally entitled to the land so formed in proportion to the frontage which they respectively had on the sea or lake immediately before the formation; and the partition of the land so formed shall be made by such officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf, and in accordance with such rules, consistent with this Act, as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe:

Provided that, where the land or any portion thereof forms on a site which is proved to belong to the Government or a private owner, the Government or such owner, as the case may be, is entitled to the land or portion so formed.

5. Where an island is formed, from natural causes, in a river, the sea or a lake, either by accumulation of material or by recession of the river, sea or lake, if the island is separated from each bank or shore by a channel not fordable at any point, the Government is entitled to such island:

Provided that, where the island or any portion thereof is formed on a site which is proved to belong to a private owner, such owner is entitled to the island or portion so formed.

6. If, where an island is formed as aforesaid in the sea or a lake, the channels between it and either shore are fordable at any point, the owners of the nearest shore are severally entitled to the island in proportion to the frontage which they respectively have on the sea or lake; and the partition of the island so formed shall be made by such officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf and in accordance with such rules, consistent with this Act, as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe.

7. Where, from natural causes, an island or other land is formed in, or on the bank of, a river, either by accumulation of material or by recession of the river, and the Government is not entitled thereto under section five, each owner having a frontage on the river is entitled to so much of the land as is included by his frontage. the thread of the stream during the dry season next after the formation and lines drawn riverwards from the ends of such frontage to meet the thread of the stream in a direction normal to such thread:

Where more than one such normal can be drawn from one and the same end of any frontage and each of such normals is of different length, the shortest of such normals shall be deemed to be the including line, and where more than one such normal can be so drawn and each of such normals is of the same length, the line bisecting the angle between the two extreme positions of the shortest normal shall be deemed to be the including line.

Provided that, where the land or any portion thereof is formed on a site which is proved to belong to the Government or a private owner, the Government or such owner, as the case may be, is entitled to the land or portion so formed.

8. If a river freshly divides and surrounds, or, by changing its course, cuts off, lands belonging to the owner of the bank, such owner is entitled to the lands so surrounded or cut off.

III.—Abandoned River-beds.

9. Where a river suddenly abandons the bed right to abandoned which it occupies during river-beds. the season of flood, each owner having a frontage on such bed is entitled to so much of the bed as is included by his frontage, the thread of the stream during the dry season next before the abandonment and lines drawn towards the bed from the ends of such frontage to meet such thread in a direction normal thereto.

Where more than one such normal can be drawn from one and the same end of any frontage, the rules contained in the second paragraph of section seven shall apply:

Provided that, when the ancient bed is proved to have belonged immediately before the abandonment to the Government or a private owner, it shall continue to be the property of the Government or of such owner, as the case may be.

IV.—Miscellaneous.

10. The Local Government may, from time to time, declare, with reference to any river, or any part of any river,—
Power to declare "main-stream," "dry season" and "thread of the stream."

(a) what shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this Act, the "main-stream" and the "dry season"; and

(b) which of the said definitions of "thread of the stream" shall be deemed to be in force.

The Local Government may also declare, with reference to any tidal river, where, for the purposes of this Act, the river shall be deemed to end and the sea to begin.

Every declaration made under this section, and all rules made under section four or section six, shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law. And no such declaration shall be cancelled or altered save with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

In the absence of a declaration made under clause (b) as to any river or part thereof, and having the force of law, the first of the said definitions of "thread of the stream" shall be deemed to be in force with reference to such river or part.

11. Nothing herein contained shall—

(a) affect any law relating to the assessment of land-revenue or to the enhancement or abatement of rent; or

(b) confer on any owner of a bank or shore in respect of which he is hereby declared to be entitled to alluvial land, to an island, or to an abandoned river-bed, any title to such land, island or river-bed better than that which he has to the bank or shore or

(c) enlarge any holding granted by Government, the area of which has been fixed by any sanad or other document executed under the authority of Government; or

(d) authorize any acts of private persons done in order to divert currents or cause accretions; or

(e) authorize any encroachments by private persons on the banks, beds or channels of navigable rivers; or

(f) prevent any officer duly empowered by the Local Government in this behalf from removing obstacles which appear to him to interfere with the safe and customary navigation of such rivers, or which obstruct the passage of boats by tracking on the banks of such rivers or otherwise; or

(g) prevent any officer duly empowered by the Local Government in this behalf from regulating the direction and flow of such rivers and the preservation and distribution of their waters.

12. In the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, nothing herein contained shall affect any definite and well-established local usage respecting the right to alluvial land, islands or abandoned river-beds; but (except in the cases provided for by the Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1871, section 16) the burden of proving such usage shall lie on the person alleging it:

Provided that the Local Government may from time to time (a) cause the bed of any river or part of a river, together with the islands and alluvial lands situate therein or adjacent thereto, to be surveyed and mapped, (b) appoint an officer to enquire into, determine and record the rights of private persons and the Government, in, to or over the said bed, islands and lands, and (c) declare that rights so recorded shall not be affected by any local usage. And the provisions of the Panjáb Land Revenue Act, 1871, chapter II, shall apply, so far as may be, to proceedings under this section, and the determination of the said rights shall be made after consideration of the gain and loss (if any) caused by changes in the course of the river for a period of twelve years next before the date of the survey-notification.

13. All land and islands formed, and all river-beds abandoned, as mentioned respectively in sections four, five and nine, and not vesting under any of the provisions hereinbefore contained, shall vest in the Government.

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure.

DESTRUCTION OF RECORDS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to authorize the destruction of Useless Records in Courts in British India be taken into consideration. He said that the only important change the Committee had made in the Bill was by extending its provisions to records, books and papers kept in Revenue-offices (which in many parts of British India were judicial tribunals), and to the records of the Administrator General.

The Committee had conferred the power to make rules for the destruction of the former records on the Chief Revenue-Authority, and that of making rules for the destruction of the latter on the High Court. In each case the rules would require the sanction of Government.

There were some minor amendments which he need not mention as they were all enumerated in the report.

The Hon'ble Mr. HOPE moved that the Bill be referred back to the Select Committee for consideration as to whether it should not comprise (whether by direction for including in the Rules, or otherwise) provision to ensure the preservation of important records for certain periods, the early return to the parties, where practicable, of documents put in evidence, and the giving of due notice before the destruction of such records and documents.

He said that at first sight it might appear that the subject of this Bill was a very trivial one, and that the mode in which it was proposed to deal with useless records was amply sufficient, namely, that their destruction should be regulated by rules made by the High Courts, and approved, in certain cases, by the Local Governments, and, so far as they related to Bengal, by the Governor General in Council. The Council need, however, only look as far as the Bill itself in order to see that a certain amount of importance attached to the subject. It appeared that the very basis of the Bill, the ground upon which it was required at all, was that legislation was necessary in order to authorize the destruction of the property of other people; and the end which the Bill would secure was that the Government would be protected from suits by private parties on account of anything they might do with regard to that property. That, he thought, was a very important fact, and such great power and great immunity ought not to be conferred except under suitable precautions and restrictions. The mode in which it was proposed to deal with the matter was to give a power of making Rules to the High Courts, subject to certain control provided in the Bill, which was pretty much the system which prevailed at present. It therefore seemed necessary, first, to look into the working of the present system. Now, he had unfortunately some considerable experience as an actual litigant in the Civil Courts, and also the experience which he might possess in common with all the administrative officers in the country; and he had seen and heard from time to time many objections to the method which was followed in the destruction of records. In the first place, there was a great tendency in the Courts to absorb documents; for one reason or another original title-deeds, agreements, accounts and other such documents were drawn into the Courts. It was true that there was a provision in the Civil Procedure Code by which a party, under certain circumstances, could get back a document from the Court by putting in a copy, but in practice, for a variety of reasons, that provision was very little resorted to. It often happened that the real point in the case turned upon the hand-writing or signature to a document, or on whether it was or was not forged. Therefore, in a variety of cases, documents could not practically be so got back by the people by whom they were deposited in Court. And when the time came when the document might be given back, there were other practical difficulties to be encountered. The Court had to be petitioned, and in doing so a certain amount of expense had to be incurred. The Court had then to order a search for the document, and sometimes it could not be found, or was reported to be eaten up by white-ants. In short, when once a document was in Court, it was uncommonly difficult to get it out. Furthermore, when a man, on perfectly reasonable grounds, believed that his document was safe in the custody of the Court, and left it so, he might on enquiry be told that it had been destroyed as a useless record. Such, Mr. HOPE said, had been his own experience, and with regard to some other Provinces in India, the enquiries he had made of competent persons corroborated it, and showed that the practice of documents being kept in Court and destroyed unnecessarily prevailed there also, and had been known to result in considerable expense and inconvenience.

However, if they wished to see how the present powers, which the Bill proposed to legalize, were likely to be used, they should look to the present rules of the Courts, which were the best guide to see whether the proposed legislation was wise. He had had considerable difficulty in getting hold of even some of them. When he applied for them some time ago, they were not to be had in the Legislative Department at all, and the Select Committee itself, if he was rightly informed, had not thought it necessary to take the trouble to look into them. However that might be, by hook or by crook he had at last managed to get hold of the rules of four of the different Courts in India. He did not wish to go into any detailed criticism of these four sets of rules, not only because it might be invidious to do so, but because a general statement would, he hoped, suffice for his purpose. Under these rules the destruction of useless records was provided for in very diverse ways; and he might safely say that if the provisions in some of the rules were not utterly superfluous, then provisions in others were utterly insufficient. He did not wish to trouble the Council with any great detail unless it proved necessary to do so. He thought his purpose would be insured by inviting attention to the three objects which his motion comprised, and for which, as it seemed to him, either the Act, or the rules to be made under the Act, should make definite provision. The Act need not go into detail, but might well require that the rules should provide inter alia for these three things. First, "the preservation of important records for certain periods." By that he meant that records of a certain class of cases should be kept so many years, and of other classes of cases for longer or shorter periods, and of certain cases in perpetuity. Secondly, "the early return to the parties, where practicable, of documents put in evidence;" and thirdly, "the giving of due notice before the destruction of such records and documents," by which he meant, the giving notice, as far as practicable, to parties who had put valuable papers into Court. As a matter of fact, he found that nearly the whole of what he wished to see provided in the rules relating to all parts of India was provided, although not very clearly and completely, in the rules of the Calcutta High Court. Therefore, what he asked was nothing more than what some of the judicial authorities had found perfectly reasonable, although others had not done so. The reason why he did not make a definite motion that such and such words be inserted in the Bill was that these matters were better discussed quietly in Committee, and the exact wording could be best settled then. If his motion were carried, he would then, with the concurrence of the Law Member and the other gentlemen on the Committee, propose to add two or three members to the Committee, including himself, so as to give him an opportunity of stating his views. The mode by which he proposed to meet the object he had in view was one common in our Acts, namely, to say that the rules under the Act should provide for such and such main points. Practically, it would thus be seen that his request might be summed up as a petition for time and consideration, and in that light it did not appear to him to be unreasonable. He trusted, considering the desire which the Hon'ble mover had always evinced to have his drafts rendered as complete as possible, that he would not withhold his support from the motion now before the Council.

The Hon'ble MAHÁRÁJÁ JOTÍNDRA MOHAN TAGORE said that he endorsed generally the views expressed by his hon'ble friend to his left. The MAHÁRÁJÁ could speak from personal experience that the facilities for taking back documents filed in Courts were not such as could be desired, and instances were not unknown in which, in the over-anxiousness to clear the record-room, important documents had been destroyed along with useless records. Too much precaution, he thought, could not be taken to prevent such proceedings. The object aimed at by the Hon'ble Member was certainly a good one and deserved consideration; but he (THE MAHÁRÁJÁ) confessed he was not prepared to offer any suggestion for the attainment of that object. He believed it could not be expected that the legislature should lay down any hard and fast rules for the purpose; but he submitted the Select Committee might well be requested to consider whether certain principles, on the basis of which the local authorities should frame their rules, could not be embodied in the Act, with a view to preserve important documents from destruction. Such a course, it seemed to him, would have the additional advantage of securing a sort of uniformity in the rules, which he thought was desirable but which could not be obtained if their framing were left entirely to the discretion of the local authorities. For these reasons, he begged to give his support to the motion now before the Council.

The Hon'ble SIR MUHAMMAD FAIZ ALI KHAN said he entirely concurred with the remarks which had been made by the Hon'ble Member who had just spoken.

The Hon'ble MR. COCKERELL said that, as a Member of the Select Committee to which this Bill was referred, he desired to submit to the Council that the course suggested in this motion was wholly unnecessary. The Bill was designed simply to give legal authorization to the practice which, in regard to the large majority of judicial records, had been in force in some parts of the Empire at least for about half a century; he drew attention to this fact, as in itself suggesting a sufficient comment on the allegation that had been made as to the Government seeking immunity through this Bill from the legal consequences of dealing with private property: For although there had been no express legal authority for the destruction of any records or documents, he had never heard of a single instance of suits being brought against the Government for damage accruing to any individual through the practice which this Bill was to legalize; and he did not believe that it could be justly affirmed that the practice in question had worked injuriously to public or private interests.

Hitherto, except in the Bombay Presidency and Sindh, and quite recently also in Oudh and the Central Provinces, there had been no express enactment on this subject, and it was, he believed, open to doubt whether any statutory power was needed to effect all that was required as regarded the large mass of records and documents; for public records might be held to be the property of the State, and property in private documents deposited in Courts and public offices, it might be reasonably argued, became vested in the State, if after repeated notice the former owners persistently neglected to withdraw them.

The Bill, so far from giving any additional power to the High Courts to that which they had heretofore exercised in regard to this matter, imposed this important restriction, that the rules to be framed by them must obtain the sanction of Government, and then be published in the usual way before they could be acted upon.

But the Hon'ble mover of the amendment now before the Council was not satisfied with the degree of security to public and private interests to be obtained from these provisions, and thought, apparently, that the power of making rules for the destruction of records should be conferred only subject to certain conditions and qualifications as to the contents of such rules, for the due preservation of important papers, and due previous notice to parties affected by the contemplated destruction of any records or private documents.

The Bengal rules, under which papers were destroyed, now in force, contained the very conditions on both these points, which the Hon'ble mover would impose by express enactment; and having regard to this fact, the Committee considered it inexpedient to attach to the power of making rules conditions, the obligatory principle of which had been fully recognized in the spontaneous action of the Courts themselves.

For whilst, on the one hand, nothing was gained by enforcing in an enactment obligations which were already admitted and acted up to, there was, on the other hand, this objection to such a course, that by its adoption you did positive harm, inasmuch as you thereby weakened the sense of responsibility under which the discretionary power conferred on the Courts was to be exercised; for it was impossible to forecast such an exhaustive list of the necessary conditions and qualifications, as would dispense with the need for the exercise of discretion in any case or circumstances.

In providing that the rules to be made must meet with the approval of the Government, he submitted that all that was necessary or desirable had been done in the Bill as it now stood.

As regarded the suggested provision to be made in this Bill for ensuring the early return to their owners of documents put in evidence, he confessed his inability to see any connection between such a provision and the Bill under discussion, which dealt only with the destruction of records which had become useless.

Acts which dealt with the production of private documents—such, for instance, as the Civil Procedure Code, the Registration and Stamp Acts—contained in themselves proper provision for the due return of all such documents, and if this were not so, the proper place for the needed remedy would be in those enactments and not in the present Bill. The suggestion that some provision of this kind was needed proceeded of course on the hypothesis that documents produced in evidence were unnecessarily detained, and that their owners did experience difficulty in their recovery. But was it really the case that such a state of things existed at the present time? In the first place, he would remark that, under the law of procedure, as it now stood, original documents were not required to be filed with the record of any suit or proceeding; they had to be produced at the hearing of a case, and might then be withdrawn by their owners on copies being furnished by the latter for filing with the record. He might venture to say also, with some confidence in regard to this part of India at least, that no such difficulty in the way of the early return of private documents, as was apparently supposed to be felt, really existed. The true difficulty in regard to the return of documents, when they had been filed here, was precisely in the opposite direction, that was to say, the tendency of the owners of such documents was to leave them where they were, and often considerable pressure was required to induce such persons to withdraw them. So much was this found to be the case in regard to documents brought for registration, that it was found necessary to give power in the Registration Acts, to destroy all documents not reclaimed within two years from the date of their deposit.

For these reasons, he was of opinion that the proposal contained in the motion now before the Council should be rejected.

The Hon'ble MR. THORNTON said that, after the speech of his hon'ble friend on the right (Mr. Cockerell), he had little to say except to express general concurrence in the remarks made by him. He (MR. THORNTON) did not think that the Imperial legislature was in a position to issue directions as to the nature of the documents to be preserved, and the time during which they should be preserved, in the Courts and Revenue-offices throughout British India. These were matters which the local authorities, that is to say, the Judges of the High Courts and the Local Governments, were far better able to deal with than this Council—because they were matters which greatly depended, even as regarded general principles, upon local considerations. For example, in localities where there was an elaborate system of survey, settlement, record and registration of titles, the preservation of old and unclaimed documents relating to land was a matter rather of sentimental than serious interest; on the other hand, in localities where there had been no survey or registration of titles, the preservation of such documents was a matter of serious importance. So with regard to the time during which documents should be preserved. This would vary greatly according to the state of land-registration and other local peculiarities. In these circumstances, he did not think the time of the Council would be usefully occupied in attempting to frame rules or lay down principles suited to the varied circumstances and differing conditions of the several Local Governments and Administrations. Another of the Hon'ble Mr. Hope's proposals seemed open to still greater objection. It was the proposal that provision should be made for the early return to the parties of documents put in evidence. The law (section 144 of the Code of Civil Procedure) already made ample provision for the return of documents filed by parties to a suit. Any dilatoriness on the part of Judges in carrying out those provisions was a defect, not in the law, but in the working of the law, and the proper remedy rested, not with the legislature, but with the executive; if the Bombay Judges were guilty of the delays imputed to them, so much the worse for the Bombay Judges; but it was not the fault of the law, and was no ground for legislative, though it might be for executive, action.

But though he was not in favour of the legislature attempting to lay down even general rules on the subject, there was nothing, he would observe, to prevent the Government of India, in the Home Department, exercising general supervision and calling the attention of Local Governments from time to time to observed defects in local rules for the destruction of records, and he felt sure that defects so pointed out would, if practicable, be at once remedied.

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR did not propose to support the amendment. At the same time, he felt that the objections raised to the Bill as it now stood were not altogether unreasonable. There did seem a want of great security that the interests of suitors filing documents should be attended to in the preparation of rules under the Act. It was, however, no doubt an unusual course to adopt to refer the Bill back to the Select Committee, and, on the whole, he thought the suggestion made by the Hon'ble Member who had just spoken would meet the object in view, namely, that the Government should undertake to draw the attention of the Local Governments to the points which had been noticed, and give them special instructions in framing rules to take all the precautions that might be necessary. HIS HONOUR thought that, if the Hon'ble gentleman and some of the other members who had just spoken, and who were practically acquainted with these questions, had been put upon the Committee, this discussion would not have arisen. The Select Committee appeared to him too small; and he hoped that in Bills of this sort, affecting the people at large, care would in future be taken to add to the Select Committee gentlemen acquainted with the practical working of the Administration.

The Hon'ble MR. THORNTON observed that, though he was not a Member of the Select Committee, he was invited to sit with the Committee and was in all respects treated as a Member, and he bore a full share of the responsibility which devolved upon the Committee in the consideration and settlement of the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES said that he had been about to explain, in reference to His Honour's remarks, that the Hon'ble Mr. Thornton, though not formally, was substantially, a member of the Select Committee, whose meeting he had attended at MR. STOKES' request, and in the deliberations of which he had greatly aided.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE's motion suggested three amendments of the Bill, of which the first would be impracticable, the second would be incongruous, and the third, if practicable, would be useless. The first—that the Bill should insure the preservation of important records for certain periods—would be impracticable, because, so great was the diversity of practice as to the files into which civil records were divided, so serious was the difference of local circumstances—as, for example, the size of the record-rooms, and the time in which they became filled—so various were the laws under which proceedings took place in the Courts and Revenue-offices of British India, that no two High Courts, no two Local Governments, no two Revenue-Authorities and, he thought he might add, no two members of a Select Committee, would ever agree as to what should be deemed “important records” and what periods should be fixed for their preservation. This assertion was not without basis. Before the report was presented, he had studied the rules for the destruction of records respectively prepared by two of the superior Courts—the High Court at Fort William and the Chief Court of the Panjáb; and he came to the conclusion that it would be impossible to make anything like a complete list of documents to be preserved in perpetuity or for any given term which would be accepted by each Court as satisfactory. He had not seen the rules issued by the Madras and Bombay High Courts; they were in the hands of Mr. Hope; but the Secretary had been informed by that Hon'ble gentleman that they presented startling contrasts to the rules issued at Calcutta and Lahore. So far from these long-standing discrepancies being regrettable, they seemed to MR. STOKES to show that each set of rules was adapted to its special environment, and therefore more likely to succeed in the struggle for existence than any general regulations which they could possibly frame in Committee for this congeries of countries called British India.

The Bill, in abstaining from detailed specification of documents, followed the precedent set not only by this Council in the Central Provinces Laws Act, but also by the Bombay legislature in the Acts mentioned in the schedule to the Bill. But the Bill improved on former legislation by requiring the approval of two Authorities to each set of rules—that was to say, the High Court and the Government of India, or the High Court and the Local Government, or the Chief Controlling Revenue-Authority and the Local Government. On the whole, he trusted that the Council would agree with him in thinking that those high Authorities were far better suited to regulate such a matter than any Committee of this Council would be, and that tribunals entrusted by law with almost unlimited power over our lives, liberty and most valuable property, might safely be relied on to make rules as to the trumpery documents with which this Bill proposed to deal. He would conclude what he had to say on this part of the subject by quoting what one of their ablest and most experienced Judges (Mr. Justice Ives of the Madras High Court) had written on the Bill:

“I think the proposed Act is a very good one, as it leaves a proper discretion to do all that is required by rules to be framed by the Authorities best capable of judging what is wanted.”

The second amendment suggested by the Hon'ble Member would, as he had said, be incongruous. Mr. Hope proposed that the Bill should provide for the early return to the parties of documents put in evidence. But such a provision would obviously be out of place in a little Act dealing with the destruction of useless records. It was matter for the Codes of Procedure, and there it was already sufficiently provided for. The Hon'ble gentleman appeared to forget that it was not necessary for the parties to civil suits to file original documents. Copies could be filed and the originals need only be produced at the trial. Their detention in Court, unless, indeed, they were impounded, was not, as Mr. Cockerell had pointed out, required by the law. They could be got back by substituting certified copies. This was all set forth in the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 59, 62, 143, 144. So the Code of Criminal Procedure, section 267, provided for the return, at the conclusion of the proceedings, of documents produced before criminal Courts and not impounded.

The third proposed amendment, as to giving due notice before destruction of records and documents, would, as he had said, if it were practicable, be useless. How and where was such a notice to be given? Was it to be published in the Gazette, or by proclamation, or served on every person concerned? To have any conceivable effect, such a notice must contain a complete list of all the records and documents proposed to be destroyed, and any one who had seen, as he had, even one Bengali nathi, would know that the preparation of such a list would be impracticable with the limited official staff and funds at the disposal of the Judicial and Revenue Authorities. But furthermore, the notice, if it were practicable, would be of no earthly use; for no one would read this list. Moreover, as he had explained, no one need leave an original document in Court. Whoever did so must, therefore, be held to care little or nothing about the document so left, and formal notice to him after a long lapse of years that this document, worthless in his eyes, was about to be burnt or turned into pulp if he did not remove it, would certainly be treated with the polite contempt which he believed the Natives of this country sometimes expressed for certain points in our over-elaborate system of administration.

For these reasons, he opposed this motion, and speaking for himself—his Hon'ble colleague Mr. Cockerell had spoken for himself with no uncertain sound—if the motion were carried and the Bill referred back to the Select Committee, he saw no chance of their altering their opinion.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER ARBUTHNOT was not prepared to say that he agreed with every word that had been uttered in the course of the debate in opposition to the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Member, but he might say that in everything that had been said by his hon'ble friend

Mr. Cockerell he entirely concurred. It would be useless for him to advert to the various arguments which had been adduced against the amendment. But one remark he might be permitted to make, and that was that the appeal which had been made by his Hon'ble colleague Mr. Hope to the general experience of those who were engaged in the administration of the country, was in no way supported by the communications which had been addressed to the Government of India with reference to this Bill. They had before them reports from the Government of Bengal and the High Court at Calcutta, from the Chief Commissioner of British Burma, the Government of Madras, the Chief Commissioner of Assam, the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, the Chief Commissioners of Ajmer and the Central Provinces, the Government of Bombay, the Government of the North-Western Provinces, the Chief Commissioner of Mysore, and the Residents of Haidarábád and Baroda. In not one of these communications was a word said, that would lead SIR ALEXANDER ARBUTHNOT to the conclusion that the precautions which his Hon'ble colleague deemed to be necessary, ought to be taken by this Council. He (SIR ALEXANDER ARBUTHNOT), perhaps, need say but little as to that part of the motion which provided for the early return of documents to the parties; but he could not help being struck by some of his Hon'ble colleague's remarks on this point. His Hon'ble colleague alleged that it often happened that documents could not be got back, that documents could not be found, and that, not unfrequently, they were eaten up by white-ants. It appeared to SIR ALEXANDER ARBUTHNOT that none of these contingencies were contingencies against which this Council could effectively provide. What his Hon'ble colleague Mr. Thornton had said on that part of the amendment appeared to him quite convincing. But in his opinion it was not to be regretted that this debate had taken place, and he should be very glad if the proceedings of this Council were more often characterised by discussion and debate.

With reference to the suggestion which had been made by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, he thought he might say, on the part of the Government of India, that the Executive Government would be careful to draw the attention of the various Authorities concerned, to the allegations which had been made, and to the arguments which had been used, in the course of this debate, and would direct their serious attention to the necessity of so framing the rules as to prevent, as far as might be possible, any of the evils against which this amendment was directed, occurring in their respective territories.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hope said he felt himself in a position of some difficulty, between his desire not to take up the time of the Council, and his inclination to point out the very obvious answers which existed to almost every one of the objections which had been advanced; and if, in his desire to be merciful to the Council, he failed to be just to the cause of the people, which he believed himself to be serving, he should no doubt be somewhat to blame. He did not wish to take up time with captious objections; but he would demur, first of all, to the statements which had been made by the Hon'ble Mr. Cockerell, who was a Member of the Select Committee on the Bill. First, he understood the Hon'ble Member to say that all that was at present contemplated was to stereotype the practice which had existed in Bengal for half a century, without a single suit being instituted against Government for the loss of a document which had been destroyed. That might be taken in two ways. If Mr. Hope was to understand that the Hon'ble Member approved of the rules passed by the High Court, and that those rules had acted so well, then those rules contained, and this Bill did not, all the safe-guards which he was anxious to see provided. And he might add, with reference to the remarks which fell from Sir Alexander Arbuthnot, who said that he had carefully looked through the papers and had found nothing therein which showed the necessity for this amendment, that he, to a certain extent, had taken the idea of a part of his amendment from the papers which were received from Bengal and printed as No. 9. Mr. Field, in a very able report on the subject, mentioned that in all the rules from the earliest times—in 1833, in 1852, and in 1865—provision had been made for the return of documents to the parties to whom they belonged, and that the rules of 1852 required the preservation of original documents filed by the parties,

So, if it was the system prevailing in Bengal which the Hon'ble Member wished to stereotype, then it was clear that Mr. HOPE's view was in accord with that of the Hon'ble Member. But if the system he desired to confirm was that shown by all the rules as they were found in other places, then Mr. HOPE demurred to the propriety of stereotyping rules such as those he found laid down by the Madras High Court. These rules occupied only half a page, and it was there said that, excepting judgments and decrees of the Civil Courts, and any documents which the Judge, for special reasons, might order to be preserved, all records, including documents put in by parties as exhibits, were to be destroyed after three years! Now, was it the system in Madras or that in Bengal, or the general want of system, which the Hon'ble Member desired to stereotype?

Another point which had been dwelt upon by more than one Hon'ble Member was, that the rules would not be acted upon until they had been sanctioned, and His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor supported Mr. Thornton's suggestion, which Mr. HOPE admitted was an exceedingly good one, that the Home Department should draw the attention of the Local Governments to the desirability of providing in the rules for the objects Mr. HOPE desired. But as to that Mr. HOPE would point out that, according to the present Bill, it did not follow that there were going to be any new rules at all. The Bill merely said that the Court might, from time to time, make rules, and section 6 of the Bill provided that the rules now in force should continue and have the force of law until they were rescinded. Therefore, it did not follow that there would be any new rules passed in consequence of the passing of this Bill; and therefore the effect of the suggestion would at best be that the next time any rules were revised, these matters would be taken into consideration. Further, some of these rules were made by the High Courts, and he did not know whether the High Courts would altogether relish receiving a letter from the Home Department pointing out what was desirable. Again, if it was desirable to put such directions into a letter, why might not they be sufficiently sifted to be put in the shape of directions in broad terms into the Act? Again, the Hon'ble Mr. Cockerell had remarked that what Mr. HOPE wanted was to impose restrictions which had already been recognized as obligatory. But what Mr. HOPE had said in regard to the rules in force in the Madras Presidency distinctly showed that the restrictions he desired were not held to be obligatory there.

Another point was one which had been dwelt upon by the Hon'ble Mr. Thornton and other Hon'ble Members, but with reference to which Mr. HOPE must point out that the scope of his amendment had been entirely misunderstood. The Hon'ble Member had pointed out that it would not be possible, on account of the varying circumstances and advancement of different Provinces of India, to prescribe in the Act the nature of the documents which should be preserved and the time after which they might be destroyed. But Mr. HOPE's amendment did not contain anything which could bear such a construction. All that he contended for was that each Court should in the Rules prescribe, amongst other things, periods for the destruction of records in proportion to the importance of the documents. Therefore, everything that had been said by Hon'ble Members on this point might be held to have been unintentionally irrelevant.

With reference to the epigrammatic summary by the Hon'ble the Law Member, of the amendments which Mr. HOPE had proposed, that the first of them was impracticable, the second incongruous, and the third, if it were practicable, would be useless, he would remark that epigrams were somewhat dangerous things, and he was afraid that epigrams of that sort would seldom bear scrutiny. He might take up the time of the Council by replying in the same style; but he would only say that to him it seemed that such of the Hon'ble Law Member's remarks as were not irrelevant were erroneous. The first objection, that the amendment was "impracticable," was founded upon a totally mistaken construction of it, namely, that it contemplated that the Act should specify in every case beforehand what sorts of documents should be preserved and what should not; and that there should be a uniform system of rules throughout India. But for this Mr. HOPE did not contend, and such a contention, it would be seen, would not be in accord with the manner in which the entire Bill had been drafted. All that he wished was to secure that the rules should provide for the preservation of documents for suitable periods. He regretted to hear that, by the Hon'ble Member, all those records which contained valuable evidence, accounts and deeds, were designated as "trumpery documents." That was the key-note of the Hon'ble Law Member's treatment of the Bill, and though it would seem to be also the view which the High Court of Madras entertained, he must altogether repudiate it.

With reference to the objection made by one Hon'ble Member, and which finally came from the Hon'ble Mover of the Bill, in the form that the second part of Mr. HOPE's motion was "incongruous," inasmuch as it related to the early return of documents put in evidence, and the explanation that it was incongruous because the law already provided that documents filed in Court should be given back to the parties, he must point out that that was an error apparently arising from a too superficial consideration of the requirements of the law. The upshot of the sections of the Civil Procedure Code to which reference had been made (59, 62, and 113-4) was, that a person should ordinarily be entitled to the return of his document when he asked for it. But what was provided in the Bengal rules was, that to every copy of a decree given to the parties to a suit a printed notice should be attached, calling upon them to remove their documentary evidence as soon as the decree became final; and again, that at another stage notice should, wherever practicable, be given to the person or persons on whose behalf any documents were brought into Court, calling on them to take them back into their own keeping within six months,—thus giving the owners of documents in Court a fair warning, which they would neglect at their peril.

The third objection was that, if the measure proposed were not impracticable, it was useless. Mr. HOPE submitted that it was neither the one nor the other. If it was impracticable, he should like to have explanation as to how analogous provisions came to exist in the rules of the Bengal High Court, and to have worked, according to the Hon'ble Mr. Cockerell, satisfactorily for nearly half a century, and to have been re-enacted in the new set of rules in July, 1877. The rules provided that notice to withdraw their documents should, wherever practicable, be given to the parties both at the time of decree and on a subsequent occasion, that certain records should be preserved for various periods of time, and that certain documents should be preserved even though not taken away. If that was not practicable, then the Bengal High Court had put very foolish provisions in their recent rules. If it was, then the supposition of the Hon'ble Law Member that no staff of clerks would be able to carry out Mr. HOPE's proposal, and that notices could not be issued, was opposed to the facts. As to the assertion that Mr. HOPE's views were not corroborated by the general experience of the country, he would remind the Council that he had already pointed out that such corroboration did exist in some of the papers, and would also observe that in the reports received on Bills, it did not often occur that the Council got remarks from all quarters upon specific points unless attention had actually been drawn to them and opinions had been required. If a circular were now to go to the Local Governments asking if they considered, on the whole, that provision should be made in the rules under the Act for securing the early return of documents put in evidence and the giving of due notice before the destruction of important records and documents, he believed that five out of six of them would think it very reasonable that such provision should be made.

In conclusion, he would submit that he had, he believed, given effectual answers to the whole of the objections which had been made. The argument against his motion amounted to this, that the interests of suitors were already sufficiently protected by the existing system. If so, he did not see why they should legislate at all in the matter. What he urged was, that if they were going to make a law, they must sufficiently protect the interests of those who would be affected by it. He would remind the Council that his motion was simply for time and for the re-consideration of the Bill with the assistance of a Committee larger than the present one, the smallness of which had been so suitably commented upon by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor. If after the Committee had obtained copies of all the rules in force in the different Provinces and looked at them, and had asked the Local Governments if they thought the provisions suggested by his motion were desirable or otherwise, the Committee should come to the conclusion that no amendment in the Bill was necessary, he should be perfectly satisfied. There was no urgency for the passing of the Bill, and there was nothing which made it necessary that his plea for time for further consideration should be denied.

When he was referring to the rules of the Madras High Court, he had accidentally omitted to mention that he had also consulted the Panjáb rules. They were generally good rules compared with some others, but were open to exception. For instance: it was first provided in Rule 12 that the file A in all civil suits for immoveable property should be preserved in perpetuity. But that was governed by a later rule which said that, when the record-room was over-crowded, the Deputy Commissioner might, with the sanction of the Commissioner, order the destruction of "all records of suits for or relating to rights in immoveable property which had been decided for twenty years and upwards." What then would be the position of an unfortunate man who, relying upon Rule 12, and believing that under it certain important papers relating to his property were safe and to be preserved, left them there rather than make an application for the return of them which might be opposed by his other sharers in the land, but who, when he did apply to the Court for them in some emergency, was told that the papers had been burnt five or six years previously, as there was no space for them in the record-room? It was true that, in such cases, an abstract of the property and right concerned, and the final order, were preserved; but, having proper regard to the protection of property, he thought that no such abstract or final order of a Court would compensate for the loss of an original document giving a title to land. The Panjáb rules contained no provision at all for notice or return of documents to parties, and he would conclude by offering them as an illustration of his case.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said that the amendment appeared to him in its main character to be undesirable, nor was it desirable in the real interests of the owners of documents which had been put in evidence. He did not think that that view had been disputed by any Hon'ble Member, and it did not seem to him that the Hon'ble Member had shown that the identical rule was practicable in all parts of India, or that directions in support of that object should properly be the result of legislative enactment instead of executive orders. Although he sympathized with the object of the amendment, he did not feel in a position to support it. He therefore opposed the motion.

The amendment was put and negatived.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES' motion was then put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE moved that the following words be omitted:—

In the Preamble, "and Revenue-offices."

In section 4, "and offices."

In section 6, "or Revenue-office."

The inclusion of these words, as far as he was able to make out, was owing to some remarks which fell from the Hon'ble Mr. Thornton on the 16th October last. He said—

"If legislative sanction was really necessary to authorize the destruction of public records on the ground that, amongst those records, there were documents which were private property, why should the scope and operation of the present Bill be confined to judicial records only? Why should not its operation be extended so as to embrace the records of other departments of the Government? The records of the Revenue, Settlement, Police and other departments were very voluminous."

There was also an allusion to the matter in a letter from the Government of the Panjáb and in a letter from the Government of Bengal; but whether the Bengal Government supported the proposal or not, MR. HOPE thought was not exactly clear. It appeared to him that, before making this important addition to the Bill, all the Local Governments should be consulted, because, adopting the argument recently used in the other case, the circumstances of suits and the nature of the work under different Governments were so various, that legislation which might be exceedingly desirable in one Province, might be totally undesirable in another. What might be the force of that objection, he left others to consider. But he would ask, in the first place, what were "revenue-records?" If they were the records and letters of the Collector, he, as the head of the district, was corresponding perpetually on every kind of subject. His records and letters were all filed and kept together, and it would not be possible for a letter relating to the settlement of land-revenue and a paper relating to any ordinary matter to be treated differently. But besides considering the circumstances and varying conditions of different parts of India, the words "Revenue-office" were totally unsuitable. But again why "Revenue-offices" only? Why not Police and other offices? Why select Revenue-offices in particular? Why not include the Secretariat offices? The reason for legislation given was that the papers in Revenue-offices sometimes included private documents. Did all valuable documents of private persons always stick with the Collector and never come to the Government of India or the Local Governments? If all the other public departments were not included, the provision would be an imperfect provision, which would not answer the ends it was intended to meet. MR. HOPE would put aside the question, which had been mentioned in a letter from a Bengal officer, Mr. Field, as to whether it was necessary to have legislation, a question which the Hon'ble Mr. Cockcroft also seemed doubtful about. Leaving that aside, MR. HOPE would say that such documents were exceedingly rare as compared with the mass of other records, and he thought that greater care would be taken of them if they were left as they were than if destruction of them were legalised. But private documents were by no means the most important documents. All manner of reports and accounts of the early history of the country from the time of Sir John Malcolm were amongst the records of Revenue-offices. It was only the Local Government which could judge how far these papers could be destroyed, and it would be very much safer to leave the matter to the discretion of the heads of Departments themselves, than to have formal rules rigidly acted on with the force of law. In short, it seemed to MR. HOPE that when they proceeded to legislate as to particular correspondence, they were over-legislating. It might be reasonable to legislate for the records of Courts, but not as to the correspondence of ordinary offices. It might next be a question whether they should not legislate in regard to their own private correspondence, so that no man should keep a document belonging to another person without the permission of the State. He therefore held that Revenue-offices should not be included in the Bill,—in the first place, because the matter could not be properly provided for by legal rules; secondly, because legislation was unnecessary, and thirdly, on the ground that we should avoid over-legislation.

The Hon'ble MR. THORNTON said that his hon'ble friend's amendment was based upon two objections which appeared somewhat inconsistent one with another; one being that the provisions of the Bill were too extensive, and the other that they were not extensive enough. As for the first objection, that is to say, that no case had been made out for the extension of the Act to Revenue-offices, he would explain that, as rules for the destruction of records in Revenue-offices already existed—at any rate he could vouch for the fact of their existence in one Province—it was thought desirable to include these offices within the scope of the enactment. But it would be observed that the Act was permissive in its character, and that if in any locality no rules were required to regulate the destruction of useless documents in Revenue-offices, they need not be made. As for the second objection, namely, that, if the provisions of the Act were made applicable to Revenue-offices, they should be made applicable to all Government offices, he would remark that the argument was theoretically plausible; but there was a difference between the case of Revenue-offices and the offices of Government not included within the scope of the Bill, namely, that, in the case of the former, there was some evidence that destruction of records was carried on and that rules were required; in the case of the latter, there was no such evidence. He (MR. THORNTON) was not afflicted with a phrenzy for legislative symmetry, and preferred not to legislate unless there were grounds for believing that legislation was practically wanted.

Should it appear, hereafter, that other Government offices required to be relieved by periodical destruction of papers, including private documents, it would not be difficult to pass an amending Act.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES said the extension of the Bill to records, books and papers contained in revenue-offices (the expression "revenue-records" did not occur in the Bill) was made not merely at the suggestion of the Hon'ble Mr. Thornton, but also of Mr. Barkley (now, or lately, a Judge of the Chief Court at Lahore), and lastly, of Mr. Field and Mr. O'Kinealy with the concurrence of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. Such records, he was told, occasionally did comprise private documents, and for this reason they should be dealt with in the Bill. He was therefore compelled to oppose this motion also, and to express a hope that the Hon'ble gentleman would now allow the Bill to become law.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE said that, in the first place, no answer had been given to his question as to what revenue-records were. In the second place, he believed it was a mistake to suppose that the power given was purely permissive. The object of the rules was the protection of private parties, and therefore the word "may" would be construed as obligatory and imposing a duty for the benefit of the subject. Instead therefore of the Bill being permissive, it required that rules should be made. He knew that rules existed in Bombay, as well as in the Panjáb. But his argument was that it would be better to leave the framing of this sort of rules to the action of the Local Government instead of requiring them to be made as law. The Council had no proof, except from the two Local Governments named, that any of them desired or found it necessary to have legislation on the subject, and he thought that it was much better to leave the matter in the hands of the executive officers.

The Motion was put and negatived.

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR moved, as an amendment to section 5, that all the words after the word "sanction" in line 2, to the word "rules" in line 6 be omitted. Great stress had just been laid, and he thought very properly, on the importance of the rules under this Bill being approved by the Local Government. If the rules went before the Local Government, it had been said, local peculiarities would receive that consideration which they could receive only at the hands of the Local Government; and it was on the ground of the local knowledge which was required to make rules under the Act work satisfactorily that the proposal to give detailed instructions in the Bill as to the form of the rules had just been negatived. But he was surprised to see, in the face of that argument, that, as regarded the largest Province of India, namely, Bengal, the Local Government had been entirely set aside, and such protection as the people would get from the security given to them of having the rules, which would be framed by the Court, tested, examined, and confirmed by the local executive authorities was set aside, and the section provided that the rules for all the District Courts of Bengal should be framed by the High Court, and should be submitted, not to the Local Government, to whom the rules framed in the other Provinces must be submitted, but to the Government of India, which had just avowed itself not to be in a position to deal with these local questions. The only security to persons interested in suits would be to provide that the rules should be approved and sanctioned by the Local Government, and he therefore proposed the amendment. An alteration had been made in the Bill since he had expressed his approval of its principles.

The Hon'ble MR. COCKERELL wished to say a few words in explanation of the vote which he intended to give in reference to this amendment. The Bill as introduced into the Council provided for the rules to be framed under the Act by the High Court at Calcutta being referred for the sanction of the Local Government; but it had been represented to the Committee that such a provision would be inconsistent with the general practice obtaining in cognate cases, under which the Government of India was the general referee in matters in regard to which the action of this High Court required the concurrence or approval of the Executive Administration. He was not going to say anything on the very delicate question of the relations between the Local Government and the High Court of Calcutta in the matter of executive control. It was well known to the Council that on this point high functionaries had from time to time displayed extreme sensitiveness. He (MR. COCKERELL) had advocated in Committee the propriety of making the reference, in the case of the High Court at Calcutta no less than in the case of other High Courts, to the Local Government, but had been over-ruled on the ground that it would be an innovation on the existing practice. But he thought that, in a Bill of the kind before the Council, it was essentially necessary, whatever might be the general practice, that rules framed by the High Court at Calcutta should be made subject to the approval of the Local Government.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES said that, as the Bill was originally framed, it provided that all rules made by the High Courts should be submitted to the Local Government for approval. But the High Court at Calcutta had observed, with perfect accuracy, that the practice was that rules made by that High Court should be approved by the Government of India, and not by the Local Government, and the Committee altered the Bill accordingly. Now His Honour objected that he would have no opportunity of seeing that the rules made by the High Court at Calcutta were adapted to the circumstances of the Province. It seemed to MR. STOKES that, by adopting a middle course, namely, by providing that the rules should be submitted, in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, "through the Local Government to the Governor General in Council," the difficulty raised by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor would be obviated and the amour propre of the High Court preserved. And he proposed, with the permission of His Excellency the President, to move an amendment to that effect.

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR strongly objected to any distinction being made between the High Court at Calcutta and the High Courts of other Provinces in a Bill such as this. If local experience and the control of the local executive was called for in one case, it was called for just as much in the other.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES said that the change which His Honour proposed would be very annoying to the Calcutta High Court. No one knew better than His Honour that the world was governed by feeling as well as reason, and that neither of these factors should be disregarded by a legislature. Besides, such distinctions as were made by the Bill had often been made by this Council; see, for instance, Act X of 1875, section 5, which provided that, for the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, each High Court might hold sittings in the Mufassal, "in the case of the High Court at Fort William, with the consent of the Governor General in Council, in all other cases, with the consent of the Local Government." Parliament, moreover, in framing the High Courts Act (24 & 25 Vic., c. 104) had made a clear distinction between the Local Governments of Madras, Bombay and North-Western Provinces and the Local Government of Bengal. In fact the latter Government was ignored.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE said the amendment proposed was entirely in harmony with the vote which had been just passed on the first of his two amendments. It was held that the Local Government was best fitted to deal with questions such as would be provided for in the rules passed under the Act.

The Hon'ble SIR JOHN STRACHEY gave his support to the amendment of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor. He thought it was not right that the legislature should in any way, even in a small matter like this, recognise the principle that the relations between the High Court of Fort William and the Local Government of Bengal ought to differ in any way from the relations of the High Courts of other Provinces with the Local Governments of those Provinces.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER ARBUTHNOT said there were two amendments before the Council, one proposed by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, and one moved by his Hon'ble friend the Law Member. He now ventured to propose a third amendment. He ventured to suggest that the reference to the Government of India of the rules made under the Bill be not confined to the Province of Bengal, but be extended to all the Provinces of India. It seemed to him that by taking that course they would to some extent meet the objections which had been advanced by the Hon'ble Mr. Hope, and they would also meet the other objection to which allusion had just been made, but which he would not more specifically characterize. He did not think that the amendment, which he was about to propose, would entail much additional labour on the Government of India, and the effect of it would be, that in those matters in which uniformity might be desirable, uniformity would be ensured; and that in those respects in which defects in the rules might be capable of a remedy, a remedy would be given. He would move that, for section 5 of the Bill, the following be substituted, that is to say:—

“All rules made under this Act shall, after being confirmed by the Local Government and sanctioned by the Governor General in Council, be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.”

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR then said that the amendment now proposed by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Arbuthnot would meet his view, and he therefore withdrew his amendment.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES also withdrew his amendment. The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Arbuthnot's amendment was in exact accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Court Fees Act, section 20, as to rules made under that section.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER ARBUTHNOT'S amendment was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES then moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PRESIDENCY BANKS ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR JOHN STRACHEY introduced the Bill to amend the Presidency Banks Act, 1876, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Messrs. Stokes, Morgan, Hope, Colvin and the Mover. He said that the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill left him little or nothing to say on behalf of the motion made. When he had asked leave to introduce the Bill, he had explained to the Council the object with which it was brought forward. The most important provision in the Bill was that which he had stated last week. He then said—“Its necessity had mainly arisen from doubts which had been expressed as to whether the Banks had power, under the Act of 1876, to borrow money by pledging the assets or property of the Bank.” The three Presidency Banks presented memorials to the Government and begged that the law might be so amended that all doubt on this subject might be removed. The other sections of the Bill provided for some small amendments which it was thought desirable to take this opportunity of making. There were only one or two of those amendments on which he need say anything more than was said in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. The provision by which it was proposed that the President and Vice-President should not be eligible for election for two consecutive years was based on the model of the Bank of England. He believed that the Governor and Deputy Governor of the Bank of England practically served for two years; and if on discussion in Committee it should be thought right that the Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the Presidency Banks should be allowed to serve two consecutive years, the Government had no objection to offer. He might add, in reference to some remarks which had been made by one of the Banks, that at one time it was thought it might be necessary to make legal provision to enable the Banks to make loans on provincial debentures. The Government had been advised that these securities did not differ from other securities guaranteed by the Secretary of State for India. His Hon'ble friend Mr. Hope at the last meeting of the Council made some remarks which appeared to show—SIR JOHN STRACHEY was not sure that he interpreted the Hon'ble Member correctly—that he desired to take the opportunity of urging the propriety of 'making' some important changes in the existing law. SIR JOHN STRACHEY thought it right therefore to say that the Executive Government did not consider that any important changes in the existing law ought now to be made; and under these circumstances, ~~he~~ ^{he} did not consider that any useful purpose was to be gained by discussing the subject. As he had said last week, the Act had been in force very nearly three years, and there was no doubt that it had worked on the whole exceedingly well. Such small amendments as it was now proposed to make were for the most part proposed in accordance with a desire expressed by the Banks themselves, and there appeared to the Government no reason for altering at present any of the substantive provisions of the law.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES said that he wished to supplement his hon'ble friend's remarks by a few words explanatory of the doubt which had been raised as to the power of the Directors of the Presidency Banks to borrow in India by pledging assets. It might, at first sight, be supposed that they already possessed such a power, for power to borrow was so necessary to a banking company that its directors could not be deprived of it save by express words or necessary implication. Furthermore, there was clause (a) of section 36 of the Presidency Banks Act, which authorized the Banks to do "all such matters and things as may be incidental or subsidiary to the transacting of the various kinds of business hereinbefore specified." In point of fact, a high legal authority in England had held that the Directors of the Presidency Banks had this power to borrow, and his view was supported by Mr. Justice Lindley, in the new edition of his treatise on Partnership and Companies (p. 270), and by the decision of the Judicial Committee in the Bank of Australasia v. Breillat, 6 Moo. P. C. 152. Certain leading members of the Calcutta Bar, however, had thought it possible that the particularity with which the Directors' powers were specified in the Act might possibly lead the Judges to hold that power to borrow by way of pledging assets (which power was not so specified) was not intended to be conferred on the Directors; in other words, that the Act was in this respect restrictive of the ordinary powers of Bank Directors. MR. STOKES had a better opinion of the Judges; but the existence of such a doubt, when expressed by gentlemen of great professional eminence, fully justified the proposed legislation.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE said he had only to explain that, at the last meeting, the Council were not in possession of any information as to what the general scope of the Bill was to be, and therefore he thought it not out of place to express his general opinion that the opportunity should be taken to amend the Act in the direction which he had indicated. But now that he had seen the Bill, he thought that the amendments he had in view could not well come within its scope. He, therefore, disclaimed any desire to hamper this Bill by any such suggestions. Time, he thought, would soon show important amendments made in the law relating to banks in England, which we should be compelled to adopt here.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR JOHN STRACHEY also moved that the Bill be published only in English in the Gazette of India, the Calcutta Gazette, the Fort Saint George Gazette and the Bombay Government Gazette.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 12th March, 1879.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE RAILWAY CONFERENCE HELD AT CALCUTTA IN FEBRUARY 1879.

Nos. 1080—1104 R., dated Fort William, 13th March 1879.

Public Works Department Resolution Nos. 375—99 R of the 20th January 1879.

Read also—

Letter No. 7 of 24th February 1879, from Colonel J. S. Trevor, R.E., President, submitting the Proceedings of the Railway Conference held at Calcutta in February 1879.

OBSERVATIONS.—The Conference of Railway Delegates assembled at Calcutta on the 10th February in accordance with Government of India Resolution Nos. 375—99, dated 20th January 1879, and held six meetings.

2. The primary object of the Conference was to lay down rules for the interchange of rolling-stock between all connected railways.

Twenty-two rules were framed and passed and a resolution was recorded to the effect that these rules, with the approval of the several Boards of Directors, should come into force on the 1st September next.

3. The Conference also had under consideration the want of a revised set of general rules and regulations for all Indian Railways, and the following resolutions were passed :—

(i).—In the opinion of this Conference, a revised set of general rules and regulations for all Indian Railways should be compiled and published under Section 14 of the new Draft Act, or under the corresponding section of the Act as passed.

(ii).—That Government be asked to appoint an officer to compile the rules and regulations, and that the Agent of each Company be requested to decide, on behalf of his own Company, on the adoption or modification of such rules.

(iii).—That the Agents of the several Companies be invited to send in to the Secretary of the Railway Conference any new rules or regulations they would like added to those now in force on their lines, and also any corrections or alterations they wished to have made in the existing rules.

4. The question of establishing Provident Funds for Railway employes was discussed, and it was suggested that certain proposals submitted by the Agents of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India and Madras Railways be referred to the various Boards of Directors and the Government of India, with a view to ascertain if they would be prepared to contribute to such a fund out of working expenses, and if so, to what extent.

5. The Hon'ble Sir Andrew Clarke brought before the Conference the subject of technical and industrial education for the children of Railway employes, and said that he would be glad to learn the views of the Agents on the establishment of a large Central Technical and Industrial School in the hills for the elder children of Railway employes. The State to build the school, the annual maintenance to be paid by the parents, and by a grant-in-aid, per pupil attending, from the revenue of the several lines. Schools to be constructed to accommodate at least 800 boys or 800 girls, as the expense per head for smaller numbers would be, in Sir Andrew Clarke's opinion, almost prohibitory. The Agents stated that they would, after communication with their London Boards, address Government on this matter.

6. Sir Andrew Clarke introduced for discussion the draft Railway Bill which was read clause by clause, and various suggestions and alterations were noted for the consideration of the Select Committee to which the Bill had been referred.

RESOLUTION.—The Government of India learn with satisfaction that a practical set of rules for the interchange of rolling-stock have been passed by the Conference.

2. The Resolutions touching on the compilation of a revised set of general rules and regulations are approved. Copies of the existing rules and regulations, and also the corrections and alterations which are desired by the Railway authorities should be submitted to the Government of India at an early date.

3. The question of instituting Provident Funds should be taken into consideration.

4. Attention should be invited to paras. 34, 35 and 36 of the Conference Minutes on the subject of establishing a Central Technical and Industrial School for the children of Railway employes; on this point Government will await the communications promised by the Agents of the Railway Companies.

5. The thanks of the Government of India should be conveyed to the Railway Delegates for the care and attention they have bestowed on the subjects brought before them, and for the careful and conciliatory manner in which the intricate question of interchange of rolling-stock has been dealt with. The thanks of His Excellency the Governor General in Council are also due to Major-General J. S. Trevor, R.E., the President of the Conference, for his conduct of this special matter of the interchange of rolling-stock.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution, together with the Proceedings of the

The Governments of Madras, Bombay, Bengal and North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

The Chief Commissioners of the Central Provinces, British Burma, and Mysore and Coorg.

The Resident at Hyderabad.

The Consulting Engineers for Guaranteed Railways.

The Directors of State Railways.

Conference, be communicated to the Governments and Administrations and Officers marginally noted, for information and guidance, and to the Government of the Punjab, the Chief Commissioner of Assam, the Agents to the Governor General for Central India and Rajputana, the Director of State Railway Stores, and the several Departments of the Government of India for information.

Ordered also, that this Resolution be published for general information in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

The following officers also attended the Meeting and joined in the discussion, but did not vote on the questions put to the Meeting :—

N. ST. L. CARTER, Esq., Traffic Manager, E. I. Ry. Co.
CAPTAIN W. SEDGWICK, R. E., Offg. Manager, P. N. State Railway.
J. CONDER, Esq., Traffic Manager, I. V. State Railway.
CAPTAIN R. A. SARGEANT, R.E., Secy. to the Conference.

2. The following rule which had been previously proposed and circulated was read, viz. :—

Rule for regulating the mode in which the decisions of the Conference of Railway Delegates are to be arrived at and given effect to.

“It shall not be competent for any representative of a Railway Company to intimate the withdrawal of his Company from any resolution arrived at by the majority of the Conference, but no resolution will be brought in force till three months have elapsed from the date on which it may be passed, and it will be open to the London Board of Directors of any Company within that period to record its dissent, on which such resolution will, as regards their line, be inoperative.”

Proposed by Mr. Saunders and seconded by S. P. & D. Ry. Delegate that the three months in the above rule be extended to six months. There being no objection raised to this extension of time, the proposition was carried. With this modification the rule was agreed to (subject, as far as the Great Indian Peninsula Railway are concerned, to paras. 2 and 3 of their Agent's letter No. 1415 of the 30th January 1879, addressed to the Consulting Engineer for Railways, Bombay, being recorded below.)

Extract from Great Indian Peninsula Railway Agent's letter No. 1415.

“2. With regard, however, to the rule proposed to be adopted for regulating the mode in which the decisions of the Conference are to be arrived at and given effect to, the circumstances of the English Railway Clearing House are hardly sufficiently similar to form a guide to the rule which should be adapted to provide for alterations in India. Moreover, any resolution of the Conference would scarcely be in the hands of the Directors in sufficient time to enable them to communicate their opinion upon it within three months.”

“3. I am therefore to state that the Agent cannot accept any decision arrived at by the Conference until it has been approved of by the Board of Directors.”

3. General rules for the interchange of rolling-stock were then discussed.

The following rules were agreed to as applicable to all Indian broad gauge railways :—

GENERAL.

RULE I. The day is to be reckoned as 24 hours, commencing at midnight. Madras time to be adopted in all cases. The week to end at midnight on Saturday.

No dies non to be allowed under these rules.

RULE II. All stock to be considered as handed over when entered in the number-taker's book at the junction station, and it is to be so entered directly it is put into the lines or sidings in which such stock is usually placed for that purpose.

Calculation of free time and demurrage charges to be reckoned from the first complete hour after delivery, fractions of hours being disregarded.

RULE III. Passenger carriages, horse-boxes, carriage trucks, break-vans, and passenger road or luggage vans, are to be, in all cases, reckoned as coaching vehicles, whether they run upon passenger or goods trains. All other kinds of vehicles are to be reckoned as goods vehicles.

RULE IV. No return vehicle shall be run, whether loaded or empty, unless otherwise mutually arranged, or any other than the exact route to its own line by which it was received, under a penalty of rupees twenty-two per diem from the time it was missent, until it returns to a station on the route by which it was received.

Vehicles may under the above conditions be loaded on their return journey to any station on the route to the owning line, or beyond via the owning line.

RULE V. So soon as the rolling-stock of any Railway passes into the custody or possession of any other Railway, such other Railway is to be responsible for all and every contingency that may arise from the use of such stock while it remains in their possession. Except that if the contingency is clearly traceable to defect of material or workmanship, the actual repair or replacement of the vehicle in which there was such defect, but not of any other vehicle or any other consequent damage, is to be at the expense of the owning Railway.

The cost of repairs arising from ordinary wear and tear to be always borne by the owning Railway, but cases of palpable damage (such as dropping heavy weights into wagons and so damaging the bottoms, neglect of greasing or oiling and other similar neglects), and all cases of accidents or collision to be borne by the Railway in whose custody or possession the stock may be at the time the damage occurs.

No claim shall be admitted for the cost of repairs of stock unless sent to the Railway which is responsible for the payment of it, within three months of the time at which the repairs are completed.

RULE VI. Six additional days to be allowed in case of damage to the stock of either Railway on the line of another Railway for the repairs of such stock, and no demurrage shall be charged for those six days. But if the damage is such as will require longer than six days to complete the repair, the stock must be returned to the owning Railway. If not sent within the six additional days, whether repaired or not, demurrage will be charged after the expiration of the six days unless specially exempted by the Traffic Managers of the owning Railway. Notice to be sent within one month to the owning Railway in all cases how and when the damage took place and the nature of it.

COACHING.

RULE VII. The exchange of passenger stock to be subject in extent to mutual arrangement between the respective Railways.

RULE VIII. The mileage charge on coaching vehicles to be seven pies per mile both on the outward journey and in returning, except that no mileage is to be charged on the return journey for horse boxes, carriage trucks, hospital carriages, prison vans, and special saloon carriages not used for ordinary traffic, unless returning under load.

Double horse boxes while carrying four or more horses to be counted and charged mileage as two vehicles.

RULE IX. Coaching vehicles to be allowed one hour for every twelve and a half miles run on foreign lines, and twenty-four hours extra at destination, free of demurrage.*

RULE X. Demurrage to be charged on all coaching vehicles detained beyond the time named in Rules VI and IX at the rate of eight annas per hour.

The Conference adjourned till 11 A. M. on the following day.

No. 2.

4. The Conference re-assembled at 11 A. M. on Tuesday, the 11th February.

PRESENT:

As on the 10th, with the exception that the Eastern Bengal Railway Company was represented by Mr. G. Low Calder, Chief Accountant, instead of by Mr. Prestage.

The proceedings of the previous meeting were read.

5. The discussion of the rules for the interchange of rolling-stock was continued.

GOODS.

RULE XI. The interchange of goods stock to extend to all connected lines and branches. A fair proportion of through traffic being accepted at junctions in time of pressure.

(N. B.—This rule has been modified in accordance with Resolution under para. 25, page 316.)

RULE XII. All consignments of less than three tons to be transhipped at junction. In all other respects, the interchange of goods traffic and stock shall be unrestricted.

* Vide para. 8, page 313.

Traffic Managers to be at liberty to make exceptions by mutual agreement as to the amount to be transhipped in cases of consignments which, from their bulk or weight, fully occupy a wagon, or require exceptional care, such as furniture, glass-ware, stationery, millinery, pictures, musical instruments, &c., &c.

The above two rules were unanimously agreed to.

6. The following rule was then proposed:—

No mileage charge to be made on goods vehicles when running empty, or returning with a load of eighty-one maunds or more to the owning line.

Mr. Molesworth proposed as an amendment that all words after the word "empty" be struck out.

| For. | Against. |
|--------------------------------|------------------|
| Mr. Molesworth. | Colonel Jenkins. |
| „ Mathew. | Mr. Leslie. |
| „ Conder (G. I. P. Ry.) | „ Calder. |
| „ Saunders. | |
| The S. P. and D. Ry. Delegate. | |

Colonel Trevor did not vote.

The amendment was carried and the rule passed as under, viz.:—

RULE XIII. No mileage charge to be made on goods vehicles when running empty.

7. The following rule was next proposed:—

* That subject to the proviso in Rule XIII, mileage be paid to the sending Railway for goods vehicles of all descriptions at the rate of one pie per ton, or fraction of a ton of goods conveyed in either direction in such vehicles, in respect of every mile a goods vehicle of one Railway may carry goods on the line of another Railway.

Mileage to be paid on the weight entered in the invoice of charges.

This rule was agreed to by all Members of the Conference except Mr. Conder, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, who proposed a mileage rate of $\frac{1}{3}$ rd of a pie per ton.

* (For Rule XIV as finally passed, vide page 316.)

[When read at the following Meeting the mileage rate was further discussed, and Mr. Conder (Great Indian Peninsula Railway) suggested that, with the view of obtaining an unanimous proposal, a compromise as to the rate of mileage be made, and that the rate be fixed at half of a pie per ton, and the daily speed at 150 miles. This met with no seconder].

8. The Conference agreeing that a free allowance of time should be made according to the mileage run on a foreign line or lines, and also that 24 hours should be allowed for unloading and the same for re-loading free of demurrage: it was put to the Meeting whether the allowance of time should be reckoned both for coaching and goods vehicles by miles per hour, or by miles per day.

10. The opposers of this motion wished the following opinions to be recorded :—

Messrs. Molesworth and Mathew were in favor of a speed of six and a half miles an hour.

Messrs. Conder (G. I. P. R.) and Saunders were of opinion that the speed should be fixed at 140 miles a day.

11. The opinion of the majority being in favor of speed of seven miles an hour, the following rule was passed, viz. :—

* Goods vehicles to be allowed one hour for every seven miles run on a foreign line, and for unloading and re-loading 24 hours for each and every operation free of demurrage.

* (For Rule XV, vide page 316.)

12. Mr. Conder proposed that a free allowance of twelve hours at each junction be granted. This being supported by Mr. Saunders only, was lost.

13. It was then proposed that demurrage should be at the rate of one anna per ton of carrying capacity.

14. Mr. Conder, in recording his dissent, stated that, in his opinion, the rate of demurrage should be Rs. 12 a day, or if the hourly rate had to be adopted, it should be annas 8 per hour. With this opinion Mr. Saunders concurred. Messrs. Molesworth and Mathew were in favor of the rate being fixed at annas 8 per hour.

15. The following clause was passed by the majority, viz. :—

RULE XVI. Demurrage to be charged on all goods vehicles detained beyond the time named in Rules VI and XV at the rate of one anna per ton of carrying capacity per hour.

The Conference adjourned till 11 A.M. on the following day.

THE CONFERENCE RE-ASSEMBLED AT 11 A. M. ON WEDNESDAY, THE 12TH
FEBRUARY 1879.

16. PRESENT :—As at Meeting No. 1.

The proceedings of the previous meeting were read.

17. Proposed by the Sind, Punjab and Delhi Railway Delegate that—

RULE XVII. The receiving Railway may call upon the forwarding Railway to accept empty wagons with a view to equalize the ton-mileage.

This rule was agreed to without dissent.

18. Proposed by Mr. Leslie, and seconded by the Sind, Punjab and Delhi Railway Delegate, that—

RULE XVIII. The Railway on which through traffic originates shall provide wagons for such traffic. But when the through traffic offering is more than the wagon stock of the sending Railway can cope with, it may call on the receiving Railway to place a daily average capacity of wagon stock at its disposal at the junction for traffic to, and via, the receiving Railway; and in the event of failure to comply within one week, the sending Railway shall be entitled to charge two pies per ton-mile on all traffic to the extent of the wagon stock short supplied, which it may send through in its own stock: provided that the receiving Railway shall not be required to supply more wagons than sufficient to maintain an equal interchange of stock based on the carrying capacity. Open wagons to be accepted if supplied with proper sheets and

This rule was agreed to by all members of the Conference with the exception of Mr. Conder (Great Indian Peninsula Railway), who did not vote.

19. Proposed—

RULE XIX. In case any goods-vehicles are loaded on the homeward journey to any station short of the junction with the owning Railway, the Audit Offices of the respective Railways shall make a special return of the same to each other, and the mileage charge under Rule XIV shall be charged to the Railway so loading such wagons.

This rule was agreed to without dissent.

20. Proposed by Mr. Conder (Great Indian Peninsula Railway), and seconded by the Sind, Punjab and Delhi Railway Delegate, that—Whatever amount is paid for mileage, demurrage or penalty for wrong sending by any Company for the use of vehicles of other Companies, is, in all cases, to belong, and be paid over to, the owning Company.

Mr. Leslie proposed as an amendment that the word “demurrage” be struck out—

The amendment was carried, and the rule passed as under—

RULE XX. Whatever amount is paid for mileage, and penalty for wrong sending by any Railway for the use of vehicles of other Railways, is in all cases to belong to, and be paid over to, the owning Railway.

21. The following rule was proposed :—

RULE XXI. Each Railway to accept the statements of other Railways with respect to the loads and wagons, unless the number-takers at the junction notice and record that the loads have been interfered with, when the actual contents, and their condition, must be ascertained and recorded by a responsible officer of the receiving Railway.

This rule was unanimously agreed to.

22. Proposed that—

RULE XXII. The accounts referring to any mileage, demurrage, or penalty for wrong sending, in which any Railway is concerned, shall be open to the inspection of such Railway.

This rule was passed without dissent.

23. The want of a revised set of rules and regulations for all Railways in India was brought by the President before the Conference. Several of the existing rules and regulations were made under Act XVIII of 1854, Section 29, and now require revision.

The President suggested that these rules should be printed in the manner adopted on English Railways, i. e., such portions as relate to all Railways being in a uniform type, and the special rules for each Railway, if any, exhibited in a type peculiar to each Railway.

Such a compilation, he thought, could best be prepared by an independent Officer, in communication with an Officer of each Company nominated for the purpose.

Resolved that,—In the opinion of this Conference, a revised set of general rules and regulations for all Indian Railways should be compiled and published under Section 14 of the new draft Act, or under the corresponding section of the Act as passed.

Resolved further that,—Government be asked to appoint an Officer to compile the rules and regulations, and that the Agent of each Company be requested to decide, on behalf of his own Company, on the adoption or modification of such rules.

Resolved also that,—The Agents of the several Companies be invited to send in to the Secretary of the Railway Conference any new rules or regulations they would like added to those now in force on their lines, and also any corrections or alterations they wished to have made in the existing rules.

This was agreed to.

[Mr. Conder (Great Indian Peninsula Railway) not having been aware that this question was to be brought before the Conference, preferred not to express any opinion].

The Conference adjourned till 3 P.M. on the following day.

No. 4.

24. The Conference re-assembled at 3 P.M. on Thursday, the 13th February. Present as at Meeting No. 1, except that Mr. Carter did not attend.

The proceedings of the previous Meeting were read.

25. Mr. Saunders proposed that the following be added to Rule XI, viz.:—

It shall not be competent for any Railway Company to refuse to receive traffic booked through from connected Railways, so as to devote all their resources to traffic booked locally, but a fair proportion of through traffic must be accepted.

Mr. Molesworth proposed, as an amendment, that the following be added to Rule XI, viz.:—

A fair proportion of through traffic being accepted at junctions in times of pressure.

The amendment was carried unanimously.

26. Mr. Conder (Great Indian Peninsula Railway) stated that from what he had heard there was a disposition to re-consider Rules XIV, XV and XVIII, and requested that they might receive further discussion, and, with the consent of the President, he made the three following propositions, which were voted on as a whole:—

- (i). That the mileage rate for goods vehicles on foreign lines be fixed at $\frac{2}{3}$ rds of a pie per ton, or fraction of a ton, of goods conveyed.
- (ii). That goods vehicles be allowed one hour for every $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles run on a foreign line.
- (iii). That in Rule XVIII the rate per ton-mile be fixed at double the ordinary mileage rate.

Colonel Trevor and Mr. Molesworth did not vote.

The motion was lost.

27. After further discussion, Mr. Conder (Great Indian Peninsula Railway) was given to understand that if he would withdraw the third item of his proposals, the Conference would, for the sake of arriving at a general agreement, accept his first two proposals. Mr. Conder (Great Indian Peninsula Railway) wishing to meet the general views of the Conference, and agreeing that a unanimous proposal on this much vexed and important question was desirable, withdrew his third item accordingly, and the following was put to the Conference:—

- (i). That the mileage rate for goods vehicles on foreign lines be fixed at $\frac{2}{3}$ rds of a pie per ton, or fraction of a ton of goods conveyed.
- (ii). That goods vehicles be allowed one hour for every $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles run on a foreign line.

Carried without dissent.

The following rules were then passed:—

RULE XIV. That, subject to the provisos in Rules XIII and XVIII, mileage be paid to the sending Railway for goods vehicles of all descriptions at the rate of $\frac{2}{3}$ rds of a pie per ton, or fraction of a ton, of goods conveyed in either direction in such vehicles, in respect of every mile a goods vehicle of one Railway may carry goods on the line of another Railway.

RULE XV. Goods vehicles to be allowed one hour for every six and a half ($6\frac{1}{2}$) miles run on a foreign line, and 24 hours for unloading and 24 hours for re-loading at destination, and 12 hours at intermediate stations for each of these operations, free of demurrage.

28. It was decided that the rules should be printed consecutively.

The Conference adjourned till 11 A.M. on Saturday, the 15th February.

No. 5.

29. The Conference re-assembled at 11 A.M. on Saturday, the 15th February.

Present as at Meeting No. 1, except that the following were absent:—Mr. Molesworth, Captain Sedgwick, and Messrs. Carter and J. Conder.

30. The Minutes of Meetings were read from commencement, and some additions and verbal alterations made, which were embodied in the proceedings.

31. The rules for the interchange of rolling-stock, as settled from time to time by the Conference having been separately printed*, were read and confirmed.

32. It was resolved that these rules, subject to the approval of the several Boards of Directors, come into force on the 1st September 1879. It being arranged that any notices which may have been given to terminate existing agreements be considered as expiring on the 31st August 1879.

33. Mr. Saunders brought forward for discussion the question of establishing Provident Funds for Railway employes. It was decided that this should be taken up at a subsequent Meeting.

34. The President, at the desire of Sir Andrew Clarke, handed to the Delegates copies of the Rules for Free Passes on State Railways. He also stated that Sir Andrew Clarke trusted that all Companies would endeavour to encourage the education of the children of all Railway employes, and grant them free conveyance to and from school. The Agents present promised that the matter should continue to receive consideration.

35. Sir Andrew Clarke (through the President) said that he would be glad to learn the views of the Agents on the establishment of a large Central Technical and Industrial School in the Hills for the elder children of Railway employes. The State to build the school, the annual maintenance to be paid by the parents, and by a grant-in-aid, per pupil attending, from the Revenue of the several lines. Schools to be constructed to accommodate at least 800 boys or 800 girls, as the expense per head for smaller numbers would be, in Sir Andrew Clarke's opinion, almost prohibitory.

36. The Agents stated that they would, after communication with their London Boards, address Government on this matter.

The Conference adjourned till 11 A. M. on Monday, the 17th February.

No. 6.

37. The Conference re-assembled at 11 A. M. on Monday, the 17th February. Present as at Meeting No. 5.

38. The Minutes of the previous Meeting were read.

39. Colonel Sir Andrew Clarke, K.C.M.G., C.B., R.E., joined the Conference.

40. The draft Railway Act was read clause by clause, and various suggestions and alterations were noted for the consideration of the Select Committee to which the Bill had been referred.

41. With reference to Minute No. 33 the following resolution was passed:—

The Conference is of opinion that it is necessary to establish Provident Funds on all Railways, irrespective of surplus profits. They therefore suggest that Mr. Saunders' proposal, as well as one submitted by Mr. Mathew,† be referred to the various Boards of Directors and the Government of India, with a view to ascertain if they would be prepared to contribute to such a Fund out of working expenses, and if so, to what extent.

The Conference was dissolved.

RESOLUTION 32. — It was resolved that these rules, subject to the approval of the several Boards of Directors, come into force on the 1st September 1879. It being arranged that any notices which may have been given to terminate existing agreements be considered as expiring on the 31st August 1879.

GENERAL.

RULE I. The day is to be reckoned as 24 hours, commencing at midnight, Madras time being adopted in all cases. The week to end at midnight on Saturday.

No dies non to be allowed under these rules.

RULE II. All stock to be considered as handed over when entered in the number-taker's book at the junction station, and it is to be so entered directly it is put into the lines or sidings in which such stock is usually placed for that purpose.

RULE III. Passenger carriages, horse boxes, carriage trucks, break-vans, and passenger road or luggage vans, are to be, in all cases, reckoned as coaching vehicles, whether they run upon passenger or goods trains. All other kinds of vehicles are to be reckoned as goods vehicles.

RULE IV. No return vehicle shall be run, whether loaded or empty, unless otherwise mutually arranged, on any other than the exact route to its own line by which it was received, under a penalty of rupees twenty-two per diem from the time it was missent, until it returns to a station on the route by which it was received.

Vehicles may be loaded on their return journey to any station on the owning line.

RULE V. So soon as the rolling-stock of any Railway passes into the custody or possession of any other Railway, such other Railway is to be responsible for all and every contingency that may arise from the use of such stock while it remains in their possession. Except that if the contingency is clearly traceable to defect of material or workmanship, the actual repair or replacement of the vehicle in which there was such defect, but not of any other vehicle or any other consequent damage, is to be at the expense of the owning Railway.

The cost of repairs arising from ordinary wear and tear to be always borne by the owning Railway; but cases of palpable damage (such as dropping heavy weights into wagons and so damaging the bottoms, neglect of greasing or oiling and other similar neglects), and all cases of accidents or collision to be borne by the Railway in whose custody or possession the stock may be at the time the damage occurs.

No claim shall be admitted for the cost of repairs of stock unless sent to the Railway which is responsible for the payment of it, within three months of the time at which the repairs are completed.

RULE VI. Six additional days to be allowed in case of damage to the stock of either Railway on the line of another Railway for the repairs of such stock, and no demurrage shall be charged for those six days. But if the damage is such as will require longer than six days to complete the repair, the stock must be returned to the owning Railway. If not sent within the six additional days, whether repaired or not, demurrage will be charged after the expiration of the six days unless specially exempted by the Traffic Manager of the owning Railway. Notice to be sent within one month to the owning Railway in all cases how and when the damage took place and the nature of it.

COACHING.

RULE VII. The exchange of passenger stock to be subject in extent to mutual arrangement between the respective Railways.

RULE VIII. The mileage charge on coaching vehicles to be seven pies per mile both on the outward journey and in returning, except that no mileage is to be charged on the return journey for horse boxes, carriage trucks, hospital carriages, prison vans, and special saloon carriages not used for ordinary traffic, unless returning under load.

Double horse boxes while carrying four or more horses to be counted and charged mileage as two vehicles.

RULE IX. Coaching vehicles to be allowed one hour for every twelve and a half ($12\frac{1}{2}$) miles run on foreign lines, and twenty-four hours extra at destination, free of demurrage.

RULE X. Demurrage to be charged on all coaching vehicles detained beyond the time named in Rules VI and IX at the rate of eight annas per hour.

GOODS.

RULE XI. The interchange of goods stock to extend to all connected lines and branches. A fair proportion of through traffic being accepted at junctions in time of pressure.

RULE XII. All consignments of less than three tons to be transhipped at junction. In all other respects the interchange of goods traffic and stock shall be unrestricted.

Traffic Managers are at liberty to make exceptions by mutual agreement as to the amount to be transhipped in cases of consignments which, from their bulk or weight, fully occupy a wagon, or require exceptional care, such as furniture, glass-ware, stationery, millinery, pictures, musical instruments, &c., &c.

RULE XIII. No mileage charge to be made on goods vehicles when running empty.

RULE XIV. That subject to the proviso in Rules XIII and XVIII, mileage be paid to the sending Railway for goods vehicles of all descriptions at the rate of two-thirds ($\frac{2}{3}$ rd) of a pie per ton, or fraction of a ton of goods conveyed in either direction in such vehicles, in respect of every mile a goods vehicle of one Railway may carry goods on the line of another Railway.

RULE XV. Goods vehicles to be allowed one hour for every six and a half miles run on a foreign line, and twenty-four hours for unloading and twenty-four hours for re-loading at destination, and twelve hours at intermediate stations for each of these operations, free of demurrage.

RULE XVI. Demurrage to be charged on all goods vehicles detained beyond the time named in Rules VI and XV at the rate of one anna per ton of carrying capacity per hour.

RULE XVII. That the receiving Railway may call upon the forwarding Railway to accept empty wagons with a view to equalize the ton-mileage.

RULE XVIII. The Railway on which through traffic originates shall provide wagons for such traffic. But when the through traffic offering is more than the wagon stock of the sending Railway can cope with, it may call on the receiving Railway to place a certain daily average capacity of wagon stock at its disposal at the junction for traffic to, and via, the receiving line; and in the event of failure to comply wholly or in part within one week, the sending line shall be entitled to charge two pies per ton-mile on all traffic to the extent of the wagon/stock short supplied, which it may send through in its own stock: provided that the receiving Railway shall not be required to supply more wagons than sufficient to maintain an equal interchange of stock based on the carrying capacity. Open wagons to be accepted if supplied with proper sheets and ropes.

RULE XIX. In case any goods vehicles are loaded on the homeward journey to any station short of the junction with the owning Railway, the Audit Offices of the respective Railways shall make a special return of the same to each other, and the mileage charge under Rule XIV shall be charged to the Railway so loading such wagons.

RULE XX. Whatever amount is paid for mileage, and penalty, for wrong sending by any Railway for the use of vehicles of other Railways is in all cases to belong to and be paid over to the owning Railway.

RULE XXI. Each Railway to accept the statements of other Railways with respect to the loads and wagons, unless the number-takers at the junction notice and record that the loads have been interfered with, when the actual contents and their condition must be ascertained and recorded by a responsible officer of the receiving Railway.

RULE XXII. The accounts referring to any mileage or demurrage question in which any sending Railway is concerned shall be open to the inspection of such Railway.

Submitted by A. M. Saunders, Esq., Agent and Manager, Madras Railway Company.

MEMORANDUM.

PROVIDENT OR SUPERANNUATION FUND.

It is admitted on all sides that it is desirable to establish a Fund of this kind for the Railway Service, and what is wanted is a scheme that shall apply generally to all the Indian Railways, like the Leave Rules for Officers of the Service.

2. To secure the establishment of a Fund, unanimity and concerted action among all the Companies is wanted to decide upon the measure of assistance that shall be asked for as a charge against revenue. The detailed rules might be framed by a Committee of representatives of all the Companies.

3. The Chairman of the Madras Railway, in his memorandum on the subject, states that the gift of one month's salary for each year of faithful continuous service "may be assumed to be not an exaggerated representation of the prevalent idea of what is desirable and just." This, in my opinion, is what the Railway Service should ask for—one month's pay for each year of service—the average monthly salary of the five years previous to retirement being taken for the calculation.

NOTE.—It would be desirable to make some limitation to the grant, say as follows:—service of less than ten years to receive nothing, and service between ten and fifteen years half allowance.

4. As a matter of course deductions would be made from salaries sufficient to provide an equal sum to the bonus proposed, say after thirty years' service. For this purpose it is estimated that a deduction from salaries of 6 per cent. would be sufficient.

NOTE.—These deductions with compound interest under any circumstances to be returned to the subscriber or his legal representative in case of death. Should subscribers, however, on retirement, elect to take an annuity as proposed below, in such case, his subscriptions with interest would lapse, being applied towards the purchase of the annuity.

5. Under the rules of a Fund established on this basis, a subscriber would be entitled, after thirty years' service, to receive an amount equal to about sixty months' pay, thirty of which would have accrued from his own subscriptions and thirty from the bonus grant.

6. Should it be considered desirable to offer an annuity or pension, this might be provided for as follows; but in every case the subscriber should be allowed the option of taking the principal sum or the annuity at his pleasure.

7. The annuity offered should be one purchased by the joint amount of subscriptions and bonus. A table of factors for age to be used for the calculation might be drawn up, and then approved by Government.

NOTE.—Provision should be made for the payment of the annuity in England through the Company at contract rate of exchange, if desired; and a limitation made of maximum to be granted.

8. Some general provisions would be required, among which should be included the following:—

(a).—Fund to apply only to members of the service drawing say Rs. 25 per mensem and upwards. Provision for meritorious service of men drawing lower pay than Rs. 25 to be made from the Sick and Allowance Fund.

(b).—If members at present in the service elect to take an annuity, they should be allowed to pay back subscriptions and interest.

(c).—Service on any Indian Railway duly certified to count for bonus.

(d).—All loss on annuities, depreciation on Government Paper, as well as the bonus, to be chargeable to Revenue.

A D D E N D U M .

Calculation of probable pensions in the case of three persons whose average salaries have been Rs. 750, and salaries for five years previous to retirement Rs. 1,000, gives results as follows:—

First Case.—Sixteen years' service, retiring at the age of 55. Annuity nearly Rs. 2,650 per annum, or a little more than one-fifth of pay on retirement.

Second Case.—Twenty-four years' service, retiring at the age of 50. Annuity nearly Rs. 3,850 per annum, or nearly one-third of pay on retirement.

Third Case.—Thirty years' service, retiring at the age of 55. Annuity nearly Rs. 5,800 per annum, or nearly one-half of pay on retirement.

Submitted to Conference by F. Mather, Esq., Agent and Chief Engineer, B. B. and C. I. Railway Co.

HEADS of proposed RULES for the establishment of "PENSION AND RETIRING ALLOWANCE" FUNDS for members of the permanent Indian Establishment on the B. B. and C. I. and the G. I. P. Railways, in supersession of the existing Provident Funds—considered and adopted, for recommendation to the consideration and approval of the Boards of Directors, at a Joint Meeting of the undersigned representatives of the Staff of the two Companies held in Bombay at the Offices of the G. I. P. Railway Company, on Thursday the 24th October 1878.

1. The Fund for each Railway to be managed by a Committee consisting of the Agent, Auditor, Chief Engineer, Traffic Manager, Locomotive Superintendent, and Storekeeper of the Railway for the time being.

2. Members' contributions and all other moneys accruing to the Funds to be invested from time to time in Indian Guaranteed Railway Stock, or in Government Paper, in the names of the Agent, Auditor, and one other Head of Department to be settled by the Directors, as Trustees of the Fund.

3. All officers and servants on the permanent establishment of the Company concerned who are not less than twenty years of age, whose salaries are not less than Rs. 40 per month, and who are in the service of the Company when the new Fund is established, to have the right of joining the new Fund.

4. All persons who enter the service later shall join the new Fund if, or when, they are twenty years of age and receive salaries of not less than Rs. 40 per month.

5. Every member of each of the existing Provident Funds to be notified that on the establishment of the new "Pension and Retiring Allowance" Funds the present Provident Funds will be discontinued; their Rules, so far as they provide for direct contribution to the Provident Fund from the Company's revenue or other sources, and for further subscriptions from members, will be cancelled; and the amount at credit of each member of the existing Funds who is qualified to join the new Funds will be dealt with as the Board of Directors may determine on his account, if he does not elect, within six months of being so notified, to join the new "Pension and Retiring Allowance" Fund established for the permanent staff of his Company. The amounts at the credit of members of the existing Provident Funds whose salaries are less than Rs. 40 per mensem to be also dealt with as the Board of Directors may determine.

6. Members to pay to the Fund four per cent. monthly on their salaries while they are members of the Fund. The term 'salaries' not to include overtime, batta, and other fluctuating allowances.

7. Any member of the Fund who resigns the service of the Company of his own accord before he has completed ten years' service, or who is dismissed for misconduct at any time, only to receive back the amounts he has contributed to the Fund, with compound interest thereon at the rate of four per cent. per annum up to the date of his retirement or dismissal, less any amount lost by the Company through his fraud or dishonesty.

8. Any member of the Fund who may resign the service of the Company of his own accord, and not on medical certificate, after ten but before the completion of twenty years' service, to receive, in addition to his own contributions, with four per cent. compound interest thereon, not more than one-half the rates of retiring gratuity or pension grantable in respect of his service and salary under Rule 10.

9. If any member of the Fund should die after completion of ten but before completion of twenty years' service, his contributions to the Fund, with four per cent. compound interest thereon up to the date of his death, shall be paid over to his family or other recognized heirs, together with the same gratuity as would have been allowed to him, under Rule 8, in the case of his voluntary resignation.

10. Pensions or gratuities to be allowed to members of the new Funds at the following rates on retirement from the Company's service, viz.:—

(a).—Up to fifteen years' service.—On medical certificate that the member is disqualified for further service, or if he is retired on account of reduction or re-organization of the establishment—a gratuity equal to one month's salary for every year of his service, such salary to be the average, under Rule 6, for the last five years of the member's service.

Besides this gratuity, the member's contributions to the Fund, with compound interest thereon at four per cent. per annum to date of his retirement, to be refunded to him.

(b).—After service of fifteen years.—On medical certificate, as above, a pension at the rate of twenty-five per cent. of the average salary drawn by the member during the five years previous to his retirement.

(c).—For each additional complete year of service after fifteen and up to twenty years' service the retiring pension on medical certificate of twenty-five per cent. to be increased by five per cent. of the average salary of the five years previous to retirement, giving upon retirement after twenty or more years' service a pension at the rate of one-half of the average salary of the five years previous to retirement.

(d).—No medical certificate to be necessary for retirement on pension after the attainment of fifty-five years of age, or after twenty or more years' service.

(e).—No pension to exceed Rs. 10,000 per annum.

(f).—In reckoning claims for pension, only complete years of service to count.

11. The medical certificate required to be that of a Board of reference consisting of the Company's principal Medical Officer, and, with the approval of Government, a Presidency Surgeon, and the Chairman for the time being of the Government Civil Service Medical Board in Bombay. All examination fees payable to any of these officers to be paid from the Fund.

12. All pensions and gratuities allowed under these Rules to be granted in the name of the Railway Company in whose service the member of the Fund concerned is employed.

13. All pensions to commence and gratuities to be due at date of the member's retirement from the service.

14. All pensions and gratuities payable to persons resident in India to be paid only in India and in rupees.

15. All pensions payable to retired European members of the establishment residing out of India to be payable in England only, and at the rate of exchange named for the Company's transactions in their contracts with Government. Retiring gratuities to such members to be paid in India in rupees, or in England at the above rate of exchange, at the option of the members concerned.

16. Service to include privilege leave, but no other leave or period of absence from duty.

17. Any member of the Fund who has once left the Company's service and received gratuity or pension under these Rules, but who may be re-employed by the Company, to reckon his second period of service only from the date of such re-employment as a ground of claim for further gratuity or pension on subsequent final retirement.

18. Upon the death of a member of the Fund after his retirement upon pension from the Company's service, the amount contributed by him to the Fund, with compound interest thereon at four per cent. per annum up to the date of his retirement, to be paid to his family, or as he may by will direct, or failing these, to his legal representatives, less one-half of any sum paid to him during his life by way of pension.

19. The assets of the existing Provident Funds to be made over to the Committee and Trustees of the respective "Pension and Retiring Allowance" Funds, less the proportion of the existing Provident Funds due at date of transfer to members of those Funds who are not eligible for membership of the new Funds, and to those members of the existing Provident Funds who, though eligible to join the new Funds, may elect, under Rule 5, not to join them.

20. All members of the "Pension and Retiring Allowance" Funds who become entitled to pension under the Rules to have the option of paying up in one or more instalments the whole or part of the amount required, in addition to the balance at their individual credit in the accounts of the Funds (including their share of the amount transferred from the existing Provident Funds), to make up the sum that would have been at their credit at date of their retirement if the "Pension and Retiring Allowance" Fund concerned had been in operation from the date when they became eligible to join it. The sum that would have so been at their credit to be calculated on the basis of a four cent. contribution on their monthly salaries, with compound interest thereon at the rate of four per cent. per annum. Any member who does not so pay up the balance required, to receive on retirement a pension bearing the same proportion only to the full pension allowable under these Rules in respect of his service and salary, as the amount actually at his credit, with interest to date of retirement, bears to the amount that would have been at his credit if he had been a member of the Fund from the beginning of his service.

21. The Railway Company concerned to provide from Revenue any amounts required from time to time to make good the grants to members of the Fund made under the Rules.

22. The Board of Directors to retain the right of dealing with special cases within the limits of the Rules, and to decide any point of difference between the Committee of Management and members of the Funds.

23. The modifications in the present Provident Fund Rules rendered necessary by the adoption of this new scheme to be specially considered and decided on by the Boards of Directors before transfer of any of the securities and moneys of those Funds to the Trustees of the respective new Funds.

The total quantity of food grains moved both ways on the canal as compared with the same period of the year 1877 was 1,765 mounds, but December's returns show that a reaction has taken place, and that the coarse kinds of grain are being moved upwards.

There is a fair demand for downward freights, cotton and salt being the principal items moved through to Cawnpore. Cotton shows an increase of about 15,000 mounds as compared with the same period last year, while salt is less by 10,000 mounds. There is no real falling off, the bulk of the salt traffic from Moradnagar, weekly returns give about the same quantity put down at the ghats as was done last year.

There is considerable improvement in the timber and firewood trade, but the bulk of this traffic is now carried by boats instead of rafts as formerly.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE, AGRICULTURE AND COMMERCE.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS
FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 25th MARCH 1879.

GENERAL REMARKS.—Prospects in Madras have improved in consequence of rain having fallen generally over the whole Presidency. This rain has also extended to some districts of Mysore. In Bombay the reaping of the rabi harvest has been nearly completed. Slight distress continues in two talukas of Sattara, as reported last week; in Kaladgi the people are leaving their homes in quest of employment; and in Dharwar rats are causing considerable damage. Otherwise prospects seem generally good. In the Central Provinces and Berar also the rabi has been almost completed with fair results. In Rajputana and Central India things are unchanged. In Bengal the rabi, which has, as elsewhere, been mostly gathered, has given a generally fair outturn, except in Rajshahiye, where it has been injured by want of rain. Some rain has fallen in Eastern Bengal and Orissa, but it is much wanted still in several districts both for the crops in the ground and for ploughing and sowing. In Assam also rain is greatly wanted; in Sylhet the price of rice is rising. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, prospects continue fair, and in the Punjab further improvement is reported.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE.

Port William, the 21st March 1879.

No. 1375.—Ordered that the following be published in the Gazette of India for general information:—

FINANCIAL.

INDIA OFFICE,

No. 45.

London, 6th February 1879.

To His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD,—I have to acquaint you that the rate of exchange for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and Indian Governments, for the year 1879-80, has been fixed, with the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, at one shilling and seven pence half-penny (1s. 7½d.) the rupee, and I have to request that you will give the necessary instructions for the due observance of this rate in respect of all transactions to which it is applicable.

I have the honor to be, &c.,
CRANBROOK.

REVENUE—SEPARATE REVENUE—OPIUM.

The 22nd March 1879.

No. 1368.—In exercise of the powers conferred by the Opium Act I of 1878, the Hon'ble the President in Council is pleased to direct that the said Act shall come into force in the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of Assam on the 1st day of April 1879.

POST OFFICE.

The 7th March 1879.

No. 1170.—Ordered that the following Resolution be published in the Gazette of India:—

It has been brought to the notice of the Government of India, that articles liable to Sea Customs duty are frequently imported into India through the Letter Post and thus escape the duty to which they are liable. Such importations are in direct contravention of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866, Section 60 of which Act declares that any cover supposed to contain articles subject to Customs duty may be opened by the Post Office authorities after due notice to attend has been given to the addressee.

His Excellency the Governor General in Council desires to remind the public that the importation through the Letter Post of goods liable to duty is illegal, and to notify for general information that the provisions of Section 60 of Act XIV of 1866 will be strictly enforced.

Ordered, that this Resolution be communicated to the several Local Governments and Administrations, and for information and guidance to the Director General of the Post Office of India.

REVENUE—SEPARATE REVENUE—POST OFFICE.

The 21st March 1879.

No. 1403.—The International Postal Convention signed at Paris on the 1st of June 1878, having necessitated various changes in the postal rates and conditions respecting correspondence with places abroad, the Hon'ble the President in Council, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by the Indian Post Office Act, 1868, is pleased to sanction the following revised rules, conditions, and postage rates in respect of articles transmitted by Foreign Post.

The new postage rates, rules and conditions shall have effect from the 1st April 1879, excepting those relating to Post Cards, regarding which a further Notification will be issued on the Cards in course of manufacture becoming available for use.

POSTAGE AND CONDITIONS OF TRANSMISSION BY FOREIGN POST.

Term "Foreign Post."

1. The term "Foreign Post" includes the posts under the control of the Government of India named below:

| | |
|---|---|
| India and the Straits | British India Steam Navigation Company via British Borneo. Opium Steamers direct to and from Calcutta. |
| India, China, and the United States of America via Hong-Kong | Opium Steamers via the Straits. |
| India and Ceylon | British India Steam Navigation Company. Coasting Steamers between Calcutta and Bombay. |
| India and Persia | British India Steam Navigation Company via Kurrachee and Persian Gulf. |
| India and Aden | British India Steam Navigation Company via Kurrachee. |

It also includes the land post between India and Ceylon. Also all mails sent by private ships or vessels, whether from one Indian Post Office to another, or to and from places abroad. Also all mails sent by Her Majesty's British packets (Peninsular and Oriental Company), or by Colonial packets, or by the French mail packets, whether from one Indian Post Office to another, or to and from places abroad.

Foreign Correspondence by private Vessel.

2. Mails can be sent by any private vessel leaving a port in India, but only such classes of mails are forwarded as can be received under the postal regulations of the country of destination. Baggy parcels cannot be sent to any foreign country by private vessel.

Letters, &c., intended for despatch by private vessel should be marked as such by the sender, the name of the vessel being given if transmission by a particular vessel is desired. Letters, &c., not so marked may be forwarded by private vessel if there be no regular mail communication with the country of destination.

Letters, &c., intended for despatch by private vessel must be fully prepaid by stamps at the ordinary Indian inland rates, and they will be liable on delivery in any foreign country to such postage as may be chargeable under the regulations of that country. This rule does not, however, apply to correspondence sent by private vessel to Ceylon, Hong-Kong, Mauritius, Seychelles or the Straits, for which see those entries in the Foreign Post Schedule.

Letters, &c., cannot be registered by private vessel.

Route by which forwarded.

3. The route by which an article is intended to be sent should be marked on the upper left-hand corner of the address side, and when possible the instructions so given will be followed. An article marked for a particular route, but not fulfilling the conditions of that route (e. g., in respect of compulsory prepayment of postage), will be treated as if not marked for any particular route. Articles not marked for any particular route will, as a general rule, be sent by the route which stands first in the Schedule, except where there is a quicker despatch by some other route, or where the first route may involve special expenses (e.g., by special train via Brindisi), or where it may require the compulsory pre-payment of a higher rate of postage than that which has or where the amount of postage doubt as to the route intended.

Correspondence from or to Zanzibar.

4. Correspondence passing direct between Aden and places abroad is ordinarily governed by the same conditions and is conveyed by the same routes as correspondence between India and places abroad: in cases where there are special conditions or routes applicable to correspondence from Aden, special mention thereof is made in the Schedule.

Correspondence from Aden to India or any Indian Post Office is charged at the rates shewn in the Schedule for correspondence from India to Aden. Zanzibar stands in the position of a branch office to Aden: correspondence to Zanzibar is governed by the conditions mentioned in the Schedule: and correspondence from Zanzibar is governed by the same conditions as if it were posted at Aden, unless it be addressed to Aden itself, when it is subject to ordinary inland rates and conditions.

Letters for Erzeroum and the interior of Armenia, West Arabia, Persia, Turkey, Asia Minor, Kashmir, Gilgit, Ladakh, Cabul, &c.

5. It is recommended that letters for Erzeroum and other parts of the interior of Armenia be addressed to the care of some agent at Samsoun or Trebizond.

Letters for Hodeida, Jedda, Mecca, Mocha or other places in West Arabia and Massowah (in Abyssinia) should be prepaid as far as Suez at the rate of postage prescribed for letters to Suez. From Suez they are forwarded to destination by Egyptian Post, or such opportunity as may offer. Any letter for Jedda or Mecca which may be specially marked by the senders for transmission through Aden; and prepaid at the rates of postage prescribed for letters to Aden, will be forwarded direct from Aden by the first private vessel.

Letters for Kiermanshah and Hamadan in Persia should be sent by the Indian inland post to the Indian Post Office at Bagdad, addressed to the care of some agent there: and letters for Teheran, Ispahan, Shiraz, Julfa or other places in Persia will be sent to the Persian Post Office at Bushire, which will forward them to destination.

Letters for such places in Turkey and Asia Minor or Syria, as have no British, Austrian or French Post Offices (see list of British, Austrian and French Offices in Turkey given in the Schedule), should be addressed to the care of an agent at the nearest port at which a British, Austrian or French Office has been established.

Letters and other articles for Kashmir are forwarded during the summer months (15th April to 1st November) through the Indian Post Office at Murree, and thence by Kashmir Post to Srinagar, where an Indian Post Office is maintained temporarily. During the summer, letters, &c., sent by this route are subject to the ordinary Indian inland rates of postage and to the ordinary rules as respects prepayment; but additional postage equal to half Indian postage is levied on delivery on behalf of the Kashmir Government. During the winter months, letters for Kashmir are forwarded to the Indian Frontier Post Office at Sialkot, and thence by Kashmir Post to Jummoo. This route is closed during the summer, when the Murree route is open.

Letters and other articles for Gilgit and Leh (Ladakh) are forwarded during the summer months (15th April to 1st November) through the Indian Post Office at Murree, and thence by the Kashmir post. During the winter months, letters for Gilgit and Leh are forwarded through the Indian Post Office at Sialkot, and thence by Kashmir post. The delivery at Leh is effected through an Indian Office at that place: but the transit to Leh is under the control of the Kashmir post. By either route, letters, &c., are charged on delivery by the Kashmir Government with postage equal to half Indian postage, in addition to ordinary Indian inland rates.

Letters for Cabul, if fully prepaid with ordinary Indian inland postage, are forwarded to the Indian Frontier Post Office at Peshawar, and there made over to the Postal Agent appointed by the Ameer of Cabul for delivery under local conditions and rates of charge. Mails are forwarded by the Agent towards Cabul about three times a week.

Addresses on Foreign Articles.

6. In the case of letters for places abroad, the name of the country (written clearly in large, well-formed characters), as well as the town or city, should be given in full. Attention to this rule will often assist in deciphering the name of the town or city, and will prevent the letter from being mis-sent when there are towns of the same name in different countries. The address of every letter to a place abroad should end with the name of the country. Names of foreign towns, cities or countries should be spelt in the address in the same way as in the Foreign Post Schedule: and the attention of foreigners is particularly directed to this point, as many of them are in the habit of spelling foreign names according to the foreign method. If the route by which the article is intended to be sent be given by the sender, it should be written on the upper left-hand corner, and if the name of the sender be given, it should be written on the lower left-hand corner.

Addresses on letters for Russia.

Letters, &c., for Russia should have, besides the name of the town, the name of the Province or Government in which they are situated; and further, the address must be plainly written. If these conditions be not complied with, the Russian Post Office declines to undertake the delivery of the correspondence.

Registration to places abroad.

7. Letters may be registered to those places abroad to which registration is available (vide Foreign Post Schedule), provided that the postage is fully prepaid, as well as the full amount of the registration fee shewn in the Schedule. Letters for places mentioned in clause 5 cannot be registered, except in the cases of those addressed to Srinagar and Leh, where Indian Post Offices have been established, or to Persia.

It is to be understood that registration to places abroad applies only to letters or packets prepaid at letter rates, except in respect of the United Kingdom and other countries belonging to

If the letter exceed half an ounce, how treated.

(3).—If the letter exceed half an ounce, or if any of the foregoing Regulations be not complied with, it will be forwarded, charged the same postage as an ordinary letter.

Letters addressed to care of Agent, or sent by or addressed to Soldiers or Seamen in Civil employ, not entitled to privilege.

(4).—Soldiers' or seamen's letters received in India from abroad, if addressed to the care of an agent or any other person, are liable to ordinary rate of postage, the privilege of receiving letters at reduced rates being confined to such letters as are addressed directly to the

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR DELIVERY OF OVERLAND CORRESPONDENCE (OFFICIAL AND PRIVATE) GOVERNMENT STAFFS, AND TO REGIMENTS WHEN ON THE MOVE.

Government Staffs.

(1).—The following arrangements have been made for the delivery in India of the overland correspondence (whether official or private) of the staffs of certain Governments and Administrations, with special reference to changes of Head-Quarters and Camp movements.

Special Mail.

(2).—A special mail will be made up by the Sea-Sorting establishment containing all fully prepaid letters, newspapers and book pattern packets addressed according to one or other of the specimen forms given below. Persons desirous of availing themselves of this measure should instruct their correspondents in England respecting the particular address to be used. Special attention is drawn to the note at the top of the list of specimen forms.

List of Specimen Forms.

Note.—The undermentioned forms of address, as will be observed, contain the name of no particular post town, and this point should be particularly noted, as the insertion of the name of any post town in the address will result in the article being sent to that post town instead of being included in the special bag.

Special bags.

(3).—These letters, &c., will be sorted by the Railway Travelling Post Office into special bags according to the addresses. (Nos. 1 to 4.) These special bags will be forwarded to the Post Office at the Head-Quarters or Camp of the Government or Administration mentioned in the address.

Changes of Head-Quarters, Camp, &c.

(4).—Changes in the Head Quarters as well as the Camp movements of any of the Governments or Administrations should be communicated some days in advance to the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay. The Secretary, Financial Department, will intimate the station or office of delivery for the Supreme Government on the occasion of its movements to and from Calcutta.

Special re-direction.

(5).—Any person expecting letters, &c., in such bags, and desiring them to be delivered at any other post town, should give instructions to the Post Master of the place to which the special bag is conveyed respecting the re-direction of such correspondence, or, if more convenient, he may request the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay, to cause his letters, &c., to be taken out in transit and re-directed according to his instructions. The officer above named will be ready to attend to all such instructions, provided that they are not of a complicated character.

Overland parcels and unpaid articles.

(6).—This arrangement does not apply to overland parcels or to unpaid or insufficiently paid articles: any overland parcels bearing addresses will be disposed of by the Bombay Post Office in communication with the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay; and any unpaid or insufficiently paid articles other than parcels will be disposed of under the orders of the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay, and will be forwarded to the same post town as that to which letters in the special bag, bearing the same address, would be sent.

Regiments on the move.

(7).—When a regiment is moved, the Officer Commanding may request the Superintendent, Overland Mails, Travelling Post Office, Bombay, to intercept all overland correspondence or the regiment addressed to the old post town, and to re-direct them to any other town. Complicated instructions cannot be attended to.

SEPARATE REVENUE—STAMPS.

The 21st March 1879.

No. 1385.—In exercise of the powers conferred by sections nine, fifteen, seventeen, thirty-two, fifty-one and fifty-six of the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, the Hon'ble the President in Council is pleased to make the following rules:—

(A).—Preliminary.

1. These rules shall come into force throughout British

No. 3968, dated 19th June 1874.

No. 1510, dated 14th March 1871.

No. 2623, dated 1st September 1876.

India on the 15th of April 1879, and on and from that day the Notifications noted in the margin shall be cancelled.

2. All words and expressions used in these Rules and defined in the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, shall be deemed to have the meaning attached to them respectively by the said Act.

3. There shall be three kinds of stamps for indicating the payment of duty on instruments under the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, namely—

(1.) Impressed stamps—that is to say, sheets of paper bearing the impression of stamps of different values engraved thereon and sold to the public for use by them in accordance with these rules.

(2.) Adhesive stamps sold to the public for use by them in the case of instruments mentioned in section ten of the said Act.

(3.) Stamped labels—to be affixed only by Government officers in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

(B).—Of Impressed Stamps.

4. All instruments chargeable with duty, except hundis, may be written on impressed stamps, and, except as provided by section ten of the said Act and by these rules, shall be so written.

5. When any instrument is to be written on an impressed stamp, if the amount of duty with which such instrument is chargeable does not exceed five hundred rupees, a single impressed stamp shall be used, unless—where the application for the required stamp is made at a treasury, the officer in charge of such treasury, or,

where such application is made to a stamp-vendor, the vendor

certifies that he is unable to furnish a single stamp of the required amount.

When the amount of duty chargeable in respect of any instrument exceeds five hundred rupees, or a treasury-officer or stamp-vendor has certified that he is unable to furnish a single stamp of the value required, the number of stamps used for indicating the payment of duty shall not exceed the number which the treasury-officer or the stamp-vendor certifies in either case to be the smallest number which he can furnish so as to make up the required amount:

Provided that no certificate made by a stamp-vendor under this rule shall be of any effect when there is at the date of the certificate a public treasury at which stamps are kept for sale situate within two miles from the place where such vendor sells stamps.
